Harriers End Undefeated Season With 17-44 Win Over Virginia

By Morty Schaap

Paced by Jimmy Miller and Jack Milne, who tied for first place, the Carolina cross country team concluded its second consecutive undefeated season in dual competition by outrunning Virginia, 17-44, in a meet run here Saturday morning.

The win gave the Tar Heels five victories for the season and a winning streak of 17 straight meets. The last time the harriers tasted defeat was to Navy in 1945.

Miller and Milne were timed in 20:31 for the four-mile course and they were followed by teammates Sam Magill and Alvin Smith, who crossed the line together. Cavalier ace George Troxel nosed out fellow-Virginian Marshall Evans for fifth place and chuck Herty rounded out the Carolina scoring by capturing seventh place.

others running, in the order of finish: Jim Hunt (UNC), unofficial; 8-tie between Frank Hooper, Halstead Holden and John Bristow (All of UNC); 10-Hazelgrove, Va.; 11-Randall, Va.; 12-Blakey, Va.; 13-Calhoun, Va.

Miller wound up his cross country career with a record of having gone through ten straight meets without losing. In every meet, he has finished in first place or in a first-place tie. This was also the last meet for Herty and Bristow.

The squad now will concentrate on work for the indoor season and Miller will aim his work towards the Sugar Bowl 3000-meter run on December 28.

Ranson Issues Call For Trackmen

With track season just around the corner and the Tar Heel cinder team hard hit by losses of key men, Coach Dale Ranson has issued a call for all men interested in coming for the sport.

A meeting of all lettermen, freshmen and new men is scheduled for 304 Woollen Wednesday afternoon at 4 o'clock.

A hard - floor and outdoor season schedule looms ahead and in order to keep up the standards of Carolina trackmen much new blood is needed. There are openings in all events and a freshmen schedule is being planned.

Chi Psi and Grads Scheduled to Tangle For Campus Grid Championship Tuesday

Chi Psi and the Grads will try once again to play off their postponed clash for the campus grid championship tomorrow afternoon, weather permitting, on mural field six at 4 o'clock.

Both teams were unbeaten during the regular season's play and the Grads downed last year's campus champs, Lewis, to capture the dormitory title. The Chi Psi gridders were unscored-on for most of the season.

Two other games will also be played to determine the runner-up in both the dormitory and fraternity divisions. DKE and Zeta Psi tangle on field five at 4 o'clock and Oakwood Drive and Lewis meet on field seven at the same time.

The Carolina badminton team, sponsored by the mural department, journeys to Raleigh tomorrow to meet a team from that city in a league-scheduled affair.

Jayvees Whip Middies, 19-7

Two touchdowns in the closing minutes of their Turkey Day season's finale in Annopolis gave Carolina's undefeated Jayvees a 19-7 victory over Navy's potent junior varsity.

Trailing 7-6 after the Middies had tallied with only seven minutes remaining in the game, the Tar Babies forged into the lead when Ed Washington grabbed a Navy aerial just inside Sailor territory and raced all the way to paydirt for the second Carolina touchdown. Jerry Allen converted to give the locals a 13-7 lead.

A few minutes later, Jack Brasington halted a frantic Middie rally by intercepting another errant heave on the Navy 30 and returned it to the 5. Flanker Sam McCauley reeled off four yards on an end-around play and then Bob Koontz bulled over for the final Tar Baby score and his second touchdown of the game.

The Carolinians scored the second time they had the ball. A 25-yard pass from Gus Purcell to Washington sparked the 65-yard Tar Baby opening period scoring march. Bob Koontz smashed over for the Carolina tally. Allen's kick was wide.

Navy tallied in the fourth quarter on a 35-yard pass and the following conversion gave them their short-lived 7-6 lead.

The Tar Babies wound up their five-game season with their record marred only by the 6-6 tie with Virginia. Besides sinking Navy's boat, their four victories included a 13-0 decision over South Carolina, a 6-0 win over N. C. State, and a 13-7 triumph over Duke.

Justice Paces Tar Heels To 40-7 Win Over Outplayed Cavaliers In Finale

By Bill Carmichael III

Charlie Justice and Company —or better said—Charlie Justice, Unlimited, gave an interesting hour-long demonstration of running, kicking, passing, blocking, and tackling to the visiting Cavaliers of the University of Virginia in Kenan Stadium Saturday afternoon before some 40,000 delighted fans who sat in air-conditioned Indian summer weather. The score amounted to 40-7.

Justice's running and passing keynoted the Tar Heels' 475-yard offense, broken down into 338 by the ground method, and 137 through the air lanes. The Asheville Ambler ran in breath-holding style for 141 yards, passed for 30 more, and caught a touchdown pass from Hosea Rodgers to add an extra 27 yards to the total.

Not that Justice was the entire show, for he definitely was not. There were big holes in the Virginia line all afternoon and the Cavaliers spent much of the day recovering from the turf where they had been placed by murderous Tar Heel blockers. On defense the Tar Heels almost completely neutralized the Virginia offense as far as the scoring column was concerned, except in the fourth period when the Virginians pushed across a score on Carolina's stars of future years, whom Coach Carl Snavely ran into the game in the course of playing his entire bench.

Score Six Times

As denoted by the score, the Tar Heels tallied six times during the afternoon, Justice (2), Pupa, Camp, Clements, and Powell crossing the promised line. Pupa tallied his in the early part of the game, being hurt a few minutes later and being forced to retire for the day. Camp, like Pupa playing his last game, turned in possibly his best game in gathering 74 yards in 10 carries. The how, when, and where of the scores went as follows:

Touchdown No 1.: was set up when Cavalier end Carlton Elliott fumbled the return of Pupa's kickoff on the Virginia 35, and Mike Rubish promptly recovered for the locals. Justice hit right tackle for six on the first play from scrimmage and then swept wide to the left behind some plain and fancy blocking to move to the Virginia 18 before going out of bounds. Pupa next countered with a bull-like plunge for 11 to the seven, and then bucked to the 3. On the following play Justice ran naked wide to the 1, with Pupa coming back to score on a plunge over right tackle. Cox added the point. Time: 2:20.

Touchdown No. 2

Touchdown No. 2: (Second quarter) was a 71-yard drive that was featured by 1) a 11-yard end run by Justice; 2) an 11-yard plunge by Rodgers; 3) a delayed double reverse by Camp for 10 more to the Virginia 10; 4) an inside reverse to the right which saw Johnny Clements shake two tacklers and score standing up. Cox missed the point. Time: 7:45.

Touchdown No 3): (Second quarter) was a 50-yard push which Justice began with a 10-yard end run. A clipping penalty set the Tar Heels back to the Virginia 43, but Justice came back with a pass to Art Weiner on the 20. Rodgers tossed unsuccessfully on the next two tries, but on fourth down he threw in the wide secondary to Justice, who made a lovely didn't-miss-a-stride catch of the ball on the 13, and raced alone into the end zone. Cox converted. Time: 14:20.

Touchdown No. 4: (Third quarter) got an early start when Justice grabbed George Grimes' kickoff on the Carolina 5, danced up the north sidelines to the 30, then cut cross field, finally being trapped and run down at the Virginia 23. Rodgers bulled cent-

All-Conference... ...By United Press

Local Players Receive Honors

Three Tar Heel gridders were named to the United Press All-Southern conference grid eleven announced Friday afternoon.

Charlie Justice, Art Weiner, and Bob Cox were the Carolina stars honored by the balloting. Justice received the highest number of votes among the backs and Weiner was the number one choice of all linemen.

William and Mary's conference titleholders gained the most positions on the first team—four —and Duke came up with a pair of selections. Maryland and Wake Forest took the remaining places.

Accompanying Justice in the backfield are the two high scorers in the conference, Maryland's Lu Gambino and Jack Cloud of the Dixie bowl-bound Indians. The fourth member was the mainstay of the Duke grid outfit, Fred Folger.

In between the two Tar Heel flankmen, the forward wall had William and Mary's Ralph Sazio and Duke's Louis Allen at the tackle slots, Knox Ramsey of the Indians and Bob Leonetti of Wake Forest as the guards, and Tommy Thompson of W & M at center.

Justice, Cloud, and Ramsey were repeaters from the 1946 team.

Pupa On Second Team

Lone Carolina player to rate a second team berth was fullback Walt Pupa. Wake Forest monopolized the runner-up unit by placing five players—backs Tom Fetzer and Nick Ognovich, center Harry Clark, guard Ed Royston, and end Jim Duncan. The rest of the second team had back Stan Magdziak and end Bob Steckroth of William and Mary, guard Bill Davis of Duke, and tackles Jack Ittner of VPI and Malachi Mills of VMI.

Tackle Ted Hazelwood was the only Tar Heel named on the third team. Carolina players receiving honorable mention included end Mike Rubish, tackles Haywood Fowle and Len Szafaryn, guard Sid Varney, and backs Hosea Rodgers and Jim Camp.

Yanks, Browns, Top All-American

New York, Nov. 30—(UP)—The New York Yankees and Cleveland Browns will meet on December 14 here in the Yankee stadium to settle the All-America conference championship.

The Yankees won the right to be the host team this year by clinching the eastern division title with a 35-13 win over their nearest challengers, the Buffalo Bills. It was a close game at halftime, with the Yankees holding a slim 14-6 lead. But in the final two periods, the New Yorkers' seemingly unstoppable Spec Sanders went over three times to lead the Yankees on to the rout.

The Browns, last year's champions, wrapped up the western division title a few weeks ago.

Only other game played in the conference today resulted in a 14-7 triumph for the Baltimore Colts over the Chicago Rockets.

The championship New York Yankees batted .232 in the 1947 World Series. The Dodgers' batting figure was .230.

Football Managers

Among the unsung heroes behind Carolina's football success during 1947 are the five student managers, headed by George Hogan. The others include Tom Lindley, Henry Moore, Jack Ford, and Dewey English.

Bears, Eagles Lead In National Loop

New York, Nov. 30 — (UP)— The Philadelphia Eagles and Chicago Bears are leading their respective divisions in the National Football league, but neither team has anything even faintly resembling a safe margin.

Philadelphia moved ahead of Pittsburgh today by beating the Steelers, 21-20, with the league's leading groundgainer, Steve Van Buren, going over for two of the touchdowns.

At the same time, the New York Giants finally got around to winning their first game of the year. The Chicago Cardinals were the victims, 35-31, and the loss cost the Windy City club a chance to move into a tie for the western division lead with their intracity rivals, the Bears.

As it now stands Philadelphia can clinch a tie for the Eastern title with a victory in one of its two remaining starts, against the Cardinals and Green Bay. The Eagles have a 7-3 record, while the Steelers have a 7-4 slate, winding up against Boston next Sunday.

Three Regulars from Last Year Will Open for Phants Wednesday

Although most of the campus was deserted last weekend because of the Thanksgiving festivities, there was plenty of activity every holiday afternoon down in Woollen gym where basketball mentor Tom Scott was continuing his efforts to whip the Tar Heel cagers into shape for their opening tilt with Catawba college on the local court Wednesday night.

Scott sent his cagers through a series of intensive scrimmages during the Turkey Day classroom layoffs and four familiar faces were running in the starting five. The quintet that will probably open the 1948 season against the Indians included Bob Paxton and freshman Bill Miller at the forward spots, Nemo Nearman in the pivot slot, and Norm Kohler and King Cole at the guard berths. An infected toe caused Kohler to miss some of the holiday drills, but he is expected to be ready by Wednesday.

Coy Carson and Fred Swartzburg were running at forward on the second five, with John "Hook" Dillon at center, and Rip Ryan and Taylor Thorne filling the guard slots. The third team was composed of forwards Roger Scholbe and Dick Hartley, center Norm Mitchell, and Guards Vic Seixas and Dan Nyimicz.

Freshman Council To Sponsor Dance

The Freshman Friendship Council of the YMCA will sponsor a dance at Women's College, Greensboro on Saturday, December 6.

Transportation between Chapel Hill and the dance will cost $1.31 round-trip by chartered bus. Freshmen are requested to indicate whether they desire to use the bus at the time they receive their bid. Only 400 bids will be distributed by the Council due to the capacity of the gymnasium at WC.

Regardless of the means of transportation, all UNC and WC freshmen will meet on the Women's College Quadrangle at 7:30 p.m.

The dance will begin in the gym at 8 o'clock and will terminate no later than midnight. Committees here and at WC who planned the dance ruled out all ungentlemanly conduct. The committees reserve the right to ask persons behaving in such a manner to leave the dance.

EXPENSE ACCOUNT

All candidates for Coed Senate are requested to turn in their expense accounts to Katie Guion in Spencer by six o'clock today. If no expenses have been incurred a statement must be made accordingly. Failure to comply with this request will disqualify candidates.

Educator Is Here To Conduct Survey

The president of the national university of Guatemala, Dr. Carlos Martinez Duran, arrived in Chapel Hill Friday for a week's survey of the University's organization and building plans.

Dr. Duran and his wife are making a five-week tour of Catholic University, Princeton University, and the University of North Carolina, as guests of the State department. He is making observations of these three schools to get useful ideas to incorporate into plans for the proposed extension of the national University of San Carlos, a new "University City" to be constructed on the outskirts of the capital of Guatemala.

GASTONIA CLUB MEETS

The Gastonia-Carolina Club will meet at 8 o'clock tonight in Horace William's lounge, Graham Memorial. At this time final plans will be made for the Christmas dance slated for December 29, at the Morris Field Officer's Club, Charlotte. Committees will be elected and tickets will be distributed at this meeting. Also tentative plans for the orchestra will be discussed.

er on the following play and reached the 10 before tumbling to the turf.

Justice Scores Again

Justice next ran wide to the left to the four, and then chased back to the right, hit the tackle hole, and toppled into the end zone for the score. Cox did the honors. Time 2:43. Score: 27-0.

Touchdown No. 5: (Third quarter) An eighty yard drive with Justice, Fitch, Rodgers, Camp, and Weiner carrying the ball the distance in 11 plays, the culminating action being an 18-yard reverse which Camp carried inside to the left, eluded the backer, slipped down the sidelines, was hit on the two, but wriggled away and dropped into the end zone for the touchdown. Cox did it again. Time: 8:10.

Touchdown No. 6: (Fourth quarter) was set up when Grimes was forced to kick from his goal line, Maceyko returning the ball to the Virginia 45. Three running plays netted six yards, and then Maceyko drifted back to pass, hit Kenny Powell on the 23, where the Danville, Va., end shook off one potential tackler, George Neff, and stepped for the end zone. Sherman, not Cox, failed to convert. Time: 4:50.

Virginia Scores

Virginia started well and finished well; they won the toss and scored the last touchdown. Grimes, whose punting helped keep the score as low as it stayed, scored the Cavalier tally as the final act of a 79-yard drive the Virginians engineered, after receiving the kickoff following the last Tar Heel score. The visitors turned the trick in exactly 10 plays. Grimes darting the last five yards on a quick opening play, to score standing up. Grimes added the point to monopolize the Virginia scoring. Captain Lockwood Frizzell, for the record, won the toss for Cavaliers.

Halftime Band Show

A brilliant halftime band show was put on by some eight visiting high school bands under the directorship of University band head, Earl Slocum. The musicians spelled out V-I-R-G-I-N-I-A- while playing the Cavalier alma mater song, then turned to the south sidelines to form C-A-R-O-L-I-N-A- and render "Hark the Sound".

Mendenhall is a member of the business staffs of the Daily Tar Heel and of Tarnation. He is also a dormitory floor councilor. President Allen Pettiway of Manly dormitory is also on the CP ticket. Pettiway is also a member of the interdormitory council and the past social chairman of UVA.

Other members of the party slate for the men's dorms include Bud Rhinehart, vice president of Lewis dormitory, President Joe Johnson of Old West dormitory and Stan Smith of Asheboro. Johnson is a member of the interdormitory council, the university club, and the Graham memorial board, and a past freshman councilor. Smith is past vice president of Grimes dormitory and a Di man.

Qualifications of Di senate member Bob Birer, and of Ben Kistler were not available at DTH presstime.

Entire Campus Votes In General Election Today

Valkyries Tap 11 In Pre-Dawn Ceremony

In a traditional and impressive ceremony before sunrise this morning, Valkyries, the major coed honor society on campus, initiated eleven new neophytes and one honorary member.

Black-gowned figures, tolling gongs, invaded dormitories and sorority houses to tap the coeds shown from left to right above. They are, top row: Sara Buchanan, Hendersonville; Joan Butler, Dade City, Fla.; Miriam Evans, Asheville; Ruth Evans, Fort Knox, Ky. Second row: Marcella Harrer, Chapel Hill; Margaret Healy, Langley Field, Va.; Donleen MacDonald, New Orleans, La.; Margaret McWilliams, Charlotte. Bottom row: Jane Rogers, Chapel Hill; Gray Simpson, Danville, Va.; Emily Von Borries, Winston-Salem. The mysteriously awakened honorary member was Miss Mary Frances Kellam of Durham.

Admission into Valkyries is the highest recognition given to women. With its membership limited to no more than 2 per cent of the coed enrollment, this society taps girls on the basis of their outstanding character, effective leadership, fine scholarship, unselfish service, and sound judgment.

Current Valkyries officers and additional members are Joe Fishel, president; Marshall Spears, vice-president; Julia Ross, secretary; Bill Lloyd, treasurer; and Barbara Cashion, alumnae chairman.

Campus Gives $662 To Friendship Train In Recent Campaign

Lawrence T. Queen, chairman of the U.N.C. Friendship Train Committee, announced here today that the $662.50, collected during the local Friendship Train Drive, has been forwarded to Drew Pearson, National Chairman of the Friendship Train Drive.

Began In November

The local campaign began here on November 19 and ended on Wednesday, November 26. Contributions were collected through cooperation with Chancellor Robert B. House, who forwarded the total amount collected to National Chairman Drew Pearson on November 28.

Chancellor House, in an accompanying letter, expressed his praise for the support that the local drive was given by the students, faculty and townspeople, and at the same time congratulated Pearson for "a very great idea."

Expresses Thanks

Queen expressed his thanks for the able assistance and cooperation received during the campaign and stated that the drive was a success only through the fine work of members of the committee, and cooperation of students, faculty, and townspeople.

The committee, headed by Queen, was composed of 21 members of a newswriting class in the department of Journalism. The campaign served a dual purpose in that it afforded members of the newswriting class practical experience in journalism, as well as giving them an opportunity to contribute to the national efforts to relieve suffering in Europe.

Pre-Registration Deadline Tomorrow

Tomorrow is the last day on which a student can make an appointment with his advisor to pre-register for the next term before the Christmas holidays, according to a reminder today from Dean C. P. Spruill of the General college.

Those students who fail to make these appointments at the information desk in South building will have to wait until after the December holidays to go through the regular registration lines, Spruill warned.

Students Quitting School Number 128

With a warning that "They know not what they do!", Edwin S. Lanier announced yesterday that 128 students have withdrawn from the University so far this quarter, endangering their scholastic standing here and at any other university which they may consider reentering.

Statistical Breakdown

Lanier's files show that 109 men and 19 coed students, including 81 male and 3 female veterans, have quit school here between September and November 30 of this year. The General College lost 82 students; the school of Arts and Sciences, 18; the Graduate school, 14; the Commerce school, 7; the Law school, 4; the Pharmacy school, 2; and Medical school, 1.

The average student who left the University was a single 19-year-old North Carolinian in his sophomore year who suffered bad health in the month of October. Although only three students quit at the beginning of this term in September, there were 70 more withdrawals by October and 55 in November. The youngest student to discontinue his studies was 18 while the oldest was 48.

Reasons Given

In all, 99 single and 29 married students gave various reasons for their withdrawing. Illness led the list of explanations, followed closely by inadequate finances—especially among veterans. Other causes mentioned were getting jobs, being needed at home, transferring, having no living quarters, and re-enlisting in the armed services. Suspension by the Men's Honor Council accounted for only four of those gone.

"Many students," Lanier said, "think that because they are not doing passing work this quarter, they might as well stop school now and come back a term or so later to Carolina. What they forgot is this University's ruling concerning withdrawals after mid-term and readmission. It would be far better for students—even those whose failure seems inevitable—to complete the present quarter and get as much good as possible

Debaters Win

(Special to the Daily Tar Heel)

COLUMBIA, S. C., Dec. 1—The University of North Carolina debating team out-talked the South Carolina university debaters here tonight on the question ,Resolved: That a federal world government should be established.

Randy McLeod and Merle Stevens took the honors by winning the decision after arguing the affirmative side of the question. Results of the negative debaters have not been announced at this time.

The entire debating team made the trip here today and is expected to leave for Chapel Hill sometime tomorrow.

Philanthropic Society To Hold Debate On Taxation of Retail Co-Ops' Profits

The taxation of co-operative retail organizations will be the subject for debate before the Philanthropic Literary Society tonight at 9 o'clock in the Phi hall. The assembly bill, which will be introduced by Speaker pro-tem Chester D. zum Brunnen, favors legislation by Congress to make profits used by the co-ops subject to federal taxation, and also to make the organization subject to present anti-trust legislation.

"The profits of a co-operative concern should be just as susceptible to taxation as the profits of any commercial firm," stated zum Brunnen, who will speak in favor of the bill. He added, "in both instances profits are enjoyed by owners and stock holders, thus benefiting the public as well as the individual."

Representatives Charles Dixon of Gaston, Jim McNider of Perquimmens, and Page Harris of Durham county will support the bill, basing their arguments on their contentions that co-ops are a menace to free enterprise.

The opposition will be led by Representatives Earnest House of McDowell county and Bill Duncan of Macon.

Applicants for membership to the assembly are urged to attend this meeting. The public is also cordially invited.

Positions Are Open On Councils, Senate, Student Legislature

By Chuck Hauser

The political battle of the ballots opens up again this morning at 9 o'clock following a week's truce for freshmen and junior voters and a month and a half of peace for the campus as a whole, which elected a board of editors for the Yackety Yack on October 14.

Positions open on the Student council, Men's council, Coed Senate, and Student Legislature will be filled by today's voting, in addition to the runoff elections for junior and freshman class officers.

BULLETIN

Al Winn, Elections board chairman, released the announcement at approximately midnight last night that the deadline for turning in campaign expense statements had been moved up to 8:30 this morning, after which time all persons not having turned in their statements are disqualified.

For the third time in a general campus election, polls will be open in four separate places, Gerrard hall, Aycock dormitory, Lenoir hall, and Alderman dormitory. The four-polls system was begun with last spring's general election and was recently employed in the Yack balloting.

Polls will be open from 9 o'clock this morning until 6 o'clock this afternoon. Al Winn, chairman of the Elections board, has announced, and all students must present official ID cards to be able to vote. The cards will be stamped on the back as each person receives his ballot.

Four Polls

Students residing in the following listed areas must vote at their cording to the elections system own particular polling places, acnow in operation.

Gerrard hall: Residents of Carr, Smith, coeds not in dorms, Steele, BVP, Old East, Old West, Nash, Miller, Whitehead, men in fraternity houses and in town, Victory Village, Pittsboro trailer camp.

Aycock dormitory: Residents of Aycock, Graham, Stacy, Everett, Lewis, Quonset huts, Alexander.

Lenoir hall: Residents of Mangum, Manley, Grimes, Ruffin, Emerson field house, Fetzer field house.

Terps vs. Georgia In Gator Classic

Jacksonville, Fla., Dec. 1—(UP)—Georgia and Maryland will meet in the Gator Bowl's third football game here New Year's Day.

J. Barrington Darby, Gator Bowl selection committee chairman, made the announcement today after watching Maryland play its last game — a scoreless tie with N. C. State—last Saturday.

Greensboro Students Will Organize Club

A meeting of Greensboro students will be held at 105 Bingham hall tonight at 7:30 for the purpose of organizing a Greensboro-Carolina club, Neil Beard and Henry Reynolds said yesterday.

The purpose of the meeting, said Reynolds, will be to elect officers and to make plans for a Christmas dance. The objective of the club, he added, will be to promote friendship among the Greensboro students at the University.

Architecture Here, Abroad To Be Discussed by Allcott

John Allcott, head of the Department of Art, will give an illustrated lecture on "College Architecture, USA and Abroad" at Person Hall Art Gallery Thursday afternoon at 5 o'clock. This lecture will be given in conjunction with an exhibition in Person Hall of New School Architecture.

Mr. Allcott will show examples of American and foreign campuses and college buildings. Beginning with eighteenth century examples, he will follow with architecture of today and plans for the future.

American schools shown will include the University of North Carolina, Yale, Smith, Michigan, Wisconsin, Illinois Institute of Technology, Wheaton, Florida Southern, Oklahoma. Foreign examples will include the University City, Rio; the Bauhaus, Dessau; the Swiss Pavilion, Paris; and others. In these examples are works by the world's most famous architects, Corbusier, Frank Lloyd Wright, Gropius.

The lecture will show through many photographs and drawings the effort of architecture to serve the student in his daily life.

CICA Will Give Dance Saturday

The Carolina Independent Coed association will hold a semi-formal dance Saturday night from 9 until 1 o'clock in the Women's gymnasium. Johnny Satterfield's orchestra, under the direction of Nelson Benton, will play. Scotty Dellinger, CICA social chairman, has made the arrangements for the event.

The association has invited two representatives from each sorority, two from Town Girls' association and two from the Stray Greeks organization and their escorts to attend the dance.

Tickets will be on sale in the CICA room upstairs in the Y today through Friday from 9 until 1 o'clock.

Wesleyans to Hear Prayer Discussion

Meeting for the last time this term, the married couples and graduate members of the Wesley foundation will hear a discussion on "The Meaning of Prayer" in the Methodist church dining room tonight. Leading the discussion will be Richard Britson, Dean Engstrom, and Gay Currie.

An Oriental supper will be served for the group at 7:00 o'clock, with the program following. Through the cooperation of the YWCA, the Wesley foundation is able to secure free baby-sitting service for all parents who wish to attend. Parents may phone Mr. Nelson, 6287, to arrange for this service.

This group of older students meets every other Tuesday night during the year. It is non-denominational in character, and all interested persons are invited to attend.

RALEIGH CLUB

The Raleigh-Carolina club will meet at the Pi Kappa Alpha house tonight at 7:45 to present final plans for a Christmas dance and to distribute bids.

Ibsen Is Brought Up to Date By University Collaborators

By Mark Sumner

A chance meeting between Kai Jurgensen of Copenhagen, Denmark, and Robert Schenkkan of Brooklyn, N. Y., in the scene shope of the Carolina Playmakers back in 1941, led to modern American language translations of 11 plays by Henrik Ibsen, Norwegian playwright famed as the father of social drama.

The translations are to be published next spring by Henry Holt company, and one, "An Enemy of the People", is being staged by the Playmakers in a test production on December 3,4,5, and 6, as the second major production of their 30th season.

In 1941, both Jurgensen and Schenkkan were graduate students in the department of dramatic art. They met while on scenery. That fall they enrolled for the graduate seminar, a study of Ibsen, and according to Jurgensen, "we found that although Ibsen's plays were still being acted throughout Europe, few were being staged in America. We decided that a modern American translation would make the plays actable for present day audiences."

For their seminar project, they chose to translate an acting version of Ibsen's "Peer Gynt", and it was so successful that the Playmakers staged it in the Forest theater in the spring of 1942.

Schenkkan explained: "We tried to keep the speeches modern and direct, because what counts is how well an actor could deliver the line."

Schenkkan and Jurgensen are proudest of their translation of "Peer Gynt", but they have several of their other Ibsen plays scheduled for test productions by theater groups in all sections of the country.

Both men had served an apprenticeship in playwriting before going to work on the Ibsen translations. Jurgensen's full length drama, "Down to the Sea", was staged by the Playmakers in 1943, in addition to three of his one act plays, and several of Schenkkan's one act plays, including "Black Piet", "Boer Commander", and "Madame President" have been staged by the Playmakers.

ROBERT SCHENKKAN AND KAI JURGENSEN

Sir, Have You Voted Yet?

The reasons behind a man's abstaining from using his voting privilege has been a poser for us for many years. It dates back to the times we used to get up early on election morning, rush down to our district precinct and wait for the local politicians to hire us to give out their campaign material to the potential voters.

We would stand around the polls all day long and ask the same question, "Sir, have you voted yet?" as we handed out cards with our boss' picture on it and his four "planks for the people." Most of the people we queried answered in the negative. A good percentage of them turned into the tent to vote, but quite a large portion of the potential voters hurried on past the voting place without any hesitation. They were people we knew lived in our precinct, they were people who lived down the street from us and who did not return later in the day to cast their ballot.

It was a question for which we could not supply a satisfactory answer. We would remember reading in our civics book about American Democracy—the government by and for the people. We couldn't figure out why a citizen would not exercise his voting rights. We still cannot supply an answer.

We do not believe that an individual does not have the few minutes it takes to cast his vote for a person who is willing to spend several hours each week in the student legislature or attending sessions of a campus council. We cannot make ourselves believe that students are not interested in student government and in securing the most efficient officers possible.

Why then do we not vote? It is not logical to assume that a man is better qualified for a job if he received a greater number of votes than his opponent, but it does give the newly-elected a greater confidence in themselves and if the majority of the students voted in the election it does much toward creating a driving interest in student activities.

Today the polls will open to give you the opportunity to elect almost one-half of your representatives in the student legislature for next year as well as other officers of importance. Show your interest in the preservation of a strong student government by casting a vote for representatives of your own choosing.

Lost or Strayed: the Party Platform

Sadly lacking yesterday when the student political groups made their usual bid—via the DTH—for student votes, were the customary lists of gripes and pledges commonly known as party platforms.

Campus, Student and University parties were content to seek support by asking students to consider the merits of the individual candidates. It is the common ground on which the rival factions have met: vote for the man, if he's a good joe he's bound to do the right thing in office.

Not quite so. Our list of acquaintances includes an imbecile in a mountain town who is the soul of generosity. We would hesitate to give him our vote for a responsible office solely because he gives away his shoes. He would have to tell us what he stood for, what he would try to do.

A platform often accomplishes that purpose.

Credit should go to Jess Dedmond, chairman of the Campus party who did publish a platform. His platform declared the need to keep "orientation up to or higher than the level reached this fall," and pledged the CP to exert efforts to secure an inter-communication system for men's dormitories. Not very extensive, but better than nothing.

We readily admit that platforms can be inane, that they can be misleading, that they too often are empty promises.

Nonetheless, it is through this medium (and through the DTH) that campus issues and problems are brought to the attention of the public. It is through this medium that students can determine where their vote would have the most effect. It is through this medium that students avoid buying a pig in a poke.

Our belief: get a platform. You can't tell the UP from the CP from the SP without a platform. —B.S.

Only a Modest Proposal

It's only a suggestion, but it appears to be coming from more and more residents of the quonset hut area. These men, living under conditions reminiscent of army training camps, are primarily interested in moving out, but while there, being only human, they are rumored to desire come occasional sleep.

Which brings us, in roundabout fashion to the suggestion and to the point of this article. According to sleepless hutters such as Curt Montgomery, it is not right either to limit residents who want to spend the night in 'bull' sessons or card games to force the men who would like to sleep to lie awake because of these activities.

In the opinion of many of the men in the area, it likewise is not necessary to accept one of these alternatives. It would be necessary only for a recreation hut to be opened in the area.

The logical time for this move, according to its supporters, would be between the fall and winter quarters while the area is empty for the Christmas season.

Many of the huts are not full at the present time, and it would be a simple matter to clear one completely and furnish the tables and chairs necessary to open a hut to the 'midnight oil' boys.

We would like to add a word in favor of this suggestion. It would mean a loss to the University of about $300 a quarter in rent, assuming that the huts are to be kept 100 per cent occupied, but this is a small amount compared to the saving in nerves and convenience to the men concerned.

Students in the area are among the losers in the present situation of crowded conditions throughout American universities. In order to receive a college education, they are living under conditions similar to those of an East side slum.

We do not think that $300 a quarter is too much to pay to decrease their handicap. We would like to recommend action on this matter to the administration or to student government. It may be a small improvement, but then it's only a modest proposal. —J.S.

This Is It

Worldwide Human Rights

By John Roeder

The necessity for reenforcement of American Human Rights is being given much needed publicity. At a recent meeting of the local chapter of the AVC there was a discussion of the achievements and the failures of the President's Committee's report. And at a meeting in the near future attention will be directed toward the coming International Declaration of Human Rights.

The Drafting Committee of the UN Commission on Human Rights has been formulating, during the past few months, an "International Declaration on Human Rights" which will be submitted to the Human Rights Commission of the United Nations in Geneva this month.

Working under the Economic and Social council, the committee, at first, attempted to construct both a Convention on Human Rights and a Declaration on Human Rights.

A convention is a treaty which once passed by the U. N. General Assembly and ratified by a prescribed number of nations, would be enforceable as International Law. Therefore the problems which would confront those who are attempting to construct a document which all nations would accept are enormous. Such a document would be,of necessity, a much watered down version of the aims of the commision.

Conceptions of Human Rights, today, vary, The citizen of the United States has certain "inalienable rights" guaranteed by the Constitution. These American Rights are Individual Rights. But would we be willing to accept, as a portion of the law by which we are bound, and as a portion of International Law, the abolishment of all racial discrimination?

The Soviet Constitution guarantees certain social and economic rights, but the rights of the individual are subordinated to the rights of the social group or the state. Would the Soviet be willing to accept, as world law, those principles of individual rights which are considered sacred to Americans?

These are merely two obvious examples of a single problem which faces any committee attempting to create a binding International Bill of Rights.

Thus, for the time being, the United Nations has put in abeyance the idea of a binding International Convention. But this month, in Geneva, a Declaration on Human Rights will be presented to the International Commission.

A distinguished group of delegates from the United States, Russia, England, Lebonon, France, Chile, China, and Australia are drawing up the tentative draft. Social and Economic, as well as Individual and Political rights are to be embodied in the Declaration.

If accepted and approved by the International Commission, the Declaration will have no binding, legal force, but it will be a standard to be aimed at throughout the world. It will have a tremendous international moral influence. When the world has made itself ready to enforce Human Rights, in all nations, in all states, the Declaration will be a foundation upon which binding International Law can be built.

The Secretariat of the UN in drawing up the outline of what the Declaration should include, stated principles which must be repeated by all men, always:

".....there can be no peace unless human rights and freedoms are respected;..... man does not have rights only; he owes duties to the society of which he forms a part;..... there can be no human freedom or dignity unless war and the threat of war is abolished."

Letters which contain obscene or libelous statements or letters which do not comply with these stipulations will not be published

Potential Voters:

Most of us have successively shrugged disinterested shoulders at any mention of the coming election—today—for only half the members of Student Legislature for next year! After all, how could this be very important? You and I know that the campus politicos are just an ineffective bunch of blowhards! And besides, with the world going to hell on a jet-propelled pogo-stick—why should we bother to lift our heads out of a bucket of suds just to go down and vote? Anyhow, we'd probably have to stand in line—and you know how allergic most GI's are to "queues."

Heck, what difference will it make ten years from now (when we're at war?) What difference could it make who gets elected to the Student Legislature in a little town in a medium-sized University in an insignificant county in one of the nation's less influential states? Who gives a damn which nincompoops are elected? Who cares which clowns will be in charge of spending student funds; or, which puppets handle our student constitution pass laws concerning the student body, keep an eye on the expense accounts of student officers, and in general, act as "the most influential, important and vital of all of our student governmental organs!"

Some of us are far too busy to dabble in so-called "campus politics"—we must relax, take it easy, let up and light up while we can! Besides—we don't know the candidates, and what's more — we don't have time to find out who they are, much less to help nominate them! We have long lives ahead—in which to become good, democratic citizens out in the big world where our votes will really count!

But, don't squawk when we wake up the day after elections with a bunch of incompetents in office. Remember—they are just the boys that the political wheels can handle. And the political wheels are so much better than we are, aren't they? So, when the tools start taking orders just remember that we let them run the show for us by default.

There's no truer saying than the fact that "lousy public officials are elected by good upright citizens who don't vote!" So, don't let's vote. Then, we can stand by and read about the clown antics of our student legislators in next year's TAR HEEL. It's bound to be even more comical than this year's stuff. Who knows—we may have to cut out Li'l Abner next year and we must make sure that we've got some comedy to read about, mustn't we?

Team Expresses Thanks

Editor:

On behalf of the football team we would like to acknowledge openly the unselfish services rendered by the following:

(1) Moffatt Sherard and the cheer leaders for their excellent work;

(2) The University club for the splendid pep rallies held under its supervision;

(3) The entire student body for its constant loyalty and for an unforgettable welcome home after the Texas nightmare;

(4) Bob Goldwater and Billy Carmichael and the Daily Tar Heel sports staff for their superb coverage of our season;

(5) George Hogan, Tom Lindley, George Pickard, Jack Foard, Dewey English, and Hank Moore, the team managers, whose hard work and long hours made our jobs easier;

(6) Mr. Pendergraft, the man who made possible our excellent training table;

(7) Morris Mason, the water boy and equipment man, whose services were too numerous to recount;

(8) Jeff and Aggie Thomas, who helped the squad greatly in handling and exchanging complimentary tickets; and

(9) The merchants and people of Chapel Hill for their help and support.

Our season was a great success and we are extremely grateful for the unrewarded and unrecognized services performed by those above who helped make it possible.

Mag Review

Writers 'Arty'; Jokes Needed

By Pete Strader

The Carolina Mag is living up to its avowed intention of remaining strictly literary. The November issue was so completely arty that a "He-She" joke at the bottom of the page would have been highly welcomed. The authors almost without exception embraced the fragmentary school of writing and fell upon their obscure meaning with great relish.

This desire to be artistic even seemed to invade the better than average features. Bookie Jabine tried to cover too much in too little space in his well illustrated "Rags to Riches" football article, leaving the reader with a desire for a little more. Charlie Gibson's "Mag Man of the Month" was good reporting on another of the University's little-known, but highly important, men, and Gibson and Wilson Yarborough did a clear, concise job on the library in their photo spread "Playground—UNC."

The writers of the fiction clung almost frantically to their pseudo-modern style of literature. In this issue of the Mag the swing from the obviously out-moded short story of the past two decades to the vignette school was completed in various degrees. It might be interesting to note that the better stories were those that stayed within the realm of realism and the accepted style of writing. John Kenfield's "More Experience" was entirely realistic, had a beginning and end, well-drawn characters, moved quickly and cleanly to its appointed finish. "The Middle Way," by Kenneth Rothwell, took a strike incident and built it up into a fairly tense bit of character writing. The illustration for this story, by James Moon, was a fine example of the "My-five-year-old daughter-could-do-better" trend in art.

Somewhere in here we must find place for Jean Brown's "The Amber Sheen," an immature soap opera about a girl who was playing Tschaikowsky for his imaginary lover. Possibly the piece was autobiographical. Progressing further into the more artistic writing Harold Suits' "Two Hunters" took an extremely simple foundation and built it up to an intriguing climax. Somehow, unfortunately, the almost too-vivid descriptions and repetition buried the essential core of the character study.

Bob Sain's "Fantasy: In Shortened Perspective" seemed almost like satire on the others writers in the Mag. Since the Carolina Mag is very definitely not a humor mag, we must accept Sain's work as serious, and so judge it. It was the most advanced piece of literature in the issue, and perhaps a foretaste of things to come in the field of writing. Compounded of harsh realism, vague allusions, and almost swamped with metaphors, we did not completely like or understand "Fantasy." It was, however, very interesting reading. A trend is in the making.

Carousel

On Football, Basketball, No Bowls!

By R. Foo Giduz

Having celebrated Thanksgiving, GI check arrival, the Cavalier catastrophe, and the fact that there are only 21 more shopping days until Christmas in proper form during the past few days, Carousel was in rarest form yesterday when he looked in the mirror..... "Is that my face," he asked. "....."Taint nobody else's but!," came the snappy wiseacre reply from somewhere.....!

But the end of football season should bring considerable financial relief to many, unless basketball parlays get started — Heard of a guy the other day who thought he'd won $80 on the local "Old Reliable" grid parlay..... When he went around to collect the clip proprietors showed him his blank and informed him au contraire.....The guy hadn't won they said.....He looked at his blank and saw that in addition the three long shots he'd correctly picked, the parlay people had encircled one more incorrect prediction, thus gypping the character out of his winnings..... There's an obvious moral to that tale!

And still on the grid grind—Maybe Wild Walt Pupa got knocked out early in the last game of his college career Saturday, but the lads didn't forget him in the game score.....That was 40 points, the digits on Pupa's jersey.....

But yesterday was indeed blue in many ways.....Saleeby (that's Emile Saleeby, UNC's champion huckster) says he's going into mourning through New Year's day.....He had already designed and ordered Legion Bowl football buttons, started celebrating and spent all his profits when the Athletic council turned down the bid Sunday afternoon.

Fascism over Communism

By Pete Gerns

It may seem, off hand with all regulatory measures being taken, that communism is of greater danger to democracy than fascism. Not so is the opinion of the greater part of the students who answered this question.

Charles Hexagon says: "Fascism is of greater and more imminent danger because it is crusading as anti-communism". In addition to this, adds Paul Harmon, "we're going out to kill communism while we are neglecting fascism".

Fred Burgess believes that "inasmuch communism in the world today can only be classed as 'Red Fascism' and true communism cannot exist so long as initiative and ambition exist, it is a question of 'what is more dangerous, fascism or fascism?'"

Two more believers in danger from fascist interests state that "one need only look at the fascistic activities of our government in regard to its handling of communism to see that the potentialities of fascism are far greater—as long as the standard of living in the U.S. remains what it is; there is little danger of communism—communism is bred of war and poverty, while fascism is bred of too much nationalism", and "communism comes with revolution; fascism grows gradually, is difficult to detect — a government by a few for a few: legislation for vested interests is here today!"

On the other side of the fence sit Charles Howe and Thomas Houser, Jr. Howe has this to say: Russian communism is far better organized than fascism ever was, both in its intellectual aims and political structure: therefore, it represents the greater menace to our liberties". Houser comments with "communism, because of the methods by which it seeks to reach its goal. While fascism uses terrorist methods, which are easily recognized by other people, to secure the desired end; communism works underground.....which prevents us from recognizing what commuism really is."

The question for next Friday is: "Do you think that fraternities contribute anything to the campus?" Deadline is Wednesday evening. Please sign all answers with your own name.

George Did It

Practical Joke! Moral: Never Shoot a Mule

HARRISBURG, Pa. (UP)—This practical joke left George stranded 16 miles from home, but he said it was worth it.

Spotting a promising piece of hunting land near a farm house, George (he wants the last name withheld) left his three companions in the car while he went to ask the tenant's permission to hunt.

George found the farmer tending an ailing mule.

"The vet has given him up and told me the only thing to do is to put him out of his misery, but I can't bear to do it," the farmer told George.

An idea struck George. He told the farmer he'd put the mule out of pain and headed back to the car for his gun.

His companions eagerly asked if it was all right to hunt.

"No," growled George, picking up his gun and loading it. "That old so-and-so; if he won't let us hunt, I'll get even with him! I'm going up there and shoot his mule!"

George's friends were horrified. As George raised the weapon to the mule's head, they pleaded with him. "Don't shoot!" one of them cried. "We'll all go to jail!"

The gun went off, the mule fell, the car sped away, and George and the farmer were alone—16 miles from town.

Varsity, Jayvee Basketball Teams Open Tomorrow

Coach Tom Scott led a delegation of some 15 Tar Heel basketball players to Wilson yesterday for a clinic and intrasquad game.

Norm Kohler was taken off of the injured list and took his familiar position at the guard position. This will be the last hard work before the squad plays its opener against Catawba college of Salisbury tomorrow night.

The varsity game is scheduled to get underway at 8 o'clock immediately after the jayvee contest.

Hamilton Coaches

Jim Hamilton will make his debut as a mentor tomorrow night when he sends his jayvee cagers into action against Louisburg Junior college at 6:30.

Hamilton, better known as Tombstone, made all conference last season at Carolina and now lends his genius to the future White Phantoms.

The jayvee attack will be led by John Tsantes, who was high scorer for Wilmington extension of UNC last year. The other forward spot will be filled by Pete Peters. Sandy Hoft, back from last year's fine freshmen team, will handle the pivot duty. Bill White and Bill Harrington will be in the guard slots. Harrington was a consistent scorer on the frosh team in 1946.

Those expected to see heavy duty in relief rolls are Hal Ferraro, Bud Wilkerson, Hank Lebed, Charlie Thorne and Bob Morrison.

Louisburg Strong

Louisburg always boasts strong age squads and should prove a rough opener for the juniors to get by. Saturday night the jayvees will oppose a team from High Point in a preliminary to the varsity encounter.

Hamilton is also mentoring the freshmen team and the yearlings are working hard to get ready for their opening tilt which will be some time this week.

Bowl Me Over

WITH THE TAR HEEL football team now settled down to no bowl but one full of Wheaties, the 1947 football season, except for the post mortems, banquets, and All-American selections, is drifting from hte sporting picture and in turn, giving way to its winter colleague, basketball.

Yet before the pigskins are put in the mothballs for another year, there are a few odds-and-ends that can be tied or disposed of to leave things as they were when we found them. Oddest of the odds is the rumblings from nearby Duke University whose genial master of grid technology Wallace Wade tells all that "narrow" fans are ruining the game of football. He contends that 1) gambling, 2) drinking, 3) narrow-minded attitude toward unsuccessful grid teams, is and-or will ruin the game. Mr. Wade's followers cited that Duke is beginning on a program of de-emphasis of the game, since "big time football and big time football fans" have taken over the game. These gentlemen cite Mr. Wade's brilliant war record and all-time coaching record to boot.

Now, it would be vandalistic to try to subtract anything from Wade's fine record, but investigation might well prove: that 1) gambling in Southern athletic circles is no more serious than it was ten years ago; 2) drinking the old timers will tell you, is nothing to what it was in the thirties, in the days of 35 per cent hair tonic and 3) the narrow-minded attitude of fans might not be so hard on Mr. Wade had he not been winning so long, and never before been faced with the problems of a 4-3-2 record football coach. Duke's de-emphasis is plausible, but it is hard for one to visualize the Blue Devils not striving for national honors along with the rest of us. That would be something to see.

Records, Records, and More Records

MR. WADE'S WAR record like his coaching record, is unchallengeable, but let us remember that many of the players and coaches of the day also turned in creditable performances in this encounter of encounters.

There are memories of Duke moving heaven and earth in 1941 in the wake of Pearl Harbor, to play the Rose Bowl in Durham. But the fact that really hits one in the face when seeing a game in Duke Stadium, is that on numerous occasions, there is no flag raising or playing of the national anthem.

Now this may be laying "it" on the line in cold, hard fashion, but it is a shame to see a power as great as Duke, sink to the level of blaming the fans for their gridiron failures. A logical solution to the Duke problem is not that the Blue Devils have fallen in the past years, but that the other teams with which they come in contact have come up in standing. Duke is still the defensive football power that it was ten years ago, but football offense has surpassed defense, and that kind of football just doesn't win the games it once did. There is nothing wrong with Duke football that a little modernization and a few new faces can't cure, regardless of what the fans may say, do, or drink.

Sweating 'Em Out

LAST WEEK'S "sweating out" of a bowl bid which materialized into nothing, brought to mind the fact that Tar Heel sports followers are reaching the point where they must go through this anxious waiting period almost every season. Now that football post-seasons are forgotten, all eyes will soon turn to the National basketball tournaments in New York next March which barring a poor season, the Tar Heels might possibly take in. Then comes the spring in which a young man's fancy turns to thoughts of love and the NCAA baseball tourney, which means more "sweating." Throw in the national collegiate golf, tennis, track, wrestling, cross country and swimming attractions, and you have more post-season activity than you have scheduled programs.

Needless to say, this all promotes the Tar Heels nationally and internationally which though hard on weak hearts, and high blood pressure, makes one proud to be a Tar Heel born, a Tar Heel bred, etc.

Last week's Orange episode proved one thing if nothing else. Reality never quite lives up to expectation. Except in the case of Jack Milne, who wins national crowns and then writes home about it.

One thing about the Tar Heels, they're strictly not a one-sport outfit. Not with Milne, Vic Seixas, Harvie Ward, Norm Sper, Bob Paxton, and a host of others thrilling sports crowds from New York to California, and Michigan to Texas (?) etc.

'Tis an impressive lot of performers.

Arkansas vs. W & M in Dixie Bowl

Birmingham, Ala., Dec. 1—(UP)— Officials of the Dixie Bowl here have announced that the University of Arkansas has been selected to oppose William & Mary in the Bowl on New Year's day.

Chairman Holt Rast says that Athletic Director John Barnhill of Arkansas accepted the bid shortly after noon today.

The Razorbacks have a mediocre record of five victories four defeats and one tie. But bowl officials have pointed out that they have beaten both teams appearing in the Delta Bowl, TCU and Mississippi.

William & Mary ended the season with the Southern conference championship and a record of nine wins and one loss.

By January 1 Legion field at Birmingham will seat 40,000 people. Most of the tickets, selling for six-dollars have been sold.

Tar Heel Booters Finish Season With Fine Mark

By Larry Fox

When the Blue and White booters of Coach Marvin Allen whitewashed the Virginia soccer team November 21, they brought their first season as a Monogram sport to a highly successful climax.

The Allenmen started off very badly when Loyola shut them out, 4-0. They dropped their ame of the campaign to Navy, 2-1. However, Navy, one of the strongest teams in the section, was forced into an overtime period before they could vanquish the hard fighting Tar Heels.

Four consecutive victories followed. The local shinbusters beat High Point, 3-0; Duke, 7-3; Virginia, 1-0; and Roanoke, 7-0. The Duke Blue Devils brought the victory skein to a halt as they upset Carolina, 3-1. Victories over High Point and Virginia; 3-2 and 2-0, respectively closed out the season with the Blue and White boasting a record of six wins and three defeats.

Hurt by Injuries

Injuries plagued the Tar Heels throughout the latter half of the season. Basil Jackson broke his leg in the rst Duke contest and was out for the remainder of the season. Wayne Johnson, his replacement, sprained his ankle in the Roanoke tilt and missed the High Point clash. Various other injuries prevented the team from operating at full strength during the last few games.

Nine of Coach Allen's big guns have played their last game for Carolina. These include Al Williams, Wayne Johnson, Porter Van Zandt, Frank Nelson, Frank Levy, Gus Johnston, Jesse Greenbaum, Dave Boak, and Al Singer.

Coming Stars

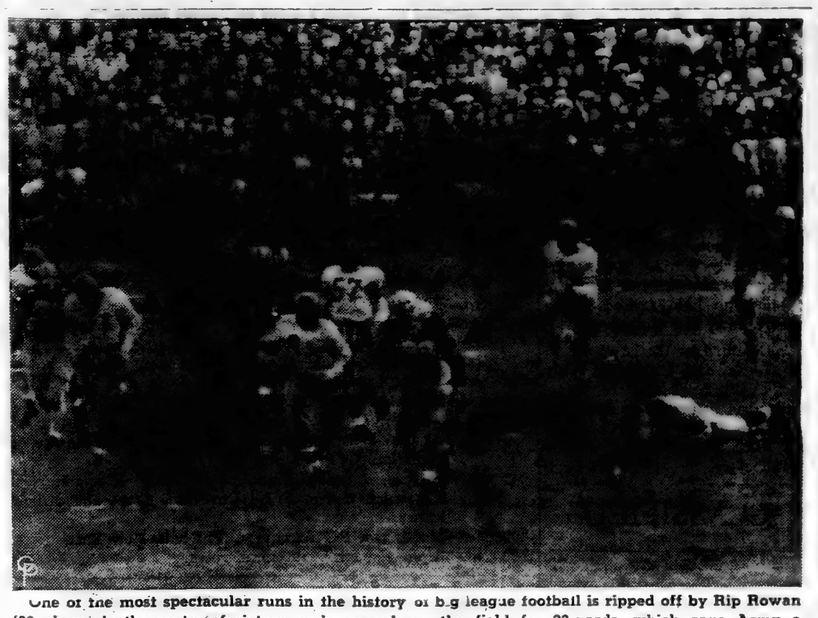
However, Coach Allen expects men like Dave Ferebee, Hank Pallulat, Mac Hagaman, Joe Bach, and Bill Moore, along with the other returnees, to team up with whatever new men report next fall to produce another winning aggregation.

Defensive leader for the Tar Heels was goalie Al Williams, co-captain of the squad. Fullbacks Van Zandt and Nelson also drew plaudits for their steady defensive work throughout the campaign.

Allen Pleased

"I was very much pleased with our season," beamed Coach Allen, "and I think I can say that the boys were, too. We will be losing many boys by graduation and that means we have a lot of work for next year. The big answer to our manpower problem is to have more boys come out for fall tryouts. We could use a few left-footed men."

Boak was high scorer for the booters with seven goals to his credit. Bach dented the cords five times. Wayne Johnson tallied four times while Ferebee placed fourth with three. Singer, Pfautz, Gus Johnston, Pallulat, Greenbaum, and Moore all scored once.



Five Booters Ready For Olympic Tryouts

Five members of the soccer team will take part in the sectional Olympic tryout games being held at the Naval Academy Saturday.

Riggs, Kramer Play Here Next Month

One of the most spectacular runs in the history of big league football is ripped off by Rip Rowan (33, shown in the center of picture, as he goes down the field for 92-yards, which gave Army a neat start in its relatively easy victory over Navy at Philadelphia. Navy had bad breads in the first half, but the West Pointers did not have to work too hard in the second half for their 21-0 victory. (International)

Segura, Pails Also Appear With Troupe

By Bob Goldwater

Professional tennis makes another visit to Chapel Hill next month when Bobby Riggs and Jack Kramer headline a four-man troupe that performs in Woollen gym on the evening of January 20.

Arranged by Carolina net mentor John Kenfield, the visit will mark the troupe's only appearance in this area during the nationwide tour. The other members of the racquet caravan are Pancho Segura and Dinny Pails.

The feature clash of all stops on the tour will pit Riggs, currently the world's professional tennis champion, against the lanky Kramer, the king of the amateures for the past two years. The diminutive Riggs, one of the greatest retrievers in tennis, turned to the play-for-pay ranks after the 1941 season after ruling the amateurs for most of three years. His rival, whose attacking forehand reminds one of the hard-hitting style of Don Budge and Ellsworth Vines, signed as a professional five weeks ago. In addition to winning the national amateur title each of the last two years, Kramer was runner-up to Joe Hunt in 1943.

Segura and Pails

The other performers on the card are stars in their own right. The colorful Segura, once the number one player in South America, was rated sixth in the American rankings last year. Pails was Australia's top netter before turning professional, and led the Aussies in their unsuccessful bid to regain the Davis Cup last September. Both signed with Promoter Jack Harris last month.

The tour opens December 26 in Madison Square Garden in New York. Riggs was also a headliner in the last such professional net tour, topping Budge in a series of 50 matches. Their circuit swing took in Chapel Hill in May, 1946.

Tickets for the performance are expected to go on sale next month. Student tickets will cost $1.00, including tax, and all seats will be reserved.

Other professional net luminaries who have performed locally include Vines, Bill Tilden, George Lott, Les Stoefen, Alice Marble, and Mary Hardwick.

Grads Encounter Chi Psi Today For Campus Grid Championship

After over a week's delay because of bad weather, tag football again takes the limelight in the intramural program this afternoon when Chi Psi and the Grads clash at four o'clock on field No. 6 in the deciding battle for the campus grid championship.

With both teams sporting perfect records for regular season play, a close and exciting game is in prospect for the title fight.

Two other games will also be played to determine the runner-up in both the fraternity and dormitory divisions. DKE and Zeta Psi meet on field No. 5 while Lewis tangles with Oakwood drive on field No. 7. Action is slated to begin at four o'clock for both encounters.

The intramural department requests that the following handball players arrange to play matches listed below by six o'clock, Wednesday, Dec. 3. Addresses of the players are listed on the tournament chart at the handball courts.

Handball singles: Walker vs. Goodwin; Cash vs. Segligman; Maer vs. Lee; Brooks vs. Timberlane; Nelson vs. Nearman; Platt vs. Howeren; Glamarius vs. Spaugh; Gotterman vs. Millian.

Doubles: Hodges and Lovelace vs. Platt and Nearman; Yaunt and Smith vs. Strayhorn and Mullis; McKeever and Casio vs. Jamerson and Walker.

Close Stab at UNC Score Breaks 8-Way Tie to Win Grid Contest

In the final and tenth Graham Memorial football contest this season, it was an eight-way tie, with each one of the octet failing four times in their predictions. By virtue of being the closest guesser of the Carolina score, with a 34-6 prediction, Otis Beeson of 10 Vance was declared winner.

Contest officials reported the prognostication averages to be amazingly low for the games listed on the sheet, since it was only with some difficulty they were able to find 20 close games, and seven of these were played on Thanksgiving day. The George Washington-Georgetown contest, which was played on November 22, and was erroneously listed on this week's blank, was not included in the grading.

Duplicating Beeson's sheet with but four misses, but listing wider Carolina score predictions were Dick Owen, a consistent high scorer in the contest, Dick Mottsman, Jimmy Rutherford, Bob Kirby, Hugh H. Ervin, R. R. Brandt, and Jack Peel.

For the second successive week not a single entrant foresaw the correct Carolina score, but six, headed by George McAden with a 41-7 prognostication, made near misses. Others were Jack Park, H. Lebed, Richard E. Bennett, Bill Morris, and former winner T. J. Peterson, Jr., all of whom made nearly similar predictions but all a point or two off. Roy Moose, who has guessed scores twice before, saw a close 41-13.)

from their work for the sake in the University catalogue for of their future scholastic records."

The ruling on withdrawals to which Lanier refers is detailed this academic year as follows: "If a student withdraws after the mid-term and is reported as below passing in two or more courses, that term will be counted as a term in residence in all computations of his requirements for readmission. If a student withdraws before mid-term, it will be left to the discretion of the Dean as to whether or not that term is to be counted as a term in residence. The Dean's verdict will be indicated specifically on the form used for withdrawal."

Only to a student withdrawing within the first ten weeks of a term will there be a refund on a pro-rata basis of the amount paid for tuition.

The accepted procedure for withdrawing, according to the same catalogue, is described as follows: "If a student wishes to withdraw at any time other than the end of a term, a formal withdrawal, which is the prerequisite to honorable dismissal or reentrance to this institution, must be approved by the Dean to be valid. Such a withdrawal will be approved only after full investigation of the circumstances and after the lapse of twenty-four hours from the time the first application is filed with the Dean. The withdrawal form after approval by the Dean must be filed promptly with a Recorder in room 302, South building."

Broughton To Address Phi Banquet Thursday

J. Melville Broughton, former governor of North Carolina and at present a candidate for the United States Senate, will be the principal speaker at a banquet to be held tomorrow evening at 6:30 by the Philanthropic Literary society at the Baptist Church.

Chancellor Robert B. House will introduce Broughton to the members of the Phi assembly. Speaker John Giles stated that all students who wish to attend the banquet should contact the Phi office, phone 7467, not later than Wednesday night.

J. MELVILLE BROUGHTON

Broughton Background

Broughton, governor of North Carolina from 1941 to 1945, has been engaged in the practice of law in Raleigh since the expiration of his term as chief executive of the state. Born in Raleigh November 17, 1888, Broughton was educated in the public schools of Raleigh and received an A. B. degree from Wake Forest College in 1910.

After attending Harvard Law School, Broughton practiced law in Raleigh from 1914 until he was elected governor in 1940. He also served as a member of the North Carolina Senate in 1927 and 1929, and as Democratic presidential elector at large in 1936.

Legislation Passed

During Broughton's four year administration, legislation was enacted providing for the retirement of teachers and State employees, for the addition of a 12th grade to the public school system, and for a nine months school year. Other legislation passed during his term as governor includes a provision for state aid to public libraries, re-organization of State hospitals and correctional institutions under consolidated boards, and the organization of the Civilian Defense program during the war.

While governor, Broughton was a member of the executive committee for the National Governors conference, and also served as chairman of the postwar planning committee of the Council of State Governments for the Southern region.

London Meeting Is IRC Subject

"The Conference of Foreign Ministers at London" was the topic for discussion at the regular meeting of the International Relations Club Monday night. Fred Bates gave the report on the conference, which began November 13 and is still in session, and John Bristow took the lead in the discussion which followed.

"The Conference includes representatives from the United States, France, Russia, Britain, and Austria," explained Bates. He went on to say that the main questions before the conference are permanent German borders, political and economic unification of Germany, and the Austrian peace treaty.

Air ROTC to Have Freshman Program Opening Next Term

The Air Reserve Officers Training corps born on the University campus this year will open a program in January exclusively for freshmen interested in getting air reserve commissions as part of their normal college curriculum without entering the regular army.

Colonel Byron R. Switzer, commanding officer of the local Air ROTC, explained yesterday, "Under the reserve officers training program here, University students are offered the opportunity to earn commissions as second lieutenants in the air force reserve without obligating themselves to any active service. Enlistment in the Air ROTC program actually does not entail 'joining the army' as some freshmen have mistakenly assumed, since there are no commitments made involving a military career after the student leaves college."

Where To Apply

Applications are already being received at th eAir ROTC offices in the rear of the naval armory building for approximately 60 vacancies in the course to be offered next quarter. Interested first-year male students who are physically qualified American citizens not yet 23 years of age with no previous military service should contact the Air ROTC offices at their earliest convenience for application blanks.

The applicants accepted will attend three class periods and two hour-long drills per week for five terms, two in their freshmen and three in their sophomore years. In addition to all textbooks, training equipment, and officers' uniforms, those selected for the program will have their military work accredited as four regular academic hours per quarter towards graduation from the University.

Advanced Training

In their junior year these same student officers will become eligible to enter the advanced Air ROTC program in which 32 veterans are now enrolled. Then for four hours of classes and an hour of drill each week for two years and six weeks of special schooling during one summer the student officer receives a subsistence allowance amounting to approximately $450, excluding the cost of uniform ,books, and training equipment which are again furnished at government expense.

Specialization comes in the later stages of the advanced program when the student officers train for either supply or statistical control administration.

At present the War Department is sponsoring Congressional legislation to add a pay feature amounting to about $570 for a total of at least $1000 in all over the four years of reserve training. Incorporated in the proposed legislation is a provision for 10 hours flying training to be given as part of every Air ROTC course at the 18 colleges and universities which co-operated with the air corps in originating its own reserve this year.

SCENE FROM "AN ENEMY OF THE PEOPLE"—A new translation of the play by Henrik Ibsen, which is the second major production of the Playmakers' thirtieth season. "An Enemy of the People" will open tonight for a four day run, through Saturday. In the tense scene cartooned above are, left to right: Dr. C. G. Sheps as "Peter Stockman"; Robert Barr as "Houstad"; Barbara Edwards as "Petra Stockman"; Carolyn Kimzey as "Mrs. Stockman"; Porter Van Zandt as "Dr. Stockman"; and W. P. Covington, III, as "Aslaksen". The boys in the center are Paul Valentine and John Parker who take the parts of the Stockman children. The play is under the direction of Kai Jurgensen of the dramatic art department.

Playmakers Open Show Tonight

The cast list of 27 actors for the Carolina Playmaker production of Ibsen's play "An Enemy of the People" was announced yesterday by John Parker, business manager.

Opening tonight at 8:30 in the Playmaker theatre, the production will run for four days. After announcing the cast, Parker added, "the best seats still available for the showings are for tonight and Thursday night, although tickets for Friday and Saturday are still available."

The list of featured players is headed by Cecil G. Sheps, M.D. and member of the University health department ,who plays the role of "Judge Peter Stockman". Carolyn Kimzey, Brevard, portrays the role of "Katrina", and Barbara Edwards, Troy, portrays the character of "Petra". The important role of the printer, "Aslaksen", is played by W. P. Covington, III, Winston-Salem. John Parker and Paul Valentine, both of Chapel Hill, play the parts of the two Stockman children.

Other feature parts are being played by Porter Van Zandt, Rochester. N.Y., who has the leading role of "Dr. Stockman"; Donald Draper, Reading, Pa., as "Billing", James Geiger, Miami, Fla., as "Keel", and Robert Barr, Kansas City, as "Houstead".

Students appearing in the minor roles include: Marty Jacobs, Greensboro; Mary Jo Cain, Florence, S. C.; Phyllis Isenhour, Charlotte; Erle Hall, Nashville, Tenn.; James Byrd, Charlotte; Harold Reed, Sparta; Katherine McDonald, Lookout Mountain, Tenn.; Margaret Cameron, Washington, D. C.; Frank Echols, Asheville; Bill Sessions, Conway, S. C.; Dyer Moore, Asheville; Patricia Lane, Burlington; Stewart Lucas, New York; Karl Harrell, Burlington, George Upchurch, Savannah, Ga.; James Riley, West Palm Beach, Fla.; Nell Griffin, Winston-Salem; and Elizabeth Dawson, Norfolk, Va.

Kai Jurgensen of the dramatic art department is directing. Donald Draper is stage manager, and Frederick Johnson, Chico, Calif., is crew chief. Costumes are by Irene Smart of the Playmaker staff.

Fluctuating Returns Make Final Outcome Difficult to Predict

By Chuck Hauser

With returns from Gerrard hall lagging and reports from other polling places gradually being completed, not much could be told about the outcome of yesterday's election at press time last night except that Student party candidate Bill Mackie, leading with 531 votes, would undergo a runoff with Martin Carmichael, (UP) 479 for a seat on the Student council.

Bob Haire (CP) followed up with 285. All tabulations are unofficial at this time.

Slack Uncontested

Chick Slack (SP) rode into the other seat on the Student council uncontested following the disqulification of Rita Adams (UP).

Jim Taylor (SP) also took over a position on the Men's council after Bill Lyons (UP) had been disqualified.

As late reports came in from Aycock, Lenoir, and Alderman polls, the SP predominated the balloting, but the town tabulations, concentrated mostly in the Gerard hall ballots, were expected to swing UP.

Remember Spring

No predictions could be made by any of Elections board Chairman Al Winn's hard-working ballot counters or even the armchair politicos who gathered in Graham Memorial's Horace Williams lounge to watch the counting for last year's surprise spring election in which the SP predominated still hung in the minds of all.

In the dormitory Student Legislature voting, University party candidate Dan Logue and SP nominee Charlie Long led the fold, with others ranging from close behind to an almost imperceptable tally.

In the runoff balloting for junior class offices, SP coed Anne Wells was well ahead of Stan Fox (UP) in the Alderman dormitory polling for vice-president and Bill Thorpe (UP) surged ahead of Dave Ferebee (SP) for the social chairmanship.

Aycock returns for freshman class runoffs showed William Benbow (UP) running neck-and-neck with Bill Swaim (SP) for the vice-presidential post, while Ted Leonard (CP) and Marvin Nathan (UP) were even-Steven for the position of secretary-treasurer.

Parking Tickets Should Be Paid

Students who receive traffic tickets for violation of the town and schools' parking regulations were warned yesterday by town officials to bring them immediately into the Chief of Police's office in the Chapel Hill Town hall, as instructed on the tickets themselves.

Failure to do this resulted in fines for three University students in the Recorder's court here yesterday.

"Not only did these boys have to pay the court costs, but also the tickets' costs, amounting in these cases to $3 or $4," Clerk of Court Moody Durham explained.

Di Senate Elects Officers Tonight

The Dialectic Senate will hold a closed executive meeting tonight at 9 o'clock in the Di hall in New West to conclude all business for this quarter and to elect its officers for the coming term.

Charlie Long, Di president, said yesterday that all Senators must attend tonight's meeting to vote on the following officers: president, president pro-tem, critic, clerk, treasurer, sergeant at arms, chaplain, and debate council representative.

James Saxon Childers Will Give Address On Children's Literature This Afternoon

James Saxon Childers, author of several novels and books of travel, will talk about "Some Classics of Children's Literature" at a 4 o'clock Bull's Head bookshop tea this afternoon, according to Mrs. N. B. Adams, hostess.

Although the author lives near the village of Bynum, on a farm which he operates, he is still considered one of the literati of the Chapel Hill writer's colony. He is the author of four travel books and ten other works which range in subject matter from nursery rhymes to mystery.

Two of his latest works are "War Eagles", a story of the R. A. F. Eagle Squadron, and "In the Deep South: A Novel About a White Man and a Black Man."

When the former was published by D. Appleton-Century company of New York in 1943, Craig Thompson wrote in the "N. Y. Times Book Review" section: "Colonel Childers tells the story with enthusiasm, humor and sympathetic warmth that makes it a superb story, superbly done. I say this is an absolutely swell book and I say it without any qualifications or reservations whatsoever."

Travel books which Childers has written are: "From Siam to Suez", "Through Oriental Gates", "Sailing South American Skies", and "Mumbo Jumbo, Esquire: A Book About Two Africas."

Mrs. Adams said that she hoped students, especially, would take advantage of this opportunity to hear Childers speak. The tea will be served as usual in the staff room next door to the bookshop, basement floor of the Library. Previous speakers at teas this quarter have been Hugh Holman, mystery novelist, and Paul Green, noted playwright.

Phi Beta Kappa to Initiate Several in Ceremony Friday

The Carolina chapter of Phi Beta Kappa will initiate several new men at a ceremony scheduled for 7 o'clock Friday evening. The iniation will be followed at 8 o'clock by a talk to be delivered by Dr. Archibald Henderson, head of the mathematics department here and himself a charter member of the local chapter.

The date of the ceremony is the 171st anniversary of the founding of the Phi Beta Kappa fraternity which occurred at William and Mary on December 5, 1776. Originally a social fraternity, Phi Beta Kappa is now an honorary organization and is considered to be the highest scholastic honor available in American universities. Carolina's chapter, Alpha of North Carolina was founded in 1904, at which time Dr. Henderson was a student here.

The speaker's subject will be "A Declaration of Interdependence." He will read the self-authored declaration to his audience, and is expected to follow it with his suggestions as to the manner in which the scholar may be of service in the world today.

Dr. Henderson has made a distinction between the scholar and the ordinary man in public life in attempting to show how the thinker can contribute to the health of world and to the solution of our problems.

The public is invited to the ceremony which will be held in Gerrard hall.

Levering of UWF Speaks Tomorrow

"Is World Government the Path to Peace?" will be the query asked and answered in an address tomorrow by Samuel Levering, former professor of economics at Cornell university, and present member of the executive council of United World Federalists.

According to Russell Baldwin, president of the student UWF chapter, Levering will address a Graham Memorial audience at 8 o'clock tomorrow night.

Former director of World Federalists, U.S.A., before it became United World Federalists, Levering is now chairman of the executive council of World Federalists of Virginia, and a member of the executive council of that organization in this state.

In 1939 he was professor of economics at Cornell before accepting a post with the Farm Credit administration in Washington, D.C.

Levering will be on the campus tomorrow morning and will speak in several classes.

CHESS TOURNEY

First round of the Graham Memorial chess tournament must be played off before or during the chess club meeting this evening, or else matches will be automatically forfeited, Nancy Tucker, director announced. The group will convene at 7:30 in Roland Parker lounge No. 1 of the student union.

Card Shark's Card Shark Will Appear Tomorrow in GM's Free Demonstration

Anybody who starts his career as the boy at the top of the rope in the Indian rope trick might end as practically anything. And from such a beginning came Michael "Mickey" MacDougall, the card detective, who has made a profession of exposing the upper crust of the underworld gamblers who cheat at cards, dice, roulette, and the many other come-ons for the unwary.

The nationally-famous "card shark's card shark" will appear in Memorial hall Sunday evening at 8 o'clock in a free program under the auspices of Graham Memorial.

The author of four books exposing gambling rackets, "Mickey" has as his themesong the simple thesis, "Gamblers don't gamble," which is also the title of his most popular book. He is an expert at nearly all card games, but never plays since, as he said, "If I win they figure I put something over."

The genial "professor of gambling" has never come across a card cheat he couldn't figure out. He can open a pack of cards into a fan, snap it instantly shut —and remember exactly where every ace and king is placed in the pack. Not only can he deal himself a perfect hand, but he can make an opponent deal him a full house in poker.

Today Mickey MacDougall is the only man in the country whose testimony as a gambling expert is acceptable in court. But he doesn't stop at cards. He will pay $10,000 if he can't spot a pair of crooked bone dice, loaded in the orthodox manner with tungsten amalgam, by their rattle 30 feet away.

Yet he's never gambled in his life!

Discriminations Aired at Meeting

Discriminations embodied in national and local fraternity charters were aired at the National Interfraternity conferences in New York City, last Friday and Saturday, said Leon Todd, who with fellow undergraduate Bob Nelson and Dean Fred Weaver represented the University at the meetings.

Todd, president of the Interfraternity council here, along with Nelson, attended the meetings of the undergraduate organization while Dean Weaver attended the graduate conferences. Both conferences were held at the Commodore Hotel.

The resolution to do away with discriminations in fraternity charters was voted down, Todd said. The group decided to leave such action to individual national and local chapters. It was felt, he added, that no action on an interfraternity level would be applicable universally.

The deans of men and student representatives from 161 colleges and universities were invited. Schools as far away as California and Washington sent representatives.

Todd added that the local IFC plans to meet with the interfraternity councils of Duke, Wake Forest, and North Carolina State to work out various problems affecting fraternities in this section.

Combined Glee Clubs to Give Annual Christmas Concert Friday and Sunday

The annual Christmas concert of the combined Men's and Women's Glee clubs will be presented on Friday and Sunday nights at 8:30 in Hill hall, under the direction of Paul Young, associate professor of music.

The first half of the program will include non-Christmas music — folk songs, spirituals, and modern, sacred, and operatic selections — and the latter half will consist entirely of Christmas music rendered by the combined glee clubs.

Soloists for the Bach cantata, "For Us a Child is Born," to be done by the combined clubs, will be Virginia Johnson, contralto; Rufus Norris, baritone; and John Brinegar, tenor. Barbara Young, soprano, will be soloist in "Rouse, Good Folk," a Spanish carol arranged by K. K. Davis.

"Hallelujah Chorus" from Handel's "Messiah" and a Russian and an English Christmas carol wil also be presented in the second half of the program.

Accompanists for the concert will be Pat Carruthers, Gwen Howard, Jocelyn Rhyne, Charles Stevens, and William Waters, piano; and John O'Steen, organ.

Under the direction of Paul Young, the glee clubs have won widespread recognition for their performance ability during the past several years. A large audience is expected at the Christmas concert, which is one of the outstanding campus events of the year.

Admission will be by season ticket or by special concert tickets which may be secured from any Glee club member or from Ledbetter-Pickard's. Ticket holders must make reservations at the Glee club office, 109 Hill hall for reserved seats for either performance.

On Withdrawal from School

Figures compiled by gleaning the files of Mr. Edwin Lanier show that 128 students have withdrawn from the University this year. Of this number the greatest percentage of withdrawals was due to illness, and only a few short of first place was "inadequate finances." It is only proper that these two things are spoken of in the same breath since they are both apparently causes over which we have little control. But the tragedy of the situation is that "inadequate finances" may soon capture first place as the largest hurdle for students to clear.

We talked with one of these students who found it necessary to drop out of school. By coincidence, his status figured out the same as the average student who left the University. He is single, 19 years old, but his chronic illness was due simply to "inadequate finances." He informed us that "he was too much of a drain on his family" and that he was "going to work and wait for the bust and then come back and finish."

Yesterday, we saw another friend—a freshman who had come to Carolina because he had heard us extoll its virtues. We remarked that whenever we saw him at mealtime he was invariably eating pinto beans and that he must have a terrific craving for them. "Listen buddy," he retorted, "when you have a buck a day for chow, you eat pinto beans and like 'em. They're cheap and a meat substitute. Yeah and they fill you up and don't taste too bad if you put plenty of free catsup on them."

His answer brought a spontaneous laugh from us until we thought of the seriousness of his situation, which set us to wondering how many more students are eating just to fill up a hollow stomach with little or no concern for the food value—and more important, for their health.

If a college education is becoming a necessity, which we think it is, then it must be within the reach of the masses. It is not that students now in college are trying to get by on less, but that they began college with enough income, or means for obtaining income, to cover the estimated cost of college then. Gradually, and very consistently, living costs have increased until they have reached a climax—a climax which means that more and more students will be squeezed out of gaining a college degree.

Withdrawal from school now to gain employment, save money, and return later and try to pick up where they left off, is not a sound way to combat these inflated times. Many of the students who discontinue their schooling with the hopes of returning will keep prostricating until it is too late to return.

An increase in GI benefits would probably be a short financial relief to some of us for a time, but it would only be an incentive for some to keep diminishing the purchasing power of the dollar.

Victory Village's Co-op grocery has been one method to help keep living expenses within the mean of the married veterans, but there has been little emphasis placed on aiding the individual student in providing cheaper meals.

Now would be the time for the legislature to establish a committee to investigate what can be done.

A Kid of Your Own

A quiz master asked one of his radio contestants a few nights ago what would happen if the contestant won the $500 prize that was being offered to the winner of the program over a nation-wide hook-up

The answer will be a classic some day:

"I've got a baby coming in December. If I win, I guess the wife and I will own it outright."

That confession is not a singular one in these days of so-called plenty, and it brings up a point vital to every American:

Is America really the land of plenty and are these times really good times?

There are thise who would say that Americans are living now in the age of prosperity, because, so these people say, wages are now at the highest level in American history.

On the other side of the fence are the persons who will 'give you the lie" when such a statement is made, persons who say that, regardless of high wages and salaries, the proportionate cost of living leaves the average working man still wondering how to make ends meet

Thinking men al over America have given this problem their serious attention, but there has been serious disagreement among them regarding the answer to the question: Is the typical American better of today, during these days of "plenty and good times" than he was during the so-called depression days of 1930-33?

All the minds of America can debate the question from now until eternity, but that young man on the quiz program will never own his kid outright, at least not until the next quiz program.

You see, he didn't win the $500 grand prize, the prize that would have made his baby his own.

—The Daily Trojan

Professors

In the dim, foggy decades, dating back centuries before Christopher Columbus organized his yachting cruise, a young male would suddenly discover fuzz on his chin and go running to the cave to show Pop. Pop would say "umph" which meant "O.K. kid take it easy. That's the way men show their superiority over women."

So the young male would take it easy and soon he would be walking around behind a brush-heap and feeling very superior, indeed. As the centuries passed our young human male put on shoes, put on pants, put on shirts, took off dirt, took off smell, took off shirts, took off hair on the top of his dome, exchanged slouch for strut, exchanged raw rhinoceros for Post Toasties, exchanged spear for Kiwanis button, exchanged stone for knife, learned to run slot machines, learned to knock a little ball over hill tops, learned to fly, but he kept his whiskers. When the early Pop said "That's the way to show off your superiority over women" he said a mouthful. It's one of the educational propositions that has never changed.

What does all this have to do with professional adornment? Simple! The prof is a male. The prof has a wife. The prof gets kicked around. The prof knows a lot but his eight year old kid makes him play dominoes. The prof can give Einstein a good run for his money but he has to hang out "didies" so—whiskers.

There is also a little matter of public relations. If a prof walks down the street without them he doesn't rate more than a glance from the multitude with them. Heads are turned, exclamations heard and children say "Look there goes Santa Clause." If he goes into a department store without them, nearsighted ladies think he is a clerk and ask questions that make him blush; with them, even floorwalkers unbend a bit. If he is 'at a loss' without them he can do nothing but stutter; with them, he can stroke and and grunt with dignity and nonchalance.

Yes sir, the Prof's whiskers are O.K. They add to the background, give top rating to the institution, protect the great name of scholarship and save a million hours of shaving time. Profs use them too, students like them and civilization needs them. While Universities are plunging headlong into gigantic corporation status, the prof's whiskers will be one of the saving influences.

Lever Brothers Here He Comes

The Brassy Taste

Atoms or Doughfeet?

By Bob Sain

Harry Truman, whose stock seems to be zooming these uncertain, pre-election days, is sticking his neck way out. He has supported, is supporting, and will probably continue to support Universal Military Training--the most insidious and warlike movement since Hitler gave the Boy Scouts rifles.

This column knows full well that the country is in danger of going to war, not immediate danger, but danger. It knows, too, that scientists and militarists have been throwing around incidental information that the next war will be won in a couple of days with the Big-A going boom all over the globe.

It is at this point that one begins to wonder what point there is in shoving millions of normal, sometimes happy young teenagers into the soul-busting khaki of the army.

If we lose an atomic war, these young gentlemen might die as pointlessly in mufti? If we win an atomic war, why spend billions of much-needed dollars to have millions of uniformed sentries to watch the planes take off?

One cannot but ask, what the hell is everybody talking about? Will the next war be an atomic set-to or will it be fought by doughfoot troops?

We have been talked into the next war by characters who insist that if we don't tie a can on Russia today we'll all be atomically dead tomorrow. We have been suggested into a fighting mood by militarists who say we can't lose because we have the bomb.

Just what is the score? This column doesn't know. It knows only that somebody has been handing out much atomic malarkey—or, that somebody stands to gain by having a lot of one-year veterans loose in the land.

The American Legion has been pushing UMT from the beginning, has, no doubt, used its powerful Washington lobby to influence lawmakers, and apparently intends to stay behind the measure until there are several million more vets.

UMTies ,if we can believe the Big-A boys, will be useless. A couple of bombs, they say, will do the trick.

What purpose will the eighteen-year-olds serve? They'll become vets. Who knows, maybe they'll even join an organization like the American Legion.

Last war, the youngsters were called cannon fodder. Next war: vote fodder.

Mona's Home; Lover Happy

By JAMES McGLINCY

PARIS (UP)—The little man who wouldn't tell his name was happy—Mona Lisa had come home.

"For twenty years we've lived together," he said. He looked at Mona and smiled and she smiled back at him, with that queer, questioning personal smile she has.

'Now she is back where she belongs in her old place, in the place where I've always known her."

He wore a blue uniform like all the guards at the Louvre, with a little row of service ribbons from the war. But he wasn't like the other guards, no matter what he wore. He was Mona Lisa's boy friend.

Maybe It's Music

"Yes, I love her," he said. "That ironic smile. For 20 years I have watched that smile. But I never understand it. I think perhaps she is listening to music and it brings the memories and so she smiles like that."

During the war the little man and Mona Lisa were separated. She was in hiding. The Louvre was closed. The little man had a fighting job to do.

When the war ended, they came back. But Mona Lisa was stuck in a corner, leaning against the wall. Then finally they put her back on her throne — the spot of honor in the Italian room.

The little man looked at a painting hanging on the opposite wall, a Titian portrait of Francis Q, king of France, who bought the Mona Lisa for France from Leonardo da Vinci toward the end of the artist's life. Francis was only one of millions of men who have fallen for the mysterious smile.

"He loves her, too, he said. is eyes twinkled. "All the time ey look at each other."

Actually there was a historical asis for his statement, for it as Francis I, who bought the Mona Lisa for France from Leonardo da Vinci toward the end the artist's life. Francis was nly one of millions of men who ave fallen for the mysterious mile.

The little man said he was married and had grandchildren. No, his wife wasn't jealous of the smiling lady. She didn't know how he felt. Nor did the other guards.

"Nobody knows except her,' 'he said, nodding toward the portrait of the serene lady.

Book Review

No Patience With Pomp

By James Moon

The publisher's blurb on the jacket of Lonnie Coleman's second novel, Time Moving West, says, "From March until June 1946 he taught English at North Carolina State college where most of his students were veterans. In talks with them he heard many stories of their experiences....." The statement is not relevant because, in spite of a nice respect for the resources of the English language, there is nothing pedantic or academic about Mr. Coleman's story-telling. The statement is relevant for the book does have much of the same shut-eyed vividness, infectious excitement, and good robust humor that characterized the bull sessions of that first spring after the war.

On the surface, it is the story of a troop-carrier and of the sailors and officers who man her as she stops for supplies, goes into battle, and returns to New York. And for those readers who merely want a story with plenty of action, Coleman has provided not one, but several. If this were all, however, the book could properly be dismissed as another war-book, for then it could possibly have been written by any number of men who saw battle.

Fortunately that is not all It is a complete, highly accurate revelation of a dozen very real people and the way they are affected by a sometimes dangerous, nearly always oppressive environment. Better than anyone who has yet written about the war Lonnie Coleman has been able to portray the tension, irritability, and lucid, yet distorted, insight that builds up in wave-like rhythm among sex-starved men. There is the suggestion—whether intended or not—that man's conception of time may even be intricately involved with those same centers in his mind which have to do with sex.

Everything said thus far looks as pompous as the library building and that is wrong, for in spite of its ambitious title the novel is not pretentious. In fact the most winning and agreeable thing about Coleman's commanding talent is that it has no patience with pomp, ceremony, and surface values.

In his treatment of Captain Phillips and Commodore Grant he explores and unmercifully exposes all men who deal falsely with human values and relationships. Every veteran reading the book will surely remember at least one such officer from his own experience and will take delight in Coleman's implicit comments on these traitors.

The book is not a bitter one, however. In telling of Baby, a hopelessly young sailor and his first night in New York, Coleman is as funny as anyone has been in American novels. And again when Steed, an old Navy man proposes marriage to a prostitute named Ginger, he achieves a mixture of humor and pathos that is might nigh perfect.

Strangely enough, Mr. Coleman was completely humorless in his consideration of two important characters: Wes, a lieutenant, and Molly, the woman who divorces her husband in order to be waiting for Wes in N.Y. The two are always ploddingly earnest, analytical—and unfortunately—dull. Coleman is at his best when he is writing with compassion about the thoroughly unsophisticated, trapped man: Howard, growing slowly insane; Ehrlich and the galley Negroes unsuccessfully fighting open and hidden race-prejudice; a lonesome Arabian lad trying to sell a treasured dirty postcard of his locally-famous mother; Kovi, realizing too late that it is a son and not the sea he should have been loving. Then there is poetry in his writing.

He's Selfish

Beware the Fascist!

By P. McNeer Dillon, Jr.

For numerous centuries a good many men have directed their energies toward finding a happy medium between anarchism and fascism. Fascism is more than just a theory the Nazis used for an excuse, it is a doctrine of absolute obedience to absolute law which has, in one guise or another, been in existence since the strongest caveman first ruled.

Anarchy was what ruled before that strongest caveman. Still within man lie those primitive urges intermingled so that we feel an anarchic desire to seize a wild sort of spit-off-the-balcony independence and crack a bottle over the head of the men in the next booth or the like, while we feel a thirst for power, to rule, dominate. Out of the sometimes directed and sometimes instinctive effort to find a medium have evolved two opposing groups. These are Communism and American Democracy, respectively security under law and liberty under law.

Due to the nature of these individual mediums, only one of them may exist at one spot at one time. At present, the United States under the American Democratic or more basically, capitalistic ,system is trying to fight the ideal which is attempting to replace capitalism; the country feels it has already vanquished Fascism in the defeat of the Nazis; it is only being threatened by Communism.

Fascism can be found in every respect in supreme human selfishness, and selfishness is peculiar to humans regardless of any denials. Each individual has it in one degree or another in all creeds and political beliefs. That makes this primitive fascism underlying both Communism and Capitalism. That makes this country's system under double fire from fascism, since it is also under fire from communism. There is a flexibility in democracy which allows eventual correction at will of any evil affecting the public; this is not included in the communistic system, and democracy is more susceptible to fascism.

Ultimately, the sneak, fascism, is the thing to be feared. It can't be anything but the greater danger of the two. Surely this a portion of human nature, and human nature can't ever be overlooked.

Write Away

Beware the Dreamers on The Far Left!

Letters submitted to the Write Away column must be double-spaced, typewritten, and shall not exceed 300 words. All contributions must contain the signature, telephone number, and address of the author (names will be withheld upon request). Letters which contain obscene or libelous statements or letters which do not comply with these stipulations will not be published.

Dear Sir,

Mr. Pete Gerns' "Campus Forum" gave an entirely false impression in reporting that the students consider Fascism more dangerous than Communism. He quotes by name three people who consider Communism our greatest enemy. He gives the names of two people on the opposite side and, contrary to his announced policy, quotes two others without giving their names. So according to the rules, the anti-Communists win over the anti-Fascists 3-2.

I would like to know who these two people are. According to what they said, they are Communists and therefore prejudiced. They accuse our government of being Fascist! And why? Because t is taking measures against Communism. Very illogical.

It is time we woke up to a is no more. Show me a Fascist few actualities. A Fascist was a supporter of the Axis which —and don't point out the despicable character Gerald L. K. Smith. Hitler would never have tolerated such a troublemaker. But I can show you Communists and what Winston Churchill called Crypto-Communists. I can point to their Hitlerian behavior in terrorizing and attempting to rule by force in France and Italy.

The Nazis had nothing on them in methods nor techniques nor aims. They are traitors in the worst sense. Do you think American Communists are different? Don't let the dreamers on the left tell you they are kindly souls interested only in human rights. That is part of their scheme. They are a fifth column in our midst—a spy ring for Soviet Russia. They are potential traitors—when the time comes and Moscow gives the word.

Our government Fascist indeed! Treat the Communists kindly. Let them infiltrate our labor unions and our civic bodies. Then get ready to suffer like France and Italy and perhaps become slaves like the Poles, Czechs and Russian people.

We have forces working against these traitors. The un-American Activities Committee (which the Communists call the un-American Committee), the Federal Bureau of Investigation, the American Legion are in the battle. Thanks to far-sighted labor legislation the labor unions are beginning to clean house. The picture looks good in America if we'll all quit imagining fanciful enemies and focus on the one great danger to civilization—Communism.

CAGEY COMMENTS

"Wonder how the Phantoms wil do this season."

"Who's Scott using in place of Hamilton and White?"

"How's the 'Hook' been hitting in practice? Think he'll be hot this year?"

"Hey, how you??"

THESE ARE BUT a few of the many comments that wil be made by local cage fans tonight as they edge their way into their seats in Woollen gym. And before the night is over, they will definitely know the answer to one of the questions and may have a pretty good idea of the others.

It won't take the spectators long to solve the answer to who'll be filling the two positions formerly occupied by the two Jims—Hamilton and White. They'll know at 8 o'clock when the starting five takes the floor. And of the two new regulars they'll see, one will be slightly familiar—that of King Cole—and the other, belonging to Bill Miller, will be brand new to local hardwood followers.

Cole, always a good set-shot artist, is one of the most improved returnees from last season, according to Coach Tom Scott. "King ran on the third team most of last year," Scott declared yesterday, "but he's performed much better this season. White is a hard man to take the place of, but Cole will be in there trying."

The mention of Miller, a sophomore transfer, brought an enthusiastic response from the basketball mentor. "He's big, and he has a good hook and fairly good set," Scott beamed. "He'll develop into one fine player." Miller, recently discharged from the Army, played with the Fort Benning quintet last year. Like Hamilton, his predecessor at the forward post, he appears as a good bet to join the two-letter club at Carolina, being highly recommended in both baseball and track along with basketball.

OPTIMISTIC OUTLOOK

AS FOR A general outlook on ho wthe Phantoms will fare during the 1947-48 campaign, Coach Scott is optimistic. "I really think we'll be a little stronger because we have more usable reserves at every position," was his observation. "Then there's another reason why we're improved," he went on. "The boys have shown more sprit and have worked harder than any other group I've ever coached. And that means a whole lot, believe me."

Looking forward to the 1948 Southern conference championship battle, Scott opined that last year's titleholders, the Wolfpack of N.C. State, still loom as the team to beat. "Case has everyone back except Negley," he jointed out. "Duke—they've lost Koffenberger, Seward, and Garland Loftis, but you can bet that Jerry Gerard will come up with some good newcomers. And don't overlook South Carolina—they have back that big center, Adams, plus a six-foot, nine-inch freshman."

"In fact," Scott concluded, "You can count on the season being rough all the way. But the boys will be in there shooting."

FOOTBALL AGAIN

BASKETBALL MAY BE here to stay for the next three months, but it's still too early to wrap up football for 1947. And two items come to mind regarding the grid pastime.

First on the list is the final tabulations of the Daily Tar Heel predictions for the year. The winner and new champion to succeed last year's top man, ex-sports editor Irwin Smallwood, is Bill Lamkin, printshop makeup man and prognosticator deluxe. The leader for most of the season, Lamkin managed to squeeze home one ahead of Carolina's sports drumbeater, Jake Wade, by outscoring the former Charlotte Observer sports chief, 12 to 11, on the final week's games.

Big Morty Schaap wasn't far behind, hitting with 12 this week to finish one behind Jake for the season. Ye olde co-sports editors brought up the rear for the year, finishing far behind the three top men on the picking parade. Billy Carmichael did manage to grab off the high honors for this past week with 13 for 20—there were lots of ties that kept down all the scores—and this reporter scored on 11.

The 10-week total on 200 games, with ties counted as losses:

	W	L	Pct.	GB
Bill Lamkin	127	73	.635	—
Jake Wade	126	74	.630	1
Morty Schaap	125	75	.635	2
Bob Goldwater	117	83	.585	10
Billy Carmichael III	114	86	.570	13

White Phantoms Open Year With Catawba Here Tonight

Chi Psi Whips Grads, 18-6, For Grid Honors

Other Mural Play Continues Today

By Taylor Vaden

Chi Psi gained the Intramural football campus championship yesterday as they came from behind in the second half to defeat the Grads, 18-6.

Holding the fraternity team scoreless in the first half, the Grads scored their only touchdown of the game when Lew Hayworth crossed the goal line after receiving a pass from Bill Spiegal.

Chi Psi scored early in the second period on a series of passes combined with a running attack. Tom Clayton passed from his own 45 yard line to Vinnie DiLorenzo who ran the ball to the Grad ten. On the same play DiLorenzo flipped a short pass to Vic Seixas in the end zone to tie the score at 6-6. Buck Hardee's extra point kick was wide.

Several plays later Jim Kelly intercepted a Grad pass and passed to Hardee who ran over for the score. Again the extra point attempt was bad.

The final score came midway in the final period when, after a fifty yard drive, Chi Psi back Seixas tossed a pass to Hardee in the end zone.

The Grads threatened to score again in the second half, but an intercepted pass broke up the attack. Whitey Black took Chi Psi's kickoff after the last score and passed to Jim Poole who flipped to Frank Murray. Murray was stopped on the Psi ten. However, the Grads' attack was halted on the next play when DiLorenzo intercepted a Grad pass and raced the ball back to the thirty.

Both Seixas and Hardee figured in two touchdown plays for Chi Psi. Seixas scored one touchdown and passed for another. Hardee scored on two passes ,one from Seixas and the other from Jim Kelly.

Outstanding player for the Grads was Lew Hayworth who scored the only Grad marker on a pass from Spiegal. Hayworth also sparked several Grad drives which fell short of the goal line.

In two other football games played yesterday, Oakwood Drive edged Lewis, 14-13, and Zeta Psi outdid DKE 1 to win in an overtime game.

Oakwood Drive's win put them in second place in the Dormitory league. Zeta Psi copped second place in the Fraternity division by downing the Dekes.

Every man on the squad will compete in the unofficial State splash and Coach Dick Jamerson will continue to manipulate his material in an attempt to discover the best possible combination by the time they open their season against Florida January 15.

Norm Sper, who swam backstroke last year and who was tried as a sprinter this fall, has been returned to his old event in accordance with Coach Jamerson's plans to get the strongest entries in every department.

Sprints will receive the greatest attention this week as the Dolphins prepare for the Staters.

Tar Heels High On Grid Ratings

The North Carolina Tar Heels finished their season as the tenth best team in the country as rated by Associated Press. The AP rates Notre Dame as the top team in the nation with Michigan running a close second. Southern California, Southern Methodist, Penn State, Texas, Alabama, Pennsylvania and Georgia Tech rounding out the first ten.

Three North Carolina teams were given mention as North Carolina State was rated 16 and Catawba 20.

The Tar Heels were given nine first place votes which was more than any but Notre Dame and Michigan received.

On the Williamson ratings Carolina was given the seventh spot with Michigan picked as the best in the land. Notre Dame, S.M.U., Texas, Alabama and Ole Miss were the only clubs that rated above the Snavelymen.

To show the difference in the systems, Catawba ranked 20th by AP, was listed as 129th by Williamson.

In the AP ratings Carolina was edged out by Georgia Tech by one point. 208 to 207. Williamson rated the Tar Heels two-tenths of a point behind Ole Miss and one and two-tenths ahead of Georgia Tech.

Grabplers Have Week's Vacation

Carolina's grapplers, squeezed out of the wrestling picture this week by the hotly contested intramural grunt-and-groan carnival, were given the week off by assistant coach Hobie McKeever but several of the matmen apparently can't get the resin out of their blood and are helping out the intramural department by refereeing the matches.

Coach McKeever wasn't too pleased with the interruption of his pre-season workouts but he hoped to get his charges back to work by late next week. The exams and Christmas holidays will be another obstacle in the grapplers' path to good physical condition for the 1948 season, which opens around the middle of January.

The lack of work wasn't McKeever's only reason for gloom. A heavy academic schedule may cause big Laurie Hooper, 1947 Southern conference champion in the unlimited class, to drop off the squad.

The 1948 card will have eight or nine matches and will feature the annual Navy trip and a possible match with Maryland on the way home from the brawl with the Middies. The complete schedule will be released within another week.

Several aspiring varsity grapplers entered the meet and Coach McKeever has been quite pleased with their performances thus far. Among those who received a verbal pat on the back from the Carolina mentor were 1947 mural fraternity heavyweight champion Leon Todd and two highly touted freshmen, 165-pounder Tom Gilman and 145-pound Phil Kemp.

There will be a meeting of all men interested in coming out for the Varsity or Freshmen track teams this afternoon at 4 o'clock in Woollen 304.

Scott Names Paxton, Miller, Kohler, Cole, Nearman to Start; Jayvees Face Louisburg

By Billy Carmichael III

Tar Heel basketball fans and followers will get their first look at the 1947-48 edition of the White Phantoms tonight at Woollen Gym when the underlings of Coach Tom Scott move onto the floor against the Indians of Catawba College. The festives will begin about eight o'clock, immediately following the Jayvee contest which starts at 6:30.

There will be many old faces and one new one too, in the Tar Heel starting lineup. Captain Box Paxton will start at the forward position he has been seen in for the past three years, but Mr. Rebound will have a new running mate at the other forward slot in the person of Bill Miller, the newcomer from Williamsburg, Kentucky. Miller plays in much the same style that Paxton has so familiarized, and some reports say it will be hard to tell the pair apart without reference to their numbers.

Students must present their passbooks at any door in Woollen gym to gain admittance to the Carolina-Catawba basketball game tonight.

Doors will open at 6:15 and the jayvee game will start at 6:30 with the Varsity contest slated for about 8 o'clock.

BOB PAXTON, Captain elect of the 1947-48 White Phantoms will lead his team in the opener tonight against Catawba at Woollen gym.

Nemo Gets Nod

Big Nemo Nearman has received the starting nod at the pivot post, and is expected to take over where he left off at the close of last season. Nearman, like Paxton and Miller, excels on the backboards. He is also a hook shot artist and handles the ball in the pivot.

Norm "Kokey" Kohler, the set shot performer will draw one guard assignment for the opener, with his partner at the other back spot being a rising find from last year's reserve forces, King Cole. Cole is another of the set shot school and will be very much at home in company with Kohler.

Leading those backing up the starting five will be Coy Carson and Fred Swartzburg at the forward positions, John "Hook" Dillon at center, and Rip Ryan, Taylor Thorne, and Dan Nyimicz to share the reserve guard duties.

Carson, the Asheville high school star, is a good faker and one hand shot, and Swartzburg also excels in the shot department along with turning in a devastating game on the boards. Dillon is the big cage question mark, and should he hit stride with his point-getting left and right hand hooks, the Carolina tally will take a definite and immediate rise.

Thorne, like Paxton and Dillon, a veteran of 1945 NCAA tourney days, looks to be the team's best scrapper, along with having an uncanny ability to hit from outside. Nyimicz, Jayvee star of last season, who saw some varsity action last year, makes still another who can pop from the outer regions of the floor. Ryan, though, will probably see first relief ac-

Stan Kenton Will Play for Meadowbrook's UNC Night

STAN KENTON

Carolina Night at Frank Dailey's Meadowbrook means a great deal to a great many away-from-Chapel Hill Tar Heels who live in Yankeeland, but this year it means Stan Kenton's orchestra and a big reunion for Carolinians who won't get the chance to celebrate the holidays in a football stadium.

December 28, according to Dailey, is the night—University of North Carolina Night. Kenton's 20 musical specialists will be on hand to provide the sweet and the mad, and sultry June Christy will be around to give with the vocals, in addition to featured crooner Ray Wetzel.

Meadowbrook, situated in Cedar Grove, New Jersey, is well-known for its Carolina Night festivities, which are a part of the Christmas program of every Tar Heel who is fortunate or unfortunate enough to live in the land of ice and snow.

There is no guarantee of happiness under our form of government. What it does make possible is the pursuit of happiness.

Dr. Coker to Speak To Carteret Group

The Carteret County Club will meet this evening at 8:30 o'clock to hear Dr. R. E. Coker speak in Roland Parker lounge no. 2 on "Marine Progress in Carteret County."

All University students who live in that county are cordially invited to attend the talk by Dr Coker, head of the current marine research movement along the eastern coast of the State.

Everybody's Doing It bc

THE OTHER ITEM of interest has to do with all the post-season grid ratings coming out these days. Not to be outdone, the Daily Tar Heel sports staff has prepared one of its own. Our own little poll was taken among nine members of the newspaper staff and the results were close all the way. But the final tabulations placed Michigan first with 85 out of a possible 90 votes and Notre Dame right behind with 84.

The rest of the field was also close to each other. Southern Methodist and Southern California were deadlocked for third and Carolina finished fifth. The total vote went as follows:

1. Michigan	85	7. Alabama	30
2. Notre Dame	84	8. Penn State	27
3. SMU	61	9. Penn	25
4. Southern Cal.	61	10. Mississippi	4
5. North Carolina	56	California	4
6. Texas	51	12. Army	3

Rest of Varsity

The rest of the varsity aggregation will be composed of veteran Roger Scholbe, Ed Wagner, tennis star Vic Seixas, and another new comer, Norm Mitchell of Bloomington, Indiana.

The respective strength of the visiting Catawba quintet cannot be ascertained, because of the earliness of the season, the game also being the Indians' opening clash of the year. The visitors, though, have an outstanding reputation in their own North State conference, and should be a rough curtain raiser for the locals.

Coach Scott, the transplanted gentleman from Kansas, begins his second year at the reins of the Phantoms, having guided them to the Southern conference finals last season. He is currently being assisted in his duties by perennial Pete Mullis, a Carolina great of the thirties ,and Jim Hamilton, a great of the forties—seven to be exact .

Burney To Lead GM Jam Session

Jack Burney, the originator and supervisor of Graham Memorial's weekly jam sessions and pianist with Dave Howard's orchestra, will conduct this afternoon's three hour session of unrehearsed sweet and swing music from 3-6 o'clock in the Rendezvous of the student union. The Duke Ambassadors, originally scheduled to participate in the show, will instead come over early next quarter.

Spectators are welcome at any time during the program, and campus musicians are especially invited, with or without their instruments.

Durham-Carolina Meet Tomorrow

The Durham-Carolina club will hold its second meeting of the year tomorrow night at 8 o'clock in Gerrard hall.

At this time cards for the Christmas dance will be issued and membership fees will be collected. All Durhamites interested in coming to the dance should sign the list posted on the "Y" bulletin board and attend the meeting to pick up their cards.

Tentative plans are for the dance to be held December 26 in the ballroom of the Washington-Duke hotel. Membership fee for the club will be $3 which will entitle the member to attend the dance.

CCC Will Hear Emory On Russian Position

"Russia's Position in Central Europe" will be the topic of Dr. Samuel T. Emory in an address before the Carolina Conservative Club this evening at 7:30 in the Roland Parker lounge of Graham Memorial.

Dr. Emory, Head of the geography department, will outline the positions in Central Europe now occupied by Soviet troops and other strategic points in danger of coming under Russian control. He will treat Central Europe from the military, economic, and political angles, stressing the military. He will attempt to show what our stake is in Central Europe and will invite suggestions as to what action the United States should take in the situation.

UP Leads In Legislature Battle; SP Is Ahead In Councils

Bob Allen and Marty Pearsall, the Innkeeper and the Innkeeper's wife of Stephen Vincent Benet's "A Child Is Born," to be presented by the Wesley Players Tuesday, December 9, rehearse in Memorial Hall.

Wesley Players to Present 'A Child Is Born' Tuesday

The performance of Stephen Vincent Benet's "A Child is Born" at the community Christmas program next Tuesday night in Memorial hall will mark the third major appearance of Wesley Players, a dramatics group sponsored by Wesley Foundation.

Organized a little over a year ago, the group is working toward affiliation with the National society of Wesley Players, which now has 32 chapters in universities throughout the country. Sponsored by the Methodist church, the national group states that its purpose is to study the relationship between the religion of Jesus, the conflicts in the soul of man, and the expression of them in drama that is sincere, intelligent and artistic.

During their very first production, the local Wesley Players received a good introduction to the theater's maxim, "The show must go on." They were presenting "A King Shall Reign" on the stage of the recreation hall next to the Methodist church, and in spite of the fact that the audience was nearly smoked out by a faulty stove, the show went on, and the audience remained.

The group's second play, given last Easter, was especially rewritten for them by its author, Mrs. Karl Fussler of Chapel Hill. After they had selected the play, the group discovered that it had been written for production at the Methodist church 10 years before, and so Mrs. Fussler was asked to bring it up to date.

Mrs. Madeline Cooley Sutherland, who was chosen Outstanding Playmaker of '46-47, has directed all three plays, and officers of the group this year are Margie Cameron, president; Ted West, vice president; and Marty Pearsall, assistant director and self-styled "general handy woman." Robert Bunch, Ed McLean and Jim Moss, in addition to the officers, make up the steering committee.

Future plans of the Players include production of at least a play a quarter. This spring they are tentatively planning to do T. S. Eliot's "The Rock," a choral speaking drama.

Anti-Strike Bill Passed, Troops Called As French Government Fights Reds

PARIS, Dec. 3. (UP)—Laws and soldiers were used in France today in the new government's fight against Communism, as Communist-delaying tactics were bypassed in the National assembly to pass the last two articles of the powerful anti-strike bill.

Earlier the deputies, except for those with Communistic tendencies, approved legislation permitting the government to jail and fine persons blocking the back-to-work movement.

The government has also called 80,000 army reservists to help police and mobile guards fight the sabotage and violence. The police and guards were rushed to the assembly following a report that Communist-led workers planned a march on the chamber. Dozens of strikers who tried to keep non-strikers from work here were arrested.

The National assembly also heard the exact effect the government's show of force was having. The Minister of the Interior said that the Communist offensive was waning and that rail traffic was 95 per cent normal except in southern France and that the coal strikes in Alsace-Lorraine were practically over.

World Federalists Will Sponsor Talk By Samuel Levering

The student chapter of United World Federalists will present Samuel Levering in a talk on world government at 8 o'clock tonight in the main lounge of Graham Memorial. Levering will speak on the subject, "Is World Government the Path to Peace?" Following his address the audience will be able to ask questions of the speaker.

Economics instructor. bf

Levering graduated from Cornell university in 1927 and later became an instructor in economics. In 1937 he left Cornell to work with the Farm Credit administration. During the summer of 1946 he was director of World Federalists, U.S.A., one of the largest organizations in the nation working for world government. When World Federalists, U.S.A., joined with the other major world government organizations to become United World Federalists, he was elected to the executive council of the new organization.

The speaker is also vice-chairman of the Society of Friends' National Legistlative committee; chairman of the Friends' Peace Commission; chairman of the executive council of United World Federalists of Virginia; and a member of the executive council of UWF of North Carolina.

To Address Classes bf

Levering will speak to three political science classes in Caldwell hall this morning. The first clas will be at 8 o'clock in Room 206, the second at 9 o'clock in Room 213, and the third at 11 o'clock in Room 210.

The student chapter of World Federalists will hold its regular meeting in the Grail Room this afternoon at 5 o'clock. Levering will address the group briefly.

Russell Baldwin, president of the student chapter, requests anyone interested in membership to attend a 5 o'clock business session which will follow Levering's address.

Phi Members Defeat Co-op Tax Measure

After an unsuccessful attempt, by a minority of the Phi ways and means committee, to prevent a bill providing for the taxation of co-operative organizations from coming before the assembly Tuesday night, Phi members defeated the measure by a vote of 10 to 5.

The bill, introduced by Representative Chester D. zum Brunnen, provided for federal taxation of profits used by co-ops for expansion, and for the subjection of these organizations to present anti-trust legislation.

House Opposes

Leading the opposition to the measure, Representative Earnest House pointed out the fact that all productive co-operatives are subject to the same taxation as ordinary corporations, and that consumer co-ops, which are exempt from income taxes, handle less than one per cent of th business carried on in this country.

He explained that consumer co-ops are not subject to income taxation because such organizations are scheduled to operate on a cost basis, and therefore show no profits. He added that restrictions on the amount of interest co-ops may pay members, and the limited amount such organizations may place in reserve funds, off set the present income tax exemption.

Plans Complete

Plans have been completed for the assembly banquet to be held tonight at 6:30 at the Baptist Church. Former governor J. Melville Broughton will be the principal speaker at the affair. Broughton will be introduced by Chancellor Robert B. House. Rev. J. C. Horrin will give the invocation.

CLOUDS OF SMOKE RISE in the backgrou id as Arab mobs—often numbering up to 5000—engage in an orgy of looting, robbing, shop-wrecking and rioting in Jerusalem. A number of automobiles were set on fire during the Arab protest against the United Nations partitioning of Palestine into Arab and Jewish states. Zionists were reported to have broken through a police cordon to fight back. —(International Radiophoto)

Hillel to Sponsor Bus Trips To Freedom Train Saturday

Free transportation for those students wishing to see the Freedom Train in Raleigh this Saturday will be furnished by two Hillel foundation sponsored buses.

The two buses will leave from in front of the "Y," one in the morning and one in the afternoon. The morning bus will leave Chapel Hill at 9:45 and begin the return trip from Raleigh at one o'clock. The afternoon bus will leave here at two o'clock and begin the return trip at five.

Because the space in each bus will be limited, it is requested that those persons interested in the trip sign the list in the "Y" as quickly as possible.

The Freedom Train, consisting of seven cars, is making a 33,000-mile tour through the cities of the United States. Among the documents to be displayed aboard the train are a copy of the Magna Carta (1215), a Christopher Columbus letter (1493), the Mayflower Compact (1622), the Declaration of Independence (1776), the Treaty of Paris (1783), a copy of the Constitution (1787), the Bill of Rights (1789), the Emancipation Proclamation (1862), Lincoln's Gettysburg Address (1863), the Declaration of United Nations (1942), the United Nations Charter (1945), and the Phillippine Independence Proclamation (1946).

The Freedom Train, which is making its 362-day tour as the result of a suggestion made by Attorney General Tom Clark last year, will arrive in Raleigh Saturday. The train will be located at the Union Depot, corner of West Martin and South Dawson streets, and will be open to visitors from 10 o'clock in the morning until 10 o'clock at night.

Testimony Given In Myers' Case

WASHINGTON, Dec. 2 (UP)—A Federal grand jury is mulling over more testimony in the case of Gen. Bennett Myers tonight.

Yesterday, Lamarre, allegedly the head of a dummy firm owned by Myers, testified for three hours. Today, another figurehead official went to the stand against Myers. He is Thomas Readnower, Lamarre's brother-in-law.

Readnow refused to issue his secret testimony before the grand jury, but it was indicated that the grand jurors wanted to know more about the charges of perjury and corruption which Readnower had made previously against Myers at the Senate investigation last month.

Election Board

Al Winn, chairman of the Elections board, has called a meeting of the board for 7 o'clock this evening in Graham Memorial. The following people are urged to be present: Ralph Sherrill, W. B. O'Neal, B. J. Strong, Johnny York, Chick Slack, Gran Childress, Pete Beaudry, Bill Feuss, Bill Hipple, Barbara Cashion.

LEGISLATIVE MEETING

The Student Legislature will meet tonight at 7:30 in Philanthropic hall for the last session this quarter. All members are urged to attend.

Children's Books Being Exhibited

In connection with James Saxon Childers's talk on "Some Classics of Children's Literature" yesterday afternoon an exhibit on children's books has been set up in the main lobby of the library.

Included in the exhibit are editions of "The Night Before Christmas," from the collection of William P. Kellam, assistant librarian, and of Mother Goose and other children's classics, from the collection of Mr. Childers.

Of especial interest to football fans is the parody on "The Night Before Christmas," clipped from a Durham Morning Herald of 1945—"Twas the night before homecoming." "Life's" version of the poem is also shown in photographs done by RKO in Hollywood.

HENDERSON CLUB

There will be a meeting of the Henderson Club tonight at 7 o'clock in Roland Parker No. 1. Final plans for the annual Christmas dance will be made.

Mackie, Carmichael Runoff Is Set; One Seat Open on Women's Council

By Chuck Hauser

Approximately 1,600 votes were cast in Tuesday's general campus election to give the University party a lead in the race for Studen Legislature seats and the possession of the open junior class offices, while the Student party took over in the race for Student and Men's council seats and one of the two open freshman posts, the other being filled by the Campus party.

Final and official tabulations on the Student council battle show Bill Mackie (SP—552) in a runoff with Martin Carmichael (UP—485), and Bob Haire (CP) following up with 295. The other council post was filled by SP candidate Chick Slack, who went unopposed.

Jim Taylor (SP) went into the Men's council unanimously, while five coeds headed for a runoff next Tuesday. They are Tenn Mason (106), Elizabeth Myatt (104), Anne Wells (101), Lil Hotard (97), and Helen Bouldin (87).

There is one more open position on the Women's council for a six month term. Nominations have not yet been made for this post, but it will be included on the ballot Tuesday.

Fighting Slows Down In Tel Aviv, Haifa

TEL AVIV, Palestine, Dec. 3. (UP)—As the smoke of battle slowly starts to lift from the strife-ridden land of Palestine, the reason for the fighting slowdown, a large force of British troops, has its bayonets fixed in the Tel Aviv-Haifa area.

Even with the presence of the British warriors, brisk sniping is still being carried on and the "no-man's-land" between the two cities is a potential death-trap for anyone daring to pass through.

Firemen stand by helplessly as flames engulf buildings in the no-man's area, afraid to risk the hazard of the continuous gunfire.

British officials have slapped a curfew on the borderline territory and British troops are firing in answer to shots from either side, as Arabs and Jews on opposite sides shoot at anyone who shows his head. They have thrown up entrenchments and have continuous patrols on duty to watch the "front."

According to latest reports, the past 24-hour battle has resulted in deaths of 10 men, with 32 others seriously wounded. In all, the unofficial toll of casualties in Palestine for the last two days is 23 killed and 102 wounded.

Trouble in the Holy Land is far from over, however, as late communiques tell the story of new riots in Haifa. Arabs reappeared after new demonstrations today and set fire to a large Jewish lumber yard.

A CORRECTION

An erroneous headline in yesterday's Daily Tar Heel stated that Mickey MacDougall, world-famed card detective, would appear in Memorial hall this evening under the auspices of Graham Memorial. It should have stated that MacDougall will appear Sunday evening.

Coeds To Meet

Coed Senate Speaker Barbara Cashion has called a mass meeting of all coeds in Memorial hall this afternoon at 5 o'clock to make nominations for one position on the Women's council for a term of six months.

It was stressed that after a complete slate of nominations is made this afternoon, there will be runoffs to narrow the field down to three, according to Coed Senate rules. Those three names will go on the ballot in the general election runoff Tuesday.

Art Gallery Planetarium Now in Storage; Morehead Donation Unloaded in Baltimore

By Raney Stanford

The only college-owned planetarium in the world, scheduled for installation in the Morehead Art Gallery and Planetarium building now under construction, was unloaded on the docks at Baltimore last week.

The intricate instrument and its mountings, which arrived in the United States packed in 14 crates weighing between 5 and 7,000 pounds, was procured from the Royal Swedish Astronomical Society by John Motley Morehead, the donor of the building and a former State department minister to Sweden.

Planetaria devices are used to present a mathematically correct reproduction of heavenly bodies and their relative motions. This particular instrument, built by the Zeiss corporation of Jena, Germany, is the most successful ever developed that can do this and still show as much of the sky's natural grandeur as is possible for man to duplicate. Zeiss engineers worked on this phase of imitative projection for five years before perfecting their original model, capable of projecting over 9,000 star and planet images onto an overhead hemisphere, in the respective positions in which they are seen in the natural heavens.

The planetarium itself, when assembled and installed in it's domed theater, resembles a giant, bulbous dumbbell suspended in a cradle. It is about 12 feet long, and the moving parts weigh over a ton. The lens-covered knobs on either end contain the projection mechanism for the stars of the Northern and Southern skies respectively. Planet projectors and their driving gears are mounted all through the central shaft, and the main motors are built around the center of support, the mid-point of the shaft.

The outstanding feature of this device to the astronomy student is that sky conditions can be duplicated for places anywhere on the earth's surface, at anytime when conditions are calculable by man. One can see the constellations as they appeared at the birth of Christ, or as they should be seen by an Earth dweller 5,000 years hence. The various habits of the sun, moon, planets, and the change of seasons can be observed.

To the novice observer, the mechanism can reveal more sensational wonders. With a flick of the wrist the operator can burst novas or collide comets, all with perfect safety, assured for the awed spectator. Eclipses can be recreated, or an artificial dawn can be suffused into the darkened amphitheater that is second in splendor only to the natural spectacle itself.

Mr. Morehead has stated that in creating his gift to the University, he wanted to include something that would arouse the scientific curiosities of the residents of his state. Originally he planned to build an observatory here, but Dr. Howard Shapley, director of Harvard's observatory, pointed out an observatory would serve only a few advanced scientists, while a planetarium would create interest and curiosity among

Pictured above is the women's glee club, which will combine with the men's glee club to present, under the direction of Paul Young, the annual Christmas concert tomorrow and Sunday nights at 8:30 in Hill hall.

Preparation for the concert began with the first meetings of the Clubs early in the fall quarter. Many hours of practice have been spent by the groups in anticipation of this annual event. The next few days are filled with scheduled practices in which the selections will receive final work to meet the high standards required by Mr. Young.

The program will include selections such as "Kyrie" from Mess VII by Lotti; "Jesu, Joy of Man's Desiring" by Bach; "Waters Ripple and Flow," a Czecho-Slovakian Folksong arranged by Deems Taylor sung by the Women's Glee Club. The Men's Club will sing "Adoramus Te Christe" by Mozart; the stirring "Lo, A Song of Cherubim" by Borliniansky and the rhythmic "This ol' Hammer," a Negro work song, arranged by John W. Work. The two clubs will combine to sing a group of Christmas Songs, Randall Thompson's "Alleluia" and the thrilling "Hallelujah Chorus" by Handel.

Those persons holding season tickets may obtain their reserved seat tickets at the Glee Club Office on the main floor of Hill hall this week before 5 o'clock each afternoon.

Departmental Exams Unfair

The nearness of final exams brings to mind the unhappy question of "departmental examinations" and their influence on the campus. As an item for the record, here is one strong vote against them. For our money, they are a clear indication of laziness on the part of faculty and an invitation to dishonesty for students.

Departmental exams are composed of questions submitted by each member of a department staff and are reproduced in large quantities. It is not hard to realize that students taking the examinations will inevitably run head-on into questions that require information which has not been covered by their instructor.

Instructors are individuals with individual methods of teaching. It is practically impossible for any general examination to cover the differences in teaching techniques. The only person who can determine what is to be expected of a class is the individual who has taught it.

Another problem that is invited by departmental examinations is the question of cheating. While the Carolina student body is operating on the Honor System, the mass production of these exams offers too many outlets, whereby students can obtain copies of the tests before exam time.

It is a great convenience to use the same examination quarter after quarter, with slight changes to discourage any cheaters, but if department heads resort to this labor-saving method, they are giving the individual student a rough deal, in addition to encouraging those who might possibly have no respect for the Honor System.

For a wise, fair examination, instructors will make up their own exams in the method best suited for their individual classes. —BB

What Happened to the Bible Belt

Sunday evenings back on the farm they used to sit around the kerosene lamp listening to the old man read the Bible. He didn't have to read much of it; he knew it almost by heart. The kids were to be that way when they grew up, too. Maybe they would pronounce the strange names badly, but their heart was in the right place.

Times have changed, as an English instructor pointed out in teaching Milton, yesterday.

Twenty years ago, he said, students would have been familiar with all of Cold John's Biblical allusions.

Maybe so. But not since our days in Christian Endeavor have we been able to sing that little song with the names of the books of the Bible. Not only have we forgotten the books; we have forgotten the tune, too.

It may be a shame, but more students are familiar with Daisy Mae in the turnip patch, than with Ruth in the alien corn.

A few would-be writers still read Ecclesiastes upon the suggestion of Hemingway and Wolfe; some poets like to thumb through the Old Testament, and a few folks read the Song of Songs just for kicks.

The business of selling Bibles has declined, too. We have a friend who worked for a company (the Gold Seal Bible Company, if we remember correctly) peddling the tomes through the Carolina hills. Not only did he sell but a few Bibles, two thugs set upon him one dark night, stole his small roll of cash, not to mention the Bibles.

We wonder what the Baltimore sage, H. L. Mencken, thinks of his Bible Belt now?

Who Wants a Date?

The Six-To-One Ratio

By Clarke Stallworth

With the six-to-one male population on campus, the coeds are becoming more and more independant. Nowadays they are ready to give you a hard time at the drop of a hem, or vice versa.

When you first decide to date one of these queens, you approach her in the Y Court through her crowd of admirers and tender your request. She consults her date book and then says sure, come around a month from next Friday.

The night of the big date rolls around and you drive down and park your car in front of her dorm, exactly on time. Half an hour later your date strolls leisurely into the parlor, explaining that she's sorry she's late but she ran out of bubble bath and had to hunt all over the dorm to find some.

When you are settled in your seat at the movie, she suddenly honors you with a smile and has a desperate craving for popcorn. You struggle and excuse your way out to the aisle, muttering under your breath, and get the popcorn. When you have run the gamut of knees, shoes, overcoats, and seats, and get back to your charming date, she eats one handful and then isn't hungry any more. Then when the villian gets the heroine backed into a corner and the picture gets exciting, she wants to talk. And talk she does, explaining the gory details why Johnny and Franky aren't sweethearts any longer or why Archaeology is such a hard course.

Finally you leave the theatre, followed by the satisfied sighs of the people who go to the movies to see a movie, and help her into your car. You drive around for awhile and then give out of gas on some quiet, dark road.

As you turn off the switch and gather your strength for the charge, she calmly lights a cigarette. You sit, teeth clenched, until she finishes her smoke. When she takes the last possible puff and throws it out the window, you decide to play it smart and craftily slide over to her side of the seat. You are met by the crunch of an apple, which she has just whipped out of her bag. Then she chews a pack of gum, eats the bag of popcorn saved for just such an emergency, puts on three coats of lipstick, and in between gives you a running account of the last four years of her life.

Finally it's time to go in and when you get to the door of the dorm, she has to go around and say hello to all the couples. After she has performed this duty, she eludes you for the last five minutes and goes in, unkissed.

After this, if you're discouraged about the whole thing, follow my advice and don't date any more coeds, Maybe if everyone did this, I could get a date myself.

The UN and You

UN Meet Bombastic, Hectic

By Lincoln S. H. Kan

The General Assembly of the United Nations has ended its second session since the signing of the Charter at San Francisco in 1945. It was a hectic and bombastic meeting up there in Flushing Meadows. Charges and counter-charges of "war mongering" were flung between major powers in open assembly. Tempers were cut loose, as a South American nation retorted vehemently against charges of being the "last vestiges of the Rome-Berlin Axis." Yet certain agreements were reached such as the Palestine Partition Plan and the unanimous condemnation of war charges and instigations. At first glance one would say that the members of the United Nations have done very little, as the Partition Plan has not satisfied everyone and the unanimous assent to condemn war-mongering has a hollow ring.

However, what most of us do not know is that while the leading diplomats of the member nations were arguing on the General Assembly floor, the specialized agencies and organs of the United Nations were quietly coming to agreement and putting into action their work. One of the most encouraging measures passed and soon to be presented to all member nations for adoption is the recommendation that the purposes, principles, structure, background and activities of the United Nations be taught in schools and institutions of higher learning, with special emphasis on instruction in primary and secondary schools. The Assembly quickly passed this resolution from the Third Committee on November 17 without a dissenting vote. The resolution also invites the UNESCO and the Secretary-General of the United Nations to assist member nations at their request in implementing this educational program.

This indicates clearly to us that the world's diplomats realize the importance of informed opinion among the young people of our world. The Members are of the opinion that the United Nations will live and the youth must be trained to live in a future government that has for its basis the backing of the United Nations.

In North Carolina the activation of United Nations study had already been started, long before the resolution was passed by the General Assembly. The Collegiate Council fo rthe United Nations has spread through 19 colleges in this great state. A High School Council has been initiated in Chapel Hill High School to serve as the nucleus for a statewide net of high school councils for the United Nations to be sponsored by the college nearest to them, and assisted by their community civic groups and other interested persons.

For the skeptics, we quote General Romulo of the Philippines:

"When the charter in San Francisco was not yet signed the prophetic of disaster foretold it would never be signed. It was signed. Now the same prophets foretell that the United Nations will not live. I tell you it will live—it will survive IF only the people of America will take an active interest in it, follow what it is doing, find out what makes it tick. The United Nations should not be judged by its differences of opinions which must come up when there are 55, no 57 nations trying to live together. Even a husband and wife do not have everlasting peace."

In keeping with our policy, here are two projects which might interest you: 1) Try drawing up a basic Bill of Rights for all nations. 2) Write a quiz program giving 20 questions and answers on the framework of the U. N. and submit it to your home town radio station for their use.

Itch for Fashion

'Antsy Pantsy' on Market

By JAMES BROCK

PHOENIX, Ariz. (U. P.) — The new look for men is finally sweeping the country, but it's not so much "look" as an "it's there, all right, but you can't see it."

Antsy Pants, the latest wrinkle in boxer's shorts, is an exclusive product of Goldwater's Phoenix department store. Since the firm began placing advertisements in national magazines it has received more than 3,500 orders for the novel male lingerie.

Mr. America's desire to have his shorts adorned with huge red ants has the firm working overtime to fill the orders which pour in at the rate of 150 a day.

Gene Warren, the store's men's shop buyer and Antsy Pants authority, said an additional clerk had to be hired to handle correspondence connected with the craze.

"We're not only 2,000 orders behind already," he said, "but new orders keep coming in faster than we can catch up on the old ones."

The firm's predicament is complicated because manufacturing the garment has its problems. The white broadcloth material is bought in New York, then shipped to Los Angeles, where the two-inch long facsimile of desert ants are imprinted. Still another Los Angeles firm does the actual cutting and stitching.

Largest of the orders, which have come from parts as far away as Guam and England, was received from the president of a Detroit firm. He asked for 50 pairs, in a dozen sizes, and enclosed a check for $125.

If the demand keeps up, more than 10,000 pairs of shorts are expected to be sold within the next seven to eight months.

Warren said he was bothered by one thing — inability to furnish enough of the garments locally.

"We had expected to advertise in Phoenix newspapers before this," he said, "but you can see the spot we're in."

He promised, however, that male Phoenicians would have ants on their pants by early December.

Mudville Mutterings

Village Roaches Like Scotch

By Dan Sapp

The Thanksgiving Turkey and the Virginia game have both been throughly hashed over and all the village daddies are boning up for the big exams, which in case you hadn't noticed will be here in a matter of two weeks now. Due to all this earnest endeavor the audible mutters from Mudville are few and far between. However, by means of radar, clairvoyance, and mental telepathy a few items have been gleaned.

Mrs. Nelson, a council representative from Jackson circle, is one member who really has her constituents' best interest's at heart. Mutters, which practically amounted to screams of anguish, reached Mrs. Nelson's attentive ears and she did a little investigating. The scheams were occasioned by the presence of little animals known as cockroaches, which have descended on the Barracks like locusts on China. They are dangerous disease carriers and they ruin food. There is a story circulating that one particular specie is devoted to strong drink and a group of them have been known to demolish an entire bottle of scotch in one night. But to get back to the point of all this, Mrs. Nelson has reported that an exterminator is now going the rounds in the village and will get to the Barracks soon.

Mr. and Mrs. Don Koonzie of the Village have announced the arrival of Don Jr. who was born October 18. Don Sr. says that he's afraid Don Jr. is going to look like him.

Haywood Wyatt, another active member of the local council, is campaigning for one way traffic on Jackson circle and Daniels road. He is investigating the situation, which, by the way, is really a situation, and is doing a survey of public opinion in the two sections.

Bright hope for the future is new garbage cans for the Barracks, but it seems a cruel thing to do. What will the dogs eat?

Mother's Helper

Words For Junior May Help Him Be President

A United Press report from Chicago has brought to the attention of DTH the fact that mothers can make their children grow up nicely. We wish to pass this on to those mothers hereabouts who have some regard for the future life of their offspring.

Read junior a page of the dictionary every day and he probably won't grow up to be a gangster.

That's the advice given by Max Sherover, head of the Linguaphone Institute of America.

Sherover says that an extremely limited vocabulary results in exhibitionism, which causes anti-social conduct. He cites Al Capone as an example.

Sometimes, he points out, it works the other way, as in the case of Al Smith, who manifested his exhibitionism by becoming one of the best loved figures of all time.

So campus mothers are hereby advised to read Junior a page of Webster every day. Do him good. You, too.

To The Editor:

In precedence with the article "Intellectual Fever" which appeared in the DTH December 1, I would like to make the following confession. For I too would be diseased with intellectual fever were it not for a mishap in my early manhood, which caused a heated entanglement of parents, teachers and ministers throughout the territory of my birth.

Having reached that age where one is normally possesed with an urge to pursue life at its fullest in spite of himself, I found myself in restless conflict with the more "natural" rules of my society. In this state of perplexity, I sought with innocent eagerness the advice of my social guardians. My parents thought that I should above all "be a man." My teachers taught me the search for truth, and my church required that I act in the name of God. Being profound both in mind and in spirit, I graciously heeded the advice that I received and went straightforth to the object of my motivation and spoke these words; "By God, Mary, I shall pursue thee in the name of truth and henceforth become a man." Mary, not quit grasping the depth of my statement, said, "Hey! How U?"" Nevertheless we fell in love.

Being too young to realize little more than how to live most, I was not aware of certain rules of my society that would also have me serve best. My joy was shortlasted. For, never doubting the goodliness of my pursuits, I was late in becoming aware of the controversy that my actions were provoking among the respectables of my community. My innocence was ill-rebuked. I was an outcast, ostrasized at church and school. I became bitter, enraged, with desire for vengeance. My vengeance was to pursue happiness in spite of school and church.

Thus I became enlightened. By affliction I had learned wisdom. I had learned never to let authority or fact get in the way of the truth. I had learned that women in my society were progenitors of misery, yet, derivitive of all pleasure. Above all I had learned that the proof of all this lies in the fact that I can seldom put that wisdom into practice. For here at school I can neither forget about women entirely nor think long or often about my religion. But by being aware of this fact, I do occasionally endeavor to think. That endeavor has paid off. I am entering my junior year now, and by heavens I not intellectually frustrated yet!

No Thanksgiving Holidays?

By R. Foo Giduz

Though the odds are likely stacked one-to-7527 against us, this corner raises a few rational reasons (we think so, anyhow,) in favor of the abolishment of Thanksgiving holidays—as they now stand..... Now that's a handy way to become the man-of-the-week-most- likely-to-be-asked-to drop-dead, but there are indeed a number of practical reasons for this proposal.

.....Wonder how many realize there are only seven more school days before exams..... and only 10 school days between Thanksgiving and Christmas holidays!.... It doesn't seem practical to make two trips home in this short period of time, when the two days off from school would be so much more welcome at another date: .....Especially at the end of spring quarter, or even at the end of Christmas vacation. There's no more vacation in the entire year more needed and welcome than the few days in March at the end of that tough winter quarter.....And if FDR's stunt of shifting Thanksgiving around ever becomes popular again, this two-day fall break will become even more meaningless....

Certainly no more students would cut classes if Thanksgiving day alone were declared a holiday, than under the present plan of the Wednesday through Monday spree. (That's the way a considerable number are figuring the holiday at present, despite the $2.50 fine per class absence on pre and postholiday days)..... Or look at it another way:—Two-thirds of the student body returns for the Saturday-after-Thanksgiving football game, and one-fourth never leaves at all! ..... (Figures courtesy Harry-the-Horse, local bookie.) .....So figuring it either too long or too short, it still adds up from here that Thanksgiving holidays would be much more practical and welcome at some other time—Anybody agree???

Here's Final Roundup Of Carolina Grid Year

By Dick Jenrette

When Carolina's Tar Heels walked off the grid of Kenan stadium last Saturday with the cheers following their 40-7 rout of Virginia still ringing in their ears, almost all the State's sports writers had been convinced that this 1947 Tar Heel team was as good as any outfit that ever represented a North Carolina school.

GEORGE ROBERTS, a top-flight guard on Carolina's 1947 grid team, is another of the graduating standouts who played a leading role in the Tar Heel's successful season. This was his third year on the squad.

Carolina didn't win any championships and the team was beaten soundly in two of its 10 games. Yet the manner in which Coach Carl Snavely's boys rebounded to score seven straight victories branded them as a team that not only had great playing ability but also the right mental outlook toward the game.

The Tar Heels received more advance publicity than any team in the school's history. Overconfidence easily could have ruined the club. Then came two unexplainable losses to Texas and Wake Forest in the second and third games of the season, and with that it seemed that everyone lost confidence in the team. Many outfits would have folded up under similar conditions, but not the 1947 Tar Heels. Coach Snavely rallied his forces together, and Carolina came through with a 13-7 win over William and Mary. That game was the only one the Indians lost all year. From then on out, there was nothing but Tar Heel victories, and all were by more convincing margins than the William and Mary win.

The tenth place national rating the Tar Heels received in the Associated Press grid poll this week did not do them justice.

Played Good Teams

Here is the complete season record: Carolina 14, Georgia 7; Texas 34, Carolina 0; Wake Forest 19, Carolina 7; Carolina 13, William and Mary 7; Carolina 35, Florida 7; Carolina 20, Tennessee 6; Carolina 41, N .C. State 6; Carolina 19, Maryland 0; Carolina 21; Duke 0; Carolina 40, Virginia 7.

Three of the teams beaten, Georgia, Maryland, and William and Mary, will play in bowl games. Texas, which beat the Tar Heels, will participate in the Sugar Bowl.

Tar Heels Recognized

Carolina didn't go unrecognized. The Chapel Hill school received numerous minor bowl bids and an invitation to perform in the huge coliseum in Los Angeles on December 20 in a game sponsored by the American Legion. However, the University declined the invitation.

The Virginia game closed out the collegiate football careers for eight Carolina players. Those who won't be around next season are Co-captains Joe Wright and George Sparger, Walt Pupa, Jim Camp, Emmett Cheek, George Roberts, Ted Hazelwood, and John Tandy. All played valuable roles in making this year a successful one.

Season Statistics

Carolina scored 210 points this season to 93 for the opposition. Charlie Justice, who completed a successful sophomore season at Carolina, led the scoring parade with 48 points. Bob Cox, the ex-

Final Rounds Today In Mural Volleyball

The volleyball program of the intramural department enters the final round this afternoon in both fraternity and dormitory divisions. Aycock No. 2 meets Med School in the clash for the dorm title while the finals in the frat bracket sends two Phi Gam teams, No. 1 and No. 2, against each other.

Med School won the right to play in the finals yesterday afternoon by topping the Grads, 2-0. Phi Gam No. 1 beat Phi Gam No. 3, 2-1, and Phi Gam No. 2 won over Zeta Psi No. 1, 2-0.

As mural tag football play ended yesterday afternoon, second place in the fraternity league was once again in a three way tie. DKE defeated Phi Delt convincingly, 21-0 in the only remaining contest. With Zeta Psi, DKE, and Phi Delt all tied up for the second place honors, the mural heads have decided to settle things by giving second, third, and fourth places, according to the number of points scored by each of the three teams.

In yesterday's grid battle, DKE marched to one touchdown in the first half, with Tommy Crudup carrying the pigskin over for the extra point with a nice boot. Two more six-pointers were set up in the final stanza and Howard Walters scored a safety to finish the tallying. Bernard Wright and Lem Gibbons rushed into the end zone for the last half touchdowns.

Intramural managers are requested to make entries now for the basketball tournament in order that competition may get under way as soon as possible after the holidays. Entries will be limited to two teams from each organization.

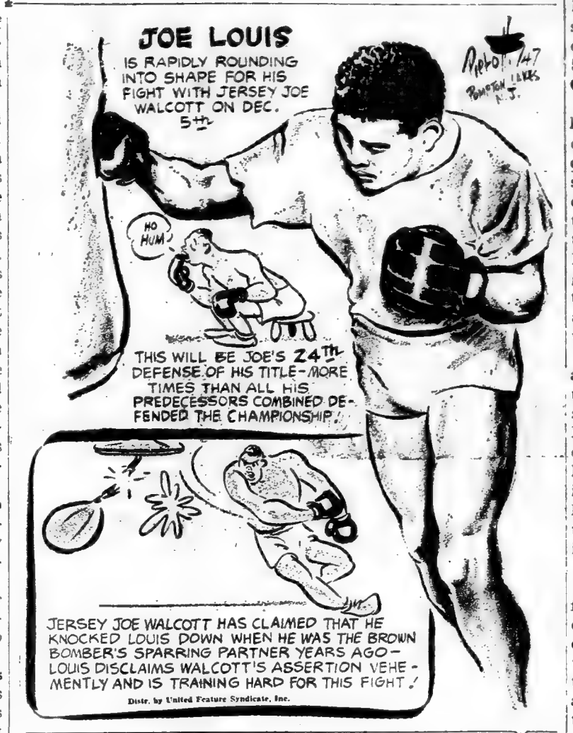
Jayvee Cagemen Open Campaign With 45-30 Win Over Louisburg

By Morty Schaap

The jayvee basketball team of Jim Hamilton opened their season with a decisive 45-30 win over Louisburg Junior college in Woollen gym last night.

The juniors took an early lead and then pulled out to a 21-11 lead at half time. The play in the early part of the game was very ragged offensively but the men of Hamilton exhibited a tough defense and the visitors were never able to penetrate it.

Except for some unlucky shots the Carolinians might well have run up a large score. They kept possession of the ball for a large part of the game and early season jitters seemed to clutch the whole club till mid-way in the second half. Bill White and Charlie Thorne played fine ball and established themselves as comers in the Carolina basketball kingdom.



John Tsantes and Hal Ferraro took care of most of the shooting and they too look like they may be valuable aid to the Scottmen in years to come.

Ferraro was high scorer for the evening with 12 points. Johnson was high for Louisburg also hitting the bucket for 12.

Justice Is Selected On AP Second Team

Charlie Justice moved up a notch from his post on the third team of the Associated Press All-American squad of 1946 to a berth on the second string backfield on this season's dream team.

The Asheville flyer, who has already been named to several other All-American squads, joins Harry Gilmer of Alabama, Charlie Conerly of Mississippi, and Chalmers "Bump" Elliott of Michigan in the second team backfield.

AP's first team backfield featured Johnny Lujack, Notre Dame, Doak Walker, Southern Methodist, Bob Chappuis, Michigan and Ray Evans of Kansas.

Coed Hockey Club To Practice Today

The coed hockey club will hold its final practice prior to a meeting with Duke this afternoon at 4 o'clock on Emerson field, team captain Scotty Dellinger announced yesterday.

Plans concerning the game will be discussed, and all members of the team are asked to be present. The two teams fight it out Saturday afternoon on the local field at 2 o'clock and spectators are invited to attend.

Paxton, Miller Pace Locals as Second Half Spurt Proves Margin of Victory

By Bob Goldwater

It's always nice to start the season with an entry in the victory column. And that's exactly what Carolina's White Phantoms did last night in Woollen gym, putting on a high-scoring, second-half spree that carried them from a one-point intermission lead to a 51-32 final count over Catawba College.

Playing raggedly in the first half, as might have been expected considering it was their initial outing, the charges of Tom Scott showed a decided improvement during the last 20 minutes, and the issue was never in doubt after two minutes of the second half. Fifteen Carolina players were given the chance to take part in the festivities and the actions of all—varsity and reserve alike—were highly gratifying.

Big Bob Paxton—Mister Reliable himself—came through in his usual fine fashion to capture the scoring honors for the evening. Leading the way during the second half surge with 11 points, Paxton collected 14 markers during the evening. Sophomore Bill Miller—one of two newcomers to the squad—was next on the scoring list with nine.

Crowd-Pleaser

But the star of the evening—as far as the Tar Heel fans were concerned—was the old crowd-pleaser, John Dillon. The gym rocked with cheers when the "Hook" entered the game for the first time after 12 minutes had elapsed in the first half. And despite the pressure, John didn't disappoint a single soul, coming through with three of his specialty shots and two free throws for eight points.

The first half was extremely slow, to put it mildly. Norm Kohler registered the first two-pointer of the season at 1:50 shortly after Catawba's Jim Walser had dumped in a charity toss to open the scoring. It took three minutes more before either quint could hit again—Harold Wood putting the Indians out front with a one-handed push. And that took care of the scoring for another three minutes. Nemo Nearman tipped in a basket at 7:30 and Carolina gained a lead it never relinquished.

But the pace didn't increase. At the 10-minute mark, it was Carolina, 9-5 and five more minutes only brought the score up to 14-11, still Carolina. Dillon's first hook and four Catawba tallies brought the count to a 16-15 score at halftime.

It wasn't close thereafter. Right after the start of the second half, Paxton hit the cords with a pair of one-handed lobs and the Phants were off to the races. Miller, Nearman, Paxton, King Cole—with Norm Kohler doing most of the feeding--continually dumped in points and Carolina upped the advantage to 32-17 after 10 minutes. Dillon came back and hit with a foul shot and another hook, interrupted by two Catawba set shots. That made it 34-21.

Came another big splurge. Miller tipped in a basket and Paxton came through with three in a row—one a rebound, one a layup, and the other a one-handed push. Dillon's final hook—this one from the portside—pushed the margin up to 44-23, and when John left the game with three minutes left, that became the signal for the crowd to begin filing out.

Blue Dolphins Splash to Flashy Record Under Able Tutelage of Coach Jamerson

By Bill Kellam

"Break up the Blue Dolphins" has been in the past and probably will be the byword in Southern conference swimming circles this winter. This cry of lament has been raised by the other loop mentors because not since 1939, the Carolina mermen's first year in intercollegiate competition, have the charges of Coach Dick Jamerson failed to splash into first place in the five loop meets held since their initial but losing effort.

Not only have the Dolphins made a habit of scoring the most points, but year in and year out, the local tankmen have grabbed a lion's share of first places in the individual events. The Jamersonians hit their peak in the winter of 1943, the last Blue and White team before the draft blew the student body to the far corners of the globe, when they stroked their way to six out of a possible seven individual first places.

Last season the Dolphins entered the revived conference meet and continued their winning ways to walk away with first place honors plus five out of seven individual titles.

The credit for the Tar Heel tankmen's rapid return to their prewar championship form after a four-year layoff can probably be attributed to a great extent to the able tutelage of Coach Jamerson. Turning out winning teams has become second nature to the Carolina mentor. it seems, and his present crew seems to be ready to stroke up another loop crown for old Tar Heelia.

One might assume from all the first places taken by the Dolphins that they have only one good man for each event. However, such is not the case, for out of a possible total of 660 points, the Dolphins not only garnered 90 counters by their first place finishes but followed up with 96 points tallied by ending in the runner-up spots. In addition,

Union Will Present Handel's Messiah

A complete recorded performance of Handel's best known oratorio, the renown Messiah, will be played in the main lounge of Graham Memorial this Sunday afternoon beginning at 3 o'clock. The Messiah is traditionally performed throughout the English-speaking world during the Christmas season.

Christ and his role as the Saviour of mankind is the story of the text which is taken from the Bible. The music, especially the choruses, are familiar to almost everyone, and the oratorio has been an inspiration to millions for the past two centuries. At its first performance in London, before the royal court, King George was so moved during the famous "Hallelujah Chorus" that he stood up, thus starting a custom that has been traditional for this section of the Messiah ever since.

The recordings, recently made in England, are performed by the Huddersfield Choral Society, one of Britain's oldest choral clubs. The singers include: Isobel Baillie, soprano; Gladys Ripley, contralto; James Johnston, tenor, and Norman Walker, basso. Accompanying is the Liverpool Philharmonic, directed by the recently knighted Sir Malcom Sargent.

GRID MOVIES TONIGHT

As an added feature, a part of the pictures of the 1946 Tennessee game, including Charlie Justice's long run, will be shown.

STUDENT PARTY

The Student party will meet this afternoon at 4:30 in Roland Parker lounge No. 1 in Graham Memorial to go over election results and to discuss plans for next Tuesday's runoff elections. Chairman Charlie Long urges all candidates who ran in the election to be present and all other interested persons are invited to attend the meeting.

Six-month terms went to Buddy Simpson (UP—265), John Van Hecke (SP—160), and George Drew (SP—125).

Town Runoff

For one seat on the Student Legislature from town women, there wil be a re-election for the same three candidate who were on this Tuesday's ballot. UP candidate Anne Coop Knikht's 30 votes did not show a majority, and Marietta Duke (UP) and Effie Westervelt (SP) were tied for second place with 16 each, pointing to a runoff vote including all three candidates again.

Another runoff is scheduled for positions in the Legislature from men's dorms. The following 16 men will be on Tuesday's ballot: Dick Allsbrook (SP—267), Dick Boren (UP—311), Jess Dedmond (CP—287), Bill Jernigan (SP—266), Bob Kirby (UP—291), Dan Logue (UP—367), Charlie Long (SP—325), Bill Thorpe (UP—269), Jim Vogler (CP—289), Russell Baldwin (SP—264), Charles Howe (SP—264), Kyle Barnes (UP—259), Don Robertson (SP—255), Jack Park (SP—240), Neil Partrick (UP—237), Thorn Gregory (UP—235).

Six-Months Terms

Representatives of the women's dorms to the Legislature for one-year terms are Jo Farris (SP—114), Fern Hughes (UP—132), Edie Knight (UP-SP—137), and Peppy Lucas (UP—94). Mary Swann (SP—98) was elected for six months.

Four girls were elected to seats on the Coed Senate, Priscilla Moore with 129 votes, Barbara Anne Pope—170, Jean Roberts—157, and Mary Leah Thorne—149.

In the race for junior class offices, the University party dominated the voting, electing Stan Fox vice-president with 243 votes and putting Bill Thorpe in as Social chairman with 202. Anne Wells (SP) followed up for vice-president with 238, and Dave Ferebee (SP) was runnerup for the social chairmanship with 178.

Bill Swaim (SP—143) was elected vice-president of the freshman class over William Benbow (UP—119), and Ted Leonard (CP—132) nosed out Marvin Nathan (UP—128) for the post of secretary-treasurer.

Jamerson's speedsters amassed 90 points by their wins in the relays, and racked up another 69 points by their second, third, and fourth place finishes.

Many experts are hailing this year's Dolphins as being potentially the greatest crew of swimmers ever to agitate the placid waters of Bowman Gray pool. The returnees from last year's league champs, including co-captains Jesse Greenbaum and Mike Morrow, breaststrokers Bob Ousley, Jerry Cook, and Dan Breeden, loop diving champ Norm Sper, and distance men Sam McCauley and Ike Norwood, will lead this year's Dolphins in quest of their sixth straight conference title and any available national honors.

The Carolina tankmen, who also hold 15 of 24 Southern conference individual and team records, will hold a practice meet against State's mermen in the local pool tomorrow afternoon. Coach Jamerson announced that the meet would be open to the public and the student body is cordially invited to a sneak preview of the 1948 team.

Legal Group Head To be Feted Here

Prof. William L. Pictured above is the Men's Glee Club which, combined with the Women's Glee Club, will present the annual Christmas concert under the direction of Paul Young tonight and Sunday night at 8:30 in Hill hall. The Club, which has 160 members, received wide acclaim after the Spring concert and concert tours last year.

Combined Glee Club Concert To Offer Bach, Folk Songs

Virginia Johnson, Rufus Norris, and John Brinegar will be soloists for the Bach cantata, "For Us a Child is Born," to be performed as part of the annual Christmas concert by the combined Men's and Women's Glee clubs Friday and Sunday nights at 8:30 in Hill hall.

Mrs. Johnson, who will have the contralto solo in the cantata, is from Chapel Hill and is an instructor in voice. Norris is also an instructor in the vocal department, and will sing the baritone aria for the cantata. He has done professional work in musical comedy in New York city and on tour, and has been with the Gilbert and Sullivan Opera company.

Brinegar, who will sing the tenor aria, is from Thomasville, and is a senior voice major. He is choir leader for the Baptist church of Carrboro.

Barbara Young, a junior in the voice department, will have the soprano solo in "Rouse Good Folks," to be done by the Women's Glee club. She is from Chapel Hill and appeared last year in the operetta, "Gondolier."

"This Ol' Hammer" will be done by the Men's Glee club with Ed Easter as soloist. Active in radio and musical production work in Chapel Hill, Easter is from Lexington, N.C. He had the tenor lead in the opera, "The Bartered Bride" last year and in "Chimes of Normandy" the year before.

Dick Cox, a voice major from Raleigh, will sing the solo for the Men's club's presentation of "I Wonder as I Wander," an Appalachian carol arranged by John Jacob Niles. Also soloing in that number will be John Bridges, graduate student in the dramatics art department from Asheville, who had the lead in "Chimes of Normandy."

All ticket holders must exchange their tickets for reserved seats for either Friday's or Sunday's performance.

Research, Finance Bills Voted Out

The Student Legislature, in its final meeting of the quarter last night, defeated a bill authorizing the establishment of a research committee to study Communism and make periodic reports to the student body. Privileges of the floor were extended to Tom Eller, president of the student body, who said that the majority of the people who had talked to him about the bill were opposed to it.

The Finance Committee gave an unfavorable report on a bill to appropriate money to World Student Service Fund on the grounds that it was unconstitutional. The resolution was defeated.

A bill to send two delegates to the National Student Association regional assembly at Lynchburg College this weekend was approved. Nominations for these positions were then made. Charlie Howe and Pete Gerns were selected to represent the University at this assembly. It was brought out in the discussion that Johnney Clampitt and Herman Baker are regional officers for the Association and will also be attending the meeting.

Ernest House introduced a bill to count legislators absent if they are not present for a roll call made at any time during a session. After much discussion, the measure was passed by a vote of 13 to 12.

A second bill pertaining to legislative procedure was passed requiring that one copy of the bill must go to the clerk and another to the speaker when it is introduced. It also stated that a number would be placed on the bill to make the filing system more accurate.

Long, Zucker Picked To Fill 1948 Offices Of Dialectic Senate

The Dilectic Senate, Meeting Wednesday in closed executive session until midnight, picked its slate of officers for the next term—a slate re-electing Charles O. Long and John Zucker as Di president and president pro-tempore, respectively.

Long and Zucker have already served in the Senate's two highest positions this past quarter. Their re-election came with a commendation for the work that has been done on renovating the Di hall in New West, reorganizing its reference files, procuring more adequate office furniture, and bringing constructive bills to the floor for discussion in the group's weekly Wednesday night forums open to the public.

John Gaskin was also re-chosen treasurer of the Senate and lauded for his recent clarification of the Senate fiscal records as well as plans he has formulated for future bookkeeping.

New officers elected to other posts of responsibility were as follows: critic, Gran Childress; clerk, Joanne "Mickey" McNutt; sergeant of arms, Noah Edwards; Randy McLeod; and chaplain, debate council representative, Anne Wells.

In earlier business, Charles Brockman was iniated as a new Di Senator. After the Senate voted prior to the elections to send delegates to the forthcoming Institute of International Relations. President Long appointed Edie Knight, Dortch Warriner, and Noah Edwards to represent the Di at the discussion conference to be held on campus this weekend.

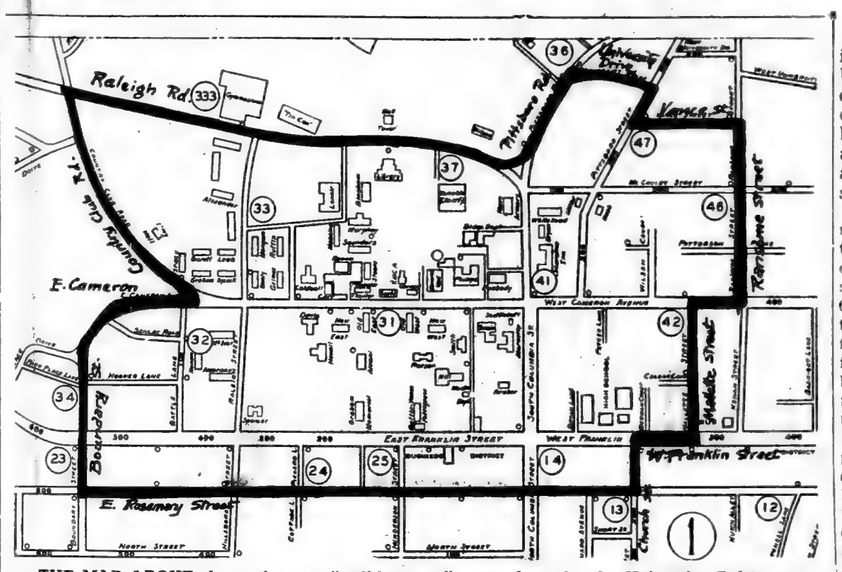
WF Will Hold State Parley This Weekend

Students from colleges and high schools all over the State will arrive in Chapel Hill tomorrow to attend the first convention of the Student division of United World Federalists of North Carolina. The Convention will be held in the Roland Parker lounge of Graham Memorial. Registration will begin at 1 oclock in the afternoon and the convention will get under way at 2 o'clock.

Albright to Speak

R. Mayne Albright, former executive director of United World Federalists of North Carolina and 1948 candidate for Governor of North Carolina, will be the principal speaker. His topic has not been announced but it will deal with the need for world government and what role the citizens of North Carolina can play in establishing a world government. Mr. Albright will deliver the closing address of the convention at 7 o'clock tomorrow evening. All students and townspeople are invited to hear Mr. Albright.

The main purpose of the convention is to adopt by-laws and organize the students of the state in the universal movement for world government. Plans will be formulated for organizing World Federalists chapters in every college and high school in North Carolina in the hope of creating a general awareness among the citizens of North Carolina of the need for strengthening the United Nations into a world government adequate to prevent war.



The schedule of events will be as follows: 1 p.m.—registration will begin; 2 p.m.—by-laws will be adopted and plan of organization will be discussed; 5 p.m.—election of the executive council; 6 p.m.—supper hour; 7 p.m.—closing address by R. Mayne Albright.

Russell G. Baldwin, pre-law student at the University, and Ralph Fleming, pre - ministerial student at Duke University, will be in charge of the convention.

TO WHOM IT MAY CONCERN

The Daily Tar Heel will suspend publication one week from today, on Friday, December 12, for the duration of the examination periods and the Christmas holidays. Regular publication will be resumed on Tuesday morning, January 6, 1948.

Safety Committee Sets 'Walking Zone' In New Plan To Solve Traffic Problem

THE MAP ABOVE shows the new "walking zone" mapped out by the University Safety committee this week to help relieve parking congestion on the campus. The zone is bounded by East Rosemary Street on the North from Boundary Street to Church Street; by Church, Mallette, and Ransome Streets on the West; Vance Street, University Drive, Pittsboro Road, and Raleigh Road on the South; and by Country Club Road and Boundary Street on the Eastern Edge.

By Raney Stanford

A new plan to end the critical traffic problem on the University campus was adopted by the Safety and Traffic committee this week, with the hope that student obeyance and cooperation will bring about the long-awaited results.

Ernest House, student chairman of the committee, pointed out that some 1,400 student drivers or more, daily endeavor to squeeze their cars into around 620 available parking spaces on the campus. The constant confusion brought on by the search for space is the crux of the problem that faces this comittee of faculty and student representatives.

"Now, for the purposes of our plan, we have 'squared' off the central part of the town and University," House explained. "There are 683 students owning cars in this zone, and we are asking them to leave their cars at their dormitories, fraternities, or trailer residences, and walk to class."

This "walking zone" is defined by chairman House as a rectangular segment of the city bounded on the North by Rosemary street, on the East by Boundary street and Country Club road, on the South by Raleigh road, University drive and Vance street, and on the West by Ransome and Mallette streets.

With 683 cars out of the campus lots this should leave a slim sufficiency of parking spaces for the 590 vehicles driven by students who live outside the inner zone. The committee also asks these 590 drivers, including 165 out-of-town commuters, to leave their cars in one place each day, and not drive them from class to clas as many have done in the past.

House expressed the confidence the committee holds in the practicality of this scheme, but warned that the seriousness of the problem calls for some solution, and the committee is prepared to take more forceful measures.

"However, if full cooperation from the students is given to the plan, we believe that it will ease the situation considerably and the committee wil not have to take any other action," he concluded.

Other work accomplished at this session of the committee included a recommendation to the University that a traffic light be installed at the corner of Raleigh and Cameron streets. House reported the school's business office is now making arrangements to put the light in place.

Christmas Dance Planned By CICA

At the regular Wednesday night meeting, the Carolina Independent Coed association completed plans for the Christmas dance, which will be held tomorrow night from 9 until 1 o'clock in the Women's gymnasium.

The invitation committee, headed by Marty Hinkle, distributed bids among the members. Any member who has not yet obtained her bid can do so in the CICA room upstairs in the Y from 9 until 1 o'clock today.

Ruth Duncan, personnel advisor to women, gave a short talk in which she expressed her hope that the group would have continued success. Miss Duncan is leaving the University in December and will be replaced by Audrey Branch of Asheville, a University alumnae, who at present is occupying the position of junior buyer for B. Altman and Company, New York.

STUDENT PARTY

The Student Party will meet today at 4:30 in Roland Parker Lounge no. 2. Chairman Long stressed the importance of all candidates and party members being present.

Coeds to Entertain Veterans In New UVA Open House Plan

The University Veterans Association has formulated new plans for their weekly open house, president Johnny Clampitt announced yesterday.

Commencing with the winter quarter informal open houses will be held following the business meetings. The get-to-gethers will begin about 8:15 on Tuesday nights and will last until co-ed closing time.

New System

A new system of entertainment was also announced by Clampitt. Instead of having all co-eds who desire attend the parties, the association will invite one group, a sorority or dormitory to put on the party for the boys. The club plans to invite the CICA for their opening program the first week of next quarter.

Entertainment will be provided by the girls and planned in advance. However, Clampitt emphasized that the party is still given by the association and music and refreshments will be provided.

Membership Cards

It was also announced yesterday that veterans must pick up their membership tickets when they register on the 15, 16 and 17. The tickets will be on sale at that time.

Announcement of the new board of governors appointments will probably be made before Tuesday's meeting, Clampitt said. Emile Saleeby, president of the inter-dormitory council will sit on the board as an ex-officio member.

Subsistence Action

Correspondence between several colleges has recently been carried on by the association concerning the determination of the minimum G.I. subsistance necessary for a veteran to maintain his standard of living on campus. Letters have been exchanged between the University of Nebraska, Stetson university, Elon college and several others.

President Clampit requested that any veterans, whether members of the UVA or not, please submit all ideas or suggestions to him at the ATO house in person or by card.

Chi Delta Phi, Literary Club, Adds 10 Members

Ten new members were taken into Chi Delta Phi, national literary sorority on campus, at a candle light ceremony recently held in the Grail Room. New members include Sally Woodhull, Priscella Moore, Virginia Forward, Elizabeth Hazlett, Mary Louise Kelly, Shirley Moore, Joyce Peterson, Elizabeth Savage, Anne Wells, and Elinor Woltz.

The sorority, composed of one per cent of the women's student body, bases its choice of new members on interest and ability in the line of creative writing.

Federal Employes Receive Warning Against Groups

Washington, Dec. 4 —(UP)— The Justice department issued a blanket warning tonight to federal employees against 78 organizations in the United States.

The department branded the groups as "subversive" and told men and women on government payrolls to beware of joining them.

The list, which includes the Communist party and the Ku Klux Klan, was prepared by Attorney General Tom Clark. It was released by the Civil Service commission in connection with the loyalty investigation of federal workers ordered by President Truman.

Some of the organizations had been included on a previous "subversive" list compiled in 1943. Scores of new names have been added to the list on the basis of recent FBI investigations.

The Attorney General stressed that the Justice department does not consider membership in any of the listed organizations as proof in itself that a government employe is disloyal to the United States, but that membership in such groups would count against any federal employe suspected of disloyalty.

Some of the organizations on the new list are the Civil Rights congress, the Columbians, American Youth for Democracy, the Photo league, and the Nature Friends of America.

'Dan The Dog' Found In Charleston, Needs Ride Home

By Chuck Hauser

A missing Carolina tradition, a lost Chapel Hill landmark and the one-time constant companion of sleepy 8 o'clock classers has been located after a three and one half month absence.

The name is Bowler Boy's Danny, better known to book-laden Tar Heels as "Dan the Dog."

Classroom cohort of students for a great many years, Dan was reported missing from his usual Y court session one morning early in this year's first summer session. The next few days still saw no sign of him, and before long the news of Dan's "death" spread over the campus.

Then one bright day in August Dan turned up at his home on West Cameron avenue. He was given a hearty meal and a big welcome home by Mr. and Mrs. Lee Wiley, owners of the big English setter.

Hit the Road

Dan stuck around for about five days and then hit the road again. He hasn't been seen in Chapel Hill since.

The latest indication of the whereabouts of the disappearing dog points south. The following letter came to the home of the Wileys a few days ago:

Mr. Dan Lee Wiley.

Dear Sir,

One of your big bird dog come to my house a few days ago. He seemed to like me. So I give him something to eat. He been with me every since. Your name is on his collar so I'm writting to this address. Please let me know something. If you want this dog.

Thanks.

The letter was scrawled in pencil, the letter painfully inscribed. The ten-year-old setter was able to lose himself very successfully, but he still hung on to his leather collar, upon which a brass plate proclaims him to be "Dan." A second line on the plate lists "Lee Wiley" as his master, and a third states that "Chapel Hill" is his home.

Prodigal Problem

And "Chapel Hill" is where the Wileys want Dan to be. The problem now confronting them is how to get the prodigal from Charleston to here. They have sent out a plea asking students and townspeople who know of anyone coming here from Charleston anytime in the immediate future to get in touch with them.

Dan, the favorite subject and beer-drinking companion of former Daily Tar Heel columnist Jud Kinberg, is wanted at home.

The DTH and the Carolina Magazine are not the only publications, however, in which Dan has received publicity. The well-known canine face has appeared in various papers throughout North Carolina, Virginia, and other states, but Dan hit the jackpot back in 1942 when he received a beautiful spread of several pictures in the rotogravure section of a Sunday edition of the New York Daily News.

The photographs show Dan training with the Navy Pre-Flight school which was located here during the war, sleeping on the drill field, and attending classes in naval science and tactics.

Bowler Boy's Danny, the dog with the national publicity and an acute case of the wanderlust, will soon be heading home again. The entire student body wishes Dan Godspeed!

BOWLER BOY'S DANNY, better known as "Dan the Dog," has turned up in Charleston, South Carolina, after disappearing from Chapel Hill several months ago. It is claimed that Dan has attended more classes at the University than any other ten students put together. The thoroughbred English setter is the mascot of every football, track, and cross-country team Carolina has had in the past eight years. The hand in the picture belongs to Dale Hanson, cross-country coach.

Thorez Virtually Advocates Civil War to Strikers

Paris, France, Dec. 5—(UP)— Maurice Thorez, head of the French Communist party, announced a virtual declaration of civil war while speaking before 50,000 striking miners in northern France today. He said, "The working classes and the people of France have chosen battle." He went on, saying that the workers' demands had been pushed aside on the orders of American capital, the government was refusing to honor the workers legitimate claims, menacing them and their leaders, and entering into war with the union organizations. Thorez stated further, "The workers realize the gravity of the hour and they are committed to struggle to defend their bread, their union liberties, the right to strike . . . and to defend the republic . ."

Meanwhile two strikers were killed at Valence in another clash with police as 2,000 demonstrators fought French authorities for control of the Valence railroad station.

Further Communist-led violence took place in Marseille and Nice but armed guards and tanks are now patrolling the streets to prevent future outbreaks.

A Great Opportunity -- And Free

The Freedom Train, ladened with its cargo of historic documents which portray the growth of the United States, was viewed first in this state Wednesday in Winston-Salem. Saturday it will pause in Raleigh to display its treasures to the people of this vicinity.

The announcement that the Hillel Foundation will provide busses for transporting students, gratis, to view the aging and yellowed documents is of importance not only to students of American history and political science, but to the American citizen. It is an opportunity each of us should utilize.

The seven-car train is making a trip of 33,000 miles through the cities of the country to let the people see the documents which have figured so prominently in our heritage.

Cargo on the train of especial importance to be viewed by interested persons, as they walk down the corridors of the cars, are priceless documents such as a copy of the Magna Carta (1215); Christopher Columbus letter (1493); Mayflower Compact (1622); Declaration of Independence (1776); and Lincoln's Gettysburg Address (1863). Most recent of the collection is the log of the Battleship Missouri, on which the Japanese surrender was signed, and the charter of the United Nations, signed at San Francisco in 1945.

We have found no better interpretation of the Freedom Train's significance than that presented in an editorial written for 250 college magazines and reprinted in part below:

Whether or not we see this train and its manuscripts—and most of us probably will not—it concerns all of us. Freedom is not carried about within steel walls or document cases.

It would be simpler to take the cosmic approach to the Freedom Train and the American heritage—how necessary it is to preserve our liberties in a world dividing into blacks and whites, tortured by hates and intolerance.

The sum total of these liberties however, is no greater or more lasting than the most insignificant of its parts. An act of smallest intolerance anywhere in this land gnaws at the foundations of the entire structure, poisoning first the individual then the group: spreading outward to embrace widening circles. When you think of liberty, think of this.

Think of it when a Negro, Jew, Catholic or Protestant comes up for class election. Think of it at fraternity bids or society invitations. Democracy for us begins here and here is where it counts most.

The American tradition developed because people believed in it enough to build their lives around these tenets. It dies when people simply pay homage to soothing generalities that have no application to living.

This, if anything, is the meaning of the Freedom Train. Think of it.

Needed: A Plan for Parking

A concrete plan to alleviate the congestion of automobiles on campus has been desperately needed for a long time and we have great hopes for the recent plan inaugurated by the Safety and Traffic committee.

Many pedestrians, who are also car owners, have recognized the need for walking to class rather than ensnarling traffic. However, there are motorists, who, live within easy walking distance of their classes and still drive and waste valuable time searching for parking places.

A majority of faculty members, queried by the administration, recently expressed the opinion that students should not be allowed to maintain automobiles in Chapel Hill. Another matter which brought the question to a head is the report that there has been a considerable increase in the number of tickets given to students for parking violations which snarl traffic.

In court last Tuesday Judge Henry Whitfield handled the case of a student car-owner who had collected a total of nine tickets for parking his auto behind his dormitory in a space which was marked "no parking" and which the student claimed could be utilized without danger of ensnarling traffic. The Judge took no action on the case, but remarked that there are a little over 550 possible places on campus for an estimated 1200 cars.

The policy of maintaining a "walking zone" for the campus is a good idea and we believe that it will be much better for the campus in general and especially valuable to those student automobile owners who live in University housing and who always find it quite difficult to find an authorized parking place for their autos.

In looking over the plan adopted by the Safety and Traffic committee there seemed to be only two alternatives for approaching the problem. A more drastic method than tinue their schooling at the University.
the one they selected would have been to prohibit all students from keeping their automobiles at the University, unless they could present proof-positive that an automobile was an absolute necessity for them to con-

We urge all student drivers to read the account of the committees report on page one of this issue and learn the boundaries of the "walking area". Although the committee has expressed that they will take more forceful measures if necessary, we hope that this will not be necessary and that their present plan will be adhered to by all drivers.

A Good Skate?

A worthy project under discussion in student circles is the construction of a roller skating rink on the campus to partly alleviate the limited recreation facilities here.

The YW recreation committee began work on the suggestion and now Graham Memorial, with Nancy Tucker supervising, has taken over and is in furthering the plans. From all indications, faculty and administrative officials are in favor of the idea and certainly, numerous students who look in vain for activity besides their books, will greet the idea whole-heartedly.

The question of location and various other problems are yet to be solved, but those working on the project can be assured that they are performing a real service for their fellow students.

Lo! The Phoenix!

We have noticed with some amusement that the political parties on campus have the amazing facility that was once the property of that mythical creature: the phoenix.

The parties are able to rise from their own ashes.

Come post election day and each party chairman hastens to his adding machine, abacus, or what has he—and tabulates.

Tabulation on post-election day is challenging tiddledywinks as the favorite campus indoor sport.

At any rate, all political parties somehow manage to come out of elections with this banner flying high over their campaign headquarters:

We're stronger than we were before!

Campus Forum

Majority Favor Frats

By Pete Gerns

Fraternities constitue a definite asset to students at Carolina according to large majority of students who answered this question.

Before we continue with this issue, however, we want to point out that a poll taken on the fascist-communist issue of last Tuesday was inadvertantly left out. Of the 173 students who were questioned, 109 voiced their belief that fascism is and will be of greater danger of American democracy if it remains uncurbed.

A poll was also taken on the issue of the day, "Do fraternities contribute anything to the campus?", and the results are as follows: 150 students were questioned with 121 coming out in favor of fraternities, 20 opposed, and 9 claiming that their short stay at school did not permit them to pass on the issue. Below are some of the answers received by Wednesday evening.

"Fraternities are a very necessary part of campus life in that they contribute to the spirit of college by fostering lasting friendships, offering the sheltered influence of a home and promoting interest in campus activities. I think they are here to stay!" Joe Rice.

"Fraternities teach us appreciation of our fellow students and a tolerance for their ideas. This makes for a better man. Any fraternity which does not do this has no right on this or any other campus." Bill Miller.

"They help alleviate both the rooming and boarding problem." W. C. McClammy.

"They supply needed recreational facilities and undoubtedly build characters one way or the other." Tookie Hodgson.

The only constructive negative view of fraternities was contributed by Philip H. Kennedy. Says he: "Fraternities do not contribute anything to the campus except a feeling of security and closeness to the University's student body ..... given to the member.....in that he forms one small part of an extensive organization which is half of the social order existent on this campus today. As for contributing to actual campus life and the deportment of Carolina society, fraternities are not necessary but traditional, simply because there are so many other organizations open to every student, which adhere more readily to University recognition."

Further comment:

"Certainly! The experience of dealing with others in both social and business matters makes for a more rounded personality with which to meet the realities of the great outside world". Mack Hagaman.

"They are a place for the students to live and a place for the boys to have the company they want". E. Shelton.

"Fraternities contribute greatly to the campus by backing functions that are created on campus and by allowing its members to organize and back its ideas and principles". Joe Jolongo.

"Without them there would be no social life to speak of on our campus". Warren Jackson.

There has been a lot of comment recently on the establishment of a roller skating rink somewhere on campus, to be operated by and for students. Graham Memorial has started the ball rolling with Nancy Tucker, social director, heading a planning committee. They would very much appreciate any and all comment on this issue. The question is: "Do you favor the establishment of a rink? If so, where?" Only signed comments will be published.

Production Weak, But . . .

Ibsen Comedy Timely, Tart

By Bob Sain

"An Enemy of the People," which opened Wednesday evening at the Playmakers Theatre and closes tomorrow, is not a production of which the Carolina Playmakers can be proud. In it, the dramatic group is guilty of awkward direction and uninspired acting. Its one redeeming virtue is its timeliness.

For Henrik Ibsen's 19th century comedy concerns a rather simple Norwegian doctor who challenges Authority in government and points out the spinelessness of the so-called liberal press. Dr. Stockman's revolutionary fervor is sometimes a little embarassing in its enthusiasm; Ibsen admitted that Stockman was part "grotesque adolescent, part hothead." But Stockman's contention that the majority is always wrong, that there is nothing sacred in the masses, that public opinion is not truth makes him a character worth listening to even while you laugh at him.

As we pointed out above, the production left much to be desired. Kai Jurgenson's direction was jerky and not well paced. His stage mechanics were as irritatingly obvious as the scuffing, scraping feet of some of the actors were audible.

"An Enemy of the People" is still an important play, over 60 years after its message was first presented. Many critics have found it tiresome, dull, out-dated. While admitting that its dramatic impact is something less than powerful, this reviewer thinks its message is an important, as pertinent today as it was in 1882 when Ibsen wrote it.

I find little to recommend Jurgenson's "modern" translation, which he prepared with Robert Schenkkan. Though I am not completely familiar with earlier translations of this play, I am aware that the one written by Eleanor Marx-Aveling has a cold, comic dignity that the Jurgenson-Shenkkan effort lacks.

Performances by Porter Van Zandt, Dr. Cecil G. Sheps, James Geiger, and W. P. Covington, III, served to lift the level of acting above mediocrity. Van Zandt, as Dr. Stockman, was overly-active and doesn't yet seem to have his stage feet. Otherwise, there's no criticism of his performance.

Sets by Lynn Gault were good as were the costumes by Irene Smart.

Following such an auspicious beginning as "Saint Joan," the first major production of the 30th season, "An Enemy of the People" was a disappointment.

Watch It, Prof!

TOKYO (U. P.)—Nearly half the Japanese teachers screened by a commission of the Japanese education ministry during the past two months have been purged, including one Communist.

The commission announced that out of 225 teachers screened in September and October, 105 had been rejected as unfit. One purgee was Mrs. Yayoi Yoshida, director of the Tokyo Women's College. Another was Shinichi Matsumoto, director of the Central Labor School.

Rejection of Matsuomoto was one of the first know instances in which a Communist was purged. Previously, purge lists have consisted chiefly of pre-war ultra-nationalists and war criminals.

Editor:

I would like to point out an error I made in my column entitled by the DTH "Beware The Fascist." I said in it, "There is a flexibility in democracy which allows eventual correction of any evil affecting the public; this is not included in the communistic system, and democracy is (not) more susceptible to fascism." I left out the 'not' and contorted the whole meaning of the editorial. The DTH entitled a letter by Paul Mullinax "Beware The Dreamers On The Far Left" and mine next to it "Beware The Fascist" making both of us sound like typical examples of the Fascist-baiting Red and Red-baiting Fascist, when neither is true.

Judging from the countless subtle fatherly talks I have been getting from some of the shrewd, but crude campus upholstery statesmen in their clumsy attempts to feel out my leanings, I sounded more communistic than Mullinax sounded Fascist. Anyone interested in the real meaning of the editorial may take out last Wednesday's DTH and insert a "not" in the last sentence in the next to the last paragraph of it. The mistake was so completely obvious in that it contradicted the first part of the sentence that such ensuing confusion is as much born of people's natural tendency to find the worst in everything as it is of my own stupidity.

I said nothing in defense of communism except that it is not as dangerous as fascism. With the same general idea in mind I might say a 32 cal. pistol is not as dangerous as a 45 cal.; this still does not make the 32 harmless.

I am convinced that I am right in my point and wrong in my grammar.

To the co-captains of the football team: As a member of the band I wish to express my thanks for the recognition that was given the band. It shows how much you appreciate us.

We had to work, too, you know. At times we had to drill in the rain preparing a half time show. We put on the half-time shows in fair and rainy weather--wet, and muddy fields and dry fields.

The band always did its utmost to put on a half-time show that the team and the student would be proud of. Again I say thanks for the recognition the band received.

Just Here

A Lone Roll On The Table

By Larry Berry

The other night while we were eating dinner, someone noticed a roll on the far corner of the table. Very definitely a dining hall is the place for a roll to be, but this roll was isolated. There was no other food around it.

Using the roll as analogy, I find that many students at Carolina are, physically speaking, in the midst of people, yet apart from them. We cannot help feeling lonely at times. Of course, I imagine that this campus has as many formal organizations as any other campus in the country, but a person does not find the relaxation of a good bull session with his friends while he listens to an erudite discussion of our future with the atom bomb.

Carolina now ranks among the larger universities (a position in itself a dubious honor), and the congeniality of the small school seems to be fast disappearing. Instead of the smile from a fellow-student on the paths these days, one is more apt to see a well-developed intellectual stare. These stares were always interesting to me, as I fully appreciate the hours of practice expended on them. Few of us, however, can approach this level of perfection; the silly grin predominates on the collective student face, with mere blank expression following a close second.

We who care about the Carolina spirit are hoping that a few more people will begin to work into a congenial smile and the genuine friendliness that should characterize our school. Chaucer used the word "Gentilesse" to denote nobility and good character. Let's use the spirit of Gentilesse here.

Sometimes students pan the Chapel Hill movie houses for the poor bill of fare they present. Under prevailing conditions, as explained by Mr. Carrington Smith, we think he has done well. Several people have asked about the possible Chapel Hill showing of Laurence Olivier's version of Henry V. The distribution point for movies in this section is Charlotte, while Henry V is sent out from New York only.

As few prints of the movie are available in this country, the commercial aspect demands that it be shown only where large receipts can be guaranteed the producers. Mr. Smith, however, expects more prints to be made, and feels that Henry V can make a Chapel Hill appearance early in 1948. We sincerely look forward to a sample of Mr. Olivier's interpretation of Shakespeare before Hamlet, his next production starts making the circuit.

This Changing World

Status Quo-ites, Opium Eaters

By Bill Robertson

One of the weakest aspects of our struggle against the fascist countries in World War II lay in the fact that we ourselves fell victims to the ideas of fascism—particularly in connection with the racial question. The result was that, while we gave lip-service to democracy, we were aware of the hypocrisy of our position. Now, after the war, it is becoming increasingly evident that the general current of criticism voiced by students on the campus is assuming various forms of cynicism. A feeling of hopelessness and despair in the discussion of world problems (when will the atom bombs fall?) and a lack of purpose in our daily campus life (what will you be doing next year?)

One professor has stated that this general feeling lacks the saving grace of "imagination." He informs us that where he went to college he knew a student who slept in a coffin. He says our student body has nothing to compare with this.

And so it goes. What is there to replace the rotten "master-race" ideas. Is there anything besides a good, stiff drink? Are there any extra coffins around town? Or is there something to give us a faith in the future?

In the past there have been not a few ideas of various kinds which were overthrown by life itself—ideas which didn't work out in practice. But in each case there were over-thrown by better ideas. In World War II, for example, the ideas of fascism were defeated by better ideas. In the course of the struggle the ideas of democracy and progress have gained ground all over the world. Colonial countries—such as India, Indo-China, and Indonesia—have revolted against the rule of imperialistic powers. They have established free and independent governments.

It is only here at home that the ideas of democracy and progress have lost ground. On this campus, for example, a group of students have formed an organization known as the Carolina Conservative club. Contrary to the idea expressed in the title of our column, "This Changing World," these students wish to maintain the "status quo" in our country. But among the students faith in the "status quo" is dying. As a matter of fact, the students are kicking about the way things are at present. They want something different and better.

Important social changes are always preceded by wide-spread disillusionment—by ideas that the "status quo" must go. We therefore suggest that the members of the Carolina Conservative club adjust themselves to this changing world—unless they wish to try the dream world of the opium eaters.

Med School, Phi Gams Win Volleyball Titles

By Buddy Vaden

Phi Gamma Delta No. 2 and Med School No. 1 won division honors in Intramural volleyball yesterday when they defeated Phi Gam No. 1 and Aycock, respectively, to take the titles in the Fraternity and Dormitory divisions.

Phi Gam No. 2 trounced their brother team, 15-5 and 15-8, to maintain one of the best defensive records in mural volleyball this year. Phi Gam's opponents have scored an average of only 2.4 points in games played this season.

The division honors were nothing new for Phi Gam. Last year they won the Fraternity division title then went ahead to down a grad team to cop University honors.

Playoff to decide the University champions will be held at five o'clock, December 11.

Basketball Begins

Competition in Intramural basketball starts January 7 for the Fraternity division. The dormitory division schedule will be announced later.

All men are eligible who have not lettered in college ball or who were not on a freshman, junior varsity, or varsity team after the first game of this season. No limit has been placed on the number of teams per organization.

Games in the round-robin tournament will consist of sixteen minute halves, with a five minute intermission.

Entries in the Fraternity division are due Wednesday, December 17. Dormitory and independant entries are due Thursday, January 8.

Eligibility rules include the provisions that all fraternity teams must be composed of actives, and pledges, but that dormitory outfits may use one outside player. Independent teams must use men who are not playing with any other team. Violation of these rules will mean the forfeiting of the contests in which the ineligible man participates.

Monogram Xmas Party Tonight

The Monogram club will hold its big Christmas party and induction of new members tonight at 8 o'clock in the Rendevous Room of Graham Memorial.

All men who made their letters in baseball, golf, track and tennis last spring are to be the guests of honor. Any other members that expect to attend are urged to contact Don Nelson.

Entertainment dancing and refreshments will highlight the program and no charge is being made.

President Len Szafaryn asks for a good turnout to climax one of the best quarters that the club has ever had. This will be next to the last gathering of the club before the Christmas vacation with a general meeting of all members in 304 Woolen Monday night at 7:45.

BASKETBALL CLINIC

The Intramural department will hold its basketball rules clinic at 4 o'clock Monday, December 8, in 302 Woollen.

All men who wish to officiate the intramural basketball games are invited to attend. Tests will be given on rules and officiating techniques, and actual field work will be done to serve as a basis of selection.

Five Booters Leave Today for Annapolis For Olympic Tryouts

The five Tar Heel booters who have been chosen to compete in the southeast regional Olympic tryouts will leave today for Annapolis, Md., and the Naval academy where the eliminations will be held.

Co-captains Al Williams and Gus Johnston will head the Carolina delegation that will include Al Singer, Frank Nelson, and Dave Boak. Coach Marvin Allen, who has been invited to assist in the tryouts, will accompany the group.

Over 40 players from such schools as Virginia, Duke, High Point, Navy, and Loyola will be split up into teams and, after working out together Saturday morning, will engage in a regulation game.

Boxing Tourney Set for Durham

Several Carolina pugilists are expected to enter the Golden Gloves tournament sponsored by Durham post No. 7 of the American Legion February 4-6 in that city.

The tourney will be open to all amateurs in North and South Carolina and will be divided into two divisions. The open division will be confined to members of the armed forces and other men 18 years of age and older. The Novice class will be comprised of 16 and 17-year olds.

There will be the eight standard weight groups, and 16 individual champions will be crowned. A team trophy will be awarded in the open field. Any organization which enters at least six men is elgible for the prize.

Besides Carolina boxers, entries are also expected from such schools as Duke and N.C. State. Winners in the Open group will go to Charlotte to compete in the Carolina Golden Gloves February 18-21.

All of the bouts wil be held at night in the Durham city armory and will consist of three two-minute rounds. Entry blanks, which must be filed by noon January 31, 1948, may be obtained by writing to Durham Golden Gloves, The American Legion, Durham post No. 7, P.O. Box 1008, Durham, N.C.

Blue Dolphins Tackle State Mermen In Trial Test at Bowman Gray Today

Campus swimming enthusiasts will get their first pre-season peek at the Blue Dolphins at 3 o'clock this afternoon when the local chlorinators splash it out with State's aquatic Wolfpack in an informal practice meet in Bowman Gray pool.

Today's meet is being stroked out to give the Dolphins some more work under meet conditions and also to allow the newcomers to the squad a taste of intercollegiate tank competition. Dolphin mentor Dick Jamerson commented yesterday afternoon that he expected the meet to play a large part in determining which of the squad's rookies may be in the starting lineup for the team's first meet in January.

Eight individual events will be reeled off this afternoon with three heats of the 220-yard freestylers opening the festivities at 3:00. Eight heats of the 50-yard sprint will follow at about 3:15, the diver will jump off at 3:40, eight heats of the 100-yard sprint will be run off at 4:00, the backstrokers will perform at 4:20, three heats of breaststrokers will hit the water around 4:30, and the 440-yard marathon will wind up the day's activities at 4:45.

Over fifteen highly touted newcomers will be out to prove themselves today and among the freshmen whose performances Coach Jamerson will be eyeing closely are: sprinters Floyd Drew, Jim Merieka, and Hal Ingram; distance men Ronnie Basescu, Bill Cox, Ted West, Bob Page, and Frank McNeil; backstrokers Jim Thomas, Oscar Cordle, John Bippart, and Walter Bakes; breaststroker Charles Taylor; and divers Dave Griffeth and Max Haigler.

Louis Meets Walcott In New York Tonight

New York, Dec. 4 — (UP) — Heavyweight champion Joe Louis will defend his crown here tomorrow night against Jersey Joe Walcott, but the bookies aren't giving the challenger much of a chance to dethrone the champ.

The men who know are quoting Louis a 1-10 favorite to retain the crown, and they are also making various other sporting propositions. For example, if you think Walcott will stay five rounds, the odd men will give you even money. They'll also wager 4-1 that the challenger won't go the full distance of 15 rounds.

Louis is expected to weigh in at 212, while Walcott should tip the scales at 192.

Phants Meet Guilford In Woollen Saturday

Carolina's White Phantoms were in Winston-Salem yesterday for a basketball clinic in which the people of that city were given an opportunity to see an intramural game between members of the Carolina varsity.

The junior varsity took over the main floor of Woollen gym in Chapel Hill for the afternoon with Coach Jim Hamilton pointing out errors made in the 45-30 win over Louisburg Junior College on Wednesday night.

Coach Tom Scott's varsity outfit returned to Chapel Hill last night, and regular work will be resumed this afternoon on the local hardwood.

Guilford Tomorrow

The Phantoms will get back into regular competition on Saturday night, when Guilford College plays Carolina in Woollen. Scott's boys will be seeking their second success of the campaign. The Phantoms beat Catawba in their opener, 51-32.

Carolina didn't offer much in the way of good play during the first half, maintaining but a 16-15 half-time margin over the visiting Indians. But a 35-point second period was much more satisfying, and the performance as a whole can be considered as a good opening night job.

Top Performers

Captain Bob Paxton turned in what was perhaps the most impressive work. The agile Phantom veteran accounted for 14 points and played his customary good game under the boards. Bill Miller and Nemo Nearman also turned in some good backboard work.

John Dillon, the hook-shot expert from Savannah, was another who played well. The Hook hit on three of his specialties from the foul circle. Guards Taylor Thorne, Norm Kohler, and King Cole stood out at their positions. Fred Swartzburg was the outstanding substitute at forward.

Vic Seixas to Play In Sugar Bowl Net Tourney This Month

Carolina net star Vic Seixas has accepted an invitation to play in the Sugar Bowl tennis tournament in New Orleans December 28-30.

Sponsored annually by the Mid-winter sports association, the Sugar Bowl tourney limits its field to a select group of the nation's outstanding amateur netters. In accepting the bid, Seixas becomes the first active member of a University tennis team to play in the annual event.

Seixas won two tournaments during the 1947 tennis season, one at the Sedgefield country club at Greensboro and the other being the Pennsylvania state tournament.

Badminton Club Suffers Defeat

The Carolina badminton club went down to a 6-2 defeat last Monday at the hands of the Raleigh outfit in a league tilt played in the Capital city.

Clark Taylor, Tar Heel net star, was the only Carolinian to emerge victorious. He won his singles match over R. C. Council and with his partner triumphed in the only doubles match captured by the Chapel Hill shuttlecock-chasers.

The Taylor-Council singles match went three games. Taylor dropped the first, but came back to take the final two.

A Burlington team will invade Womens' gym next Monday evening and the Tar Heels will attempt to get on the winning track after consecutive losses to Durham and Raleigh.

SWIMMERS NOTE

Swimming coach Dick Jamerson requests that all men participating in today's meet be dressed and at the pool at 2:30 this afternoon.

Further Violence in Holy Land As Terrorists Fire on Resort

Tel Aviv, Dec. 4—(UP)—Shots were fired into a crowded Jewish swimming resort north of here tonight as continued violence was reported in Iraq, Cairo and Palestine over partition of the Holy Land.

First reports said there were no casualties from the resort shooting although scores of teen-aged boys and girls were forced to run for safety. The Hagana, Jewish defense army struck back by setting fire to a nearby Arab flower garden.

Earlier today students rioted in Cairo until police broke up the Moslem mobs. Eleven persons were injured.

In Baghdad Moslems wrecked the office of the United States information service. Two Jews and an Arab were reported killed by gunfire in Jerusalem, and one Jew was found slain in an alley here.

A ship carrying 200 illegal Jewish immigrants is reported to have slipped through a British blockade into Palestine.

College Students Can Win $3000 in Awards for Essay

A total of $3,000 in prizes is to be given by the Taliment Social and Economic institute of New York City to the top 15 college students competing in its 1947 essay contest. The competition is open to all undergraduate students in the United States, and the first place winner will receive $1,000.

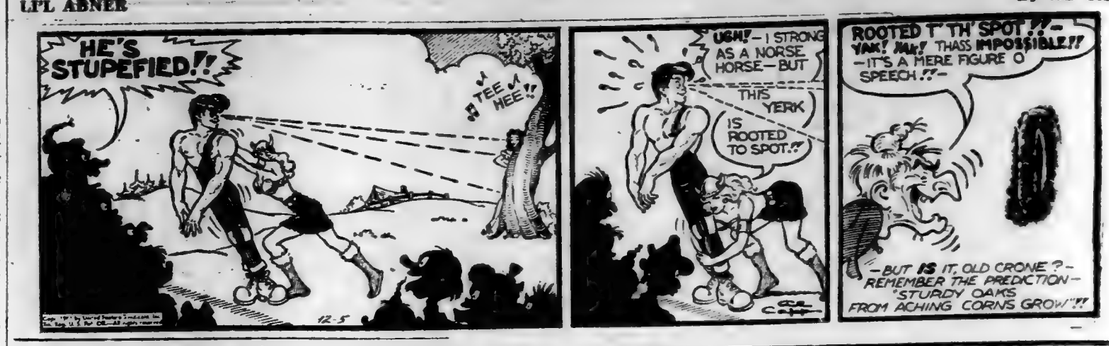
The essay must be between 5 and 6,000 words in length on "An American Program for World Peace in the Present Crisis." Manuscripts must be typed, double-spaced, and submitted to the Institue, at 7 East 15th street, New York 3, by April 23, 1948.

According to Louis Waldman, chairman of the Institute's Essay committee, the purpose of the award is "to stimulate college students to constructive thought on matters of social and economic importance. College students must realize the necessity of having a point of view, and making that point of view a vital force as alert members of the public."

Further particulars on this contest can be obtained by those interested by writing to the Institute at the above address.

Delta Tau Deltas Will Hold Meeting

At a business meeting of Delta Tau Delta fraternity Tuesday night it was announced that Dean Weaver, Dr. Myers, and Mr. W. H. Andrews will attend the chapter's next meeting, at which a discussion of the organization's future possibilities will be held.



All Delts on campus are requested to contack either Mike Plumides, 301 Everett, or Bill Agapeon, 106 Whitehead, or to attend the regular meeting in the Grail room of Graham memorial Tuesday night at 8 o'clock.

Tiger-like Rabbits Bred by Scientists

Bar Harbor, Me., Dec. 5—(UP)—A rabbit that can lick 10 times its weight in tigers has been bred by Dr. Paul Sawin, officials of the Roscoe Jackson Memorial Laboratory said today.

They stated that this breed was in no way like the familiar mild-mannered Easter bunny, in that all one had to do was to step within a few feet of its cage to be greeted by a beast which would crouch like a panther, lunge furiously, and grind its teeth on the iron bars of the cage.

The manufacture of clothes for women and children is

BIG BUSINESS DONE BY SMALL UNITS

It is big business in national economic importance — big business in total sales volume — big business in its number of establishments and employees. But it is made up of numerous comparatively small units.

In these circumstances, the progress of each manufacturer depends on his ability to anticipate fashion and business trends and to gear his operations so as to take advantage of these trends.

Veterans To Get Full Pay Throughout Yule Holidays

By Charlie Gibson

Veterans on campus under the G.I. Bill of Rights will enjoy their Christmas holidays this year with full subsistence for the month of December, according to one of several announcements made yesterday by Colonel F. Carlyle Shepard, University veterans' administrator.

Colonel Shepard clarified the doubts in many ex-servicemen's minds about their receiving pay during the yuletide recess on the basis of a statement from a pamphlet the veterans administration gave to every student who enrolled in the University last September under Public Law 346. The earlier notice definitely explained that those now in training under the G.I. bill will draw subsistance until June 22, 1948, unless they leave school or their eligibility expires.

The additional 15 days after the end of the University's spring term on June 7 are to be given veterans as leave of absence after one year of educational work. However, those who wish to refuse the June leave may do so by contacting the local veterans office in order that the half month will not be deducted from their period of eligibility.

Late Subsistance Checks

A second announcement from Shepard pertained to those who have not yet received subsistance checks for this month. All such persons should report to either room 111 of Peabody hall or room 316 of South building Monday, Tuesday, or Wednesday of next week so that their names might be telephoned to regional veterans headquarters in Winston-Salem in an attempt to have their checks delivered before Christmas.

Any irregularities in subsistance allotments earlier this term might also be reported to the proper authorities at the same time and place. One cause of misplaced checks could be easily prevented, Shepard thought, if only students would keep his office notified of any changes in their address.

Veterans Leaving University

Shepard also reminded veterans not returning for the next quarter—even those graduating—that they must complete their records in room 316, South building, to keep their G.I. benefits clear in case of transfer, subsequent schooling, or loan applications.

After December 31 policies under the National Service Life Insurance program cannot be reinstated without a physical examination. Before then any ex-G.I. can renew his insurance with no health stipulations at the same rate paid during active service without making back payments to cover the lapse of time since his discharge. Insurance forms are available at room 111, Peabody hall.

U. S. Terminates Arms Shipments

Washington, Dec. 4. — UP) — The State department halted all shipments of American arms and ammunition to the strife-torn Middle East tonight.

Word of the embargo came on the heels o fa Washington announcement the United States diplomatic staffs have been put on the alert to protect American lives and property against any possible violence.

In the Holy Land tonight, British troops and police are patroling the battle-scarred no man's land between the 'Ara btown of Jaffa and the all-Jewish city of Tel Aviv. They have been ordered to shoot on sight any person who violates the curfew imposed on the slum area after a savage riot there today.

The communal riots have killed 44 persons in the British protectorate state of Aden at the lower end of the Red Sea. London officials report that two companies of troops are being flown to the riot area in an attempt to quell the violence.

Albright to Address State UWF Students At Convetinon Today

R. Mayne Albright, gubernatorial candidate in the 1948 elections, will speak at closing exercises tonight for the first student division convention of United World Federalists in North Carolina which begins with one o'clock registration here this afternoon.

Russell Baldwin, president of the student chapter of UWF, has announced 7 o'clock as the time for Albright's address in the Roland Parker lounge of Graham Memorial. No subject has been given for the address, but it is expected that Albright will empha size what role the citizens North Carolina can play in bringing about a world government.

Business Session

One hour after registration begins in Graham Memorial, the convention delegates will meet in a business session to adopt by-laws and to organize the students of the state into a universal movement for world government. An attempt will be made to formulate chapters of the organization in every college and high school in the state to create an awareness among citizens of "the need for strengthening the United Nations into a more adequate world government."

At 5 o'clock the election of the executive council for UWF in NC will take place. The supper hour is scheduled at 6 o'clock to be followed by the Albright address.

Albright Background

The speaker, who lives in Raleigh, was former head of the North Carolina Employment service before entering the Army. After his return from overseas duty in North Africa, Albright resigned his pre-war position to become executive director of UWF in North Carolina. He served as chairman of the Asheville convention which met last February to merge all major world government organizations into United World Federalists. He has announced his candidacy for governor of North Carolina.

MEETING IN WASHINGTON TO DISCUSS President Truman's anti-inflation program are CIO president Philip Murray and nine CIO vice-presidents. Following this conference, Murray announced that the Congress of Industrial Organization leaders had voted unanimously to seek a new round of wage increases when the present contracts expire. He also said that the vice-presidents decided to put over until January consideration of President Truman's price and wage control proposals. Modern Cafeteria Methods Will Be Used In Streamlining of University Dining Hall

By Raney Stanford

Scientific organization will move into the University dining hall next quarter as the Lenoir administration prepares to introduce modern methods to streamline the present cafeteria system.

Major processes to go into effect then will be the standardization of food formulas and preparation, thus paving the way for an improved method of food control.

To help bring about the modernization, the University authorities have employed Mrs. Hilda Moffitt as dietician of Lenoir. She has been engaged since last September in planning the standardizations, as well as her regular dietical duties of planning daily menus.

In explaining the need for this, Mrs. Moffitt says:

"The cooking has never been standardized here; in the past there has been no overall meal preparation style to follow. Each cook has used an entirely different way to prepare the same dish, so that one day the beef stew would be prepared a certain way, the next day it might be something else again.

"Now through experimentation and research we are drawing up the best and most popular recipes for countless dishes and are setting them up as kitchen standards."

To Install Tabulators

With all dishes being prepared a similar way each time, the management will install food tabulators on the serving lines in January to determine the precise number of each item sold. Then Mrs. Moffitt can determine exactly how many dishes to prepare each meal, and by the stardardization formula the dining hall store keeper will know exactly how much of each ingredient to send to the kitchen for her menus. Waste normally encountered in ordinary haphazard preparation can be eliminated, and food costs should be cut for the benefit of student-eaters.

To combat the rising food prices that drag on any economic benefits that can be brought about, the Lenoir dietician has another plan to institute during the new year.

Special Menu

"We hope to start planning a special daily menu soon, one that will give a well-balanced meal, three times a day, for the cheapest total price we can determine. This menu will be beside the serving lines every day, and we think we can keep a student pleasantly well-fed for $1.50 a day. That is, if the students wish to participate in this plan, and really want to cut their eating costs and still eat well."

For Mrs. Moffitt has noted that University of North Carolina students, notoriously loud in complaining about prices and dishes, don't practice what they preach very well.

Starch Predominates

"Day after day, expensive, starchy dishes are what we sell the most. I've seen them come in here and buy spaghetti, cheese macaroni, beans, and pie all in one meal. Now no one can consider that 'well-balanced'," she sighes.

"But we believe our special daily menu should be a great boon to the student body, along with our constant cost-cutting work, in this day of stratospheric food costs."

Rumor from Crowded Cranny in GM Says Year Book Ahead of Last Year's Schedule

Activity and foresight are beginnig to pay off for at least one campus organization according to reports emanating from the Yackety Yack office this week.

Most of the information is hear-say, however, as it is next to impossible and definitely dangerous to gain entry to the crowded cranny on the second floor of Graham memorial.

With their work now running about two months ahead of last year's effort, the editors, Gene Johnston, Harold Bursley, and Ruth Evans have not slacked off. Bursley was pinned down for a few minutes yesterday and made a summary of the progress to date.

All the pictures, which were taken earlier this year than ever before, have been sorted, matched with the class card of the individual whose face appears on them and have gone to the engravers in Charlotte.

Reassuring those who may have been uneasy about the face which will be presented to posterity, Bursley also remarked that all of the pictures are either beautiful or handsome as the case may be.

By the middle of next week, the organizational write-ups, due

Doc Nathan Finds Veterinarian's Duties Have Him Constantly in 'the Dog House'

By Dave Garrison

Simeon Aaron Nathan is one man who is constantly in the dog house. It isn't that Nathan has more domestic problems than anyone else, but problems concerning domestic pets happen to be his profession and the 53-year-old veterinarian manages to keep busy.

"Doc" Nathan, as he is more commonly known, operates, in collaboration with Dr. Louis L. Vine, the Nathan Veterinary hospital, located one mile east of Chapel Hill on the Durham highway. He has spent nearly half his life traveling from barn to kennel and from stable to hog-pen, caring for sick and injured animals of every species. When asked of he enjoys his work, Doc smiled and said, "I sure do. There is something different all the time but it is hard work."

Nathan, who was born in Wilmington, first attended N. C. State college, and graduated at the Kansas City Veterinarian college, Kansas City, Mo., in 1916. He came to Chapel Hill in 1921 and has made this his home ever since. Before moving to his present location, Doc said, he operated with the Orange County Health department. Dr. Vine has been an associate for about 3 and 1-2 years.

"Restraint is the important factor in treating animals," Dr. Nathan said, "and of course a veterinarian must have a deep feeling for animals." He smiled and added, "But I'm partial to dogs."

The personal physician to such canine personalities as "Dan the dog", then started reeling off stories that could easily fill a book entitled "Dogs I Have Known."

"Nellie was really a fine bird dog in her day," he related. "When I finally got so heavy (he weighes over 350 pounds) that I was unable to keep up with her in the field, Nellie started breaking her point to come back to find me. Then she would patiently lead me back to the birds." Doc added that later whenever he hunted with Nellie, he always pulled up a log, sat down and waited for her to find the quail. "If she found any, she'd always come back and lead me to them," he said.

Nathan firmly believes that dogs vary in their personalities as much as human beings, and he elaborated with a story about two bulldogs named "Bogs" and "Champ".

"I've treated those two dogs for a lady in Durham since they were just puppies," Doc said, "and neither of them has been to see me unless the other was along. But whenever their mistress mentions my name, the difference comes out. Bogs actually runs, gets his leash, and seems eager to come, while Champ always runs off to hide. When they do come to the hospital, Bogs jumps out of the car and scratches on the door to get in, but I always have to go out and coax Champ."

Also, he said, some dogs run away from their homes and repeatedly turn up at the hospital, while others will cower on the floor of their master's car, should they start down Strowd's hill toward the clinic.

"Dogs have their own likes and dislikes, too," the veterinarian continued. "There is a big red chow in Chapel Hill that refuses to pass me on the sidewalk and will cross the street to keep from coming near. Once, oddly enough, I came out of the Theatre and found him just sitting and barking at my red Pontiac".

Dr. Nathan says most animals are meek if they are in a strange place. For this reason, he would rather treat them at the hospital. "It's also easier if the owners are not present," he added. "That way we don't have to muzzle one out of 200."

"The masters are often as interesting as the pets," Nathan remarked. "A lady walked in the office the other day with a little Spaniel named Fluffy. Dr. Vine asked her what was the matter and the lady said, 'I want you to o-p-e-r-a-t-e on F-l-u-f-f-y.' 'I have to spell it out,' she explained carefully, 'because she understands every word I say.'"

Phi Beta Kappa Taps 48 Men, Women; Dr. Henderson Gives Talk On U. S. Interdependence

Declaration Like Atlantic Charter, Wilkie Document

Phi Beta Kappa initiates and members last night heard an address, by Dr. Archibald Henderson of the mathematics department, entitled "A Declaration of American Interdependence."

Dr. Henderson's declaration originally made in a speech at Town hall in New York City in 1942, has been heralded as a substitute for the Atlantic charter. It was reprinted in the Congressional Record of March 30th 1942 by the then United States Senator Josiah Bailey of North Carolina.

Dr. Henderson stated that the principles which it advocates are substantially the same as those of Wendell Wilkie which were set forth in his One World of 1943. It bears the same title as the declaration called for in 1943 by Emery Reves whose views were advanced in a book called by Einstein the greatest book on the efforts for international peace.

Thus, indirectly endorsed, this declaration was re-read and amplified last night by the doctor. His first two points call generally for a world which is "safe for democracy" and which is free of war.

Then, getting down to the national scene, Dr. Henderson called for the strengthening of democracy by the people to the point where a labor leader could become secretary of labor or a socialist, secretary of the treasury. He asked that all the people be given a voice in the conduct of our national policy.

He also plead for the spread of the "blessings" of democracy to all peoples; and he asked that this nation aid all those who are "oppressed, discouraged, or suffering". Armament reduction with however simultaneous support of those governments which would adopt democracy, was also a point of his declaration.

It called for a strengthened body of international law, a heightened sense of national honor, and the settlement of our international problems by conference.

However, the doctor repudiated the idea of reparations as "only a legalized form of revenge."

Hillel to Be Host For Yule Holidays At Hanukah Party

The Carolina chapter of the Hillel foundation will be host to the Women's College chapter, Jewish boys and girls from State College and Duke university, prominent members of B'nai B'rith, local faculty members and prominent citizens of Chapel Hill at its annual Hanukah party Saturday afternoon.

Beginning with a reception at four o'clock, the party will last until 11 o'clock Saturday night and will include a grab bag, variety show, buffet supper, and a dance.

The variety show, for which many Sound and Fury members have volunteered their services, will be presented during the buffet from six until seven o'clock. Those students participating in the show are Coline Smith, Sam Greene, Audrey Green, Pat Ellis, Ken Gammage, Pete Strader, L. K. Thomas, Sherry Adler, Frank Matthews, Sid Epstein, and Dik Johnson. The master of ceremonies will be Sound and Fury president Doug Gardner.

Social committee in charge of the affair consists of Jerry Weiss, Chairman; Stan Fox, Mel Cohen, Joan Schlosburg, Charlotte Rosenberg, and Bert Kaplan. President of the organization is Paul Furgatch; the advisor is Mrs. Lillian Rosenberg.

All Jewish students are invited to participate in the celebration of the "Feast of Lights."

Broughton Declares Freedom of Speech Insures U.S. Future

By Gordon Huffines

Emphasizing the importance of public discussion in American democracy, J. Melville Broughton, candidate for the United States Senate, addressed the Philanthropic assembly at a banquet held Thursday evening at the Baptist church.

In an after dinner speech, the former governor of North Carolina told members of the Phi that "as long as we have, here and elsewhere in America, free discussion of public questions and of the ideals and traditions that made us a great nation, we can face the future unafraid." Pointing out the fact that there is a greater need for public discussion of current affairs today than ever before, Broughton asserted that if our democracy and plan of government fail it will not be due to external aggression, but because the American people are indifferent to present day affairs.

Public Decides

Broughton, stressing the power of public sentiment, stated that American public opinion was a deciding factor in the adoption of the Marshall plan by Congress. He added that the United States failed to join the League of Nations after the first World War because the public was not ready for it.

Congratulating the Phi assembly for the role it plays as a medium of public discussion, Broughton stated the debating of public affairs had dwindled in college circles. He asserted that the time has come for a revival of "the broadest and fullest discussion."

Speaking to members of the assembly on the art of public speaking, the ex-governor stated that ability to speak in public is as important today as it was in former years. "The world will pay a higher premium for your talents if you are able to express yourself", he said.

Broughton pointed out that the greatest element in public speaking was simplicity, using few gesticulations. He asserted that eloquence, "the manner of speaking of one who believes earnestly in what he has to say", was of vital importance in a good speech. He also listed naturalness, correct enunciation and articulation, and the correct selection of words as other qualities necessary for public speaking.

Students Selected For Scholarship in Collegiate Work

The highest honor available in American universities, membership in the Phi Beta Kappa society, was conferred last night on 48 outstanding Carolina students.

Selected upon the basis of scholastic standing in three years of collegiate work, the students were initiated at 7 o'clock yesterday evening in Gerrard hall. The occasion, marking the high point in the college life of those selected, was the 172nd anniversary of the founding of the fraternity.

Founded in 1904

The local chapter, Alpha of North Carolina, was founded in 1904. Its officers are John Simms, president, William Robert Coulter, vice president, and E. L. Mackie, secretary-treasurer.

Of the 48 students it initiated, 25 are North Carolinians and 23 are from other states. Eleven were chosen last summer, and the remainder were bid to the local chapter this fall.

Those selected last summer are: Samuel Jarvis Bame, Jr., Salisbury; Hoke Vogler Bullard, Jr., Charlotte; Carroll Samuel Daniels, Coral Gables, Fla.; Allen Fonoroff, Chapel Hill; Claude Reuben Joyner, Jr., Winston-Salem; Harold Sidney Lee, Jr., DeWitt, Va.; Margaret Whitlow Matthews, Chapel Hill; Sanford Macey Sprintz, Miami Beach, Fla.; William Reece Starnes, Jr., Charlotte; Richard Hanawalt Swigart, Lewistown, Penn.; Richard Morrow Weedon, Detroit, Mich.

The name of those selected this fall include the following:

William Harris Armstrong, Salisbury; Hal Lackey Ballew, Chapel Hill; Donald Ray Broad, Mountain Lakes, N. J.; William Garfield Carson, Taylorsville; Jacob Ernest Cooke, Aulander; Lee Biggerstaff Copple, Albemarle; Betty Meade Creighton, Chapel Hill; Arnold Dolin, Waynesboro ,Ga.; Walter Kenneth Ellis, Jr., Raleigh; Arthur Garrick Fullerton, Kent, Conn.; John Lewis Gignilliat, Macon, Ga.; Warren Joseph Gustus, Charlestown, Mass.;

William Harris Hooks, Whiteville; Ernest Jones House, Marion; Robert Eugene Jones, St. Paul, Minn.; Thomas Murphy Jordan, Fayetteville; William Anderson Lane, Macon, Ga.; Lawrence Hamilton MacKirdy, Weldon; William Benson McCutcheon, Jr., Durham; Thomas McDade, Hillsboro, Ill.; Charles Clifton Martin, Jr., Kinston; James Doster Moos, Shreveport, La.; Paul Everett Mullinax, East Gastonia; Melvin Bertrand Myers ,Jr., New Orleans, La.; William Stewart Osborne, Nichols, N. Y.;

MacDougal Finds Gambling Dirty Work At Honky-Tonks, Gents' Bridge Sessions

By Sam Whitehall

"I'm a card dective. I ferret out dirty work in all kinds of gambling, from games in honky-tonks to gentlemen's bridge sessions. You may not think that people with money ever cheat, but the last big private club I investigated . . ." Mickey MacDougall went on to explain how he finds the littlest gambling crooks in the biggest places, and vice-evrsa.

A slender, dapper man with the most innocent of expressions and a pair of incredibly dexterous hands, MacDougall will appear in Memorial hall tomorrow evening at 8 o'clock, sponsored by Graham Memorial, in a free demostration of why he is the man some 50,000 underworld New York gamblers and thousands of their cohorts over the U.S. would most like to see drop dead.

He has three bullet injuries in one leg, and more scars around his chin and face, all souvenirs from characters with whom he has made himself unpopular. Recently MacDougall completed a tour of army camps where he showed GI's where and how their money goes when the dice and cards don't seem to be falling their way. Considering the people he associates with, the nationally famous gambling expert, who is truly an artist in his own right, leads an oddly temperate life, as he never drinks or smokes.

One of his most amazing feats was performed in 1938 before 100 of the world's greatest bridge authorities. Playing against two of the top players of the group, MacDougall announced before the game he would bid six-no-trump. Then, with 100 pairs of expert eyes fastened on his hands, he dealt an ordinary pack of cards and made six no trumps. —And the next deal, gave himself 13 spades! It was all, he said, in expert manipulation during the shuffle and deal.

So Legislators Will Stick Around

A bill insignificant to the general public may be one of the more important measures for the perpetuation of the legislature itself. We believe that one of these insignificant, yet significant measures was passed last Thursday night in the Student Legislature.

Ernest House introduced a bill which rules that a legislator will be marked absent from the meeting if he is not present at any time a roll call vote is taken. This will squelch a favorite pastime of some of the legislators.

On several occasions legislators have walked out of meetings, leaving behind business which they would have voted against if they had remained. But afraid that it would pass, they left the meeting, disrupting the quorum and making it necessary to adjourn the legislature. This has happened and left pending legislation which was vital, and what's more it happened when there was other important matters on the agenda which had to be deferred.

Under the present ruling this will no longer be tolerated. A legislator who is absent over two times each year without a legitimate excuse is dropped from the ranks of the legislature.

The need for a preventive of this type has been prevalant for some time. It is interesting to note that factions from both the University and Student parties realized its need —a statement corroborated by the fact that Charlie Long, chairman of the Student party, also had in his possession a bill containing the same ruling—apparently without the others knowledge.

But in the Legislature there are some who violently oppose the new measure—a thing that is evident by the 13-12 vote by which the measure passed the Legislature.

Don't Be a Boob

Don't boo.

There are probably more tactful ways of pointing out that booing White Phant opponents at the Woollen gym basketball games isn't the thing to do, but we don't feel that there is any great need for tact in this case.

It should be obvious to everyone that booing in a gymnasium becomes much more personal and intimate than booing from a football stand, which itself isn't very admirable.

We have been told that spectators at the Catawba contest Wednesday night were loud and offensive toward Catawba's team beyond the limits of good partisan spirit.

Yelling? We're all for it. It probably helps the team and, no doubt, gives the yeller a big bang.

Booing? If an opposing team member does something that merits disapproval, the officials will kick him out of the game. That is punishment enough. —B.S.

Georgia Surprised by Wallace Mildness

Henry Wallace proved himself a disappointment to a Mercer auditorium last Wednesday—disappointing in that he did not speak in the trend expected by many students who were determined to resist any antagonistic ideas.

Mr. Wallace did not rantingly propound communistically inspired social doctrines. On the contrary, he presented some highly intelligent, and, at least theoretically, plausible ideas on social, economic and moral problems. His brand of reasoning could only have evolved out of a modern civilization.

It is much too easy to blindly apply the term "Communist" to any advocate of programs contrary to the status quo. If the underlying implications of his speech are any indication, Mr. Wallace is not a Communist. He does not propose predominance of the state at the expense of the individual. He admits that he is a progressive with strong socialistic tendencies, even with the realization of the connotations of radicalism, usually associated with that term.

Mr. Wallace convincingly presented an outstanding point by citing an appropriate parallelism. He exposed the jeopardy to a world view inherent in the chauvinism which sanctions American materialism while staunchly condemning that of any other country.

Whatever our individual appraisals of Henry Wallace may be, he deserves praise for the firmness of his convictions and the courage to attack unflinchingly the idol "White supremacy," while addressing a Georgia audience. —The Mercer Cluster.

Texts Have Competition

The traditional textbook is getting some fast competition from the use of newspapers, and other current materials in classroom instruction.

A report issued by Professor Lucien Kinney and Reginald Bell of the Stanford School of Education on an 18-month study of the use of current materials in English, science, and social studies classes in 16 selected schools disclosed that students learned more, learned it easier, and got a better understanding of historical perspective than students exposed only to the standard school curriculum.

Cheers! Women's Hockey Team Carries on

By R. Foo Giduz

Dook just keeps on coming back for more, so it seems . . . Trounced by the mighty men of the grid eleven two weeks ago, they return today for a crack at Carolina's "mighty women eleven." . . .And a far rougher game it might turn out to be . . .No, female football hasn't come to UNC yet, but it might be even rougher than that this afternoon on Emerson field at 2 o'clock, when the women's hockey team takes on Dook in the annual coed classic. . .Inside tipsters tell that the frail(?) charges of Frances Burnes (coachess) are entering the fray as underdogs. . .Our dooty is clear. We're gonna get out there and YELL!

How - times - have - changed sign: In the third week of January, 1942, a fabulously wealthy Swedish fascist, Axel Leonard Wenner-Gren suddenly found his name number one on a list of 1,800 individuals and concerns blacklisted by the U. S. State Department . . . One week ago today Axel Wenner-Gren (and his American wife) sat on the platform at the planetarium cornerstone-laying ceremonies as a member of Mr. Morehead's official party, and an honored guest of the University! . . . Just a comment: —How times have changed!

Yep, fascists, fine; but commies, Cripes! . . . In this connection, perusing the Daily Texan yesterday we notice where a Communist club of "between 30 and 40 members" has come out in the open in the University city of Austin . . . Be interesting to note if the event is accepted a bit less hysterically than it was around UNC . . . After all, men, they're on the ballot in many states.

Six to One Ratio

Coeds and Psyshological War

(Editor's note: Things were comparatively quiet in the DTH offices yesterday afternoon until a mass delegation of Carolina Coeds stormed the offices in an angry mood over Clarke Stallworth's recent column. After the smoke had cleared and tables and chairs had been righted, this column, by a group of "unidentified coeds" was found on the editor's desk.)

For instance — she receives a telephone call at 8 o'clock after a three weeks wait. "Say, I can be over in 15 minutes, but I suppose you have a date already." Confirmed, he says, "Oh well, I'll call you again in a couple of weeks." She resigns herself to another quarter of waiting. Five out of six follow this pride-protecting procedure.

Suppose however the sixth, Waldo, is able to get a call through and overwhelms her by courteously making arrangements a day in advance. The day comes. He arrives on time 'tis true, again astonishing the coed so that she spends an extra 15 minutes in a special effort to meet his approval. Once outside he begins his pursuit which ironically resembles the "Casbah approach".

He is convinced he must launch the evening with the smooth methods acquired through experience and travel. Before they reach the bright lights of Franklin Street he has her typed. She is a prude, a veteran of the war, a politician, or a yielder; and of course here for the purpose of getting her MRS. degree. Determining her kind, Waldo whips out approach No. 9, guaranteed effective for members of her category. He hasn't taken Psychonomics 41 for nothing. Retreating, she backs into the nearest cafe and gulps black coffee, fishing out cigarettes to Waldo's request.

On the way home he entertains her with such lofty collegiate conversation as "all reet, drop dead twice, stir happy, and pinch head". This continues until she, attempting to see behind his mask of cliches asks about his favorite record, sport, or breed of dog; to which he replies coldly, "Twang". Finally at the door she manages to evade his pre-meditated attack and smooths it over with a good-night kiss.

Hours, days, weeks, months pass. She waits by the telephone until the coeds scream "Sucker" or maybe she drops dead in the telephone booth.

Why shouldn't she be independent? Who wants to be led on with one hand and knocked down by the other! Waldo might have remembered that the coed is a hometown girl under the distinct disadvantage of ratio opinion.

Reds Hurt Italian Revival

By John Sanders

Italy is one of the few nations of Europe which is showing some degree of success in the fight for postwar economic recovery. Yet, the efforts of the present Italian government are being seriously jeopardized by recent Communist-led strikes, uprisings, and general unrest.

Since the summer of 1945, the government has been in the hands of Premier de Gasperi and his party, the rightist Christian Democrats. With the rise of the Communist threat, other parties of the right have been gradually solidifying into an anti-Communist bloc, with the Christian Democrats forming its nucleus.

Backed by the Roman Catholic Church and the Western powers, the Christian Democrats have been able to set in motion a recovery program which is showing surprising results. Italian industry is now at 70 per cent of prewar production levels. Shipping has also shown a great increase, rising from 300,000 tons in 1945 and is predicted to reach 2,600,000 tons by 1948. Rebuilding of housing and transportation facilities is proceeding at a rapid rate, especially in the north of Italy.

The internal economy of Italy must be stabilized before goods can flow freely across her borders. Here again the government is showing some success, for in Italy alone is there deflation, the result of a high-pressure program being carried on by Budget Minister Einaudi. Stabilization of the lire is the current goal and is a pre-condition for aid under the Marshall Plan. Recent abandonment by Italy of the official dollar-lira exchange rate in favor of the free market is expected to hasten the achievement of this goal.

Taxes are being raised and more effectively collected. Capital and corporate levies are expected to bring about $1.9 billion into the treasury this year. Though they suffer most by these emergency measures, the capitalists prefer them to possible Communist control.

Previously high prices, 48 times prewar levels, have been the main line of attack of the Communists. As prices fall, they see the government gaining more and more popular support. Now the Communist clamor is that labor be given a greater voice in Italian industry. In an effort to forestall this demand, de Gasperi has appointed a commission to study the possibility of setting up management-worker councils for industrial control.

Intended as tests of strength of both the Communist forces and the government, recent uprisings have shown serious weaknesses in both. In the seizure of the Prefecture of Milan on November 28, the Communists failed to gain the hoped-for support of the populace, and were forced to back down. The government likewise has no cause for boasting, for the police showed great reluctance in restraining the rioters. The army flatly refused to enter the fray.

Inspiring much of the current unrest is Luigi Longo, militant Italian Communist leader and "darling" of Moscow, who has virtually seized control of the Party from the less violent Togliatti.

While these uprisings in Italy are thought to be no more than "feelers", such activities will constitute a serious menace to the safety of the government if United States aid is not forthcoming this winter. The amount of $227 million, is provided for in the European aid bill now before Congress.

All contributions must contain the signature, telephone number, and address of the author (names will be withheld upon request). Letters which contain obscene or libelous statements or letters which do not comply with these stipulations will not be published.

Dear Sir:

I am a student in the English Department of the Graduate School, under the educational provisions of P.L. 346. I tried to get a typewriter ribbon at the University Book Store today. Typewriter ribbons are no longer available to veterans on the "G. I. Bill". The order is recent. It originated with the Durham Office of the Veterans Administration, 302 Morris Street, Durham, N. C.

I think that this new order is unreasonable. To me a typewriter ribbon is a greater necessity than pencils. I have written a letter of protest to the Durham Office of the VA, and another to the Winston-Salem Office. If other veteran-typers will do the same, perhaps the VA will grant our request. Include your number.

I submit this letter in the hope that you will see fit either to print it, or better yet write an editorial urging action. The general position of the VA, with its policy of cutting back and cutting back the supplies allowance of veterans is questionable. In this particular instance, the order is patently too drastic.

Thank you very much for any consideration you may see fit to give this request. I hope only to get prompt action by the VA on this matter.

Washington Merry-Go-Round

GOP Held Secret Caucus On Aid

By Drew Pearson

Washington.—House Republicans locked the doors, turned off all telephones and really "let go" at their caucus on foreign aid to Europe. One reason for the caucus was to let belligerent party members blow off steam to their own colleagues rather than before the world on the floor of the House. The meeting accomplished this end.

One highlight of the long secret session was a lecture by Rep. George Bender of Ohio on GOP aggressiveness.

"I see where President Truman thanked Arthur Vandenberg for his help in getting the $597,000,000 aid bill through the Senate," said the Ohioan. "That's very nice, but where does it leave Republicans? What is your program? I think it's time we got one without always blindly following the White House and State Department on foreign affairs."

Rep. August Andresen of Red Wing, Minn., was insistent that steps be taken to prevent profiteering in the distribution of relief goods. We should make sure that it goes to the right people in distressed nations and is given to them, not sold, he asserted.

Pointing to the "Friendship Train," The Minnesotan added that some such system should be used in all future aid.

"Governments had little or nothing to do with the Friendship Train," said Andresen. "It was a people-to-people proposition. If you want to be certain the food we send Europe gets to the rank-an-dfile, and is appreciated by them, this direct method of aid is the best answer."

South Dakota's Karl Mundt agreed that the Friendship Train had done an excellent job, but added:

"Feeding the people is not the whole problem. We are trying to develop increased confidence in the governments of Western Europe. The big thing is to encourage and support those Governments. We can't forget that if the American people are going to get some benefit out of the money they spend."

The applause favored Mundt. However, general GOP opinion was that foreign relief should be handled through an independent agency, not the State Department.

Mundt seconded Bender's call for party aggressiveness in foreign affairs, charging that Roosevelt and Truman had made the "deals" that have led to Communist troubles in Poland and other countries.

"Republicans," he declared, "ought to be more diligent in pointing this out."

Rep. Reid Murray of Wisconsin reported rumors of wheat purchased by the United States from Argentina, despite the fact that dictator Peron had taken over his country's entire crop and at a boosted price of $5.30 a bushel.

"If this is true and we continue such purchases, it will only add to our inflation problem," pro-farmers cannot be expected to claimed Murray. "American sell their wheat for $3.00 a bushel if we are paying $5.00 to a foreign government.

Note—Investigation by GOP Representative Karl Stefan of Nebraska after the caucus revealed that we recently bought 25,000 bushels of Argentine wheat for $2.67 a bushel F.O.B., New York.

White-thatched Rep. Charles Eaton of New Jersey, Chairman of the Foreign Affairs Committee, is a former minister and one of the mildest-mannered men in the House. However, he lost his temper when Rep. Frederick Smith from President Harding's home town, Marion, Ohio, began heckling while Eaton was explaining various sections of the aid bill.

"Do you know the value of all this money we are going to spend on Europe?" inquired Smith, bitingly.

With a withering look that brought chuckles from other Republicans, Eaton snapped back:

"I've been trying to follow the reasoning of the gentleman from Ohio for years without success. I've never been able to make out what he's talking about."

The closed-door caucus broke up with this parting shot from majority leader Charles Halleck of Indiana:

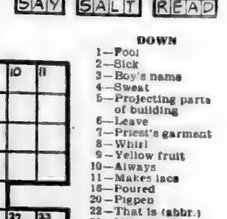
"All of us are for feeding starving people, wherever they may be, but we want to make sure that the money we appropriate goes for that purpose and doesn't fall into the wrong hands. And we also want to make sure that we don't cripple our own economy in helping others."

Ex-Congresswoman Clare Boothe Luce and New York's leftish Vito Marcantonio clashed vehemently in a radio debate over the possibilities of "war with Russia." Mrs. Luce said Russia's tactics made war certain. Marcantonio repeated the Vishinsky theme about warmongers.

After their bitter debate, however, Mrs. Luce and the New York Congressman, once colleagues on Capitol Hill, relaxed.

"You know, Marc," said Mrs. Luce, "after the lesson I taught you tonight, you should get down on your knees and pray."

"Clare," replied Marcantonio, "you don't pray with your knees. You pray with your heart."



Hollywood's edict banning the Communist screen writers was issued after movie moguls conferred with ex-Secretary of State Jimmie Byrnes, new counsel to the movie industry. Byrnes, a former Supreme Court Justice, predicted that, from his knowledge of the Supreme Court, the Justices would reverse the famous Schneiderman decision won by Wendell Willkie and would now vote against the alleged Communist screen writers. In the Schneiderman case it was indicated that a Communist is not necessarily inimical to the best interests of the country. . . When President Truman heard that Greece was refusing to vote with the United States on Palestine, he hit the ceiling.

Give all to build the world we want or we'll all get one we don't

If what I want comes first, want in the world will last.

Phantoms Seek Second Win Against Guilford Tonight

The Sporting Picture

By Billy Carmichael, III

What's In A Name

THE AVERAGE TAR HEEL sports fan who reads it or any other paper these days, either has to have quite a memory, or look awful hard to find out what the respective Carolina athletic teams have or are going to be doing. For the Tar Heels seldom appear in print by that name, but instead show up under the titles of White Phantoms, Blue Dolphins, the Hill and Dale Ransonmen, or the Indians, etc.

Now this is all quite colorful, and especially helps the sports writers and the headline writers in the completion of their task, but in reality they should be called the Tar Heels, since like Caldonia, Tar Heels is their name. That is the official nickname of the school, with the rest of this psuedo-titles being the passing fancy of some cliche-happy sports scribe.

Rumor hath it that the Monogram club will discuss this matter at its next meeting, and it might be wise for the letter winners to take the big step to outlaw all, but Tar Heels as the official nickname of all Carolina teams. The power to do so lies in their hands. Gentlemen, the prosecution rests.

The Great Unveiling

COACH TOM SCOTT unveiled his latest edition of the Tar Heel basketball team last Wednesday night before the anxious and inspecting eyes of some 3,500 students, hangers-on, and noisy grammar school students. The cagers reminded one of a Seaboard freight train—terribly slow at getting up any speed, but once underway, really beginning to roll. The sloppiness of early season was, of course, rather obvious, but there were signs of a new brilliance, and some radiance of old, too. Forward Bill Miller, though not annihilating the basket with the twenty some shots he took, did leave the impression that he had been around and would continue to be around where the better basketball was being played. He seems to know what to do with either hand, or with both at the same time, and can play the backboards with equal ability. Definitely a man to watch.

Gallivanting Bob

Captain Bob Paxton—the original Mr. Rebound—is still up to his old tricks, to the delight of the fans, and of course, the coaching staff. He leaps and gallivants about the court in the manner that the Gazelle boy might have, had he ever materialized, and is as interesting a basketball player as can be seen for any current price of admission. Paxton can be easily referred to as: a coach's dream, a ball player's ball player and the rest of the hackneyed impressions. They should write a new one for Pax, possibly—Basketball Personified—he's that good, believe me.

THE BIG SURPRISE that came Wednesday, though, was the delightful showing of John "Hook" Dillon. Dillon, catcalled for throughout the opening part of the first half, obliged the onlookers in his opening appearance and a subsequent one late in the last half, by dropping in three of his nationally-known specialties. He looked to the majority as the Dillon of old, who thought nothing of scoring 16 or 19 a routine night's work.

Water Under Bridge

The Sultan of Shot, who made All-American in 1496, just didn't seem to have it last season, and after mid-season rode the bench in favor of Nemo Nearman, as he did in the opener. There was talk of differences of opinion and the like between Dillon and Scott last year, but that seems to be water under the bridge or over the dam which ever you prefer, and Big John looks as anxious to play his point-getting game this season, as Scott would like to see him do it.

Though Nearman is a better board player and passer, and possibly a superior defensive player, Dillon showed new life in all three of these departments, and may possibly win back his old slot. From the looks of things, there is room for both men at the position, depending on the type of play—offensive and defensive—that may be needed.

Supreme Purpous

Dillon is a specialist, but it just so happens his speciality attains the supreme purpose of the game—to score points. He has the uncanny ability to score more baskets with fewer shots than most any player currently in the game. Expert Chuck Taylor supported that claim. Yet, like the majority of other athletes he can slump, and like the majority of specialists, there are spots where he is effective and there are spots where he is not.

The seasonal outlook for the Tar Heels is good. Coach Scott is bringing his charges along well, and should have them in top form for the heavy grind that starts in January. Paxton, Miller, Nearman, Kohler, Cole, and the rest are a group of well-functioning operatives who are capable of handling any or all comers. Yet, in John Dillon, lies the difference between a good team and a great one.

Carolina Is Favored Over Quaker Quint

By Dick Jenrette

Carolina's White Phantoms will be favored to take their second straight victory of the 1947-48 basketball season when they meet the Guilford College Quakers in Woollen gymnasium tonight at 8 o'clock.

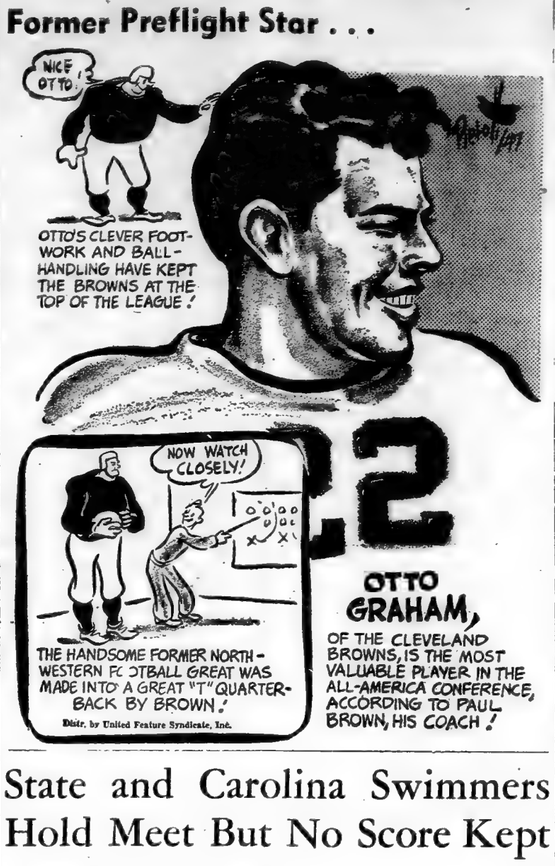
The game will be the second in a series of four pre-holiday games which will be played on the home floor. Coach Tom Scott's boys ran over Catawba, 51-32, on Wednesday and will play Elon here on Monday and High Point College on Wednesday.

Coach Scott plans to open tonight's encounter with the same outfit that started in the win over Catawba. That unit lists Bill Miller and Captain Bob Paxton, forwards, Nemo Nearman, center, and Norm Kohler and King Cole at guards. Scott also has capable reserves that will see much action.

Have Height

With Nearman towering 6 feet-6 inches to be the tallest man on the squad, the starting quint averages slightly over 6-2 per man, so the Phantoms should at least be able to hold their own in the height department this year. The forwards, Miller and Paxton, are each 6-3, and are highly proficient when it comes to grabbing rebounds off the boards. Carolina's control of the backboards was one of the main factors in the win over Catawba.

Top-ranking reserves, each of whom received praise for their good work against Catawba, are John Dillon, Fred Swartzburg, and Taylor Thorne. Dillon, who commands what is perhaps the best hook shot in the nation, was one of the scoring leaders, along with Paxton and Miller.



Old-Time Form

Coach Scott was pleased with the team play as a whole against Catawba. The Phantoms looked ragged during the first half, but with Paxton, Miller, and Dillon leading the way in the second period, Carolina began to roll with old-time form.

Yesterday Scott sent his squad through shooting and light scrimmage work in preparation for Guilford. On the preceding day the team was in Winston-Salem for a cage clinic.

All the Big Four teams have opened their season with the exception of Duke, and Jerry Gerard's outfit meet Hanes in Winston tonight in its opener. Everett Case's State College quint, which has been named as the favorite to cop the conference title this year, already holds several victories, and Wake Forest beat McCrary's semi-pro Eagles, 71-51, this week.

State and Carolina Swimmers Hold Meet But No Score Kept

Bowman Gray Pool was frothing yesterday afternoon as Carolina's Blue Dolphins and State's aquatic Wolves splashed through a seven-event practice meet before several hundred fans who drifted in and out during the activities.

No score was kept of the meet as the tankmen were exercising purely for practice purposes. Dolphin mentor Dick Jamerson was fairly well pleased with his charges' improved overall showing and he was especially impressed with the performance turned in by his green newcomers.

According to the Tar Heel coach, the Dolphins distance men, back and brest strokers paced the locals and he singled out Mike Morrow, Norm Sper, and Bob Ousley as the individual standouts of the afternoon. Bill Kelly, Bill Ward, and Bill Despres shone for the visitors.

Lack of Work

Jamerson did declare that the distance men and sprinters are still suffering from a lack of work but he added that additional practice should take care of that fault. The Carolina leader ended his comments with the observation that "We looked better today than we did this time last year but we still need a lot of work."

Among the standouts in yesterday's activities were breaststrokers Bob Ousley, Jerry Cook, and Dan Breeden; backstrokers Norm Sper, Jim Thomas, and John Bippart; 50 yardmen Jesse Greenbaum, Jim Mericka, Walt Carnes; 100 yard sprinters Greenbaum, Mericka, Ike Norwood, Bob Elliott; and 220 yarders Morrow, Bob Hutton, and Tom Scheinman. The 440 yard ironmen were Morrow, Ronnie Basescu, and Sam McCauley, and the divers who best flew through the air with greatest of ease were Sper, Irvin Erle, and Mac Faigler.

Bowl Parade

The parade of at least 20 bowl games gets underway today with two post-season tilts in northern cities. At Cleveland, Kentucky's Wildcats tangle with Villinova in a game which hereafter will be known as the Great Lakes Bowl.

In Toledo, Ohio, the Glass Bowl will be held, with New Hampshire playing Toledo.

Coach Dick Jamerson has announced that swimming practice will be held at 10 o'clock this morning. All team members are urged to be present.

John Tandy Chosen For Charlotte Tilt

Veteran end John Tandy has been added to the college all-star squad composed of players from North and South Carolina who will oppose the Charlotte Clippers in a charity contest next Saturday in the Queen City.

Tandy is the fourth Tar Heel gridder named to the collegiate team, the others being George Sparger, Joe Wright, and Jim Camp. Sparger, a center during the past season, will return to his old flank position for this game.

Fullback Walt Pupa was also tendered a bid to play, but an injury sustained in last week's finale against Virginia will keep him out of action.

The collegians will hold their initial practice for the clash this morning in Charlotte under Coaches Peahead Walker of Wake Forest and Rex Enright of South Carolina. Drills will continue next week.

Booters to Compete For Olympic Berths In Annapolis Today

Annapolis, Md., Dec. 5 — The four booters who will represent the University of North Carolina in the southeast regional soccer tryouts for the 1948 Olympics arrived here this morning.

The Tar Heels arrived in time to take part in the initial drill this morning in which approximately 40 players representing ten schools in this area participated.

The booters will be split into four squads and a regulation game will be played this afternoon to determine who will play for this section in further competitions to choose the American entries.

Carolina's representatives, all of whom have completed their final season of collegiate play, are Dave Boak, Frank Nelson, Gus Johnston, and Al Williams. Coach Marvin Allen, who will assist in the tryouts, also made the trip.

Jayvee and Freshman Cagers Have Games Scheduled Today

By Morty Schaap

Both the jayvee and freshman basketball teams will swing into action today. The freshmen will open the festivities at 2 o'clock when they play to the Newport high school team, and at 6:15 the juniors will shoot for their second win in as many starts when they engage the Guilford College jayvees. Both games are here.

Coach Jim Hamilton will handle both Tar Heel teams, and he has nominated Thorne Gregory, Hank Lebed, Terry Holmes, Jim Morrison and Stan Goodman to start for the Tar Babies in the matinee. Many others are expected to see action before the tilt is finished. This will be the first contest for the yearlings.

In the jayvee encounter Hamilton will start the same team he did against Louisburg. This calls for John Tsantes and Pete Peters at the forward posts; Sandy Hoft at center and Bill Harrington and Bill White at the guard slots. Hal Ferraro, Charlie Throne, and Jim Morrison will be the first line reserves. Ferraro, who is from Kansas, is a clever ball handler and a fine shot. His play resembles the style that Hamilton made so famous last season.

The jayvee forward line is big and rangy and should furnish a rough time to any club on rebounds. Hoft is much improved in his pivot play over last season and should improve even more before the season ends. Tsantes and Peters both are hard drivers and have fine shots from inside or outside. Harrington and White are steady players and handle the ball well and both can hit the bucket with set shots. White was particularly impressive in the opening game and played a very sound floor game. With a little more experience he should be one of the better ball players in the junior league.

The game tonight will start at 6:15 in order to get the varsity game rolling by 8 o'clock.

Louis Still Champ

New York, Dec. 5—(UP)—Joe Louis is still the world's heavyweight boxing champion, but the champ had a furious battle on his hands for 15 rough rounds with challenger Joe Walcott before he finally was awarded a split decision victory.

When the announcement was made at the conclusion of the fight that Louis had successfully preserved his title, the capacity crowd in Madison Square Garden booed the decision vigorously. Most of the spectators and many sports writers thought that Walcott should have been awarded the fight.

Walcott floored the champ twice during the evening to the delight of many of the 18,000 fans who took up sides with the plucky challenger. Louis was down for a five count in the fourth and a two count in the first round. Louis never floored Walcott, although Jersey Joe slipped on one occasion.

Rickey Plans to Name Brooklyn Pilot Today

New York, Dec. 5—(UP)—The biggest question mark in the winter baseball deals will be settled tomorrow morning at 11 o'clock when Branch Rickey, president of the National League champion Brooklyn Dodgers will decide who will manage his team next season.

The announcement will follow a scheduled meeting between Rickey and Leo Durocher.

Eleven Coeds Gain In Ping Pong Play

Ten coeds have fought their way up into the fifth round of the table tennis tournament currently being held by the Woman's Athletic Association, and another contestant, Mary Lee Donoho, has reached the sixth round.

Those already in the fifth round are Donna Barnett, Jane Morrison, Peppy Lucas, Helen Crockford, Gloria Peters, Charlotte Johnson, Pat Winslow, Marry Dillard, Mary Ruth Davis, and Nancy Tucker. Three more fourth-round matches still remain to be played.

Finals in the tourney are cheduled for December 15.

Collegiate Football Bows Out Today As Irish, Trojans, Battle on Coast

By United Press

Football makes its final bow to the 1947 season, excluding post-season games on January 1, and but one game remains to be played that attracts national attention. It's the meeting between Southern Cal and Notre Dame in Los Angeles today.

The Irish, who have been waging an in-and-out battle with Michigan all season for the mythical national championship, will be meeting the best that the Pacific Coast has to offer.

The Trojans copped the Pacific title and will be that loop's representative in the Rose Bowl this season against Michigan. Nevertheless Notre Dame will be a heavy favorite today.

The Irish arrived yesterday in a flash rain storm, and more of this rare California weather is predicted for today, which may slow up Notre Dame's vaunted passing and running games.

More than 100,000 people will see the game.

In the only other major game, Tulane plays Louisiana State University.

Girls Hockey Squad Battles Duke Today

The coed hockey club will seek to make it two victories in a row when they meet the Duke stickwielders on Emerson field this afternoon at 2 o'clock.

In their only other match of the season the local lassies outscored a Meredith college eleven, 1-0.

Fight Is Expected in House On Foreign Relief Measure

By the United Press

The House has ended general debate on the emergency foreign aid bill, but the measure is not in the clear yet.

On Monday, amendments to the $590,000,000 bill will be introduced, and several members of the House have promised to introduce amendments that are sure to provoke some sharp battles.

Many Republican members of the House are in favor of cutting down the size of the funds for France, Italy, Austria and China. Only today ,Rep. John Taber of New York, who heads the House committee that appropriates funds, says he thinks $590,000,000 is too much. But the appropriations committee chairman did n say how much should be grant

On the other side of Capitol Hill, the Senate appropriations committee is studying legislation that will finance the $597,000,000 aid bill already passed by the Senate. The Senate merely approved the bill. Now, the appropriations committee must draw up the bill for the actual funds.

The committee interrupted it work today to hear acting Secretary of State Lovett, and Lovett had plenty to say.

He told the committee tha Russia is aiding the strikes and violences in France and Italy That, said Lovett, is how Russia figures it can frighten the Unite States into giving up its aid to Europe.

Lovett told the committee tha communist-led demonstrations ir France and Italy appear to be, a he put it, "an extension of foreign policy."

Chidnoff Wants All Unreturned Proofs

The Chidnoff studio has written to the Yackety Yack staff asking that all proofs not already returned to them be sent immediately. These are the property of the studio and may be used to order finished photographs.

If these photographs are ordered, the studio promises delivery on them by Christmas. However, the Yackety Yack yesterday pointed out that it is too late for the pictures not returned to be used in the annual.

to the negligence of a 'few' writers now slightly behind schedule, will go to the printer and out of editor Harriet Sipple's list of worries. As the bulk of the work on the classes has already been done, five sections of the staff have only 'mopping up' operations remaining.

Sports are up to date, and await only the playihg of Tar Heel winter schedules to be sent to join most of the rest of the annual at the printers.

Much credit for this work, according to Yack staffers is due to the three editors who had a plan of action and the dummy of the book mapped out when classes started in September. But Bursley, saying something about credit where credit is due, also had a verbal tribute for the people who have faithfully appeared at the office every day.

Among those so mentioned were James Johnson, who made possible the correlation of pictures and information, Joyce Jones, hardworking freshman section member, and Ed Pate and English Deschamps who put in much work on the fraternity section.

Bursley also patted his section editors on the back, and commended Bill Duncan for his work on the pictures. In closing the interview to go back to work, he also announced that a successful completion to the first phase of work on the annual was to be saluted with a party last night.

After Thanksgiving Rest

Carolina Social Bugs Spend Comparatively Quiet Week

By Jane Mears

The campus was considerably quieter than usual this past week. Maybe the shock of the Thanksgiving rest was too much for our hardened constitutions. However, Alderman inmates rallied their forces and gave a tea for four hundred people at 3:30 o'clock Friday. Alderman girls will hold another tea this afternoon in honor of their professors. The energetic social committee consists of the following members: Chee Bryson, Margie Taylor, Molly Craig, Barbara Ann Pope, and Ann Bumgardner.

And while I am at it, I want to thank sincerely the Valkyries for being so considerate this year of everyone's sleep and early-morning nerves. Most people slept through the gentle tapping of the cymbal and altogether it was carried through in a most dignified manner, from an observer's standpoint.

The Pi Phis gave a bridge party for sisters Pat Anderson and Sara Buchanan Wednesday afternoon. Pat's engagement to Jim Crutchfield has just been announced, and they will be married in Cherry Point on December 20. Sara and Bill Porter will also be married December 20. The brides-to-be each received corsages.

The ADPi's were entertained by the Sigma Nu's at a supper given the Tuesday before Thanksgiving ,and all enjoyed the gobbler . . . the ADPi's will be entertained again on Tuesday, December 9 by the Phi Kappa Sigma fraternity at a Christmas party. ADPi alumnae Florrie Trimble, Lib Bivens and Babs Bixler came back for the Virginia game.

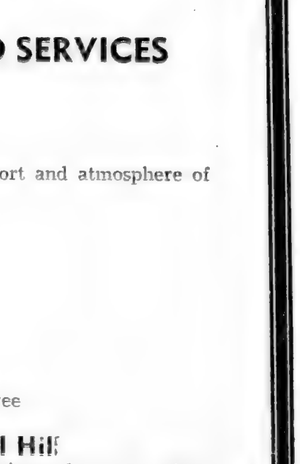
Bunny Earl of Patterson Springs, and Earle Horner of Burlington have announced their marriage. The ceremony took place on August 16. The Horners are now living on Vance street.

Pi Phi pledges entertained the pledges of other sororities at a Christmas party Thursday afternoon. Elizabeth Myatt was social chairman in charge of arrangements and was assisted by Goode Nufer and Jane Pointer. Charmain Griffin, Katherine Royall, Betsy Tom Lawrence and Ginny Nash executed the decorations.

Craig Hedrick deserted the Carolina Gentlemen and accepted the Phi Delt pin of Ed Hardman of the University of Florida. Anne Hamlin and Lamda Chi Bill Prince were recently pinned.

That's all I can think of right now. More next week.

Automobile Stickers Here for Car-Owners



Automobile stickers are now available for those student car owners who registered their vehicles late in the present term, Dean Fred Weaver said today. Approximately 100 of the windshield tags have been received and will be given to the first students on the waiting list for them who report to room 207 South building.

Automobile owners who have yet to register their cars may do so at South building now since more license stickers are on order. There is no fee for the registration.

WSSF Will Start Collection of Money Pledged Last Month

December pledges to the World Student Service fund, made during the main campus drive in November, should be paid Monday and Tuesday, according to an announcement made yesterday by Emily Von Borries and Tag Montague, co-chairmen of the WSSF statistical committee.

A table will be set up in the Y lobby for receiving the money, and it will be staffed from 10 to 12 and from 2 to 5 each day. During the drive students made pledges to be paid in four monthly installments, November, December, and February. This is the first collection other than that during the drive itself, and students are urged to remember their pledges and pay them promptly.

Approximately $5,165 dollars has been paid or pledged to the fund, of which $3,600 has already been sent to the regional headquarters of WSSF in Atlanta, Georgia. According to figures released by international headquarters in Geneva, Switzerland, $5,000 will operate for one year a student center of fairly large size in China, providing facilities for cheap meals, bathing, warmth, light, study, recreation, and self-help.

The same amount will provide and equip a student center in Europe, or equip a sizeable student kitchen and dining room. Money collected in American colleges, which last year amounted to $520,000, is disbursed by World Student Relief headquarters in Geneva, through representatives in devastated countries. Goal for American colleges this year is $1,000,000.

Aching Feet, Bulging Biceps Plague Modern Dance Group

By Venitah Sanders

The illusion that Modern Dance is for delicate aesthetes is refuted heartily by the members of the Modern Dance club, who limp home with aching feet after their rehearsals three times a week. The seven girls who at present comprise the club boast bulging biceps as a result of their many two-hour sessions in the Women's gym.

First Appearance

First public appearance of the year for the club will be in the community Yuletide program with the Wesley players, Tuesday night at 8 o'clock in Memorial hall. "Christmas in Dance Drama" will feature dances to three Christmas carols which are student-choreographed, and the piano accompaniment will be furnished by Betsy Green.

"God Rest Ye Merry Gentlemen" depicts a merry group of peasants gathering in an Old English square, jovially expressing the seasons festivity. "Carol of the Bells" is an abstracted study in the two Christmas Moods, jubilation and adoration.

The audience will join in singing carols with a community chorus led by Ferne Hughes, and the Wesley Players will present Stephen Vincent Benet's Christmas drama, "A Child is Born."

'I Hate Water' Stuart Sechriest States As Swimming-Medal Plot Reaches Climax

By Bob Rolnik

"I hate water!" declares Assistand Journalism Professor Stuart Sechriest. He maintains that there is a plot against him. The University Athletic department has awarded Sechriest a medal—for swimming!

"They're just trying to flatter me into taking a bath," insists the Journalism professor waving a letter he received yesterday from the Department of Physical Education and Athletics.

"Dear Mr. Sechriest,' the letter begins. "We are holding for you a charm which was awarded to you for your participation in swimming in 1944. Please call at this office for your award."

"Why, I don't even know how to swim!" Sechriest exclaims. "I wrote the Physical Education department a stinging reply. They can't trick me into washing with that stuff they call H2O!"

This is the letter which the unwashed prof sent to the charm-awarding Department of Athletics:

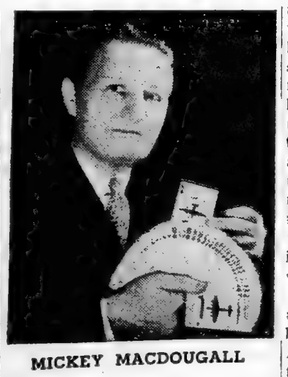
"Subject: Charmed, I'm sure:

"1. In reply to basic communication dtd. 3 December 1947, the undersigned wishes to congratulate himself for winning a swimming charm in 1944, since that was the year he was merely wading (not swimming) in the swamps of Louisiana with the armed forces.

"2. Before accepting this charm, the undersigned poses the following questions: (A.) If football players receive gold footballs, will the undersigned receive a gold fish? (B.) Will the fish be of the dead variety? (C.) Will the charm be a live mermaid?

"Also, before awarding this medal, it seems that the Athletic department should be acquainted with the following habits peculiar to the undersigned: (A.) He doesn't know how to swim. (B.) He doesn't bathe. (C.) He doesn't admire water running under bridges. (D.) He never touches the stuff.

"4. So, if it's all the same with the Athletic Department, please keep the charm and mail to the undersigned its monetary equivalent in Confederate War Bonds."



Signed: "Stuart W. Sechriest, Acting Air Raid Warden (j.g.)—Confederate Army Air Corps."

'Fastest Hands in the World' Will Appear In Performance Tonight in Memorial Hall

The man with "the fastest hands in the world," internationally famous gambling expert Mickey MacDougall, comes to Memorial hall this evening at 8 o'clock for a gratis performance, sponsored by Graham Memorial.

Performing incredible feats with cards he has never seen before, MacDougall also gives amazing demonstrations with dice and other gambling "gimmicks" which are used by professional gamblers to fleece the unwary. Along with this, he tells his own pungent true-life stories of gamblers who live, and frequently die on the turn of a card.

As part of his equipment on the road MacDougal carries the catalogs of several supply houses that sell all the paraphernalia required for cheating in almost any game. These include marked decks of cards and an invisible-writing pencil for marking the backs of cards. The markings then can be seen only through a red eyeshade.

MICKEY MACDOUGALL

Every gambling house in New York has a picture of MacDougall and dealers and stick men are warned to watch out for him, but he usually gets in because, as he says, "pictures of me always make people look for a great big guy." One of the most common crooked devices, according to Mac, is the well-known put and take top. These tops can be made so that when spun to the right they say "Put two dollars," and when spun to the left they say "Take the pot." "Cute isn't it," said Mickey, "If you know which way to spin them!"

It was by way of a magician's act that he first came into the business of being a card detective. At the age of 14 he used to pesteringly hang around the stage door of the Philadelphia theater where magician Horace Goldin was performing. Finally, in desperation Goldin gave the boy a job. —As the boy for the famous Indian rope trick!

Art Student Takes Award for Portrait In State Contest

Ben Williams, senior art major from Lumberton, was awarded a purchase prize in the "Society of North Carolina Artists," exhibition at Raleigh State Art Gallery, Wednesday. Governor Cherry issued the awards to the five purchase prize winners, which included Jennie Rembert, wife of John Rembert, instructor in the art department, and Mary Leath Thomas, visiting instructor in the department last summer.

Instead of awarding money to the winners of the contest, the North Carolina Society decided last year to purchase works of the winners and to have them in the permanent collection of the North Carolina Art Gallery. An exhibition of this gallery will be at Person hall sometime in January.

Two from University

A jury, composed of out-of-state artists, selected 175 paintings to be used in the "Society of North Carolina Artists" exhibition. Two University art major's works were accepted. These include James Moon and Joseph Bolt.

The work submitted by Williams for the contest was a portrait "Geanie", of a former student. He completed the portrait last summer after working on it for two months.

Williams has been going to school continuously for the last seven years. Schools attended include the National School of Art, Washington; Corcoran School of Fine Arts, Washington; George Washington university and the University of North Carolina. He studied privately with Eugene Weisz, well known artist affiliated with the Corcoran School.

Won Award

Williams was awarded the Ronsheim Memorial award given to first year students at Corcoran. A year later he won first prize in the Washington Art Fair. He also won an award for figure ainting from the Corcoran school. Last year he had a painting chosen for exhibition in the "Society of North Carolina Artists" exhibition.

In September of this year Williams had a one-man show, consisting of 16 paintings, at Mint Museum, Charlotte. Ten of these paintings were brought from the Mint Museum to the exhibition here, "Artist, UNC." Williams has had many of his works on display in various exhibitions throughout the country.

Williams Is Chosen For SCHW Position

Aubrey Williams, Jr., chairman of the campus chapter of the Southern Conference for Human Welfare, was elected to the board of representatives of the SCHW's Committee for North Carolina at last Saturday's statewide SCHW convention in Greensboro.

Biggest thing the SCHW plans to do here during the next year, Williams said, is to urge reconsideration of a resolution passed last May by the University trustees declaring that they had no authority to recognize any union of University employees.

SCHW seeks to have restored the right of the local union, United Public Workers of America, CIO, to bargain collectively under the Wagner Act. The union had been operating in Chapel Hill for several years prior to the action of the trustees. This action, Williams maintains, has no legal precedent and under it "University employees have no right to organize. This is a violation of civil liberties."

Japs' Sneak Attack On Pearl Harbor Caught DTH With Its Columns Down

Six Years Ago Today Attack Shocked Nation

By Donald MacDonald

It happened—the Japanese attack—six years ago on Sunday just like today, and it left quite an impression on each of us.

Like every newspaper, the Daily Tar Heel that Sunday was caught with its columns down. Press time was Saturday night, and the maddening barrier which every newsman knows at deadline knocked out any chances of "war" in Sunday print. The War did not reach American radios until Sunday afternoon.

Instead, the DTH printed a calm, usual Sunday edition. Streamer headline was "Graham to Highlight Seven Day Honor Study". Led by Student Legislature leaders and President Graham, Carolina men and women were worrying about the Honor system—much as students today are concerned about elections, parking problems, no bowl game. Coates, now head of the Institute of Government, was scheduled to begin a week of honor system study by addressing "a Graham Memorial audience at 7:30 p.m. Monday."

Christmas Spirit

The Christmas spirit was T-squared into all the edition's advertisements. There was an editorial entitled "Our Honor System—As We See It" written by Bill Seeman, a senior from Durham. The White Phantoms were scheduled to play the Hanes Hosiery quint in Winston-Salem on Tuesday. "H.M. Pullham, Esq.", with Robert Young and Hedy Lamarr, was showing at the local google-flash.

Of course, the national scene enjoyed some play. There was a small United Press-authored article headlined "Japanese Military Movements in Indo-China Threaten Peace." That was because President Roosevelt had addressed a personal message to Hirohito for maintenance of peace threatened by reported Japanese military movement in Indo-China and the Gulf of Siam.

It was quite ironic, too, that a radio forum, entitled "Must We Fight Japan?" would be presented, the DTH reported, that afternoon from 3 until 3:30 o'clock over stations WRAL, WAIR and WBBB. Professor J. L. Godfrey of the history department was to act as moderator and Dr. George Mowry, Admiral P. W. Foote, (U. S. Navy, retired), and Roger Mann, president of the International Relations club, were scheduled to participate. Then it happened in Hawaii, and the script, like a patriotic chameleon, turned red-white-and-blue.

When the nation's radios, around 1:30 o'clock, interrupted programs with bulletins of the Pearl Harbor attack, the script of the University radio show was suddenly altered. President Frank P. Graham, faculty members and student leaders in an unrehearsed broadcast, discussed reactions on the campus to the Japanese declaration of war.

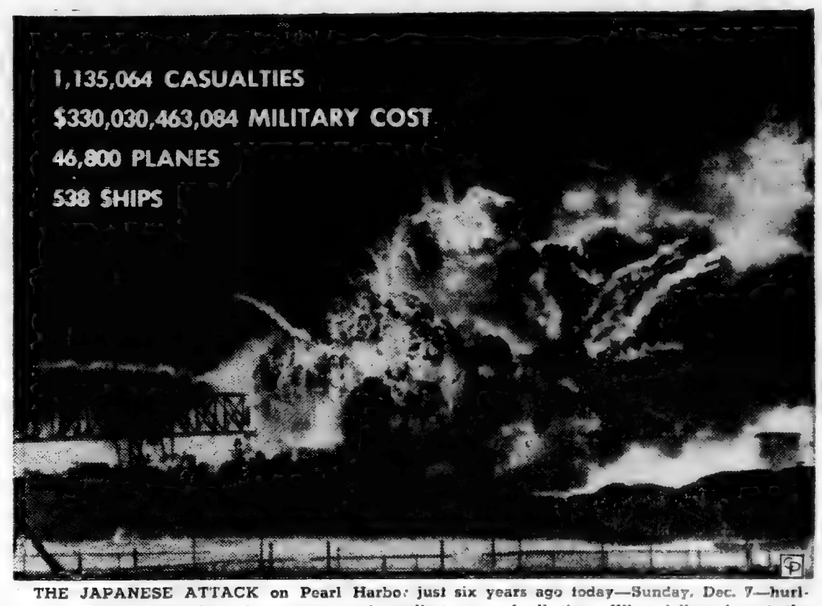
Tuesday's edition of the DTH was indeed a rare one. In spite of the world-shattering events, Editor Orville Campbell could not publish an extra on Monday due to printing difficulties. But the campus would probably have been too close to its radios to read it anyway.

Instead of "honor system" editorials, the first war issue carried a front-page editorial entitled, "It's Here—Let's Face It." The editorial used too many cliches, but it stressed one important point—planning for peace.

"Japan's declaration of war," wrote Campbell, "woke up a lot of college students. For the first time since the war started, they wanted to know what to do, where to turn, whom to go to about doing their bit. The DTH does not profess to be in a position to give advice. Most of us who work on the paper are in the same boat as you. But we've been thinking about the problem for some time, and we want to get our say off our chest. Take it for what it's worth. Fellow student, our first impulse is to tell you to keep your shirt on, take things easy, and think the thing through clearly. Forget about being a playboy.

"If college students continue to play the lotus-eaters, if they keep up their shallow superficial, pseudo-sophisticated attitude of unconcern, if they continue to defer consideration of the war and the after-war, the time will come when they are called on to help determine the policy of their country, and they will have to answer, 'Not prepared.'"

Headline of the Tuesday issue was: Phillipine Invasion Reported; Manila Bombed Following US Declaration of War Upon Japan." In smaller type there was, "West Coast Blacked Out in Test Raid; Guam, Wake Island Taken By Japanese; US Ships captured." Evidence of the hysteria was this news account: "About 60 enemy planes were said to be nearing San Francisco last light, but luckily they turned back."



There was a very serious photograph of Dr. Frank, an account of the assembly which overflowed Memorial hall on Monday to hear the University president tell students to "stick to their books and equip themselves in body and mind for any task they may be called upon to perform for their country."

More indicative of student body feeling was the article entitled, "Students View Crisis With Resignation." The author wrote with a patriotic fervor: "Only outward manifestation of student opinion thus far was the number of 'Beat Japan' banners that appeared on several of the fraternities and dormitories.

"Among the women students questioned not one of them expressed any doubt as to a finally victorious America. They are all willing to do their part it was noted. It seems that they are more afraid for their brothers, their friends, and their fathers than they are for themselves. Coed Anne Guill phrased their situation 'as though we were an audience watching a play in which the actors and incidents are entirely beyond our control; it isn't real.'"

At the Pick, a Monogram movie called "Let's Go Collegiate" was scheduled and "Swamp Water" was drawing crowds at the Carolina Professor Koch, late beloved founder of the Carolina Playmakers, was set to give his Christmas Carol reading in Memorial hall the following Saturday night.

It happened—the Japanese attack—six years ago on a Sunday just like today, and it left quite an impression on each of us.

THE JAPANESE ATTACK on Pearl Harbor just six years ago today—Sunday, Dec. 7—hurled the United States into the greatest and costliest war of all time. What followed cost the United States more than 1,000,000 casualities, more than 330,000,000 in treasure, a vast fleet of ships and an immense number of aircraft. Out of the peace came not tranquility, but the atom bomb.

Ex-Tar Heel Mentor Gets Davidson Post

Davidson, N. C., Dec. 6—(UP)—Charley Jamerson, former assistant coach to Carl Snavely at Carolina, today was named head coach of football at Davidson College to succeed Bill Story, whose resignation becomes effective June 1.

Jamerson is a veteran of 16 years of scholastic and collegiate coaching and he has to his credit a fine grid playing record at Arkansas. He hails from Illinois.

Jamerson was mentioned prominently for this post last season but Story was given the nod. Jamerson coached baseball at Davidson last year, and he will continue in this capacity in addition to his football duties.

Story is giving up the Davidson coaching job in oredr to accept a position as assistant principal at Maury High in Norfolk.

Glee Club Meeting

It is imperative that all members of the Women's Glee club meet at 6:30 this evening in Hill hall. Originally the meeting was scheduled for 7 o'clock, but an unexpected occurrance has mode the earlier time necessary, was the announcement which was issued by the Music department yesterday afternoon.

Scholarship Award

Ex-Football Player, Actor Wins Koch Writing Award

Robert G. Armstrong, Jr., of Bessemer, Alabama, was awarded the Frederick H. Koch Scholarship in Playwriting recently, it has been announced by Samuel Selden, head of the University Department of Dramatic Art.

The scholarship, a memorial to the founder of the Carolina Playmakers, covers the 1947-48 scholastic year.

ROBERT ARMSTRONG

Armstrong, former football player, actor, and playwright of Howard College, played the role of "Peter Couchon", the bishop, in the recent Carolina Playmaker production of Bernard Shaw's "Saint Joan." He made his second appearance during the past summer, in the leading role of "John Borden" in Paul Green's "The Lost Colony" at Manteo, N. C. He was a featured actor in the Playmaker presentations of "Hear the Hammers Ringing" and "Macbeth."

Before the war, Armstrong entered Howard College, near Birmingham, Alabama, on a football scholarship, but his interest soon became centered in theatre work, especially writing. The Howard College Masquers produced three of his one-act plays.

After a period of army service and work in the steel mills, he came to the University of North Carolina to work with the Playmakers, and last year they produced his one-act play, "Egypt Land", on an experimental bill of student-written plays.

'Carolina Fight' Not Planned Yet, Declares Tenney

There might possibly be a fight, but it's not planned at this time," remarked Harrison Tenney, Carolina representative for Frank Dailey's Meadowbrook, commenting on the Meadowbrook advertisement which appeared in yesterday morning's Daily Tar Heel

He was speaking of a typographical error which appeared in at least 2,000 copies of the DTH, most of which were circulated throughout the lower quad dormitories.

The ad read, "Meadowbrook presents University of North Carolina Fight," and continued to say so for the 2,000 issues until a sharp-eyed pressman noticed the error and stopped the press.

Having no linotype operators on duty, the correction had to be made in handset type, causing the other 5,500 papers to proclaim "University of North Carolina NIGHT."

Stan Kenton will be at Meadowbrook to provide music for the "Fight" night, December 28, and reservations may be secured now through the DTH business office, Box 1050, Chapel Hill.

Today Is December 7th

That bright and sunny Sunday afternoon of six years ago, while Dad took his regular Sabbath snooze all the kids in the neighborhood played football on the lawn. We didn't know the location of Pearl Harbor. Neither did we realize the significance of the word "war". War to us was an excuse used by teachers for making us learn dates and events. It was a black, romantic plague that swept over the countries of Europe and afforded the movie industry with numerous plots for their films.

So, when word that Pearl Harbor had been the victim of a Jap surprise attack reached our football huddle it didn't even break up our game. Nevertheless, we went in to wake up Dad, inform him of the attack, and watch as he took down the dusty gazette to find the location of all the excitement had been crayoned over by infantile drawings, and was hardly distinguishable.

But now on a Sunday six years later, there is hardly a person who cannot give you a stinging description of the word. A description that is bitter and leaves its sting on the individual.

War, these people tell you, is a game. There are no rules. It cripples industry and society. It mangles souls and substitutes hate for love. It is a poison for which man has found no antidote. It is a disease distributed on mankind by greed—a deadly virus.

But today is another Sunday December 7th—different from the 1941 one in that it is six years hence. Perhaps this is the only significant difference—the world still has its differences and there are no barriers that makes a nation inaccessible from another.

But if a person says that countries are behaving in a manner which nurtures war, then he is a warmonger. If he tries to mend differences and render aid, he is under suspicion for having ulterior motives.

Under such conditions what can we do, we keep asking ourselves, In the answer there are no signs of immediate success. We must keep plugging all the harder —plugging to build the United Nations into an organization that can prescribe medicines for sick nations.

December 7th is a day we would like to forget. It is a day which ushers in events which we must prevent.

Your Duty

Tuberculosis has no respect for economic conditions and does not confine itself to striking those persons who can afford to pay hospital fees and doctor bills. Indeed it more often than not attacks the undernourished, the poor.

Those of us who are fortunate enough to have money enough to live healthy and comfortable lives have a responsibility to those who are not so lucky.

We have an opportunity to meet this responsibility in the Christmas Seal campaign which enables us to do our part in fighting tuberculosis.

Through buying Christmas seals we arm science with money which is necessary to carry on experiments which are expected to eventuate in suppression of the disease.

Buy Christmas seals. It's important. It's your duty.—B.S.

Give Science the Weapon

Slaves of Soil and...
...Monarchs of Manufacture

If growth in industry means social progress, then North Carolina stands to move ahead rapidly in the years to come. Silas F. Campbell, who runs the Bureau of Research and Statistics, says that manufacturing is on the increase in North Carolina—and that North Carolina could possibly outstrip "nearly all" other states in the per capita monetary value of its output.

This enticing possibility could come about, Campbell says, if North Carolina "had institutions which devote as much talent and research to manufacture as its agricultural school does to improvement of its farm program."

Campbell points out that of the raw materials produced in the state's mines, forests and fields, only in textiles, tobacco and furniture has it taken a position in manufacture that is commensurate with the importance of its natural resources,

North Carolina has about two and one half percent of the nation's estimated population and something just under three percent of the nation's estimated workers employed in manufacture. That, of course, is better than average but still not up to what can be expected of the state. North Carolina stands below its rightful position in manufacture, when its climate, quality and abundance of workers and the abundance of its natural resources and raw materials are considered.

Standing ninth in total value of manufactured products in the last census, North Carolina has reached that position through its three basic raw materials—cotton, tobacco and wood.

Campbell sums up the situation in these words:

"If it is said of us that we have been slaves of the soil, let it be said of us henceforth that we are also monarchs of manufacture."—B.S.

Book Roundup

Current Book Crop Is Varied

Remember to Remember, by Henry Miller, New Directions, 427 pp.

Lions and Shadows, by Christopher Isherwood, New Directions, 312 pp.

....Essays of Shakespeare, An Arrangement, by George Coffin Taylor, G.P. Putnam's Sons, 144 pp.

Red Wine First, by Nedra Tyre, Simon and Schuster, 208 pp.

Flood Crest, by Hodding Carter, Rineheart and Co., 278 pp.

By Bob Sain

Henry Miller's notoriety as a "dirty" writer has made him a must on most moderns' reading lists. His Paris-published "Tropic of Capricorn," "Tropic of Cancer," "Black Spring," etc., have shocked many, disgusted others and delighted a few with their complete disregard for the taboos of languages and thought. They have been banned in all English-speaking countries.

A few copies have slipped by authorities and many a GI in the ETO took a look at Miller's work in Paris. These same GI's would not get their kicks on "Remember to Remember," except for one long story-section devoted to a relation of the affairs of a homosexual astrologer.

For the most part, Miller writes about a few friends—sculptors, painters, architects—who are on his (the left) side of the artistic fence. He also writes about himself and about his artistic struggle in this hard, cold world. America he finds insensitive, ready to pay a lawyer a fat fee—but unwilling to save an artist from poverty.

A few political views find their way through the arty wordage of "Remember to Remember." They identify Miller as a radical who works at it.

The most rewarding section is Miller's chapter on "Obscenity and the Law of Reflection". Almost maudlin in his self-pity, Miller explains that he isn't making any money on his famous books because of the people's objection to what they call obscenity. In self-defense, he delivers a diatribe against the insensitive who are ashamed of their affection for obscenity.

Christopher Isherwood's "Lions and Shadows" is less sensational than the Miller effort, but a much better done work. An autobiographical novel, it is written in the effete Huxley-Waugh manner and takes the budding young writer through public school and Cambridge. Chiefly notable is an Isherwood theory that many young men (among them, himself) were badly warped because they were too young to fight in the first world war. Read it for the Britisher's clean, graceful prose—an art now lost.

Anyone at Carolina not already convinced that George Coffin Taylor knows his Shakespeare and knows it well wouldn't know the bell tower from a quonset hut, so there's no point in explaining that his compilation of Shakespeare lines into essay form in "Essays of Shakespeare" is the work of a genuine authority and a man completely sensitive to the poet's philosophy. Suffice to say that the book is a brilliant idea well executed. Shakespeare in prose loses not a bit of that greatness of mind evident in his poetry.

Another southerner, young Nedra Tyre, a Georgia social worker, has worked out a plan not greatly dissimilar to Dr. Taylor's. Miss Tyre has juggled the sentences of assorted southern unfortunates she met in her work and compiled, in "Red Wine First," a book of short story testimonials of poverty and misery. With a flavor sharp as potlikker, Miss Tyre has equalled Caldwell and Faulkner in presenting the seamy side of existance below the Mason-Dixon line.

Hodding Carter's "Flood Crest" is a tight, sincere novel in the now familiar vein of "All the King's Men," the novel about Huey Long which won Robert Penn Warren the Pulitzer Prize for 1946. "Flood Crest" hasn't the scope of "All the King's Men" and Carter hasn't the literary ability of Warren, but this tale of a southern senator who makes political capital out of the south's suspicion of "reds" and labor unions, indeed all liberal thought, is well-worth reading for Carter's sharp diagnosis of one of our ills. A love story and dramatic violence in the fight against a rampaging river combine with politics and social comment to make "Flood Crest" entertaining as well as important.

Write Away

But Bring Your Own Opium

Letters submitted to the Write Away column must be double-spaced, typewritten, and shall not exceed 200 words. All contributions must contain the signature, telephone number, and address of the author (names will be withheld upon request). Letters which contain obscene or libelous statements or letters which do not comply with these stipulations will not be published

Dear Sir:

We would like to ask by what authority Mr. Bill Robertson is judging the Carolina Conservative Club? He has never been to one of our meetings! If he had, he would know that we neither advocate a stopping of progress nor do we eat opium.

We of course oppose the zany left-wing idealogies. We are wholeheartedly anti-Communist. We oppose the KKK. And we uphold the capitalist system and American Democracy. If this means upholding the "status quo" we uphold it and are working to better it. The foundation of our country is good. We want to build on this foundation—not destroy it.

For Mr. Robertson and others confused on the issue, Fascism was the corporate structure of Mussolini's government. Hitler's government was not Fascist, although it was totalitarian. If you mean racist when you say Fascist, be clear and say racist. Mussolini's government is gone but Hitler's lives on complete with dictators, storm troopers, secret police, and a world-wide fifth column. The governments of Russia and Yugoslavia are carbon copies of Hitler's Germany. The Communists and their friends are making plans now to betray America and every other national government into the hands of Soviet imperialism. Part of their plan is to call their enemies Fascists.

We certanly cannot adjust ourselves to the column "This Changing World" because the views in said column are completely out of this world. We base our ideas on the past and on present happening. We have no truck whatever with the mystic Henry Wallace and his guru. Our "ideology" is made at the University of North Carolina and not in some mysterious "international" headquarters.

We suggest that Mr. Robertson spend some time in the study of History, Political Science, Geography, Logic and Economics; read his daily paper to see what is actually happening in "this changing world"; and, attend at least one meeting of the Carolina Conservative Club—bring your own opium.

Mushbagas and The Fraulein

Wilbur Has His Troubles

By Bill Buchan

Wilbur Anderson is in several of my classes. He has just one difficulty, he doesn't make very high grades. Wilbur is quick to point out, however, that that might be because he never studies until the day before an exam.

For instance, take a social science quiz that he muffed this week. That particular course is outlined in a 34 chapter Syllabus covering the entire quarter, there by eliminating the problem of not being able to recall past assignments. The Syllabus is a temptation to Wilbur, though, for with it he feels secure in that he can cram it all in at the last minute and pass.

Judgement day arrived in the form of a monthly quiz. At seven o'clock the night before, Wilbur showed up in the General Reading room at the Library and armed himself with several big volumees, including a"Cultural History of Western Civilization" "A Short History of the American Republic" and an inviting book entitled "Europe's Most Fabulous Lovers". He began reading assignment 16 of the Syllabus. (The quiz was to cover 14 ensuing chapters.) By nine, Wilbur had been to the little boy's room four times and had plowed through Chapter 21. At 10:30, the library lights started playing hide and seek and Wilbur checked out the books and made for his room. (a la Quonset)

At 11, and Chapter 24, he tired and set out for the Marathon and a cup of java. One shot of Old Thompson and an hour later, he was back in the quonset study hut, busily reading of the English Reform Bill of 1832.

Here it must be stated that Wilbur, while he read, was also thinking of Christmas, New Year's Eve, the beer shortage, mushbagas and the little German fraulein named Sonja. Occasionally, he concentrated on the material he was reading, especially in "Europes Fabulous Lovers." By 1:30 he had passed chapter 27 and was thinking about the four pages of Spanish he had to translate for the next day. At two ayem, he put the books aside and started wondering how to get them back to the library by 9:30 with steady classes from 8 through 11.

My friend Wilbur finally hit the sack at 2:30 and proceeded to dream of Napoleon, the little emperor's campaign. When he got up at 7, however, he'd forgotten not only his dream, but also the main part of his readings the night before.

With an uneasy heart, he entered the social science class and waited for the worse. It came. The questions, as others pointed out, weren't hard or even tricky, they just covered the part that Wilbur didn't. The question about inventions of the industrial revolution wasn't too hard, inasmuch as Wilbur knew lots of things were invented last century. The fact that he didn't know who invented what or when had its complications, though.

Wilbur finally got through the test, however, and very probably will pass it with a very low "d". He made some pretty good resolutions after the quiz, such as he was going to read all assignments day by day in the future and take careful notes.

But before he does that, he has to go back and read the other 20 chapters between now and Tuesday week to prepare for the final exam. I hope Wilbur passes it, but I have my doubts.

Everyday Counselor

Best Things Cost Most

By Dr. Herbert Spaugh, D.D

The best things in life come high. That which is worth while costs. The place of leadership exacts its penalty. Those who are disposed to be envious of men in high places might remember that they are paying the price.

In every field of human endeavor, he that is first must perpetually live in the white light of publicity. Whether the leadership be vested in a man or in a manufactured product, emulation and envy are at work. In art, in literature, in industry, yes, in religion, the reward and the punishment are always the same.

The reward is widespread recognition and commendation, the punishment fierce, denial and detraction.

When a man's work becomes the standard of the world, it also becomes the target for attack by the envious.

If his work be merely mediocre, he will be left alone. But if he achieve a masterpiece, it will set myriads of tongues wagging.

Whatever you write, or paint, or play, or sing, or build, or achieve, no one will strive to surpass or slander you, unless your work be stamped with the seal of greatness.

Spiteful voices in the realm of art were raised against our own Whistler long after the world had acclaimed him as a great artistic genius.

Multitudes flocked to the shrine of Wagner, while the little group of those whom he had surpassed cried out angrily that he was no musician at all.

The petty and the envious continued to protest that Fulton could never build a steamboat that would run, while crowds lined the river banks to see his boat steam by.

The leader is assailed because he is a leader. Failing to equal or to excel, those not willing to pay the price seek to depreciate and to destroy.

This is not new. It is as old as the world, and as old as the human passions, envy, greed, ambition and the desire to surpass. It will continue as long as evil remains with us.

Master-poet, master-painter, master-workman, master-Christian, each in his turn is assailed. The man who steps out in front of the crowd is ever the target for those behind.

The greatest man ever to walk the earth—Jesus Christ—was the most derided and villified in His day. He and His Kingdom live on, while those who held Him in derision have gone down to oblivion, or their names live only to be excoriated.

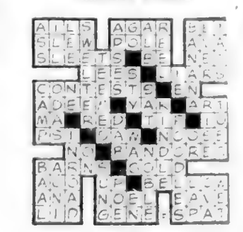
Those who would follow Him may expect criticism, and unkind words. They may expect actions to be misconstrued.

'Performed Well'

Young's Talents Were Evident In Joint Recital

By John K. B. McDowell

The Men's Glee club and the Women's Glee club of the University appeared in joint recital Friday evening at Hill hall.



Each of the singing units appeared in two groups of selections, including works of Lotti, Pergolesi, Handel, Bach, Mozart, Bortniansky, Dowland, Vaughan Williams, Schuman, and in arrangements of a Negro folk song, an Irish folk song The Galway Piper, an Appalachian carol I Wonder as I Wander, and a traditional chantey, Hoodah Day.

Mr. Paul Young's admirable musicianship was evident throughout the program. The Woman's Glee club performed well, but it was evident that far less care had been taken in selecting members, but this is understandable in light of the small enrollment of women in comparison with men. The Men's Glee club sang very well throughout the evening. Edwin Carter, John Bridges, Virginia Johnson, Barbara Young, Rufus Norris, and John Brinegar were heard in solo passages. The singing groups were ably supported by Patricia Carruthers, Gwen Howard, Jocelyn Rhyne, John O'Steen, Charles Stevens and William Waters as accompanists.

The second half of the program was devoted to three carols, to the Hallelujah chorus from the Messiah and to a performance of Bach's cantata, For Us a Child is Born.

Blue and White Xmas

The athletes of the University welcomed in Christmas with a bang Friday night, when the Monogram Club held their annual Christmas party and introduction of new members.

The affair was held in the Rendezvous room of Graham Memorial and some 75 members were on hand. The room was graced with the charms of many wives and dates and the swimming crew mainly Mike Morrow, Bill Elliot, Dan Breeden and Sam MacCauley, after splashing a stream of water in the practice meet with State, rushed to the scene of the party and streamed decorations from all corners of the room. Many people who have trouble decorating a Christmas tree might due well to hire the Monogram specialists who had the tree up and decorated just as fast as boxes of ornaments could be unpacked.

The festivities got under way at 8:30 when Controller W. D Carmichael addressed the body and did a fine job. He remarked that this was a rather auspicious occasion "as it was 30 years ago tonight that I played my first basketball game in Carolina livery." He kept the club amused with an informative talk and his fine humor injected the spirit that made the party a success.

Sper of the Moment

Norm Sper dove right into the festivities as chairman of the entertainment committee and provided home talent for the group. Roger Scholbe of the basketball team opened with a piano and voice combination that got him an encore. John Dillon hooked the crowd with his Irish tenor rendition of "When Irish Eyes are Smiling". After his song it was agreed that the Georgia thrush should be at the Madison Square Garden organ between halves of the Carolina-NYU basketball game. Sper gave the audience a lecture on phonetic English that was well received.

The last speaker, before the athletes displayed their boarding house reaches for the refreshments, was by Jack Milne, who thanked the club for naming him the Adam Hat Trophy winner for last year.

President Len Szafaryn, Simon Legree—that is, supervised the whole program with reckless abandom and only ended up with 29 gray hairs. Perfect score.

Here and There.....

The fall sports season closed with Varsity teams having a record of 19 wins against 5 defeats, in three sports. This averages to 74 per cent, which is fine shooting in any league. Cross Country paced the teams with five wins and no losses, Football 8 wins and 2 losses and Soccer 6 wins and 3 losses. Well done lads, well done.

This week TIME magazine carries an interesting write up of our own Jack Milne.....Many of the periodicals carrying stories about John Dillon and Bob Paxton.....Chicago Trib carried a sectional all-star football team, supposedly picked by the players in the area. For the South, Walt Pupa was named to the first team and Charlie Justice and Art Weiner on the second.....Incidentally Pupa is still on crutches and his knee is far from being well.....The campus is pretty much amazed at the decision of the Louis-Walcott fight Friday night, but everyone should reserve decision until the movies are shown.....broadcasting can be very misleading at times.....The Carolina trackmen will be quite active during the Christmas vacation with Jimmy Miller in the Sugar Bowl and then planning to join Milne, Jack Moody and Sam Magill in the Washington Post meet on January 3..... Coach Dale Ranson tells us that the new era of track at the University is underway, in fact we are going back to the Darwinian theory of the survival of the fittest, 'nuff said.

KC Blues

Willis Casey, State swimming mentor and former Carolina boss, was moaning the blues at Bowman Grey the other afternoon-but Willis will still be the man to beat when the swimming season gets underway.....For you fans that have never seen big time tennis be sure to get your tickets early for the local chapter of the Riggs-Kramer national championship battle which unfolds in Woollen gym on January 20. This is the best tennis that the world can offer and it will be well worth the buck gate charge..... Next Saturday will see some fine football in Charlotte's Memorial stadium when the College all-stars tangle with the local Clippers .....The Clips, we understand, are rated as the best minor league football team in the country.....They are sparked by backfield stars Casey Jones and Butch Butler, good contest for all the football fans in the state.

Clyde King, Brooklyn Dodger and Tar Heel mound star, is playing pro-basketball around the big city.....Bones McKinney is still swishing the hoop for Washington in the BAA and George Glamack, traded last fall from Rochester to Indianapolis, is still getting rave notices on his hook shot, nothing new to Tar Heel fans.

White Phantoms Romp Over Guilford Quint, 51-30

Jayvee, Freshman Cagers Register Victories

Juniors Win, 42-21, In Evening Opener

By Bill Kellam

Guilford's tardy Quaker jayvees found no Friends among their Tar Heel foes last night and consequently they fell before Carolina's "B" quintet in a rugged basketbrawl contest, 42-21. The Quaker team was late in arriving in Chapel Hill and the game had to be shortened ten minutes.

"Pappy" Hamilton's charges had apparently profited by their lengthy warm-up session for they jumped to a quick 9-0 lead before the visitors could break into the scoring column. John Tsantes sparked the Blue and White juniors during this early drive and as they continued their scoring spree to run up a 17-2 lead.

Frequent substitutions for the rest of the half by the Carolina mentor kept the score down but the contest turned into a rough and tumble affair marked by numerous personal fouls. During this rugged period the Quakers battled the Tar Heels to a 27-14 halftime score.

Pete Peters racked up four quick layups and tip-ins to give the locals a game winning 45-15 lead. From here until the contest's end, both quints fought it out under the boards with the Carolina "B"'s finally doubling the count.

Frosh Cagers Wallop Newport High, 60-15

Jim Hamilton's Tar Baby cagers had too much for little Newport High's dribble-happy quint yesterday afternoon and consequently they scored almost at will to bury the hapless Blue Streaks, 60-15.

It took the frosh cagers most of the first period to get warmed up, but in the second quarter they ran wild to run up a 32-7 halftime lead. The Tar Babies, paced by dead-eyes Hank Lebed, Thorne Gregory, and Terry Holmes, continued their scoring spree in the third period and led at its conclusion, 56-9.

Finals of Intramural Mat Tournament Are Scheduled for Tuesday Afternoon

One quarter-final and two semi-final matches will be the only action in the intramural wrestling tournament tomorrow afternoon as the mural department's program for the fall quarter draws to a close.

Finals in all dormitory weight divisions and all but one fraternity classes are slated for Tuesday. The finalists include five divisional champions from last year's tourney—Collier Cobb, Leon Todd, Tom Allen, Boo Walker, and Carl Simpson. Another 1946 winner, Carrol Fisher, can gain a finals berth with a semi-final victory tomorrow.

Tomorrow's Schedule

Mat 1: 5:00—Norton (DKE) vs Fisher (Sig Chi), 145; 5:06—Bond (Sig Nu) vs Frazier (Beta), 165; 5:12—Kemp (Med School) vs Richardson (Emerson), 155.

The week's activities will also see a campus champion crowned in one other intramural sport—volleyball. On Thursday, the Med School team, dormitory victors, will oppose the Phi Gams, who copped the fraternity title and who will defend their campus crown from last year. The campus championship in wrestling will aslo be held Thursday, January 7, with the dorm competition getting under way shortly thereafter. Deadline for fraternity entries is December 17, while dorm and independent teams have until January 8 to register. All organizations will be allowed to enter as many teams as they desire.

Coeds Lose to Duke In Hockey Tilt, 4-1

A power-laden Duke coed hockey paced by a hard-hitting forward line, scored in the opening minutes of play and went on to defeat the outclassed lassies of Carolina yesterday afternoon in Kenan Stadium. The score was 4-1.

Fay Reifsnyder tallied the opening goal for the visitors after scarcely a minute had passed to put the Dukesters in the lead. Midway in the period teammate Mac Smith rammed home another score past Tar Heel goalie Nancy Tucker, and a few minutes later duplicated the feat to give the Duke girls a 3-0 lead at halftime.

Duke ran the tally to 4-0 after six minutes of the second half as Miss Reifsnyder tallied her second goal of the afternoon. The victors throughout the period continued to dominate the play as they had in the first half.

Forward Gray Simpson averted a shutout for the locals by scoring Carolina's only goal late in the last stanza. The score came as a result of one of the few offensive thrusts the Carolina team was able to make during the day.

The Duke girls outran and outpassed the losers throughout the course of the game, and capitalized on the inexperience of their opponents to exact the victory. The Tar Heels, though outmanned, played an inspired brand of hockey which served to minimize the winner's offensive edge.

In other coed sports activities, the next round of the girls' table tennis tournament must be played by tomorrow afternoon and the winners must be recorded at the Women's gym. Matches to be played are:

Durocher Is Signed As Brooklyn Manager

New York, Dec. 13, (U.P.) — Leo Durocher, Brooklyn's prodigal son, has been returned to the fold with the blessings of all concerned.

Dodger Prexy Branch Rickey announced today that he had signed Durocher to manage the team next season at a salary that is expected to be the highest ever paid a major league pilot.

Durocher's troubles started when he accused Larry MacPhail ex-Yankee president, of having gamblers in his box during a Florida exhibition game. MacPhail retaliated by requesting that Commissioner Happy Chandler hold a hearing on the subject. Although what transpired at the session is still "top secret" it is assumed that Durocher's stormy past finally caught up with him. As a result of the hearings Durocher was banned from baseball the 1947 campaign.

Durocher's suspension ended automatically at the close of the season, but Rickey was faced with the problem of having two winning managers at his disposal Burt Shotten was rewarded with a post in the Brooklyn farm system.

Paxton High Scorer with 17 Points; Elon College Here Tomorrow Night

By Dick Jenrette

Paced by Captain Bob Paxton, who scored 17 points, Carolina's White Phantoms rolled to a 51-30 triumph over Guilford in Woollen gymnasium last night for their second straight success of the young basketball seasn.

Once again Coach Tom Scott's charges had rough going in the first half, holding but an 18-13 margin at half-time. But with Paxton and King Cole showing the way, they steadily pulled away from the visiting Quakers in the final stanza.

Carolina's shooting was off in the opening period, with the boys hitting on but six out of about 20 shots. But Scott's outfit was never behind at any time during the game, thanks to four successful foul shots in the opening minutes.

Carolina Scores

It was not until slightly more than seven minutes of playing time had elapsed until Carolina scored its first field goal. John Dillon, who played exceptionally well on rebounds, accounted for the first goal, with a hook from the right of the basket to give his team a 6-2 lead.

Elon College will provide the jayvee and varsity opposition tomorrow night in Woollen gym.

The Phantoms will be seeking their third straight win as will be the juniors. Jayvee game at 6:15 and Carsity at 8 o'clock.

With both teams missing many shots, Carolina was unable to pull away, and its biggest lead in the first half came at the 10:30 mark, when the Phantoms led by 11-5.

Guilford narrowed this margin down to 16-13 with less than three minutes remaining in the half, but Fred Ryan connected on a set shot from the corner just before the gun went off to give Carolina its 18-13 lead at the half.

The Phantoms began to move like their name indicates as the second half began. Paxton rammed home a layup shot after just 15 seconds, but Dick Hall matched this with a one-hander to make the score 20-15. Then Carolina really turned on the pressure.

Paxton hit one of two free throws and Nemo Nearman followed up the one he missed for two more points. Cole swished through a long and Bill Miller got a one-hander for a 27-15 margin after just two minutes of play.

Reserves Star

Scott kept his regulars in the game until about 14:50 of the second half, and when they went out the Phantoms had stretched their lead to 42-19. The reserves carried on in creditable fashion.

Guilford scored four quick points on goals by Mann and Ferrell to pull up to 42-23 at 15:50. Taylor Thorne broke loose for a nice under-the-basket shot and Roger Scholbe rimmed a long one-hand push to regain a 23-point lead for Carolina.

Mann got two foul shots for Guilford but Coy Carson matched these with two himself to bring the count to 47-25. Ed Wagner dropped in a follow-up for a 24-point lead, and this marked the greatest difference in scoring between the two clubs all night.

In the last minutes Ralls and Leonard got goals for the visitors and Ralls one more foul shot to narrow the score. Wagner's foul but in the last minute gave Carolina its final point total.

Notre Dame Drubs Southern Cal To Finish Campaign Undefeated

Los Angeles, Dec. 5—(UP)—Notre Dame completed its first undefeated and untied season since 1930 today by crushing the Trojans of Southern California, 38-7.

More than 104,000 fans jammed the Los Angeles Collsium to watch Notre Dame's vaunted attack roll over the Trojans, who are headed for the Rose Bowl It was the ninth straight victory of the year for the fighting Irish and the first defeat for USC although they were tied once.

Notre Dame led at the half, 10-7, but in the second half, the Trojans were powerless to stop the Irish ground attack as the powerful South Benders rolled o four touchdowns.

In the day's second biggest game, Tulane held favored Louisiana State to a 6-6 tie at New Orleans before 67,000 spectators, the largest crowd ever to witness a regularly scheduled game in the South.

Another big game of the day saw Kentucky overpower Villanova, 24-14, in the first Great Lakes Bowl contest played in Cleveland. The Wildcats broke loose in a wild fourth quarter to gain their triumph.

Second Round Of Elections To Be Run Off Today

Albright Says UN, Peace May Be Saved By U. S. Leadership

By Sam Whitehall

"Today the United Nations, which held the hopes of mankind for a peaceful world, is rapidly becoming the graveyard for those hopes," said R. Mayne Albright, gubernatorial candidate, in an address here Saturday night. "The world is arming and preparing for another war in which there can be no victor but only unimaginable destruction."

The 1948 candidate for North Carolina's highest office spoke to the first student division convention of United World Federalists of North Carolina, meeting in Roland Parker lounge of Graham Memorial.

"Only courageous leadership now by the United States," said Albright, "can save the United Nations and through it the peace of the world."

Attended by representatives of five colleges and three high schools, the convention was presided over by Russell Baldwin, president of the University UWF chapter, who was elected chairman of the executive council of the state chapter's student division. Delegates came from Duke, Carolina, Wake Forest, Davidson, PJC and from high schools in Louisburg, Rocky Mount and Greenville.

Business of the convention which opened at 2:30 Saturday consisted of the adoption of by-laws and the election of the following executive council: Jack Matlock and Ralph Fleming, of Duke; Peter Cooper, Catawba; Marcel Humber, Wake Forest; Hassell Vester, Louisburg; Bruce Slusser, PJC; Clyde Tandy, Davidson; Russell Baldwin, Carolina; Frances Garland, Rocky Mount High; and Fred Brooks, of Greenville High.

Representing the University chapter besides Baldwin were Joy Blumenthal and Dean Matthews.

Election of Baldwin to head the student division of UWF in NC took place at a short executive council meeting which followed Albright's address. A meeting of the executive council was set for January 10, 1948, at Duke university.

AROTC Offers Reservist Group For Sophomores

The Aid Reserve Officers Training Corps here at the University, in answer to numerous inquiries, has new stipulations under which sophomores may earn reserve commissions in the air force, according to an announcement made yesterday by Colonel Byron R. Switzer, commander of the campus Air ROTC unit.

Second-year students are invited to stop by Air ROTC headquarters in the barracks annex behind the Naval Armory at their earliest convenience if they can meet the following qualifications: (1) as much as six months to a year of service in any branch of the armed forces or (2) completion of at least three years of previous ROTC training in a high school or junior military institution.

If there is enough interest among sophomores in classrooms and drillfield military training which entails free textbooks, regulation officers' uniforms, and full academic credit towards a University degree, a special second year elementary course may begin in January.

Plans to formulate a freshman Air ROTC curriculum on campus were released last week, and applications are still being accepted at the training headquarters from first-year students with no prerequisite service in the armed forces. In the advanced Air ROTC program which opened in September at the University and 17 other schools throughout the nation, approximately 30 veterans in the junior class here are now in the two-year military course and draw subsistance allowances each month.

Community's Yule Program Will Be Presented Tonight

By Sally Woodhull

Presentation of Stephen Vincent Benet's "A Child Is Born" and modern dance interpretations of three Christmas carols will be featured at tonight's community Christmas program in Memorial hall at 8 o'clock.

Original music for the Wesley Players presentation of Benet's drama was composed by Dave Arner and Gene Stryker, graduate students in the music department. Arner, who has composed music for several radio shows produced at the Communications center, is instructor of the Chapel Hill high school band, and Stryker is an instructor in the voice department and director of the Methodist church choir. Stryker will direct the chorus for the play and will lead the audience in community singing.

Producers of Play

Mrs. Madeline Cooley Sutherland is directing the play, assisted by Marty Pearsall, and sets are being executed by Jim Moon and the Student Art league. Included in the cast are John L. Dameron, Martha Pearsall, Robert M. Allen, Wilton Stewart, Ethel Perry, Sibyle Mitchell, Robert Bunch, Robert Parham, and John Gignilliat.

Choreography for the three dances by the Modern Dance club was done by members of the group. Music for "God Rest Ye Merry Gentlemen" will be done by the chorus, Lucille Arnot will do a solo for "Carol of the Bells," and pianist Betsy Green will accompany "Coventry Carol."

Audience Carolling

A chorus of 20 elementary school children will lead in audience carolling, directed by Gene Stryker, and the chorus for the dance and play is composed of members of various church choirs and the Glee clubs.

Chairman of the program is Gray Simpson, and members of her committee are Sunny Sunstrom, Sally Lee, Archie Futch, Ed Aldridge, Joan Schlosberg, Harriet Sanders, Sally Woodhull, Ruth Evans, Jim Moon, and Ferne Hughes. The program is sponsored by the YWCA, the Physical Education department, and Wesley Foundation.

MISS. COURT OVERRULED

Washington, D. C., Dec. 8. (UP) The United States supreme court imposed on a Mississippi negro. It ruled the sentence illegal, betoday set aside a death sentence cause members of the defendant's race were excluded from the jury.

Students Strike

Chicago, Ill., Dec. 8.—(UP)—Some two to 4,000 students at the University of Chicago have been holding a two hour protest strike against the policies of the university.

The demonstration was called to point out charges that the university has admitted no negroes to its medical school since before the war, and no negro patients to its hospitals and clinics.

Dr. Malcolm Sharp, dean of the university's Law school, is scheduled to address a street meeting of the striking students.

Union Organizer To Address AVC At Meet Tonight

Micheal Ross, organizer for the United Furniture Workers, CIO, will be the principal speaker at tonight's meeting of the Chapel Hill chapter, American Veterans committee. The meeting will be held in the Presbyterian church at 7:30.

Ross, a native of Texas, was formerly Southern Educational director for the United Mine, Mill, and Smelter Workers, CIO. He has also been associated with Labor's Non-Partisan League for North Carolina. He is now conducting union activities in the Thomasville area. His speech before AVC will concern some problems of labor today.

Other items on Tuesday's agenda will be a proposed amendment to the chapter's constitution, and a report on the coming trial of R. L. Fritz for alleged misappropriation of state funds and its relation to other deficiencies in the state school system.

This meeting will be the last of the Fall quarter. All members are urged to be present.

NSLI In Danger

Washington, D.C. Dec. 8.—(UP)—The fate of the NSLI act will rest on a decision of the supreme court to be made soon. A previous interpretation made by a lower court might, the government fears bankrupt the entire G. I. insurance program if upheld.

NSA Honors Howe, Clampitt Baker, Gerns with Offices

Herman Baker, Johnny Clampitt, Charles Howe, and Pete Gerns, representing the University in the Carolina-Virginia regional meeting of the National Students association last weekend, were all honored by receiving offices in the regional organization.

The offices, to run until August of 1948, are chairman, Baker; treasurer, Clampitt; and North Carolina state coodrinator, Howe. Gerns was chosen unanimously as parliamentarian for the session.

Other offices elected during the conference are vice-chairman in charge of national affairs, Leon Thompson of Virginia State college; vice-chairman in charge of international affairs, Beverly Alexander from Randolph Macon; secretary, Nancy Tucker, Randolph Macon.

Delegates from West Virginia and Virginia, in addition to North Carolina, attended the convention which was held at Lynchburg college for the first meeting of the tri-state region.

The regional constitution which was adopted at the meeting provides for a delegation of three students from schools with over 5,000 enrollment, two delegates for an enrollment from 1,000 to 5,000, and one delegate for a less than 1,000 enrollment. The document declares that all member schools shall have complete autonomy under the regional system.

A proposed regional program of action took the shape of clinics to be held at different colleges. Planned for the immediate future are discussion groups on student government, publications and radio. The principle of the arrangement is to strengthen student government, publications and ralications, and student-owned radio stations, as they currently operate on campuses.

Included in the discussion on student government will be finances and orientation.

Chosen to take over the administration of the clinics were William Smithea, Virginia State, student government; Pete Gerns, publications; and Quinnan Hodges, Virginia, radio.

CCUN Includes Report on Work In News-Letter

The climax of three months of progressive activity in CCUN work was reached yesterday in the publication of the first issue of the State headquarter's semi-monthly "CCUN News-Letter." The news sheet, a six-page mimeographed paper, edited by Bill Buchan and George Drew, covers the work of collegiate councils in colleges over the entire state, and includes editorials by Roberta Stirling, state secretary-general and Lincoln Kan, state director. Copies of the News-Letter have been mailed to all colleges in North Carolina and to prominent civic and educational leaders.

John S. Reid, Counsellor to the United States from New Zealand, and a guest of the CCUN at two state-wide conventions, has accepted the position of Washington advisor to the Council. Other advisors include Dr. Frank P. Graham, Dr. C. B. Robson of Chapel Hill and Mr. Hugh G. Mitchell of Statesville.

Plans Underway

Plans are already being made for the third in a series of statewide United Nations conferences, to be held in Statesville on February 5 and 6. Every college in North Carolina will be invited to send 10 student delegates and from three to five faculty members to participate in forum discussions on internations problems.

At the second conference, held in Statesville late in November, 70 students from 14 western North Carolina schools attended and took part.

Coed Merle Stevens Leads University Debaters in Tour

By Donald MacDonald

Ending a tour that took them into the Deep South, the University debating team returned to Chapel Hill Saturday eager to revive student body interest in what once was Carolina's most important extra-curricula activity.

Led by Coed Merle Stevens, 1947 woman's national debate champion, a University debating quartet visited neighbor universities of South Carolina, Georgia and Florida and also demonstrated to North Georgia Military colleg how the Tar Heels can talk.

Query which resulted in two wins for affirmatives, one win for negative, and one indecision was: "Resolved: That a World Federal Government should be established." In the affirmative positions were Champion Stevens, a junior from Forest City who won her title last spring while at Mars Hill college; and Randall McLeod, of Maxton, member of the Dialectic Senate and of the debate council. Negatives were Dick Mottsman, senior from Hendersonville; and Earl Fitzgerald, Reidsville junior who is president of the debate council.

On December 1, in Columbia, South Carolina, the team debated in the University of South Carolina hall where John C. Calhoun and Thomas Pinckney debated in the early 1800's. Affirmatives Stevens and McLeod triumphed.

In Dahlonega, Georgia, at North Georgia Military college the following night where affirmatives won again, the team was housed in the only available space—the "contagious" ward of the college infirmary. At Athens on Wednesday the negatives won while Miss Stevens broke a Georgia tradition—she became the first woman ever to speak in the Literary Society's hall, built in 1801. Georgia's team came solely from its law school as did South Carolina's and Florida's the following night.

At Gainesville the negatives did not debate and the affirmatives received a non-decision. The team found that three courses in debating are offered at Florida and a degree is given in public speaking.

The debaters returned here by train Saturday night. Next scheduled debate will be with the Oxford University team on January 6.

Plans for Christmas Revelries Completed

Plans have been completed for "Christmas Week" here during the holidays, which will be sponsored by the Town Girls association and Graham Memorial Student union. The center of the festivities will be Graham Memorial, and the building will be decorated with Christmas trees, candles, holly, and mistletoe.

The main event is to be an informal Christmas dance on December 22 in the Rendezvous room, beginning at 9 o'clock. Band music will be furnished for the occasion.

Posters will be in down-town stores, giving the events and starting times. All events will be held in Graham Memorial, which will be open throughout the holidays for games and dancing.

Other activities include a Christmas sing, December 21; a Game "Nite", December 23; Christmas caroling, December 24; an open house, December 25; and a Bingo "Nite", December 27.

BILL MACKIE

Strong Statements Made by Hooper and Long Before Voting

In two strong election-eve statements, Charlie Long, Student party chairman and speaker pro tem of the Student Legislature, and Laurie Hooper, former member of the Men's and Student councils and Grail member, respectively, supported Bill Mackie and Martin Carmichael for the one vacant seat on the Student council.

Long's statement follows: "In this runoff election, the same issues are at stake that were at stake in the last election. In the Student council race, the Student party is placing before the campus the one man who has proven his capability to do the job and do it correctly. Bill Mackie, through his long association with student government, has gained a conception of what the constitution means and the way that it should be interpreted, as few other people have. In helping to write the constitution and later amending it he has shown time after time his ability and insight into constitutional questions.

"The issue at stake is whether or not experience means anything on this campus. If it does the answer is clear."

Hooper's statement: "As a former member of both the Men's Honor council and the Student council, I can clear up the Student council issue in a few words.

"Martin Carmichael was elected to the Men's Honor council by the members of the council itself with the approval of the president of the student body. He has shown his ability repeatedly in the many cases brought before the Men's council.

"Martin Carmichael was suggested as a potential candidate for this election by the chairman of the Men's Honor council.

"Under the present judicial system, cases are appealed from the Men's council to the Student council, yet at present not one member of the Student council has previously served on the Men's council. This has been a

Phi to Hold Election Of Officers Tonight

The Philanthropic Assembly will meet in closed session tonight at 9 o'clock in the Phi hall, fourth floor, New East, to elect new officers for the winter quarter. The election is being held in accordance with a recent amendment to the by-laws of the assembly which provides for the election of officers at the last session of each quarter instead of the first session as the by-laws formerly provided.

Offices to be filled in the election are speaker, speaker pro-tem, critic, parliamentarian, treasurer, sergeant-at-arms, and clerk.

Mackie, Carmichael Competing for Post On Student Council

By Chuck Hauser

The three campus political parties will dust their gloves and begin sparring at 9 o'clock this morning in the second round of the December general campus elections battle.

The usual four polling places, Gerrard hall, Aycock dormitory, Alderman dormitory, and Lenoir hall wil be open until 6 o'clock this evening for student voters who present their identification cards inside the polls. There will be no exceptions made to the ID card ruling, Al Winn, chairman of the Elections board, has announced.

Main Post

The main post hanging in the balance today is the seat on the Student council which is being fought over by Martin Carmichael (UP) and Bill Mackie (SP). Mackie led the voting in last Tuesday's election.

For three positions on the Women's council, five coeds are in the running: Helen Bouldin. Lil Hotard, Tenn Mason, Elizabeth Myatt, and Anne Wells.

Woman's Council

Mimi Massey, Lola Mustard, and Gray Simpson are in the race for the one remaining seat on the Women's council—a senior post to last until spring elections.

For one vacancy in the Student Legislature from town women, three girls, Marietta Duke, Anne Coop Knight, and Effie Westervelt, will be on today's ballot.

Polling Places

With the four-polls system, individuals must vote in their own polling place, depending on where they live, on the campus or off.

Gerrard hall: residents of Carr, Smith, coeds not in dorms, Steele, BVP, Old East, Old West, Nash, Miller, Whitehead, men in fraternity houses and town, Victory Village, Pittsboro trailor camp.

Lenoir hall: residents of Mangum, Manley, Grimes, Ruffin, Emerson field house, Fetzer field house.

Foreign Training Is Allowable To Veterans Under Two Acts

Veterans of World War II may be able to attend foreign universities under both the well-known G. I. Bill and the little-known Fulbright act at the same time, according to a recent statement released by the Veteran's Administration, Mr. E. G. Bourne of the local VA announced today.

A VA ruling held that payment of G. I. Bill education and training benefits may be made to student-veterans regardless of grants made them under the Fulbright act.

As a result, World War II veterans qualifying for foreign study under both laws may receive benefits allowed under the Fulbright act as supplemental to the benefits under the G .I. Bill.

However, applications for grants under the Fulbright act are not being received at present. Persons desiring information on the program may obtain it from the Division of International Exchange of Persons, Department of State, Washington, D. C.

Under the G. I. Bill, World War II veterans may study in a VA-approved foreign educational institution under the same provisions applying to study in a college or university in the United States. The VA will pay customary tuition charges and fees, and provide books and equipment. Veterans must arrange for passports, visas, transportation overseas, and admission to the institutions.

The Fulbright act provides for grants to American students for study abroad, or to foreign students for study in this country. It authorizes the Department of State to enter into agreements with foreign governments to use foreign currencies and credits, acquired through sale of surplus property abroad, to defray costs of the program.

Weiner vs. Horse

A 50-yard dash will herald an off-season track meet at Hogan's lake Sunday afternoon, and the main event is schduled to star Tar Heel gridder Art Weiner. The big end's opponent will be—a horse.

The race is a result of a bet made between Art and Margaret McGirt—a bet that Art, on foot, could beat the horse, with Margaret astride, in a 50-yard sprint.

The horse, a handsome pinto pony named "Little Miss Muffet," is said to be in top condition at Margaret's home out on Hillsboro road, but Art believes that he won't have too much trouble winning, figuring that "It will take the pony more than 50 yards to get a good start."

Bets on the race are being taken by Buckwheat Highsmith of Alderman dormitory, who quotes the odds as standing yesterday afternoon at 2 to 1 on the horse.

Automobile Stickers Ready for Students

Automobile stickers are now available for those students who registered their vehicles late in the present term, Dean Fred Weaver said today. Approximately 100 of the windshield tags have been received and will be given to the first students on the waiting list for them who report to room 207, South building.

Student automobile owners who have yet to register their cars may do so at South building now since more license stickers are on order. There is no fee for the registration.

BIDS ON SALE

The Wilmington-Carolina club will place bids for its Christmas dance on sale in the lobby of the Y between 9 and 11 o'clock and between 2 and 4 o'clock today.

In Which Philip Wylie Makes More Friends

Writing in the December Cosmopolitan magazine Philip Wylie, noted author who reputedly is trying to "crack open the facade of hypocrisy we all shelter ourselves behind and make you bitterly ashamed of our posturings and the lies we tell ourselves," says a college education for women is decidedly detrimental.

Cites the author of "Generation of Vipers," who frequently uses words which are not to be found in the garden-variety dictionary, "if he (the average parent) studies the statistical tables to learn factual answers, and if he examines certain surveys of opinion, he may conclude that a college education will probably make his daughter less happy, more foolish, not very knowledgeable and of far less value to the human race."

Corroborating the Mr. Wylie, who has been called the old time revival preacher who missed his calling, are the statistics which show that a college-educated woman is more likely to be a spinster; that if she does marry, her chances of divorce are greater, and that as a mother she is a total failure because American women college graduates do not bear enough "children to replace themselves and their husbands."

Continues Wylie the Philosopher, "At college for one thing she loses four of the years that are biologically best for bearing children. Again, at college, she is alienated from the life of the home and from community life for four years—in an artificial environment where she ceases to know children, to tend them and even to see them. During that period her interest is concentrated upon herself—her studies, sports, pleasures, beaus, social successes, marks and so on. Maturity is arrested here; there is no need for it. She has all the pleasures of adult independence but none of its responsibilities, and the temptation to make of herself her own spoiled child is almost irresistible."

Wylie sums up his argument with this one sentence: "Education of the brain without education of the personality is a modern madness." With this final statement we agree, for we believe that a college education for the masses is not performing the function for which it is intended. And this function, according to a prominent educator, is to teach an individual to entertain a new idea, to entertain another person, and to entertain himself. The ability to learn a bunch of accumulated facts is only secondary in importance.

But we believe that Mr. Wylie would be a little drastic if he assumed from his statistical evidence that women should stay at home instead of seeking a college education. We believe that it is the old question of college students, both men and women alike, sitting back and letting others participate in college activities. There are a few, perhaps as many as 200 persons who compose the nucleus of campus organizations.

The rest of us—well, we place undue emphasis on social activities or on the books. There is the other extreme of a person becoming too involved in extra-curricular activities that is just as detrimental in defeating the three-fold purpose of college.

The blame Mr. Wylie places on the woman with a college education is the fault of both sexes, and one cannot be blamed without condemning the other.

Look Behind the Candidates' Records

Possibly the most important office on the elections ticket today is the student council post. Indeed, it's hardly an exaggeration to consider the Student Council collectively as the most important student governmental group on the campus in many ways.

In a statement released in this column some two weeks ago five of the top leaders in student government made a thoroughly sound plea for a non-partisan judiciary, with which the Daily Tar Heel is in complete accord. Creating this non-partisan judiciary would mean that nominees for the Student, Men's and Women's council posts, would not be nominated by political parties, but would run at large, since in a majority of cases recently, nominees' prior records tend to show they were put up for these judiciary posts merely as political plums, or on their potentiality to win, instead of their ability.

Until this non-partisan judiciary can become a reality, students can help greatly by forgetting their party affiliations and those of the candidates by attempting to vote solely on the candidates' qualifications.

As we see them, the following are the prerequisites for the student council position, today's most important elective post. We urge every voter to think of these prerequisites and not the party affiliations of the candidate before voting.

1. He should have served well and faithfully in several student government positions, and whether fraternity or non-fraternity, should have an all-around understanding of campus life from both of these points.

2. As the Student council's duty is mainly to decide constitutionality questions, he must have a thorough knowledge of this document. The framers of the constitution were careful to exclude from Student council membership any students who had not been on the campus at least one year.

3. He must have an understanding of legal procedure, a humility with regard to his position, and a sympathetic understanding of human nature.

4. Since the student council also hears appeals from the lower courts, any aspirant to this position, must have an unwavering belief in the constitutional guarantees to each student, as the constitution stands, not as he would like to see it.

Look behind the records of the candidates and see which one will best qualify for the four prerequisites listed above.

After all, the student council post is NOT a party issue!

A Clean Slate?

Anti-semitism is not a major problem at Chapel Hill at this particular time, although there is evident the ever-present prejudice of the mass against a minority.

Some fraternities, we are told, still rule against all but "Nordics," "Aryans," and "Anglo-Saxons."

Sub-surface anti-semitism can never be erased from the minds of all of the people, though efforts by motion picture companies, books and magazines is cutting it radically.

Anti-semitism at Carolina, or the lack of a serious amount of it, comes to our mind as a result of Bruce Bliven's article in this week's New Republic on prejudice against Jews in colleges and universities.

Bliven gives Carolina a clean slate—or, at least, fails to mention the school by name. He points out that Duke's medical school is guilty of discriminating against Jews in enrollment, although the most telling prejudice is centered in the schools of the northeast.

One of Bliven's chief criticisms, however, applies to Carolina. He condemns the fact that schools make a student specify his religion on his application blank, thereby stating whether or not he is a Jew.

If we remember correctly, the Carolina application blank carries a "religious" question.

Campus Forum

Let's Build A Skate Rink

By Pete Gerns

The committee investigating possibilities of establishing a skating rink at Carolina asks us to give their thanks to the many students who have shown enough interest in the project to submit their ideas to this column.

321 students had been polled by Sunday night, and it appears that a large majority, (i.e. 269, 83 per cent) is in favor of getting started. The most urgent request voiced was that the rink should be located within walking distance of the campus. Below are several comments:

"I think that a rink would be appreciated and enjoyed by the students; if it is at all practical, I vote 'yes'—either near the tennis courts or at the 'Tin Can'"—Archie Goodwin.

"An excellent idea and a good diversion—best near the tennis courts."—Bill Foster.

"Definitely; there are only a few thousand students who skate; it is an excellent form of recreational exercise. Take one of the intra-mural fields."—Fred Burgess.

"Put it as close as possible to the campus."—Dan Lipman.

"Between library and South building (only place they haven't put up another building."—Mary Ann Brown.

"I love to skate. It's good exercise and it's fun."—Art Engel, Jr.

"Yes, by all means, and as soon as possible."—R. S. Pitman.

Also in favor of the project, specifying location by the tennis courts and "within new walking zone" were Martha Aiken, Jo Eller, and Robert G. Pittman.

On the other hand, F. B. Wright feels that "the building of an adequate Student Union Building should take precedence to the building of a skating rink," while Charlie Hodson opines that "we have too many activities on the campus now; instead of making up more, why not improve what we have." Violet LaRue adds to this that she "can think of better ways of breaking her leg. Why not a circular bar?" Why not?

Last question of the year: "Would you be willing to sacrifice your Thanksgiving holidays and have them added to your Christmas vacation?"

WSSF PLEDGES

Today is the last day for payment of December pledges to World Student Service fund. Money will be received in the Y lobby from 10 to 12 and from 2 to 5. Mimi Massey and Sam McGill, co-chairmen of the drive, urge all students to remember their obligations and pay pledges promptly.

SENIOR RINGS

Lee Blackwell, Balfour representative, will be in the "Y" today to begin taking orders for the Senior class rings.

Junius Is At It Again . . .

But He Takes The Easy Way Out

By Bob Sain

The second of Junius Scales' communist letters has been sent out by the local post office with a six a.m., December 8 postmark.

Once again Scales asserts that he is the chairman of the "Communist Party of Chapel Hill" and calls upon students to join him in embracing Marxist doctrine.

Despite Scale's persuasive letter, this writer, for one, can't quite bring himself to that point.

The broadside is enticingly titled "The Golden Trumpet" and quite truthfully points out that our citizens vote as newspapers and the radio tells them. Scales relates a story about a great meeting in which citizens are assembled to vote. The method: when the conductor of the meeting calls for a negative vote, all against the measure sound trumpets—for an affirmative vote it is the same procedure. Among the thousands of voters only a few possess golden trumpets, and their small vote—the only vote—carries the election. It is pointed out that the thousands of others could not afford golden trumpets.

Scales goes on to explain that in this country the golden trumpets are newspapers and radio stations and that the rich, naturally, control those mediums of communication. Their vote logically will go to maintain the status quo—a status quo in which they are in power.

All of that is quite true. The owners of newspapers and radio stations are usually against organized labor because powerful labor unions diminish their profits. They are against change. More often than not, powerful advertisers exert some measure of control over newspapers and radio stations—causing them to defend the wealthy or die, even if the publisher or manager himself doesn't particularly care to defend capitalism.

No publisher in his right mind would advocate communism in the United States. He would be cutting his own throat. There is no doubt that, here, Scales has made a valid point. But it is camouflage. He uses it as a stepping stone to an illogical conclusion

Following his comment on press and radio power, he states baldly that "capitalism doesn't work. They (the American people) haven't quite grasped that yet, though a lot of them are beginning to suspect it."

With this sort of instruction, we will never grasp the fact that capitalism "doesn't work." How does he mean that it doesn't "work"? How is it supposed to work?

Is it to create Utopia? Is it to make everyone happy? Is it to abolish all crime and all evil? Is it to provide equal opportunity?

If that is what is expected of it, one cannot but agree that it has failed. But has communism accomplished those ends? It Russia Utopia?

To do away with captialism because it hasn't created the perfect state is as bad as cutting off both your arms because they aren't wings.

America's prosperity was born from capitalism, free enterprise, or what you will. Russia prosperity was born from the "necessary dictatorship" which comes before communism.

That "necessary dictatorship" still continues in Russia. Who is to reap the benefit of that communism.

To install communism in America would also take a "necessary dictatorship." That dictatorship would extend over our life span. For whom, then, is communism? Posterity? They will no doubt be nice — these people of posterity. But I don't care to suffer for them. No man will, nor is he obliged, nor has the right, to suffer for anyone save himself.

Scales, as this column has said before, has his heart in the right place — against injustice, against inequality of opportunity, against exploitation of the helpless.

But he has taken the easy way out. He has aligned himself with a conveniently militant group that seeks an unattainable end. The job is not to fight for communism, but for democracy — against injustice, aganist inequality of opportunity, against exploitation of the helpless.

Write Away

Holidays Are Chance For Study

Letters submitted to the Write Away column must be double-spaced, typewritten, and shall not exceed 300 words. All contributions must contain the signature, telephone number, and address of the author (names will be withheld upon request). Letters which contain obscene or libelous statements or letters which do not comply with these stipulations will not be published.

On December the 4th. in this column, "Carolina Carousel," Mr. R. Foo Giduz expressed some beliefs upon the stating of which I must compliment him. I do most heartily agree with him in his conviction that "It doesn't seem pratical to make two trips home in this short period of time....." (He is referring to the days between the Thanksgiving and the Christmas holidays.)

Nonetheless, I wonder if he overlooked or failed to take into consideration the rather large minority of students for whom a recess, in course work before the end of the fall quarter, is necessary. We need not look far to find cases of minorities being oppressed. Consider the plight of the graduate student and a. by no means negligible, number of undergraduates who need the two day break in class activity to finish writing papers to be handed in or to be read before the final examinations and to study for the latter.

To be sure, there are many students who live so far away from Chapel Hill that they are forced, much against their will, to remain on campus and to study. Oh, how that word is repugnant to many who should be thankful to have the opportunity to show reverence for it. However, there were many earnest students, who remained at UNC during the recent holidays for the sole purpose of studying, that could have gone home, but would not.

Remember the minority, Though there are some things which are; Thanksgiving holidays are not expendable, i.s., to some of us.

I. C. Nichols, Jr.

Green Persimmon

Dear Editor:

While we are passing out laurels to a great football team and its ingenious coaching staff, it comes to mind that some recognition should be given our cheering section — particularly to our head cheerleader. We would appropriate two lemons and a green persimmon as a reward for his striking display.

Wrong Quote

Dear Editor:

I should like to point out that in an article appearing Sunday in the Daily Tar Heel concerning the status of University workers, I was incorrectly quoted.

It is not true that University employees are denied the right to organize, as the article indicated. What they are denied, however, is the right to bargain collectively.

The board of trustees of the greater University in denying its employees this basic right has perpetrated a deed which is contrary to the principals set forth in the Wagner act.

For any group, organization, political party or individual to use such measures as to deny collective bargaining is subversive to fundamental democratic traditions.

Carolina Carousel

Kind Words from Dook

By R. Foo Giduz

—Mebbe a new era is beginning . . . Dook Chronicle sports editor, Jack Foster, took time out last week to console Carolina on its failure to make a major bowl movement . . . (Incidentally, the Tar Heels received and refused bids for 10 post-season games in all.) . . . Expressing his regret that UNC was overlooked on invites to the major bowls, Foster sportsmanlikely stated, ". . . We do think the Tar Heels deserve a little more recognition for their performance . . . than a bid to the Dixie Bowl." (the top UNC bowl invitation.) . . Thanks Jack. so do we;—and may the best team win next year!

But Dooksters are indeeed already winning out as concerns campus speakers: Having already brought Ellis Arnall to the Methodist campus, the Duke Student Forum will sponsor author-humorist Max Schulman in the Woman's college auditorium tomorrow evening at 8 . . . And a plea to Gotham-bound Tar Heels to leave a few pieces intact at Frank Dailey's Meadowbrook on December 27, Carolina night . . . December 28, the next evening, is Dook night at the Meadowbrook!

—We're taking no more hot tips from Harry-the-Horse . . . He tells us Louis-in-the-first was a sure thing, so we put a sizeable taw on the Brown Bomber for a round one KO . . . Hah, the only sure bet on that fight was that "Joe" would win!

Take a look at last week's voting table breakdown and you'll see the women have the edge over the men . . . Over one-third of the 1,000-odd coeds voted, while less than a fourth of the men went to the polls . . . Impressive, wot! . . . And it's no rash statement to predict that today's runoff vote won't top a thousand! . . . Why?

The coed hockey team played hide-and-seek with spectators Saturday, and finally ended up in Kenan stadium for their Duke-Carolina classic . . . It was worth the trip, despite the fact that the locaus lost 5-1 . . . As one bitter male spectator put it, with one eye on the Amazon Duke players, "The trouble with Carolina is that we just don't subsidize our women's hockey team."

This Is It

AVC Husbands Lose Battle

By Ken Rothwell

Big event of the Thanksgiving holidays for those AVC men who stayed in town was the first annual Ideological Bowl game held Thanksgiving day on Fetzer field. Hugo Germino, sports editor of the Durham Sun, observed in his column that the 18-6 victory of the Bachelors over the Married Louts was far more decisive than the score would indicate.

"Since the one touchdown of the married men" he said "was made with the aid of an unidentified small boy who appeared on the field during the closing quarter. Wearing a "22" on his sweater the married men called him into the game in the mistaken belief that he was Charlie Justice. By the time the error was recognized the ten-year-old had romped across the goal line for the husband's only score."

If some of the married guys in AVC try to tell you this isn't true, don't believe them. It really happened. Tom "Slippery Eel" McDade starred for the ball and chain crowd as a plunging fullback amassing a total of minus 150 yards. The program listed his prep school as Scranton Reform.

According to AVC's national news-sheet Rusty Kirsch of the local chapter is now engaged to Dan Goodman of the NYU chapter.

Some interesting news comes from national headquarters about the membership of local rent advisory boards. According to Franklin D. Roosevelt, Jr., AVC's housing chairman, "there have been numerous cases in which original appointments to boards by governors have been heavily loaded in favor of real estate interests.....in one case a board member was listed as a "retired farmer"..... actually this retired farmer turned out to be the owner of 14 apartment houses." Young Roosevelt goes on to urge people interested in rent control to write to national housing expediter Frank Creedon about cases of unrepresentative boards. He has also asked chapters to check the membership of their local boards.

Latest word is that some time during winter quarter AVC will sponsor a state-wide convention here in Chapel Hill.....It is hoped that a big-name speaker will be available.

What's Up in Graham Memorial

GM GRIND:

—The whole building blossomed out in seasonal spirit over the weekend.....Main lounge has been decorated complete with tree, packages, etc., by the hard-working Town Girls association and Carolina Dames club..... And not to be outdone, "Dapper Don" English has the Rendezvous Christmased up completely (courtesy the Monogram club) from the time you enter the door. The tree in the Rendezvous is especially unique.

A whole lot of folks who recently requested reservations with the GM Travel agency have neglected to pick them up..... All in this category are asked to check on their reservations immediately since requests are usually secured on the day they are put in, and the time limit for holding them is quite short .....Tchaikovsky's Swan Lake Ballet will be played on this evening's recorded dinner music concert in the main lounge from 6:30-7 o'clock.

A-m-b-e-r-s-o-n! Says Buchan, In Self Defense

Oh no! Wilbur's name is Amberson, not Anderson.

When Ed Joyner attacked me Sunday night with verbal bullets about there being a student on this campus with the same name as my hero. I thought he was joking. I looked the name up in the student directory again and 'there weren't no such being'. I knew then, that he was kidding.

Late Sunday night, however, I picked up the DTH and glanced at the column. There it was in print: Anderson.

No one will believe me but the name was originally (when it left the editorial office) Wilbur Amberson. The 'Wilbur' came from an army buddy, the 'Amberson' from a preacher I knew long, long ago.

They tell me that there is a Wilbur Anderson on this campus. They also tell me that he is six feet too and weighs 190 pounds, stripped. If anyone knows him, please tell him that Amberson was the original name.

I'm just a little squirt.

To make things worse, they say Anderson has a "B" average. If I'm sued for libel, one linotype operator, copy reader, night editor and the rest of the DTH staff goes to the poor house with me.

I ain't long for this world. I'm heading for the barn, and this time I'm not kidding.

Second Half First

ONE OF CAROLINA'S sweet young things wandered into the sports office yesterday to contribute a nickel to the Coke machine. And while partaking of the pause that refreshes, she came forth with this pearl of wisdom concerning the Carolina sports scene: "Why doesn't Coach Scott have his boys play the first half like they do the second?"

"That's a dandl idea," we repiled, "but how do you get them to do that? Coach Scott would sure like to know."

"Oh that's not hard," she exclaimed. "It's all a case of mind over matter, which I studied in psychology today. All that's needed is a pre-game pep talk that will make the boys think it's really halftime. Then they'll go out and score thirty-some points in the first half and still have a hot second half ahead of them."

"Then there's another good way," she went on. "Before each game, Mr. Scott could whip out a few press clippings telling how good State's team is. That would serve to warm them up as much as playing the first half—and they'd still have the first half to play."

"Don't you think they'll improve just through competitive practice instead of bothering with all these false stimuli?" we asked our visitor, now practicing on the typewriter. "Sure," she responded, "but just think how much these methods will help until the team becomes naturally hot—in both halves." And with that parting message, our sports-minded coed quit drilling "Now is the time, etc." on the typewriter, shot back a parting "Bye now!" as she moved out the door, and ambled of to Alderman.

No Need For Worry

LOOKING AT THE problem from a more technical point of view, Coach Scott agreed that "Two second halves would be just fine," but added that there's no need for worry regarding the early season's performances. "It's just a case of the boys being a little tense during the first half and trying too hard," he observed. "After they become loosened up, they play fine ball. We'll get better as we go along."

"Come to think of it," the cage mentor continued, "We'll have to pick up pretty quickly. If you remember, both High Point and Hanes Hosiery gave us a hard time last year.In fact, Hanes led us until Kohler dribbled the entire lenght of the floor to score the winning basket with only four seconds left in the game. and they have just about the same team back this year."

A look at the Hanes box scores for this year shows that statement to be very true. Hugh Hampton, the six-foot, eight-inch center who dumped in 26 of his club's 46 points a year ago, is back to lead the Hanes scoring efforts. And he also has considerable company from last year, including former Carolina forward Don Anderson and two of Durham's noted Loftis brothers, Cedric and Alvis. All of which indicates that the Phantoms will have a job on their collective hands when they face the Hanes quintet in Winston-Salem Friday evening.

As for High Point, which comes to town tomorrow night, "We'll try to do better than just the close 44-41 win we registered over them last year," was Coach Scott's promise. "Just give us these first few games to warm up and I think the fans will be satisfied with the team from then on," he concluded.

AND WHILE BASKETBALL holds the sports spotlight, football continues to creep into the news. This time the story comes from Greensboro, where that city's Touchdown club honored 22 gridders from North Carolina at a dinner last night. And of the 22 that were named to the mythical All-State squad, six represented the Tar Heels, who thus copped top honors.

The Blue and White gridders honored were ends Art Weiner and Mike Rubish, tackles Bill Smith and Len Szafaryn, and backs Charlie Justice and Walt Pupa. Many others received honorable mention, but these six were the ones tabbed for premier recognition.

LOST IN THE excitement of the New York Giants winning their second game of the season Sunday was the fact that one Art Faircloth passed for the fifth Giant touchdown. For those who remerber, cloth passed for the fifth Giant touchdown. For those who remember, Faircloth is the gent who frotted through the Tar Heel team hold-1942 scrap. It seems the Carolina line thought another State back had the ball—the best deception we've seen up to MacDougall's card demonstration.

Walker, Cox Head Six-Man Deal In Swap Between Dodgers, Bucs

New York, Dec. 8,—(UP)—The baseball market showed an upward trend today as the Brooklyn Dodgers and Pittsburgh Pirates announced the first of many trades expected to result from the major league winter meetings starting tomorrow.

The Dodgers have shipped Vic Lombardi, and Veteran Dixie Walker to the Pirates for southpaw Preacher Roe and infielders Billy Cox and Gene Mauch.

Cox is the key man from the Brooklyn point of view. He batted .274 and rapped 15 home runs last year. The Dodgers are strong at shortstop, but may shift Cox to third base. It is also reported that the youth-minded Dodgers may send the 28-year old Cox to the Chicago Cubs for first sacker Eddie Waitkus.

Roe finished last year with fifteen losses and only four wins for the eighth place Buccaneers. Mauch was Brooklyn property and was sent to the Pirates in the Kirby Higbe deal. He is the youngest player in the deal and batted .300 in 16 games.

Walker has been one of the top men in the Dodger plans for many years. The 37-year-old right fielder, classed as one of the best in the business, drove in 94 runs last season while batting .306.

Phants, Jayvees Top Elon Quints For Third Wins In Row

Carson Scores 16 In 74-22 Victory

By Bill Kellam

Carolina's heretofore Phantom-like first-half offense materialized in Woollen gym last night and continued materializing in the second half as the Blue and White cagers rolled over hapless Elon's fighting but still impotent quint, 74-22.

The Tar Heel hoopsters apparently were out last night to show the home folks that it doesn't take them half the ball game to get warmed up. It took the Phantoms only one minute to break into the scoring column, with Nemo Nearman doing the honors with a follow-up push shot.

Nearman started a Carolina scoring spree that saw the locals run the count to 15-0 in seven and a half minutes before Kernodle broke the ice for Elon with a one-handed jump shot.

Throughout the exhibition of offensive might, the Tar Heel defense was also anything but intangible. The Christians were unable to move the ball in past the foul circle until the late stages of the game and subsequently had to content themselves with a mid-court passing show, long set shots, and wild tosses made in the general direction of the basket.

Dillon Enters Game

Coach Tom Scott finally took pity on the visitors after the Tar Heel first string had run up a 25-5 lead and inserted his second five. Shortly before this, John Dillon entered the contest after the usual chorus of "Hook, Hook, Hook, etc." and brought a roar of approval from the crowd when he took a pass from smooth-working Bill Miller to drop in a pretty lay-up shot.

Coy Carson, who was the evening's offensive kingpin for the Tar Heels by connecting on eight of eleven tries from the floor for 16 points, swished a one-hander and layed in a neat crip to run the count to 29-8. Fred Swartzberg's one-hander and Dillon's charity toss gave the Tar Heels a 32-8 intermission lead.

Second Half

It took the Phantoms a little over three minutes to get started after the half. Norm Kohler tossed in two lay-ups and a crip and Bob Paxton sank one of his one-handed specialties and three free throws as the first five ran the score to 43-10 in seven minutes

Tankers to Tackle Time Trial Tests

Carolina's Blue Dolphins continued their daily drills as they began to point toward their first meet, which will be in mid-January.

The paddlers will work right through this last week of school before the holidays. An intra-squad time trial will be held on Friday and the men who turn in the best times will report back on January 2 to start early drills for the opening of the season.

Coach Dick Jamerson is not too pleased with the way that some of the events have been run off so far in the early drills. "The times have been good in some cases but most of the men don't seem to show enough lasting power," he commented.

In order to remedy this condition, both he and assistant coach Ralph Casey are working the team in over-distance practice. This means that a 100-yard swimmer drills at 200 yards and so on up the line.

Wrestlers Compete In Tourney Finals Today

By Taylor Vaden

Wrestling championships will be decided in all dormitory weight classes and all but one fraternity division this afternoon in Woollen gym as the intramural tourney draws to a close.

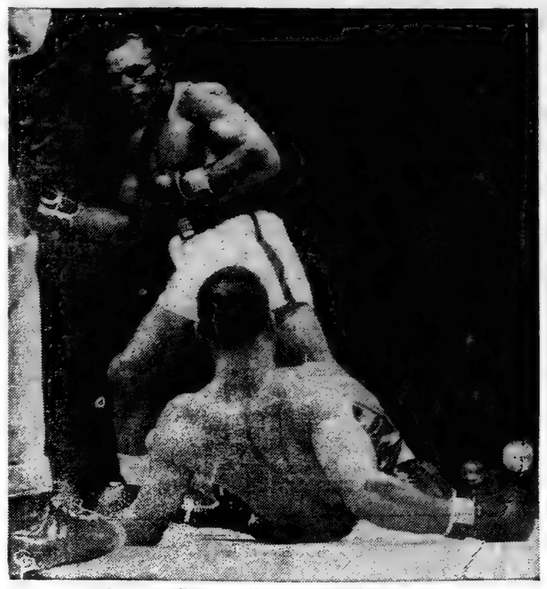
The all-campus championship team will be decided Thursday when the winning fraternity matmen meet the championship dormitory squad. Last year, the dorm boys won all-campus honors by outpointing the fraternity division winners.

The only other match scheduled for Thursday is the championship in the 155 pound class of the fraternity division.

The finalists in today's matches include six divisional champions from last year's tournament — Collier Cobb, Leon Todd, Tom Allen, Boo Walker, Carl Simpson, and Carroll Fisher.

Fisher entered the finals by his win over Charlie Norton yesterday. Others who reached the finals as a result of victories yesterday are Bob Kemp, and Cliff Frazier. Kemp defeated Richardson and Frazier downed Bond.

Another intramural championship will be decided Thursday afternoon — that of the volleyball tournament. Med School will meet Phi Gamma Delta, last year's Campus champions, to determine the 1947 winners.



Today's complete schedule:

FRATERNITY FINALS

4:00 — Wilson (Zeta) vs Cobb (Zeta), 121; 4:09 — Brown (Zeta) vs Boren (Zeta), 128; 4:18 — Beard (SAE) vs Cash (Phi Gam), 136; 4:26 — Chatham (SAE) vs Fisher (Sig Chi), 145; 4:34 — Lyon (Sig Chi) vs P. Kemp (DKE), 155; 4:42 — Frazier (Beta) vs Jeter (Phi Gam), 165; (semi-finals); 4:50 Barnes (SAE) vs Folger (Kap Sig), 175; 4:58 — Todd (Phi Gam) vs Ogden (KA), hw.

Dormitory Finals

5:06 — Booker (Miller) vs Allen (Lewis), 145; 5:14 — Gregory (Miller) vs R. Kemp (Med Sch), 155; 5:22 — Beam (Graham) vs Swigart (Emerson, 165; 5:30 — Lewis (Town) vs Walker (Med Sch), 175; 5:38 — Simpson (Town) vs Manning (Med Sch), hw.

Three Carolina Booters Chosen For Additional Olympic Tryouts

Of the four booters who made the trip to Annapolis last week three Tar Heels were chosen for the squad that will take part in further eliminations to select the American players in the Olympics.

The men were picked on the basis of their showing in four periods of play on Navy's Lawrence field last Saturday.

A 22-man squad that will be cut to 18 in the near future was derived from the 36 men that engaged in the tryouts. After the final collegiate team has been picked the surviving shinbusters will play a squad of southern amatuers to derive the aggregation that will represent the southern district.

Frank Nelson, Dave Boak and Gus Johnson are the Tar Heels who are still in the running for Olympic posts. Goalie Al Williams, fourth member of the group, showed up well in the stiff competition and was the only goaltender to be unscored upon. Boak set up one of the goals scored by his unit.

"The eight man selection committee had a hard time in choosing the team because of their limited knowledge of the players," commented Coach Marvin Allen, who made the trip to assist in the eliminations. "All of the boys played well," he added.

Juniors Register Easy 49-30 Win

By Morty Schaap

Carolina's scrappy jayvees took a hard fought, 49-30 victory over the junior team from Elon College last night in Woollen gym. It was the third straight win for the locals.

Sandy Hoft, the tall timber of Tombstone Jim Hamilton's club, paced the teams by scoring 16 points and also played his best game under the boards. Time and time again he outjumped his rivals and brought the ball down for the light blue.

The visitors got off to a fast start and took a 5-0 lead. The juniors bounced right back and by half time they led, 18-15. The Maroon and Gold showed fine ball handling in the early part of the contest but the home team's fast break and constant race horse style of play took its toll and toward the end of the contest it was all Carolina.

Hamilton's club was hurt early in the contest when Bill White, scrappy guard, had to be aided from the floor with a sprained ankle.

Foreign Students To Notify Group

Foreign students at Carolina who are planning to spend the holidays in New York have been invited to notify the Committee on Foreign Relations Among Foreign Students, 354 Madison Ave, New York, in order that plans for their entertainment can be arranged. Benedicta Santos, chairman of the CCUN Foreign Students Committee announced yesterday.

The committee in New York will make room reservations, conduct tours of New York and provide other forms of entertainment during the holiday season. However, Miss Santos emphasized, those planning to take advantage of the offer must notify the New York office by December 10.

Martin Carmichael Wins Council Post In Close Decision Over Mackie

Bouldin, Hotard, Mason Are Elected; Ten Men Chosen as Dorm Legislators

By Chuck Hauser

Martin Carmichael, running on the University party ticket, won the last open seat on the Student council yesterday by a margin of 24 votes when he nosed out Bill Mackie (SP) 458 to 434.

A light vote of approximately 1,100 was cast yesterday, giving neither the poll-workers nor last night's ballot-counters too hard a time.

In the Women's council race three seats were taken by Helen Bouldin (98), Lil Hotard (96), and Tenn Mason (106) who defeated Elizabeth Myatt with 78 and Ann Wells with 92.

For one six-month term on the Women's council, 68 votes gave the position to Gray Simpson over Lola Mustard (66) and Mimi Massey (54).

One seat on the Student Legislature from the town women's district went to Ann Coop Knight (UP—31). Effie Westervelt (SP—18) and Marietta Duke (UP—18) came in tied for second place, to no avail.

Group Presents Student Problems To Trustee Board

By Helen Highwater

In a meeting with a subcommittee of the Board of Trustees recently, student body President Tom Eller, Jack Booraem, Donleen MacDonald, and Ernest House presented student problems and complaints for discussion and consideration.

Most of the things discussed have already been presented to the University administration, but it was thought that the Trustees, through the standpoint of position, could possibly aid in the situation.

Taylor Is Chairman

The committee, under the chairmanship of W. Frank Taylor, first heard the student representatives express appreciation for action which saw social rooms provided for in the construction of the new dormitories, the addition of the temporary classrooms, appropriation to the library, and the Trustees' cooperation in hearing the students present their problems.

Complaints Aired

Chancellor House and Deans Weaver, Carmichael, and Spruill were present at the meeting, when the student representatives discussed the following campus complaints:

1. Phones are needed on each floor of dormitories, some of which have only one phone for three sections of three stories each.
2. A social room is needed in the men's dormitories in use now. This room could take the form of a type of dorm store, now prohibited by the Umstead act, which the students attacked.
3. Nash and Miller halls need to be partitioned off into separate rooms.
4. Crowded classroom conditions hamper academic work.
5. Academic advisory system is overtaxed with 500 students to every advisor.
6. Students urge that University-owned homes in town for faculty not be sold to private interests, as they are a factor in holding down rents and in attracting teachers to Chapel Hill.
7. Lenoir hall's self-liquidating debt status is the seat of Lenoir hall complaints. The suggestion was made that either the state take care of the debt or that management of the dining hall be put on a private basis. Complaints suggest that profits are being put above duty to the students.

Coed Housing

It was stated in the meeting that coed housing conditions are good compared to the men's, so no changes were recommended at the time; that fraternity-non-fraternity friction is negligible, and that the racial question is not presenting any serious difficulty at the present time.

A complete written report of the student problems and complaints is being sent by Tom Eller to W. Frank Taylor and to Chancellor House.

Y Poll to Question Rink Possibilities

To test the strong sentiment already expressed in favor of the establishment of a roller-skating rink on the campus, a poll will be held in the YMCA lobby today on the question, "What would be your reaction to a skating rink on the campus?" Written answers to the query must be placed in a ballot box.

Drive for the rink was recently instituted by six campus groups, WAA, YM-YWCA, Interdormitory council, Monogram club, and Graham Memorial. Supervising today's vote is Nancy Tucker, recreational director of Graham Memorial.

Main Problem

Of 321 students polled at random over the weekend, 83 per cent favored establishing the rink. Main problem before the planning group now, in the event today's vote is decisively in favor of the proposal, will be finding a suitable location, preferably on the campus.

Members of the committee are Miriam Evans, WAA; Emily Ogburn, YWCA; Doc Scruggs, Interdormitory council; Bill Pritchard, Monogram club; Charley Foley, YMCA; and Nancy Tucker, Gra-Ham Memorial.

New Dali Exhibition Shows Atomic Touch

New York,—(UP) Artist Salvador Dali says that after this, his paintings are going to be atomic as well as surrealistic.

Dali says that he is no longer interested in the psycho-pathological. However it's difficult to predict what effect Dali's new atomic attitude will have on his famous melted watches and crutch-supported faces.

The most obvious changes apparent in Dali's first exhibit since 1945 are in the titles of the pictures. Two canvases are labeled "Intra-Atomic Equilibrium of a Swan's Feather" and the "Three Sphinxes of Bikini."

Honorary Fraternity Picks New Members In Simple Ceremony

Twenty - one outstanding members of the sophomore class were initiated into Phi Eta Sigma, freshman honorary fraternity, in an impressive ceremony held last night in Roland Parker lounge No. 3 of Graham Memorial.

The fraternity selects its members upon the basis of scholarship and is widely considered to be a stepping-stone to eventual membership in Phi Beta Kappa.

Scholastic Requirements

Its immediate purpose is to recognize high scholastic attainment on the part of men who are still early in their college career. For this reason, it is necessary for a man to have at least one half A's and one half B's during his freshman year in order to be eligible for membership.

The initiation last night was conducted by the officers of the fraternity—Jess Dedmond, president; Page Harris, vice president; Dick Boren, secretary; Dan Martin, treasurer; Ted Young, historian; and Dean Mackie, faculty advisor to the group.

Reception Follows

After the formal initiation, the charter members of the local chapter, which received its charter last spring, gave a reception in honor of those initiated.

The initiates are:

Wallace Ashley, Jr., Robert Roy Beyer, Edward George Bilpuch, Eugene Dwight Blackwelder, Harold Isaac Bock, Edwin Rives Cheek, Claude Edward Clark, Robert George Evans, Joel Martin Feinberg, Felder Sharp Graham, Benjamin Russell Harward, William Lassiter Hester, Cary Jake Lambert.

Automobile stickers are now available for those students who registered their vehicles late in the present term, Dean Fred Weaver said today. Approximately 100 of the windshield tags have been received and will be given to the first students on the waiting list for them who report to room 207, South building.

Architect and Engineer Chosen for New Addition To University's Library

The designers and engineers of the new library addition were appointed Monday at a meeting of the Trustee's Building committee, Collier Cobb, Jr., chairman of this body, said yesterday.

H. Raymond Weeks of Durham has been chosen as the architect of the $1,140,000 structure, Cobb announced, and Alfred M. Githens, a nationally-known expert on library planning, has been named as consulting engineer. The firm of Wiley and Wilson of Lynchburg, Va., will supervise the installation of the heating and ventilating units.

The new addition will take the form of two wings on the back of the present structure, changing its T-shaped appearance to one of a square. There will be four floors on each of the wings, and the book stacks will be divided into 10 levels. The library now has nine stack levels, but the new plans call another one to be provided for underneath these.

Cobb said the heating and ventilating engineers will also go into the feasibility of installing humidity control and air conditioning equipment into the library building, in order to create the proper atmosphere for the preservation of valuable books and manuscripts. Library officials said this was a vitally needed feature of any work to be done, but that many technical details of installation remain to be worked out.

"The committee thinks the building plans should be completed by early this summer, and we can let the construction contracts then," Cobb explained.

In commenting on the general University building situation, the committee chairman said the bids on the new water filter plant should be in by late winter or early spring, and ready for action by the State Advisory Budget Committee.

"So by mid-summer we hope to have the filter plant, the new boiler for the power plant, and the library wings all badly-needed additions to the University plant, under contract," he concluded.

First Issue of Tarnation This Weekend Will Feature Humor, Cartoons, BMOC's

Dr. Tookie Hodgson tells us that there is to be a blessed event or at any rate a birth on the campus this coming Friday.

A baby which has been almost a year in the making from its conception in Hodgson's mind early last year, the new campus humor magazine, Tarnation will emit its first healthy 32 page yell the day after tomorrow.

Described by Hodgson, its editor-father, as "the logical successor to 'Tar and Feathers' only it isn't too logical" the magazine represents some of the better work of about a dozen campus humorists.

It will contain a profile of Tom Eller, which headlines its serious side, and an accompanying article, described by a staff member as "good-naturedly malicious", dealing roughly with the BMOC breed.

A column, "not quite stolen" but resembling the New Yorker's Talk of the Town will also be prominently carried. It is entitled "The Village Spectator" and turns the spotlight on Carolina and her people.

The new baby has a good life expectation, if the staff is to be believed. Perhaps remembering the foul play met with by some of its ancestors, they have attempted to bring forth a healthy baby without any crippling defects.

Hodgson told us that the first issue was far from perfect and he pointed to its experimental nature. "We", he said, welcome any comment critical or otherwise, because it is our purpose to interest and entertain as many of the people here as is humanly possible."

He went to describe one of the troubles that has beset the staff from the first. Their friend who has haunted their office and is to be found on the opening pages of each Tarnation section has not received a suitable name as yet.

Because he is a "likable old cuss", they are calling him Pappy Tarnation at present, but they are definitely in the market for a permanent name for him.

In fact any outside help will be appreciated by Hodgson who says, "We're just like any other parents; we have a healthy baby, but we want to feed him right."

UVA Names Three To Serve on New Board of Governors

By Herb Nachman

The executive committee of the University Veterans association yesterday named three appointees to the club's board of governors for the coming year.

South Trimble, Lawrence Ashby and A. B. Coleman are the three whose names were released yesterday following the officer's meeting. Emile Saleeby, president of the inter-dormitory council, and Lionel Nelson will serve as ex-officio members of the board.

National Meeting

It was also decided that South Trimble would represent the local association at a nationwide meeting of College veterans which will be held in Washington, D. C., on December 19, 20.

Johnny Clampitt, president of UVA, said that the purpose of the meeting will be to form the nucleus of a national organization through which student veteran's affairs can be administered more effectively.

Clampitt was informed of the meeting by Fred Owen, acting national chairman. At least 43 states will be represented.

Social Affairs

Several social affairs were announced by the group commencing this Saturday night with a Christmas party at the club house. The party will consist of entertainment and Christmas carols, there will also be refreshments and a community sing.

On Monday, January 5, the association will hold a New Year, welcome-back party. The first of the regular open houses after the holidays will be held on Tuesday, December 13 with the CICA as guests of the association.

Membership Tickets

Veteran membership tickets for the winter quarter may be obtained at the end of the registration line on December 15, 16, and 17, Clampitt said.

The group reported that they have received letters from five universities and colleges seeking information concerning the housing questionnaires recently sent out by the association.

GASOLINE PRICE

Washington, Dec. 9 (UP) —By the end of the week, motorists can expect to pay from one and one-half to two cents more per gallon of gasoline. A general price increase is expected to follow the recent boost of 50 cents per barrel in the price oil companies pay for crude oil.

Longhorns Here in September 25 Opener; Games Away Include Georgia, Tennessee

By Bob Goldwater

Louisiana State replaces Florida on the 1948 Carolina grid schedule, announced yesterday by Director of Athletics Robert A. Fetzer.

The Carolina-LSU contest, to be played at Chapel Hill on October 16, will mark the first meeting between the two state institutions. In all, 10 games are slated for the Tar Heels, with the other nine opponents the same as those played this season.

Hardest Ever

Considered by athletic officials as the hardest ever lined up for a Carolina team, the schedule opens with the same two opponents as this past campaign—only in reverse order. The University of Texas, 34-0 conquerors of Coach Carl Snavely's club in the second game of the year, returns the Carolina visit to Austin by furnishing the competition in the 1948 opener on September 25 in Kenan stadium. The following week sees the Tar Heels journey to Athens, Ga., to continue their rivalry with the Georgia Bulldogs.

In addition to Texas and LSU, other home games listed are with N. C. State, William and Mary, and Duke. The other scraps away from home are with Wake Forest, Tennessee, Maryland, and Virginia.

Five In Conference

Five of the tilts will serve for Carolina's Southern conference competition. As was the case this past season, the Tar Heels will also be facing three Southeastern conference foes.

Most of the 1948 opponents were invited to play in this season's bowl games three weeks hence. Of those that accepted, Texas plays in the Sugar Bowl against Alabama, Georgia and Maryland meet in the Gator Bowl, and William and Mary face Arkansas in the Dixie Bowl.

The 1948 schedule:

Sept. 25—Texas at Chapel Hill.
Oct. 2—Georgia at Athens, Ga.
Oct. 9—Wake Forest at Wake Forest.
Oct. 16—N. C. State at Chapel Hill.
Oct. 23—L.S.U. at Chapel Hill.
Oct. 30—Tennessee at Knoxville.
Nov. 6—William and Mary at Chapel Hill.
Nov. 13—Maryland at College Park. (Site tentative).
Nov. 20—Duke at Chapel Hill.
Nov. 27—Virginia at Charlottesville.

Playmakers Offer Experimentals For Two-Night Stand

Three new student written one act plays, "Weep Into Stone" by Frank Groseclose, Atlanta, Ga., "The Shiksa" by Sam Hirsch, Trenton, New Jersey, and "There Are Spirits and Spirits" by Claude Rayburn, Greensboro, will be featured on the 120th bill of student experimental plays to be presented by the Carolina Playmakers tonight and tomorrow night at 7:30.

"Weep Into Stone"

"Weep Into Stone" is being directed by Arthur Golby, New York, and takes place in France during the German occupation. The cast includes: Pete Strader, Edna Dooley, Jim Spence, Harry Thomas, George Upchurch, David Samples, and William Ayers.

The second play, "The Shiksa", takes place in a small New Jersey town. It is under the direction of Mary Jo Cain, Florence, South Carolina, and the cast includes: Sue Shanker, Sidney Shertzer, Rose Hirsch, Marty Jacobs, and Betty Young.

Tennessee Director

"There Are Spirits and Spirits" is being directed by Catherine McDonald, Chattanooga, Tennessee, and the cast includes: Elizabeth Savage, Claude "Slats" Rayburn, Jim Geiger, and Andrew Griffith. It is a comedy and takes place somewhere in Dixie.

Hirsch, author of the second play, won the Joseph Feldman award in playwriting last year, and the Playmakers produced his "Give Us Peace" and "Subway Rhapsody" on experimental bills.

Clubs Selling Bids For Holiday Hops

Student members from Charlotte, Greensboro, Durham, and Raleigh of the Carolina clubs from those areas this week are selling bids to the Christmas dance to be held over the holidays in the four cities.

Charlotte Dance

Tickets for the Charlotte-Carolina club dance to be held at the Hotel Charlotte on December 30th are being handled by officers of the club and members of its dance committee. Interested persons are asked to obtain them before leaving Chapel Hill as the price will be higher if they are bought in Charlotte.

The Greensboro group is holding its dance at the Plantation club of that city on December 26th. Tickets, which are priced at $4 a set and are limited to two sets per member, will be available at the Y from 10 until 1 and from 2 to 3 today.

Raleigh Bids

The Raleigh-Carolina club is issuing preferred bids to students of the university for their dance which will be held on the 22nd. However, these tickets will not be available after Friday, and students and alumni will not be admitted to the dance on regular bids (joke).

"Saint Nick's Frolic", the Durham holiday dance for Carolina club members will be held at the Washington-Duke hotel on the 26th. Cecil McClees will play for the celebration for which bids will be available to Durham area students at the Y all day today.

Geeks Plan Meet At Brady's Coop

The Raleigh - Carolina Geek Club will hold its last meeting of the term tomorrow night at dusk in Brady's chicken coop.

President Grimes "Geek" Williams will preside over the meeting and will be the geeker for the evening. He is expected to lecture on the poultry shortage in Europe—a fowl subject.

It has been stated by reliable sources that "Hose nose" as President Williams is affectionately known to Geeks the world over, will ask that all red-blooded Americans henceforth observe every February 29th as Chickenless day so as to permit Europe's starving geeks to once again enjoy life.

Chicken-Hearted

As the president is chicken-hearted, it will be a task for him to make such a proclamation. However, since Williams is known never to take things seriously during a week which has a Friday in it, it is believed that the time is auspicious for such a proclamation.

Non-club-member Geeks are also cordially invited to attend this meeting. Festivities will include a chicken - in - the - raw feast and a real old-time Morty Schlapp chug-a-lugging contest.

Atomic Pistols

Christmas Shopping Season In Home Stretch

By Raney Stanford

Hurry, hurry, Christmas is here again, the time is rapidly growing short. The sweat pours freely from the hucksters' foreheads as the holiday season enters into the home stretch. Have you purchased your Christmas presents yet?

Why not make this a Cabin Cruiser Christmas? Give all your friends racing runabouts, or the large family size double-cabin-enclosed - cruiser - with - flying-bridge, quarters for nine people. Prices start at $1590—all right, it was just a suggestion.

This year looks like portable radios are the thing. They range from tiny pocket models to valise-like monsters with 5-foot collapsible antennas. The only thing absent from the market is a portable television set, and never fear, it probably won't be long now —

A popular fountain pen manufacturer has come out this year with a collapsible pen about the size of a cigarette. It's so round, so firm, so fully packed. And one can have barrels of fun, comparing its size to your friends' cigarettes. It should become as popular as the recent fad of matching king-size with regular cigarettes.

Speaking of cigarettes, a new lighter is on the counters this season. This one has a jet flame, and shoots a stream of fire about three inches long. Ought to be just the thing to slip to an acquaintance who is doing 60 days, and otherwise wouldn't be able to enjoy Christmas at home with his family.

Why not give yourself a Christmas present this year? Pick up a Monte Carlo game table; one night's operations should return your investment twice - fold. Equipped for roulette and chuck-a-luck, or a quiet game of chess or checkers when your pockets are bulging and the boys start gambling.

Continuing on the line of home entertainment, a novelty manufacturer has come forth with a line of glassware that looks essential to every party-giver. "Tired" glassware it is called, it bulges at the bottom and flops over at the top. Just slip a few of these quietly on the cocktail tray late in the evening when the liquor is running low, and if the average guest doesn't gulp and reach for his hat after one look at his glass sagging limply, rest assured you acted too late and the only way he'll ever go is feet first.

What about the little ones? Well, for junior Juniors there are six-shooters made of soap. After he's shot everybody in the house four or five times, you may be able to persuade him to take a bath with the thing.

And the ever-present Buck Rogers is still here, with his atomic pistol. Lovable little tykes can adjust the amount of chain reaction with a control screw, pull the trigger, and observe the rate of fission through a window in the pistol's chamber.

When getting gifts for the Little Missus, or the girl friend remember what "Look" holds a bustled and long-skirted supremacy. And if you really want to go all out along these lines, there is the "sheer midnite black nightie with hand-painted panties to match."

The adman wrote more on the subject, but if ever an adman's words were superfluous, they were the ones that followed this initial pronouncement.

IKE TO COLUMBIA

New York, Dec. 9. (UP)—The Army Chief of Staff will take over his duties as president of Columbia University on June 7—significantly, perhaps, before the Republican party picks a presidential candidate.

Is Poor Sportsmanship Only a Rumor?

It has been a known fact throughout the state that Carolina sportsmanship at basketball games has been among the worst in the country. But this year's attempts by some juvenile delinquents in the crowd have reached a stage of utter obnoxiousness.

Certain players on the Phantom squad are put on the spot by the crowd actions, not the coach. A coach is paid his salary to make the decisions and the fans' sentiments do not influence his way of thinking.

Players on the other hand are out to do their best and when they are on the floor, wearing the light blue uniform, they are striving to win and put on the best performance of which they are capable. When the crowd goes against them, as well as the other team, it makes the load doubly hard to carry.

On the other hand, the player that is being pushed out on the floor by the fans sentimentalities is under terrific pressure, from within himself and from the fans. Instead of being able to relax and play his game, each time he gets the ball he is forced to tighten up and do things that he would not ordinarily attempt.

Carolina's White Phantoms of 1946-47 did a marvelous job in going to the finals of the Southern conference tourney. It was a credit to the players, the coach, the student body and the University. Let's not spoil it this season by causing all kinds of friction on our team.

Coach Tom Scott was selected by the Athletic association, last year, as head basketball mentor because he had a fine record in the mid-west and because he was a gentleman. He has proved that here, and has done all in his power to give Carolina winning basketball. A coach is only entitled to one guess while all the rest of us have the privilege of taking a second one if the first fails.

Therefore, let's stick with the team and the coach and show the people of the state of North Carolina, as well as the visiting teams, that Carolina poor sportsmanship is only a rumor.

Bring Your NSA Back Home

The first efforts toward bringing the National Student association back home to the individual campuses seemed to meet with considerable success. Delegates from colleges in North Carolina, Virginia, and West Virginia, in their first tri-state convention at Lynchburg college last weekend, elected officers and passed on a regional constitution.

Each of the four members of our delegation carried away honors at the initial meet. Herman Baker, Student Legislature member and delegate to the National constitutional convention of the NSA held at the University of Wisconsin last September, was elected chairman of the three-state region. Johnny Clampitt, also a member of the four-man delegation at the national constitutional convention, was elected treasurer for the district. Charlie Howe, active member of the Student Legislature, was elected coordinator for this state. Filling out assignments was Pete Gerns who served as parliamentarian for the session, and who was also chosen to administer the publication clinic which the region will sponsor.

Activity in our own region is especially gratifying after learning that at least one major university, Northwestern, has turned down the proposal of affiliation with the NSA on the assumption that the "NSA is not a workable organization and will not do Northwestern any good."

Other universities over the nation have affiliated with the national organization with the hopes, rather than the conviction, that it will develop into an organization that will be beneficial to all campuses.

But, in this section of the country, or at least in our region, indications are that the NSA will become a useful organization that will strengthen individual campuses through discussion and study of the problems facing student governments and common students, such as living conditions and recreation. The meeting held last weekend and the future clinics and planned activities are good omens.

The Skirt Fight

In spite of all the cracks pro and con about the longer skirt length, the situation does have a serious aspect.

For years woman has been trying to gain freedom of dress. She fought tooth and nail to rid herself of the hoop skirt, the bustle and other excess unmentionable articles of costume. Now when the point arrives at which the young lady of the day can dress to be comfortable and still appear pleasing to the masculine eye, up pop a few influential clothing designers, and bang goes the goal. Either the young lady of this age is foolish, or the clothing manufacturers have them by the ears.

With prices and the world situation what it is, I hope the American girl feels proud of herself when she buys a new wardrobe, since the world in general is in great need of all the available clothing material. People in other lands will go almost naked for the lack of fabrics, while some women wear excess wool for fashion's sake. (The Coe College Cosmos, Cedar Rapids, Ia.)

Who, Us?

Some irresponsible person is loose with pencil, paper and a three cent stamp.

Reading through a column from a Washington newspaper we were rocked back on our heels by a paragraph reporting that the "student body of the University of North Carolina (had) . . . decided . . . to boycott motion pictures involving any of the ten $100,000-a-year leftists who refused to say under oath whether or not they were communists."

Eric Johnston, head man in the Motion Picture Association of America, was purported by this column (Washington Memo, by Charles Van Devander) to have confessed privately that Hollywood producers had agreed to suspend ten screenwriters, actors and directors charged with contempt of Congress because they believed that a public boycott on pictures involving these men would result.

Johnston, says Devander, claimed that Carolina, along with a Kansas American Legion post and community groups of Glendale, California, had decided separately to stay away from films made by the tainted figures.

We won't here go into how much sense such a decision would make. We can only deny that the DTH ever heard of such a boycott movement, that anyone we know did, and that anyone has a right to speak for the student body of North Carolina unless a vote has been taken.

Anyway, if our money continues as short as in these pre-Christmas days, we'll have to "boycott" all movies.

Washington Merry-Go-Round

Frosh Senators Get Restless

By Drew Pearson

Washington — It's unwritten tradition that freshmen senators shall be seen and not heard. The present crop, however, is getting more and more restless under Taft leadership, and is clamoring for a bigger voice in party councils. As a result, first termers went into a recent huddle around the dinner table at the Metropolitan club.

After a three-hour, nip-and-tuck session, they agreed to meet together one evening each week, and present their views afterward to older senators at the Republican policy committee. It was also decided to keep the conferences secret from the press, but Montana's Senator Zales Ecton caustically remarked, "I suppose we'll see a full account in Drew Pearson's column."

Actually it has been the custom for Senate newcomers to lunch together once a week, but this has been more social than business. The new plan to take a full evening and settle down to a serious exchange of ideas was urged by Connecticut's enterprising Senator Ray Baldwin.

"We must work out our ideas together, and present them to the leadership," he declared. Thsi would not cause a cleavage between the freshmen and old-timers, he argued, since a fair cross section of Senate opinion is represented among the freshmen Republicans.

This was soon demonstrated when Minnesota's frank Senator Ed Thye, ex-governor and poultry farmer, compared the Republican party to a man with one end of a rope around his neck and the other tied to a horse. This is no time, he warned, to swat the horse on the rump.

Thye referred to the dilemma in which the President's price program left the Republicans. The best politics, he suggested, would be to give Truman the powers he asks and let him hang himself. New York's forceful Irving Ives, a former Dean of Cornell university, agreed that this might be the best strategy after all.

But mild-mannered Senator John Williams of Delaware, a grain merchant and turkey raiser, objected with more than usual vigor.

"I would rather take a beating in '48 and stand up for what I think is right," he shook his head, "than sit back and play politics."

Sandy-haired Senator Ralph Flanders, a Vermont manufacturer, warned that a meat crisis is inevitable early next year unless drastic measures are taken. He suggested that the public be placed on a voluntary ration, that a publicity campaign be launched calling anyone unpatriotic who ate more than a specified amount of meat per day. He also urged that restaurants be called upon to reduce the size of their meat servings.

"Look at your own plates," broke in Wisconsin's Joe McCarthy, an ex-Marine. He pointed to pieces of meat which the Senators had pushed aside on their plates.

The mention of food gave garrulous Senator Arthur Watkins of Utah an opening to hammer once again at his pet idea that the Government should buy up the nation's wheat crop. He got little encouragement from colleagues.

Massachusetts' impeccable Henry Cabot Lodge, Jr., who resigned an earlier term in the Senate to join the army but still considers himself a freshman, urged his colleagues to support a long-range program of aid to Europe.

"All I ask," he pleaded, "is that you keep open minds until we work out a bill for foreign aid."

NSLI In No Danger Of Folding

By Earl Heffner

News-conscious United Press, albeit it was aided by the Daily Tar Heel, yesterday smacked the veteran below the belt—right in the dehydrated pocketbook.

For near the bottom of page one was a short story which said, in effect, the fate of NSLI—GI insurance—is in the balance, will rest on a Supreme court decision. Later in the day the august judicial body agreed to review a lower court decision. And, so goes the story, if the verdict is upheld the entire program—is is feared —will go bankrupt

This is so much folderol!

The National Service Life Insurance program is in no danger of folding in the opinion of competent VA officials on campus.

When a veteran took out the insurance, he made a bet with Uncle Sam, a bet which boiled down to this: GI Joe said, "There's a war on. I might get killed." Uncle Sam said, "Nope. Betcha ten thousand bucks you will NOT." In spite of what appears in the paper to the contrary the bet still goes.

pgraph bf ind

Actually what is being battered around by the judicial sportsmen is a controversy over just how much money the beneficiary of a deceased policy-holder may receive.

A wise barrister found a loophole for his client, a western widow of a World War I veteran A lower Federal court upheld his view, a contention that the widow receive her monthly payment so long as she lived even if the payments exceeded $10.000 which has long been accepted as the maximum.

Faced with this verdict, hysterical VA men appealed to the Supreme court. Their contention —and a logical one—is that if this situation is legal, then there is no way to determine whether the insurance program now ha a surplus of several billion $ a is now believed or has a deficit

Hence, if the decision is upheld the dividend promised to those veterans who still hold policies cannot be declared. Logic Hard and simple. Right at the ever-loving pocketbook.

But should the Supreme court uphold this viewpoint, there is no doubt but what Congress can —and will—pass necessary legislation to return to the present status quo.

The veterans are voters. It i reasonable to assume that no Congress which permitted NSLI to fold would last past the next election.

But maybe Congress cannot be held accountable. Certainly the Supreme court is clear of guilt It merely determines the extent of legislation.

It is entirely possible that the Brass Hats do not want to declare the dividend. The VA is run as a business. Every businessman likes a surplus. Dividends eradicate surpluses. Without dividend—in this case —veterans will not get any extra cash. And in this inflated nation, they do need it.

So maybe the brass hats are using the court case as an excuse Maybe. Time will tell.

However, until something more serious turns up, GI insurance is as good as ever. Hysteria is not warranted. No veteran has lost money or will lose it unless he has let his policy lapse and does n't reinstate it.

This entire insurance problem has been mishandled, badly bungled by myopic officials. Even so, they have enabled the veterans to reinstate his insurance without a physical examination if he does so by December 31, the last day of this month. After that a physical examination will be mandatory.

Unfortunately, also, commercial insurance companies have mislead veterans with attacks upon NSLI. Some insurance salesmen have said that when the veteran converts his insurance he must do so with a private company. This bit of information is handed out only by lying salesmen. It is an untruth. The government still holds the policy whether it is the present "term" type or an endowment plan.

'Bidilingi; Tingi-tingi'

Paris (UP)—Bidilingi; tingi-tingi. Vingiling; clingi-dingi. Chingilingi; ringi-lingi. You. . . .

If you are wondering what that is, it's poetry. It's the very latest stuff. It's Letterism.

Lettrism is what keeps the Left Bank, or Bohemian quarter of Paris, up till dawn these nights. It's the newest literary movement under the sun. According to the Lettrist head man, Rumanian-born Isadore Isou, Lettrism is "poetry of poetry."

When he sat down to explain Lettrism even to his closest friends, Isou took ten thick volumes. His "Introduction to a New Poetry and a New Music," which has just been published, explains all.

Or so you'd think. After wading through all ten volumes, I'd still like a few hours of heart-to-heart talk with Isou. Maybe then I could tell you definitely what's up and why. As it is, all sorts of fancy phrases are running round my mind. Like "Dadaism smashed the sentence, we will smash the word."

"Djllce, dpile, hando, bokjile, Djllce, djile; vlizlideline." So Isou said. That's part of a poem called the "Dance of the Dwarfs." It explains what Lettrism is all about: nothing exists in the mind of man which is not or cannot be reduced to letters.

The ordinary 26-letter alphabet could not stand the strain, so Isou had added 19 other "letters" such as ch, eu, au, various accented a's and e's. That gave the lettrists enough room to strike out afresh.

Isou, plus a Swedish poet named Clement Swenssen and one honest-to-goodness Frenchman, Gabriel Pommerand, have been scratching out their verses since the end of the war in the Cafe de Flore or in the Left Bank night spot, the Tabou.

Maybe you'll get the idea from this little number called in plain French "Nuptial Song." After the title you're on your own.

"Enn lonn gueuseurs,
Lonn gueusalonn.
Dours ongueur deurs
Iri barnn: flonn . . .
"Club, gluk, olirr,
Alricaf, ke eruch,
Fraicheu, laire,
Nerdouff, altruch."

Write Away

Hobby: Propaganda Analysis

Letters submitted to the Write Away column must be double-spaced, typewritten, and shall not exceed 300 words. All contributions must contain the signature, telephone number, and address of the author (names will be withheld upon request). Letters which contain obscene or libelous statements or letters which do not comply with these stipulations will not be published.

This is to express a brief chuckle at those two harried defenders of the Carolina Conservative club whose letter was published Sunday .To a hobbyist in propaganda analysis, this letter calls for the kind of handling Gypsy Rose Lee might expect in the dark of the Arboretum—so let's find out how it's all put together.

The first paragraph has nothing to offer but the juicy generality, "we neither advocate a stopping of progress (not defined) nor do we eat opium (taken out of context from the article that riled these two gentlemen). In the second paragraph the lads do better. Here they're more specific and really get down to missspelling out their stand. They vaguely oppose "zany left-wing idealogies," which everybody else spells i-d-e-o-l-o-g-i-e-s and which could be defined as any opinions to the left of the most hidebound Republican. Further along, they "are whole-heartedly anti-Communist. . . (and) . . . oppose the KKK." This is an application of the negative transfer technique, and the reader is expected to slap his knee and 'low as how "anybody that opposes them two outfits is good enough for me." Next comes the upholding part, which includes two glittering generalities: "the capitalist system" and "American democracy"—two of the safest institutions to uphold that anybody ever upheld.

But now comes the place where the upholders manage to get a few too many words in one sentence. "If this means upholding the 'status quo,' "they tell us, "we uphold it and are working to better it!" This is the neatest trick of the week, since by definition "status quo" means "state in which anything is." Either you "uphold" it or you seek to modify it. Try standing against a stone wall and raising both legs at once, gentlemen. For lack of a name to apply here, we'll have to call this one the raising-both-legs propaganda device.

Seriously, as a student of political philosophy I'm somewhat shaken by the naive statement offered for the purpose of straightening out "anyone confused on the issue" of what constitutes Fascism. Fascism, they say with succinct authority, was the corporte structure of Mussolini's government." This is the propaganda device called card stacking, which calls for ignoring what is detrimental to your argument. This statement is like saying the University library consists of six limestone columns and a flight of granite stairs.

If these lads will accept as authority Professor Harold J. Laski, the British political scientist generally considered the foremost scholar in his field, Fascism is characterized by a total lack of constructive philosophy and is based upon specia lprivilege for a ruling oligarchy and its loyal supporters. Structure and racism, the only characteristics cited, were merely two devices used by the opportunistic oligarchy to obtain and hold it privilege. The little people went along with Hitler because he told them it was their privilege as Germans to step on the necks of "inferior peoples." The monopoly capitalists of Germany supported Hitler because he destroyed unions and promised to uphold the status quo. Fascism is a way of looking at human rights —not a matter merely of structure or racism as the two conservative writers seem to think.

—Ben Rouzie.

"Kids"?

Dear Mr. Editor,

In many of the recent issues of the Tar Heel there have been comments about the noisy "school kids" at the basketball games in Woollen Gym. It would appear from your remarks and to your readers that the "kids" are just making a lot of racket and aren't quite welcomed at the games with their yelling. The majority of these "kids" are from Chapel Hill High School and a lot of them are alumni who are in school at UNC. Some of the rest are from Chapel Hill Elementary School.

We go to the games, pay the price of admission, and usually take a seat in the bleachers at the left hand end of the court behind the basket. Nemo and Dillon happened to be our favorites at the present time, and we probably make a little extra noise when they go on and off the court than the UNC students. But we resent being termed noisy. We cheer for the team and players, once in a while start a chant, and yell whenever there's something to yell about, but it is all for the UNC Team and players and we don't feel it's right that our spirit should be called Noisy. After all, when college students come to our games and cheer, we thank them for their interest, and we would like the same consideration. Thank you.

Phants Play Final Pre-Holiday Home Contest Tonight

The Sporting Picture

By Billy Carmichael, III

Baiting the Hook

To anyone witnessing the first three local basketball games of the season, it is obvious to see that there are a few people in the stands who have the desire to see John "Hook" Dillon perform his stuff for the multitudes.

They show this desire through the constant use of a catcalling "Hook, hook, hook" which, if nothing else, is sure to have someone calling for the little men with white hats before much longer. The sentiment behind the owl-like action is fine; no one doubts that Dillon is a fine fellow and a fine ball player. But the fact remains the whole incident doesn't help John, or his center competition, Nemo Nearman, or Coach Tom Scott, or the rest of the team, or the general atmosphere of the game.

Of course, no effort will be made to stop the baiting the Hook, nor will there be the appearance of signs stating "Use No Hooks", for it remains the fans' prerogative to yell or comment what he may please within the limits of decency. Still Tar Heel fans should be willing to suffer slightly for the overall sake of their team. The little confidence in the coaching staff goes a long way.

While the fans are at it, they might also suspend the booing that hasn't been heavy at the games thus far, but has been present and will probably increase in force as the season progresses, and the Tar Heels have a few bad ones called in a few tough places.

Officials are like the players, human and subject to the pressure, the speed and quickness of the game create. Therefore they are also subject to error as too, are the players. Fans must consider that at times the officials are in a better position to see the play, as, at times, the spectator because of his height from the floor, sees what the boogiemen don't. Add to that the fact that most fans look at a game from a one-sided point of view, and you have the reason for the majority of "we were robbed" cries and boos and hisses which appear from nowhere at the cage contests.

Booing never won a game yet, in Brooklyn, Chapel Hill or anywhere else, nor did public sentiment sway a decision to Joe Walcott last Friday night. Officials are for the purpose that their name implies, and in that capacity, they rule the roost, no matter how much crowing is done. Let us be different from the majority of the rest of the American colleges and not boo, hiss, siss, etc. Most of the league's officials are bad enough without antagonizing them.

Defensive Demons

Needless to say, and considering the caliber of the competition, the 1948 Tar Heel basketball has looked fundamentally good in its first three encounters. Its defensive play has been tops for this or any other time of year, and looks to be the best it has been in recent seasons. The method in which the Tar Heels hawked Catawba, Guilford, and Elon, was enough to make even the best of ball players feel self-conscious.

Offensively, the Tar Heels have yet to reach their peak, but this is December, and at this time of year there is always polish to be added to the timing, passing and shooting of any cage combination. There is nothing a few more weeks of practice can't and won't do for the local entry.

Which brings one to the major topic of conversation these days concerning just how well the Tar Heels will fare against the surrounding competition, competition being an old English word meaning—N .C. State College. According to reports, rumors, and press clippings the current Wolfpack are the team to beat, or, better, the team to try and beat. The Raleigh lads served a 100-point notice last Monday night to this effect, when they went through the Chatham Blankters like the Silver Meteor does through the State College campus every night.

Same Old Crowd

The State boys have about the same personnel they sported last season with the exception of Pete Negley, who has been replaced by some young fellow named Bob Hovath, brother of the former All-American from Ohio State, Les—who threw in more points in one game the other day than the entire Elon outfit was able to tally Monday night.

Yet, Coach Scott and his boys are still to be shown, for they don't believe everything they read in the newspapers, a rather safe practice these days. The proof of the pudding will be found on the court itself, and the two, or maybe three, meetings of the two teams this year will possibly draw considerable interest. Possibly, that is.

Which brings us to the logical conclusion that the Tar Heel cagers intend to have a successful season by Hook or by crook—the latter being no reference to the badman tactics of naughty Norman Kohler and crafty Coy Carson.

Tar Heels Dominate All-Opponent Squad

Carolina, the only team to defeat William and Mary during the past football season, placed five of its players on an All-Opponent team which was selected by the Indians this week.

Two of the Tar Heels who received the honor were unanimous choices to the team. Charlie Justice, Carolina tailback who received several All-American positions this year, was unanimous, along with Art Weiner, Carolina's offensive-minded end. Both boys were also All-Southern.

Other Tar Heels chosen were Ken Powell, end; Len Szafaryn, tackle; and Walt Pupa, fullback. Winning places on the second team were Bob Cox, end; Sid Varney, guard; and Hosea Rodgers, fullback.

William and Mary copped the Southern Conference crown this year, losing to Carolina, 13-7, but taking all the remaining games on its schedule. The Indians will perform in the Dixie Bowl on January 1.

Here is the complete list of players chosen on the first team: Ends—Art Weiner and Ken Powell, both North Carolina; tackles—Len Szafaryn and Malachi Mills, VMI; guards—Don Verduin, Bowling Green, and Ed Royston, Wake Forest; center—Tommy Burns, VPI; backfield—Charlie Justice and Walt Pupa, North Caroilan; Brian Bell, Washington and Lee; and Nick Ognovich, Wake Forest.

Badminton Club Wins First Loop Victory

While the White Phantoms were outscoring Elon college Monday night, the Carolina badminton team snapped out of its losing streak by defeating a Burlington aggregation, 4-2, in the Women's gym.

Net stars Clark Taylor and Vic Seixas led the way for the locals with wins in their singles matches and then combining to register one of the two doubles triumphs captured by the Tar Heels.

Both Taylor's and Seixas' victories were routs. Taylor triumphed by 15-4 and 15-1 while his teammate swept through by 15-3 and 15-1 scores. The doubles victory was not quite so one-sided, the scores being 15-10 and 15-13.

Frank Murray and Ham Strayhorn provided the other Carolina victory. Jim Blount lost his singles match and his slump continued when he teamed with Bob Holmes to drop his tandem encounter.

SAE, Zetes Cop Two Mat Titles; Med School Leads Way In Dorms

By Kyle Cox

Two grapplers from SAE and two matmen from Zeta Psi captured four out of seven titles offered in the finals of the fraternity wrestling tourney yesterday afternoon. In dormitory competition, Med School was victorious in two classes.

Only one match will be on the mural card this afternoon—a fraternity match between Cliff Frazier and Jimmy Fox in the 165 pound class. Frazier topped Harold Jeter yesterday to gain a finals berth.

Ted Barnes and Neil Beard paced SAE by winning their respective weights, while Gurney Boren and Marvin Wilson won for the Zetes. Boo Walker and Bob Kemp were the Med School winners.

The all-campus championship will be decided Thursday when the winning fraternity grapplers meet the championship dormitory squad on the Woollen gym mat.

Five out of six divisional champions from last year's tournament were true to form yesterday and toppled their opponents. Leon Todd, Tom Allen, Walker, Carl Simpson, and Carrol Fisher are the finalists who repeated their last year's performances. Allier Cobb, a Zete performer, was defeated by Wilson in what could be termed an upset.

The results of the final matches were as follows:

Fraternity

Dormitory

145—Allen (Lewis) over Booker (Miller); 155—Bob Kemp (Med School) pinned Gregory (Miller); 165—Swigart (Emerson) pinned Beam (Graham); 175—Walker (Med School) over Lewis (Town); hw—Simpson (Town) over Manning (Med

Final AP Poll Rates Carolina Ninth Best, Notre Dame in First

Carolina's Tar Heels moved up to ninth place in the final Associated Press poll released yesterday. The local gridders received seven first place votes to climax their rise from the depths after early season losses to Texas and Wake Forest.

Carolina was rated tenth last week, but switched positions with the Orange Bowl-bound Yellow Jackets from Georgia Tech.

Two other members of the Big Four placed high in the standings. N. C. State finished in 17th position, closely followed by Duke in 19th. The Southern conference champs, William and Mary, placed 14th.

Notre Dame led the grid parade with the Michigan Wolverines breathing down their neck. The Irish received 1,410 points while Michigan was credited with 1,289.

Southern Methodist, Penn State, Texas, Alabama, Pennsylvania, Southern California, Carolina, and Georgia Tech rounded out the top ten.

Coed Table Tennis Now in Sixth Round

At the end of the fifth round in the coed table tennis tournament, the Town girls have taken the spotlight with three girls still in the running. Other organizations still represented are the CICA, Pi Phi, Tri Delt, Kenan, and Carr.

The sixth round, to be completer by today, includes the following matches: Frances Green (no phone number listed), vs Jane Morrison (8091), Helen Crockford (6931) vs Charlotte Johnston (4066), Pat Winslow (8296) vs Evelyn Pettitt (8038), and Mary Lee Donoho (Kenan) vs Mary Ruth Davis (3003).

Boak, Nelson Listed Among Soccer Stars On Regional Outfit

Fullback Frank Nelson and outside left Dave Boak, high scorer for the Tar Heels during the regular season, are still on the southern regional collegiate team after the 22-man squad chosen Saturday at Annapolis was cut to 18 on Monday.

The squad will not be cut any further until it plays its match with the amateur aggregation from this area. The two teams will then be combined to form the southern team.

Contests will be staged with similarly formed teams from other parts of the country so that the best booters in the nation will have an opportunity to be observed in action by the Olympics selection committee.

Eight of the other 16 squad members played on teams that the Tar Heel eleven played this past season. Navy dominated the selection with five selections, Loyola placed two men on the team, and High Point had one man named.

Coach Wade Bemoans Substitution Rules

Dunn, Dec. 9—(UP)—Wallace Wade, Duke University football coach, told a Dunn civic group that he will renew his campaign to abolish the free substitution rule before next grid season.

Coach Wade charges that free substitution has taken away the driving force of football which makes the game worthwhile, and he says it has taken the game away from the players and left the coach as the signal-caller.

(Mr. Wade obviously was thinking of the two-team system which Carolina Coach Carl Snavely employed so effectively this year.—Ed. note).

Scott's Outfit Battles High Point Quint; Jayvees After Fourth Win in Preliminary

By Dick Jenrette

Coach Tom Scott's Carolina White Phantoms will be gunning for their fourth straight triumph when they meet the High Point College Panthers in Woollen gym tonight at 8 o'clock.

As a preliminary to the game, Coach Jim Hamilton's Carolina Jayvees will battle the High Point juniors at 6:15. Hamilton's outfit also holds three straight wins but will be minus Bill White, a standout guard, who has a badly sprained ankle.

Tonight will be the last opportunity for Carolina students to see their team in action before the Christmas holidays. The Phantoms play against the Hanes Hosiery team in Winston-Salem on Friday but won't play in Woollen until January 3, when Maryland plays here.

Close Last Year

Carolina will be favored to cop tonight's battle, but Coach Tom Scott and his cage performers probably remember the High Point-Carolina contest of last season, in which the Phantoms were extended before taking a 44-41 victory.

High Point is reported to have another good quint this season but was beaten, 78-42 by Everett Case's high-powered State College team this past Saturday. The game will give some indication of the comparative strength between State and Carolina, and this subject already seems to be the biggest in local basketball circles.

Coach Scott expects to start his usual opening lineup tonight. That club has Bill Miller and Bob Paxton at forwards, Nemo Nearman at center, and Norm Kohler and King Cole at the guard posts.

Reserves Play Well

But the regulars are again scheduled to do a share of duty on the bench tonight. The second and third teams literally ran wild in a 74-22 win over Elon on Monday. Coy Carson, the Asheville shotmaker who operates on the second team, was the high scorer for the evening with 16 points. He hit on eight of 11 shots he attempted. Roger Scholbe, third team, also was hot, connecting on four of six action shots for nine points.

The team had an overall shooting mark of .439 on 29 hits in 6[illegible] shots.

Starting for Hamilton's Jayvees will be John Tsantes and Pete Peters, forwards, Sandy Hoft at center, and Bill Harrington and Charlie Thorne, guards. Thorne replaces the injured White in the opening lineup.

Easy Sailing

The local Jayvees have had easy sailing in each of their games thus far, with their latest victim being the Elon Juniors, who fell by a 49-30 count. Hoft, the big center, led the scoring in that game with 16 points.

The big news around the state yesterday was the 100 points that N. C. State, conference champion, scored in defeating Chatham Blanket, 100-35 in Raleigh. It was State's sixth straight win. Wake Forest, already beaten by George Washington in a loop game, was beaten by Quantico Marines, 74-56.

PAXTON TOPS

Captain Bob Paxton is leading the Carolina scoring parade for the three games played thus far with 42 points.

Are you dough-shy? Get us! We give the stuff away. Folding money, too. Yes sir, Pepsi-Cola Co. pays from $1 to $15 for gags you send in and we print. Why worry about an honest living? This is easier. Just send your stuff, along with your name, address, school and class, to Easy Money Department, Box B, Pepsi-Cola Co., Long Island City, N. Y. All contributions become the property of Pepsi-Cola Co. We pay only for those we print.

There's nothing to it—as you can see from the samples below. If, by coincidence, the words "Pepsi-Cola" turn up somewhere in your gag, don't worry about it. We don't mind. (Matter of fact, we kind of like it.) So start your stuff in now—for Easy Money.

GOOD DEAL ANNEX

Sharpen up those gags, gagsters! At the end of the year (if we haven't laughed ourselves to death) we're going to pick the one best item we've bought and award it a fat extra

$100.00

LITTLE MORON CORNER

Our well-known moron-about-campus, Murgatroyd—now a student in the school of agriculture—has developed a new theory on sheep-feeding. He makes a daily ration of Pepsi-Cola an important part of their diet. "Duuuuuuuuh, of course," said Murgatroyd recently, when questioned as to his reasoning, "everybody knows that Pepsi-Cola is the drink for ewe!"

$2 apiece, believe it or not, for any of these we buy!

Get Funny . . . Win Money . . . Write a Title

HE-SHE GAGS

If you're a He, and know a She or vice versa—this should be your meat. Here's your chance to strike a blow for the home team in the battle between the sexes—and maybe win three bucks besides!

★

She Ubangi: Really? Why?

He Ubangi: He says that every time she drinks a Pepsi, she smacks her lips, and he can't stand the clatter.

★

He: Why do you call my date "Pepsi" when her name is Betty?

She: Oh, we all call her "Pepsi" because she goes with anything!

He: I never knew what real happiness was until I married you.

She: Darling!

He: Yes, and by then it was too late.

★

Three bucks apiece for each of these we print. Let your conscience be your guide.

Daffy Definitions

Here's a column that must have some deep underlying significance. Darned if we know what, though. All we know is that these rate a buck each—and the daffier, the better.

Frustration—having a Pepsi-Cola and no bottle-opener.

Stork—bird with a big bill.

Thirst—obsolete term: dates back to pre-Pepsi-Cola era.

Paying $1 apiece for these is like giving you a license to commit burglary. But—$1 apiece for those we buy.

Playmakers Hold 'Fashion' Tryout On Stage Today

Open tryouts for "Fashion", a play by Anna Cora Mowatt and the second production of the Laboratory theater of the Carolina Playmakers, will be held at 4 o'clock today in the Playmaker theater. "Fashion", first produced in 1845, was the first American satire on the affected manners of the American social world.

W.P. Covington, III, Winston-Salem, director of the production, issued a call for all students who are interested in any phase of theatrical work, and invited them to be present at the tryouts. The play has a large cast, calling for eight men and five women in the feature roles, and several dancers and singers. The production will require a large technical staff, according to Covington.

The production is to be given during the winter quarter, February 6 and 7, in the main lounge at Graham memorial. No rehearsals will be held until after Christmas holidays.

Director Covington appeared recently as "Aslaksen" in the Carolina Playmaker presentation of "An Enemy of the People". Before the war, he was a director in the Winston-Salem Little theatre, and appeared in such Playmaker shows as "Down to the Sea" and "Peer Gynt". Since the war he has appeared in the Playmaker productions of "Innocence", "Hear the Hammers Ringing", and the Lab theatre show, "Pierre Pathelin".

Heroine vs. Villain In High School Play

The heroine will once again foil the villan when the Junior class of Chapel Hill high school presents "East Side, West Side," Thursday and Friday, December 16 and 17 at 8 o'clock in the Playmaker theater. The play was written by Sumner Nichols. Admission will be seventy-five cents for adults and fifty cents for children.

The leading role of Patsy, a girl from the "wrong side of the tracks" is played by Gloria Wherry. The cast includes Bill Wolf, who plays a shy psychologist; Mary Kellam, who plays a society girl; Stanley Johnson, a playboy; John Jernigan, an athlete; Barbara Garrett, Kimsey King, Betty Heath, Collier Hill, Dan Olsen, Sally Jente, and Betty Jane Ivey.

Calcutta Police Fire On Protesting Mob

Calcutta (UP)—Police have opened fire on some 5,000 demonstrators massed outside the West Bengal legislature in India to protest the government's new security bill. First reports say there were an undetermined number of casualties.

Yack Pictures

Yack pictures will be taken for the following groups tomorrow, in the main lobby of Graham Memorial:

House Privileges Board — 4 o'clock.

Freshman class officers—4:30.

It is important that all members of the above-mentioned groups be present at the appointed time. Cooperation in this event will be appreciated by the Yack staff.

Contingent of AROTC Flies For First Time in Program

A contingent of student members of the Air ROTC unit here were given flight instruction for the first time last Saturday at the Marietta air base in Atlanta, Ga.

The contingent left the Air ROTC building at 1 o'clock last Friday and were flown in an Army C-47 from Pope Field to the Marietta base. The training took place Saturday morning with each student being given two or three hours of dual flying instruction. They were flown back to Pope Field and arrived at Chapel Hill at 10 o'clock Saturday evening.

Col Bryon R. Switzer, commanding officer of the local unit, accompanied the Air ROTC members on their first flight to Marietta. The flying program for the unit at the present time provides for a similar trip to the Marietta base every other Saturday. All flight instruction will take place at the Marietta base since it is the closest active reserve flying base in this area.

The last meeting of the local unit before the Christmas holidays will be held at the Air ROTC building behind the Naval armory at 3 o'clock Thursday afternoon.

Medical Plan Turned Down

Raleigh, Dec. 10.—(UP)—The plan for a medical school and teaching hospital jointly operated by the University of North Carolina and the Cone foundation of Greensboro has been turned down.

The Executive committee of the University Board of Trustees says the plan is unworkable.

The 1947 Legislature authorized a four-year medical school and 400-bed hospital at Chapel hill. The Moses H. Cone foundation offered to contribute to its upkeep if the medical center were established at Greensboro.

The University Trustees met this afternoon with representatives of the Cone foundation and decided that the plan could not be carried out.

Dobie Will Address Legal Group Here

Judge Armistead M. Dobie of the Fourth Circuit Court of Appeals, Charlottesville, Va., former Dean of the University of Virginia Law school, will address the University of North Carolina Law School association in Gerrard hall tonight at 7:30. His subject will be "A Judge Judges Judges."

Preceding his talk, the Law school faculty will entertain him at a dinner at the Carolina Inn at 6 o'clock.

Judge Dobie received his B.A., M.A., and LL.B degrees from the University of Virginia, and his S. J. D. from the Harvard Law school in 1922. He also attended the Columbia university Graduate school of Jurisprudence.

GOP Deals Blow To Truman Plan For Price Fight

Washington, D. C.—(UP)—Republican Congressional leaders have dealt a serious blow to President Truman's more drastic anti-inflation proposals.

The GOP chieftains threw aside Mr. Truman's requests and came up with their own plan for beating high prices, a plan which they hope to push through Congress before Christmas.

Republican Senate and House leaders have decided on a four-point piece of legislature. It calls for the continued curbs on exports and transportation, some new controls on bank credits and voluntary allocation of scarce industrial materials.

The first three of these were included in Mr. Truman's program, but the president's demand for stand-by powers to slap on rationing and price controls were set aside by the Republicans, at least for the emergency session of Congress.

A former chief of the OPA, Prentiss Brown, says some type of government control is necessary to curb the "grab market" in scarce material.

Santa Claus Postpones Fighting, Feuding Until Yule Holidays End

By the United Press

They have patched things up for the holiday season in Santa Claus, Ind. But just as soon as the Yuletide season is over they promise to go back to fussin' and feudin' some more.

Christmas has become a land-office business in the tiny village of Santa Claus, with its stable population of 60. Cards by the millions roll into the village every year, so that they can be sent out again under the coveted dateline. Visitors pour in too. An Santa Claus, for years just a cluster of houses around a wooden general store, now boasts modern and prosperous toy firms.

Prosperity Starts Feud

It is the prosperity that got the feud started in Santa Claus. The Post Office originallly was located in the general store, but the volume of Yuletide mail became so large the government asked for bids for modern streamlined quarters.

A man who owned a successful toy store about a mile down the road from the tiny village put in the bid the government liked best, and he got the Post Office. That riled the old timers in Santa Claus. They insist that, now, the Santa Claus Post Office is not in Santa Claus at all, but a mile out of town.

The successful Post Office bidder came back with some legislative arguments of his own. The argument has been going all year long, but they have buried the hatchet for the holidays. As soon as the holidays are over, however, they promise to take up the argument again, —even to the point of sending angry delegations to Washington.

AVC Hears Talk by Ross

The need for a stronger organized labor movement in North Carolina and the South was the principal theme of an informal talk made by Michael Ross, organizer for the United Furniture Workers, CIO, at the Tuesday night meeting of the local chapter of the American Veterans committee.

Ross pointed out that North Carolina was now the most important industrial state in the South, but living standards for its working people had not risen proportionately. The concentration of great wealth and power in the hands of a few, "plantation wages" and excessive profits were responsible.

Ross cited current profits in the state's textile industry which average 67 cents for each hour worked by each employee. Labor organizations in North Carolina have lagged behind those in other Southern states, he said, and the inequalities in living standards between employers and employees remained to be corrected.

When asked to tell some of his own experiences as an organizer, Ross mentioned an encounter with the Ku Klux Klan. "They threatened to kill me", he said, "but they never got around to it."

The local AVC chapter voted to change its name to the Chapel Hill and University of North Carolina Chapter. A resolution was passed to send a letter of support to R.L. Fritz, president of the NCEA, and now under indictment for misappropriation of state funds. Plans were made for the local chapter to be host to an informal meeting of North Carolina AVC chapter officers in January.

Date of Evacuation Of Holy Land Aired

London, — (UP) — Well-informed sources said today that British troops probably will start to leave Palestine some time in the month of April, a month or so before the British formally give up their old League of Nations mandate over the Holy Land.

Even before the troops' withdrawal begins, Whitehall sources said, British troops may pull out of Predominately Jewish and Arab districts and sparsely-populated sections to begin concentrating around Haifa to await evacuation ships.

Not long before this announcement, Palestine officials announced that Arab tribesmen had ambushed and killed six Jews, including one woman, in a raid last night on a settlement in the south.

Seven Women Pledged To Sigma Alpha Iota

Seven women were pledged to Sigma Alpha Iota, professional honorary sorority for musicians last Friday evening. They entered Iota Tau chapter which had its inception on the Carolina campus in April of 1945.

The chapter has, since its founding, attempted to further the cause of music and musicians on the campus. Its officers are Mary Elizabeth Burrus, Doris Newburn, Anne Brown, Lillian Messicks, and Nina Thomas.

Those selected for membership include two voice instructors, Virginia Johnson of Hamlet and Mary Helen Zum Brunnen of Salisbury; four juniors, Martha Adair of Washington, Ferne Hughes of Rainelle, W. Va., Gwen Howard of Sanford, and Sybil Drake of Mendes, La.; and one freshman, Betsy Green of Chapel Hill.

Debate Is Set For January 6 On UNC Campus

By Don MacDonald

Twenty-two years old and a member of Parliament is the record of the Honorable Anthony Neil Wedgwood Benn who, with Sir Edward Charles Gurney Boyle, Baronet, and Mr. David Kenneth Harris, will come to Carolina from Oxford university on January 6. The trio will participate in a debating tournament as guests of the University debating team.

Benn, who was educated at Westminster school and New College, Oxford, was selected as Parliamentary candidate of the British Labour party this year and won the election. He has a bachelor of arts degree in politics, philosophy and economics and will be awarded an additional degree in June of next year.

With Boyle and Harris, Benn will oppose a University debating team selected by Earl Fitzgerald, president of the Debate council.

Sir Edward Boyle, Bt., is 25 years old, was educated at Eton college where he was captain of Oppidans and editor of the Eton Chronicle. He served in the British Foreign office during the war. At Oxford he is secretary of the Union society, is treasurer of the University Conservative association.

Educated at Tunbridge high school, Mr. Harris is 29 years of age. He was a history scholar at Wadham college, Oxford, in 1938. While there he acted and wrote in the University theater. Harris was an RAF liason and staff officer, was attached to a medical corps on psychiatrical research and social therapy in 1945.

Randall McLeod, member of the Debate council, has urged all interested persons who care to tryout for positions on the debating team to contact him or any member of the team or the council.

Philadelphia Outfit Has Early Christmas

Philadelphia, Dec. 9.—(UP) — Christmas came early today for 19 employes of the Haas Miller company, a chemical firm.

The boss, Harry L. Miller, celebrated his 49th birthday by handing out $14,000 in Christmas bonuses to his workers. The plant supervisor got the largest gift—more than $2,000. The smallest, $400, went to an employe with less than a year's service.

To top it off, Miller added another $10,000 to the workers' pension fund.

Chester Zum Brunnen Will Serve As Phi Speaker for Winter Term

Meeting in closed session for the purpose of electing winter term oficers, the Phi Tuesday night chose Chester D. Zum Brunnen to fill the post of speaker Retiring speaker John Giles was selected as speaker pro-tem.

Retaining most of the incumbent officers, the assembly re-elected James McNider critic; Pete Gerns, parliamentarian; Page Harris, sergeant-at-arms; and Charles Cowell, treasurer. Dave Sharp was selected as clerk of the assembly.

Zum Brunnen, former speaker pro-tem, and his staff are said to have been elected on the basis of their accomplishments during the fall term. These include securing Charles Johnson and Melville Broughton as speakers and steps toward the redecoration of Phi hall and the installation of additional office equipment.

In filling other vacancies for the next term, the speaker-elect appointed Bob Coulter to serve as chaplain and the following to constitute the ways and means committee; John Giles (chairman), Bill Duncan, Frank Teague, Jack Lashly, George Rodman, Lester Sneed and James McNider.

ZUM BRUNNEN

Manhattan Project Still Well Guarded

OAK RIDGE, Tenn. (UP) — Wartime hush-hush is relaxed somewhat here, but the United States' atomic bomb secrets still are guarded cautiously.

If somebody got you a pass through one of the heavily guarded gates, the first thing you'd want to see is the celebrated nuclear energy pile where the atom was split.

Nothing doing.

You might be taken within 200 yards of it outside a rugged steel fence. But all to be seen there, even with binoculars, which are now permitted, is a smallish metal building. Inside that is the pile.

Try again. Maybe a look-see will be permitted inside the big plant where an electromagnet 238 feet long extracts the element U-235 from uranium ore. The magnet is so powerful that nails in workers' shoes make walking difficult near it. It can snatch a heavy wrench from a worker's through winding mountain roads for a new try. This time the gaseous diffusion plant, nestling near the Clinch River. That is where U-235 is concentrated. It's 13 miles from the Oak Ridge townsite.

Town Girls, GM Plan Yule Dance As Feature of 'Christmas Week'

Plans for "Christmas week," sponsored by the Town Girls association and Graham Memorial, rapidly near completion as the Christmas dance, to be featured during the weekend, is scheduled for 9 o'clock on the evening of December 22 in the Rendezvous room.

The series of entertainments during the week are for students, their wives, and townspeople, and everyone here during the holidays is invited to attend all the functions with or without escorts.

The activities include a Christmas sing, December 21; dance, December 22; game night, December 23; caroling, December 24; open house, Christmas day; Bingo night, December 27.

Plans for the activities are being directed by Chuck Hilty, assistant director of Graham Memorial, and Betsy Ann Barbee, president of the Town Girls association. Chairmen of the committees are Caroline Warren, sing; Jeanne Basnight, dance; Esther Cheek, game night; Mary MacKeer, open house; Betty Vashaw, bingo; Patsy Winslow, refreshments; Mary Elizabeth Pell and Jeanne Whitfield, publicity.

TARNATION

The Tarnation business staff will meet this afternoon at 3:30 in the Tarnation office, Tookie Hodgsen announced today. All staff members are urged to be present.

Venable Annex Open Three Days From 9 Until 5

By Charlie Gibson

While students who lack foresight face all the headaches of registration only as far off as next year, those who responded to pleas from South building for preregistration back in November can get their class tickets next week, reaping their rewards of more carefree Christmas holidays.

On Monday, Tuesday, and Wednesday, class tickets for the winter quarter will be ready for all preregistered students who report between 9 and 5 o'clock to Registration hall, the barracks annex to Venable building.

Unavoidable Lines

According to an announcement from the special University registration committee, students who did not preregister at the designated time must endure the seemingly unavoidable long lines with all new students on Saturday, January 3, between 8:30 and 12:30 o'clock. That morning the usual clas selection and scheduling procedure will be held in Registration hall and not, as was the case this past September, in Woollen gymnasium.

Those among the preregistered who do not pick up their class tickets before the Yuletide recess may get these cards on January 3, also at Registration hall, between the hours of 8:30 and 12:30.

Fine for Late Registration

Classes for the next term will start on Monday, January 5. There will be a $5 late registration fee charged to (1) students who register on or after January 5 and (2) students who have preregistered but fail to call for their class tickets before that date.

Although the November preregistration covered both the winter and the spring quarters, class tickets will be given out at this time for only the forthcoming term. Cards for the next session will not be issued until March.

No alterations in schedules for the January quarter should be made haphazardly during the examination period. A definite time will be allowed at the opening of the next term for all students with reasonable excuses to consult their advisors about making any changes.

Grade reports for the present quarter will be distributed, too, from Registration hall on January 5, if at all possible.

Automobile Stickers Must Be Picked Up

A number of students who registered automobiles with the University have not picked up the stickers required to be displayed on their cars, Dean Fred Weaver said yesterday.

A penalty in excess of the $1 fine for parking violations will be imposed upon owners of all cars not displaying these stickers by next Monday.

Enough stickers are now available for all registered cars and may be picked up in Dean Weaver's office, 207 South building.

Over-Ambitious Thief Fails to Steal Bus

Raleigh, Dec. 9 — (UP) — Police officials at the state capitol today are trying to locate an over-ambitious thief who tried to steal a bus.

Officers say that someone tried to make off with a Greyhound bus last night. But after ramming into a corner and breaking five windows in the bus, the thief gave up. Police say the thief left the bus with its motor running everal blocks from the Raleigh bus station.

Everything from Dy-Dee Dolls to Tuxedos Are Among 16,000 Wishes in Varsity Well

By Bob Rolnik

Sixteen thousand wishes, everything from tuxedos to Dy Dee dolls, have gone into the Varsity shop's Wishing Well in its one month of operation—and you can still make a wish every day till Christmas.

Wilbur Kutz, Varsity shop proprietor, smiled as he lifted an armful of entry blanks from the hundreds piled in the Wishing Well barrel in front of his store.

"The idea just popped into my head," Mr. Kutz explained. "It might be classed as just a merchandising plan but there's nothing tangible about good-will that we can credit in any ledger. We want the people in Chapel Hill to get acquainted with us. We've made more friends in these few weeks than we do ordinarily in months."

He pored over the wishing blanks as if they were his personal friends, reading them aloud, commenting on them—"Here's a lady that likes that printed blouse we have in the window," or "Look at this fellow who only wants a 39 cent pasteboard overseas mailing box."

New Wish Daily

According to the rules, each person may write out a new wish every day.

"Every Wednesday morning I go out on the street and choose three passers-by at random," Mr. Kutz explained. "One week we had a little girl and a little boy. They went head first into the Wishing Well and stirred up all the entry blanks. Then the little girl made the drawings."

So far there have been four drawings with three or four winners each time. If the item wished for is $10 or less the winner receives it free. If the price is over $10 this amount is deducted from the item wished for.

Some of the entry blanks are folded into tight, secretive squares, some, in childish scrawls, wish for such things as "a gun and a holster," or "a deluxe race car with wind up," or "a magic skin doll."

Veteran's Wife

One veteran's wife versified her Christmas hopes like this:

"Poor G.I. wives, alack, alas,
Are forced into a low paid class,
So I could think of nothing better,
Than winning hubby a free sweater."

One ambitious student wished for "$10 worth of three-hole note book paper." Another student tried to tempt the hand of fate toward his wishing entry by writing politely—"Please! I'd like to have a pair of pale, grey, flannel pants, size 31, length 31 1-2."

"We've directed our sales employees to be as careful with a wisher as with a buyer," Mr. Kutz pointed out. "Nobody is expected to make any purchases. We like to have people browse around looking for wishable items."

'As Surely as the Sun Rises'

"As surely as the sun rises," says Henry Wallace in a recent New Republic article, "the progressive movement will rise in the South . . . a new spirit is stirring there."

We hope that Wallace is right; we hope that his recent speaking tour through the southern states has given him good reason to believe that we are shaking off our old, binding shell of reaction, that we are beginning to realize that humanity must work together for its common good.

Here at Carolina some of us can see what Wallace calls "the faint stirring of progressivism." Such organizations as the Southern Conference for Human Welfare, the American Veterans committee, and the Wallace Democrats are certainly progressive, "too progressive," some of their enemies will tell you. But though these organizations are present on campus, they indicate a trend toward a movement, not the movement itself.

The progressive movement has not yet arrived. Membership in the organizations named is still small—even in this area, which is, no doubt, the center of progressivism in North Carolina. Most students are passive, if not antagonistic, toward the SCHW, the AVC, and the Wallace club. Race prejudice is still high; few students would not be enraged if the school were suddenly made coracial. (Most progressives agree that it wouldn't work, not because the progressives themselves can't tolerate Negroes, but because they know that 99 out of 100 other students wouldn't.)

Talmadge, he says, is gaining support in Georgia, once liberal papers like the Atlanta Constitution are no longer liberal, a Baptist minister was fired from his Georgia church because he defended the right of Negroes to vote. Not progressive, in the Wallace sense, is the political domination of states by textile mills and big utility interests. Not progressive, the terrorizing of union organizers and their families. Not progressive, the fact that Negroes cannot get training in dentistry, medicine, pharmacy or social work in the South. Not progressive, the exclusion of Jews from New Orleans social clubs. Not progressive, the new "lynch" method of a single hatchet-man quietly murdering a Negro who has offended.

That he found some support among Southerners, and that seven colleges and universities asked him to speak before the student body, he considers indications of progressivism. That Southern farm-owners are no longer so blatantly short-changing their Negro tenants on the cotton crop, he takes as an omen that better days are coming.

In the hope for better days to come, we join Wallace. It will be good when the Southern white doesn't need to oppress the Negro to prove that he, the white man, is of some worth. It will be good when every voter has an opportunity to cast his ballot for a leader who is not dominated by mills and utilities. It will be good when workers can organize to protect themselves without fear of a jail sentence for disturbing the peace.

But in the confidence that "As surely as the sun rises . . . " this progress will come, we hesitate. The Southern night is a long one and deep.

An age is, it's true, ending—ending through the uniting and equalizing power of atomic energy. Reactionary forces are fighting the spirit that is destroying their world—and these forces of injustice and privilege of wealth and race, while not winning in the fight to maintain their world, are most certainly stopping, at this time, the formation of a new and better one.

Washington Merry-Go-Round

Truman's Cabinet Sounds Off

By Drew Pearson

Washington—It used to be said that the Roosevelt Cabinet served only as a rubber stamp for the President; that it seldom debated important questions. Whether true or not, the Truman Cabinet has become just the opposite, with the President giving his cabineteers ample time to sound off.

This is one reason why there has been so much rumor of dissension over the President's proposed inflation controls. Here is the inside story.

For several days prior to the message to Congress, a tug-of-war took place between Leon Keyserling of the Economic Council and White House Counselor Clark Clifford on one side, with two Cabinet members — Secretary of Agriculture Clinton Anderson and Secretary of Commerce Averell Harriman—on the other. The two Cabinet members were dead set against Government price controls; the two White House advisers were for them.

"Well, Clint," said the President, addressing his Secretary of Agriculture. "You and Averell aren't going to like this, but we're going to come out for controls."

Harriman and Anderson argued briefly; finally asked: "Well, can we have a look at the speech before it's made?"

"Certainly," replied the President. A meeting was set for the next day at which all members of the Cabinet who would be required to enforce inflation controls could take a crack at the text of their chief's speech.

At this meeting, Harriman and Anderson went over the text sentence by sentence, chiefly wanted to soften the impact of the message. But no final changes were made, and a second meeting was set for the next day, Sunday, to put the speech in final form.

At 10 a.m. Sunday, Attorney General Tom Clark, Acting Secretary of the Interior Oscar Chapman, Clark Clifford, Assistant to the President John Steelman, together with Secretary of Commerce Harriman and Secretary of Agriculture Anderson all gathered in the Cabinet room.

They remained there for four hours—until 2:05 p.m.—hashing over almost every semicolon in the message to Congress.

Truman opened the meeting.

"Now we're going to read it through first," he explained, shuffling the pages of his speech. "Then we'll read it through a second time, page-by-page, and you can make suggestions."

He read the whole speech without interruption. Then he came back and read the first page a second time. No faults were found. But beginning with the second page, the suggestions began to pour in, chiefly from Averell Harriman, with Anderson backing him up.

The Secretary of Commerce is hesitant and slow in public speaking, but at this closed-door session of the Cabinet, he was eloquent and eager. "Now, can't we change this, Mr. President?" he suggested, or "Let's take that out."

Some of the Harriman points were well-taken and accepted without argument. However, most of them were vigorously opposed by Clark Clifford. In fact, Clifford took over the chief job of refuting Harriman and did a good job of it. Few of the others backed Clifford up.

Finally, after softening this sentence and that, the Cabinet group reached the most important paragraph of all—that which asked Congress to vote price controls. A new commodity—steel—had been added to the speech since Harriman read it over the day before and the addition didn't make him happy.

Those We Forget

The Earl of Carolina

No 'Golden' Mail, Please

By Earl Heffner

"When Heaven's Harry James toots his horn," said Rodger Sande, political science major and student veteran—class of '49, "I sure as hell ain't going to say, 'Pardon me Gabriel, but I've already heard the golden trumpet'."

It was cocktail hour at their Victory Village domicile and the neighbors from across the mire had dropped in to debate the daily question of "Two brew or not to brew." Sipping his poor man's champagne, Student Sande vented upon his wiser buddy the spleen of his anger resulting from an unwanted visit by the twice-ringing pony expressmen.

"When the Bolsheviks arrive? When comes the revolution I should rather been in the boat with Happy Harry floating in his attempted revival of governmental alphabet soup," expounded Rodger Sande, irate political science major and GI Bill of Rights trainee.

"What makes with the top blowing," questioned journalism major Cole Flaveman. "So the Reds are worrying you. So what. We got our bottles of the golden liquid. Let's quaff a few for the White Phantoms."

"What gives? To use the vernacular," spouted Student Sande, holding forth a whitish, stamped envelope, "today I arrive. No longer must I be a member of the forgotten horde, a pawn of the capitalist kings and queens. I am on the mailing list of Jolly Junius, he who tips the political Scales.

"From out of the envelope blares the golden trumpet as I am told what is wrong with our great American way of life. So the guy hits us on our weak points. So we got government controls.

"We got no necessary dictatorship, no secret police. We do have slums, uneducated thousands.

"But with it we have also the highest standard of living in the world. It is the capitalistic Evil which even now rushes to the aid of the bereft nations of Europe while strong Communism keeps within itself and scrutinizes behind its Iron Curtain for an atom bomb.

"I," said Rodger Sande, political science major, "am an idealistic fool who likes this capitalistic system which has spawned such men as Honest Abe Lincoln. I care not that I may never be rich. At least, the chances of wealth exist theoretically.

"Better I should die starving in a garret than freezing in Siberia."

Student Sande cooled off with another brew. His ever-loving missus remarked, "My Rodger would rather be a drunken capitalist than a Communist puppet."

Memo to the Communist Party of Chapel Hill: In theory there may be differences, in actual practice Communism and Fascism commit incest to begat war. My postman is welcome sans your propaganda. Request that I be dropped from your mailing list. I never wanted on the damn thing, resent your gall in placing me there.

Ours is not a perfect country, but I should rather reside in this imperfect state than in one which would be a Russian tool.

Costumes Helped

Christmas in Dance, Drama

By Ruth Evans

The title "Christmas in Dance and Drama" is a hard one to live up to, because few kinds of dance, and few plays of Christmas successfully capture the spirit for which they strive so diligently and obviously.

Probably the closest the some 60 participants in the Tuesday night program got to it was in the very nature of their own presentation. Their sincerity and enthusiasm was a bit of the spirit itself, in spite of their status as amateurs and the choice of a rather slow-moving one-act play.

The program sponsored by the YWCA, the Modern Dance club, the Wesley foundation, and the Student Art league, in Memorial hall got underway with the modern dance interpretations of three well-known Christmas carols. Executed in bright costumes that helped a lot to make us forget the usual wierd leotards, the original choreography was of high caliber, especially considering the nature of the group, advanced dance students with limited time for practice and class work.

Instructor Byrd Cornwell did a good job of dancing the third number, once the group got on stage. That was the biggest flaw in production. The three short numbers were interrupted by long intermissions which might have better been omitted in favor of one longer choreography.

As for the second half of the program "A Child Is Born" by Stephen Vincent Benet left us a little cold for lack of the warm familiarity of the many Christmas stories better known and easier executed by amateurs. The sets and the lighting of the play were excellent, with laurels going to Madeline Southerland for good direction.

Needless to say, the small children who made up the group of carollers were winning with their stocking caps and big songbooks, but the off-stage music was not as exciting as it sounded when advertised "original score as backdrop to the players."

So, we repeat, the saving feature of the evening was a subtle feeling that the participants had sincere Christmas spirit and wanted to share it, even if in a slow, unpolished way. We'll look forward to next year's edition of this program, and hope that even more groups can combine their efforts with even better results.

Petition Goes to Atlanta

By Dan Sapp

'Tis the week before Exams,
And all through the village,
There is very little doing,
No mayhem, no pillage.

This little ode is called "How corny can one get?" or "You gotta fill up space somehow."

By way of transition from the ridiculous to the sublime there is an item which should be of interest to the Central heating dwellers. W. W. Wood and Tom Fields, Bagley Drive representatives, have written a petition, gotten it signed by a 70 out of 80 majority and by now it is probably in Atlanta. The petition describes the heating situation in these units and it is addressed to the National Housing Agency in Atlanta, Georgia. Mr. Bennett of the University Engineers took the petition with him Tuesday night when he left for Atlanta and promised that he would do all he could to see that action is taken at once.

Another item heard floating on the still winter air concerns the parking situation. There seems to be one village citizen who has the mistaken idea that one can have a private parking space in Mudville. According to those who know the village rules, this is not the case. Parking in the Village is on a strictly catch as catch can basis, if someone is in front of your apartment then park as close as possible because you have no legitimate right to ask him to move.

So that's it for this year we'll be seeing you the first Thursday in 1948. Merry Christmas!

Dear Editor:

I wonder if Tar Heel writer Bob Sain realizes how left his rightist rationalizations are steadily leading him. In his article purporting to answer Junius Scales' second Chapel Hill Communist Letter, Sain admits that powerful industrial interests control the golden trumpets of newspaper and radio, yet suggests it is the 'easy way out' to fight these interests under any other system than capitalism. How, I wonder, does Sain rationally expect to fight for democracy if he pretends to believe in capitalism? Can you honestly reconcile the two, Bob?

The only 'honest' believers in capitalism are the pollyanas and the cynics. The pollyanas gloss over the "gre-e-eat development and progress" wrought under capitalism, forgetting at the same time that such growth has not overthrown wage-slavery for millions of people, nor overcome the contradiction of social production under private appropriation.

The cynics, unable to summon courage to embrace necessary changes, look about them at the misdirected selfishness and psychological ruin native to capitalism and infer men are "fundamentally stinkers." But men who recognize the inherent capacities in man for creativity and harmony know that even selfishness has a positive function in a socialistic order.

The gross position that holds modern-day man has no responsibility to the future is full of misconceptions. Communists are not struggling for comfortable Utopias, Bob. They are not content with bourgeois ideals of laziness. The challenge of creativity inherent in today's struggle will give positive historical significance only to those who recognize and accept that challenge. Those who stifle themselves in terms of a few sweet, safe years are already entombed in their own futility.

Yes, I agree, Scales has the heart in the right place, and I would like to think Bob Sain does, too. But where do you keep your mind, Bob?

Can't We Have Some Sanctuary?

To the Editor:

The Campus Forum of December 9th sounded the death knell for 400 Carolina students. The question, "Shall UNC have a roller rink, and, if so, where?", was given the affirmative by 83 per cent of those students queried. I'm willing to bet that none of the 269 "yes" men were from the Quonset Hut area!

Can't we down here have some sanctuary? Most of us have readjusted ourselves to the community latrine facilities, inadequate heat, and to the prospect of again being hearded 20 to a room. We try to study under these crowded conditions and, in most cases, succeed. We put up with the "spirited bunch" that clatter down our wooden walks in the early morning hours. But asking us to cope with the continuous drone of roller skates is too much!

Haven't we enough "near" the tennis courts at the present time? Besides the huts, a dozen trailers dot the road behind Alexander dormitory. These fellows would no doubt want to retain what serenity there exists.

Maybe a roller rink would be a good form of recreation for some exersize-starved Carolina students. If said rink has to be built, erect it in the tin can, by the library, or on an intramural field, but keep it away from those tennis courts!

Bringing up more shades of goldfish-gulping;—Competition between the extroverts at U. of Tex. got so keen recently, the lads have now squared off in a contest to elect the Ugliest Man in the University . . . Take a look at the names of a few entrants, such as "Egghead" Bourland, "Esquire" Evans, and "Dodo" McQueen, and y'figger it's bound to be a close race . . .

This really might not be a bad idea for potential Tar Heel terribles.—And it's a sure-fire idea for campus politicians to get much-desired, clean, healthy, and wholesome publicity . . . How'd you like to see "Sauerkraut" Saleeby, "Mushmouth" Melton, "Werewolf" Winn, (yeah, and "Gravyhead" Giduz, too) all squared off against each other in such a race???

First public word from "Dr. Frank" since he left six weeks ago came the other day . . . The UN Good Offices Commission for mediating the Indonesian conflict opened conferences this Tuesday.

As per prediction the vote for Tuesday's Student council election failed to top 1,000, and of course resulted in a UP victory on this one race . . . Keep an eye on poll results and you'll see a light vote always results in University party victories . . . That's no slur on UP chairman Miles "Smiles" Smith or councilman-elect Carmichael, but a guy often wonders why less than 15 per cent of the student body can interest itself in a major election.

WORLD FEDERALISTS

The Carolina chapter of United World Federalists will meet today at 5 p.m. in the Grail Room for the purpose of electing officers for the winter quarter. Russell G. Baldwin, president of the local chapter, urged all members to attend this important meeting. He stated that the meeting would be very short due to the proximity of final exams and should not last more than half an hour, at the most.

Come All!

Perhaps many of you are unaware that the University of N. C. offers its young men and women free training in Ballroom Dancing. Instruction is given in the Main Gymnasium on Tuesday and Thursday evenings from 7 until 9 p.m. If you have not had any real training in Ballroom dancing you owe it to yourself and those who will be your partners at the dances to come to know the correct way to dance. Don't continue to dance incorrectly and be critized by the oppoiste sex for being a poor dancer.

The University offers you the opportunity to learn how to dance correctly. Remember to be socially accepted, you must learn how to dance with grace and charm.

Take advantage of the opportunity now offered you by the UNC and you'll find yourself a much more desirable dancing partner. You'll be surprised the charm you will gain when you have confidence in dancing. Dancing is no le... Art than music or any of other arts. Would you sit down to play a piano duet with... training? No more should you attempt to dance with another person when you are untrained in Ballroom dancing.

Come one, come all to the G... for an evening of real instructional fun. We need lots of girls as boys out number our girls at school.

All-American's All-American

Mr. Norman Sper, Sr., father of Carolina's ace mermen of the same name, and one of the country's leading sports writers annually polls the college football players for their opinion who deserves positions on the the mythical team.

This seems by far the best way of getting such a team as press notices and ballyho have little affect on their selection. There has to be no partiality to what section of the country is being slighted.

As for the Sper All-South team, Carolina represented by Walt Pupa at the first team fullback spot. Charlie Justice and Art Weiner were named to the second team. In all fairness to the Carolina men the Duke and Virginia game summaries did not reach Sper before he had to close shop. To quote the sportswriter in the Chicago Tribune, "Charley Justice of North Carolina failed to impress his early season opponents but drew support after the Wake Forest game Oct. 11 to land on the second team."

We learned that just two Georgia players named Justice on their ballots while the Bulldog's leaned heavily towards Weiner. Texas named only Jack Fitch on its ballot. Maryland, State and William & Mary were heavy on the votes for both Pupa and Justice.

The first team all-South had Barney Poole, Mississippi and John North of Vanderbilt at ends; Bobby Davis, Georgia Tech and Dub Garrett, Mississippi State at tackles; Bill Healey, Georgia Tech and John Wozniak, Alabama at guards; Jay Rhodemyre, Kentucky at center; John Rauch, Georgia at quarterback; Charlie Conerly, Mississippi and Harry Gilmer, Alabama at halfbacks and Pupa at fullback.

The second team had Weiner, George Brodnax, Georgia Tech at ends; Denver Crawford, Tennessee and Wash Serini, Kentucky at Tackles; Edward Royston, Wake Forest and Knox Ramsey of W & M at guards; Tom Tompson, W & M at center; Y. A. Tittle, LSU at quarterback; Justice and Lucien Gambino, Maryland at halfbacks and Lowell Tew of Alabama at fullback.

Bob Chappius of Michigan's mighty undefeated Wolverine football team did not fare so well on oppositions ratings. Out of 111 opponents votes he managed to tally 49 which was far below the 83 garnered by teammate Bump Elliot. Teams that voted on Michigan were, Michigan State, Stanford, Pittsburgh, Northwestern, Minnesota, Illinois, Indiana and Wisconsin. Pittsburgh and Minnesota left Chappius out entirely.

Another mid-west surprise was the fact that George Connor, Notre Dame tackle, highly rated on most of the All-stars, could do no better than honorable mention all-mid-west on his competitors team.

Notre Dame players were unanimous in the selection of Center Tommy Novak, Nebraska, a swere most of their opponents for Johnny Lujack. Lujack drew the largest number of votes of any player.

PIC's All-American Selection

To close out All-America talk for the season. Pic Magazine forwarded this office an advance copy of their team. The Magazine will hit the newstands about the 23rd of December. This team was picked by eight scouts from the various parts of the country. They were, Bob Cox, Southern conference; Jack Lavelle, East; Myles Layne, East; Ray Hammett, Far West; "Dutch" Lonborg, Big 10; Tobey Green, Mississippi Valley; Jack Gray, South-west conference; Tom Lieb, deep South.

No third team was named but a category of highly rated included Justice; Edwards, Georgia; Crawford, Tennessee; Royston, Wake Forest; and Gambino, Maryland.

Scottmen Register Fourth Win, 54-29

By Billy Carmichael III

Carolina's defensive - minded Tar Heel basketball team combined the odd total of 18 field goals and 18 foul shots last night at Woollen Gym and that tally proved more than enough to smother the checkmated Panthers of High Point college in a rather rowdy contest played before a capacity house full of spectators. The score amounted to 54-29, the win being the fourth in a row for the Scottmen.

The Tar Heels raced to the front in the early moments of the game, while the visitors were having little or no success in finding the exact location of the basket. Moving on to a 29-11 lead at half time, the winner came back after the intermission to push the margin to 39-11, and then sit back and watch the High Pointers try to catch with a late rally they were able to engineer against the Tar Heel reserves.

Bouncing Bob Paxton cavorted his way to the high scoring honors, but he did it the hard way, racking up only one field goal but dropped nine free tosses to lead the local pack with 11 points. Cartwright, a young fellow who didn't enter the game until all was lost for the visitors, gathered the high honors of the evening by dropping 13 tallies, most of them in the Panther's late rally.

Chief Topics

The chief topics of discussion, Nemo Nearman and John Dillon, left the fans still arguing, as the pair both turned in very fine and fancy performances during their respective tours of duty on the firing line.

Getting back to the ball game itself, Paxton started the action off by dropping a foul after less than a minute and repeating the effort a few seconds later. Kohler and Cole ran the tally to 6-0 a few minutes later with a pair of drive-in-and-under shots. At this point High Point broke the ice when Coble lifted in a free throw, but Kohler and Miller came back to garner seven points between them and by the six minute mark had the score up to 13-1.

Moran retaliated with the first Panther field goal immediately hereafter, but the Tar Heels stormed back and held complete control throughout the remainder of the period to retire at the half leading 29-11. Nearman, Cole, Paxton, Dillon, Thorne and Carson contributed to the cause during this lapse of time.

The second half saw the Tar Heels return to continue on their scoring ways. Kohler hit with a push shot after a mere half minute had past, and he was quickly joined in the scoring circle

Red Sox Get Spence In Trade With Nats

New York, Dec. 10—(UP)—Another all-star ball-player has made the journey to the Boston Red Sox. The Washington Senators have traded Stan Spence to the Sox for utility outfielder Leon Culberson and the highly touted rookie second baseman Al Kozar.

Spence had a bad season last year batting only .279, but the 32-year old southpaw is still regarded as one of the most danegrous sluggers in the league

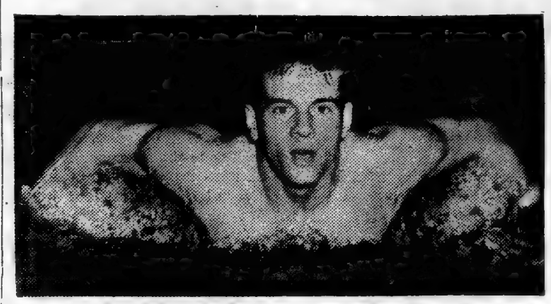
Campus Crowns At Stake Today In Maral Wrestling, Volleyball

Two other campus champions wil be crowned this afternoon at Woollen gym in the final phase of the intramural department's fall program. In the mural wrestling division, dormitory finalists tangle with the fraternity title-holders on the Woollen mat from four until five o'clock in eight matches ranging in weight from 128 pounds to the heavyweight division. The other mural payoff clash sends fraternity volleyball champs, Phi Gamma Delta against Med School, the dormitory winners.

After the conclusion of today's campus playoffs, mural sports will disappear from the University limelight until after the holidays when basketball competition begins.

Assistant mural director P. A. Lee once again emphasized the fact that all fraternity entries in the winter basketball program must be in by Wednesday, December 17. The round robin tournament play is scheduled to begin in the fraternity division on January 7.

Regular mat play was concluded yesterday afternoon when Cliff Frazier outpointed Jimmy Fox for the fraternity 165-pound title. Frazier will be matched against Swigart of Emerson today in one of the individual campus championship battles.



Phi Gam To Defend

Phi Gam will be out to retain its campus volleyball crown this afternoon. The fraternity winners are the 1946 title-holders. The match will take place on court one at Woollen gym at five o'clock.

An unusual match will take place in the all-campus finals of the 155-pound division. Two brothers, Bob and Phil Kemp will battle each other for the class crown. Bob is dormitory champion representing the Med School while Phil is the sole DKE survivor in the championships.

4:00 — 5:00 — Todd (Phi Gam) vs Simpson (Town, hwt; Barnes (SAE) vs Walker (Med School), 175; Frazier (Beta) vs Swigart (Emerson), 165; Kemp (DKE) vs Kemp (Med School), 155; Fisher (Sig Chi) vs Allen (Lewis), 145; Beard (SAE) vs opponent to be named later, 136; Boren (Zeta) vs Jetty (Emerson), 128; Wilson (Zeta Psi) vs — no opponent, 121.

Dick Twining Discharged, To Reenter School in Time for Swimming Season

Santa Claus dropped in at Woollen gym several weeks early this year and, according to jubilant swimming Coach Dick Jamerson, he was most generous to the Blue Dolphins. His premature present consisted of the discharge from the army of Dick Twining, ace Tar Heel tanker of the 1945 and 1946, seasons.

Twining, who supposedly can do as many things in a swimming pool as Charlie Justice can do on a football field, won't come to Chapel Hill to enter school until the winter quarter begins early in January but the disclosure that this renowned freestyler will be available for the opening meet on January 15 has made Carolina an almost certain favorite to take this year's Southern conference tank title.

Since Twining has been in service for almost two years, he probably won't be able to get into top shape until late in the season. In commenting on the Dolphin's ability, Coach Jamerson called Twining "one of the best potential swimmers in the country."

Juniors Outfight Rowdy Foe, 54 - 40

By Bill Kellam

High Point's Panther Cubs scratched and bit Carolina's Juniors for two halves without letup tonight but at the end it was the superior polish and teamwork of Coach Pappy Jim Hamilton's charges that paid off and subsequently the locals came through with a convincing 54-40 victory.

The game was nip and tuck during the first half with neither team showing more than a six point advantage at any time. The score was tied six times before the White Phantomettes, sparked by Pete Peters and Charlie Thorne, pulled away to a 24-18 lead two minutes before the intermission.

High Point came back to close the score to 24-22 but John Tsantes racked up a layup shot shortly before the half time gun sounded to give the pale Blue and White a 26-22 lead.

The last half was a rough and tumble affair that got the best of the officials. The Carolina Juniors finally pulled away to a 33-25 lead after four minutes of bang up play and continued to slowly but surely increase their lead until the game's end.

Pete Peters, John Tsantes, and Charlie Thorne paced the Carolina offense with 14, 13, and 12 points apiece, respectively. In

The U. S. Air Force offers you

$336 a month one year after graduation

THAT'S what you can earn after completing one year of pilot training and winning your wings in the Air Force.

It is a good deal from the start. While you're an Aviation Cadet you draw $75 per month, plus food, quarters, uniforms, medical and dental care. After successfully finishing the course, you are commissioned a Second Lieutenant, Air Force Reserve, and assigned to active duty with the Air Force at $336 a month (including flight pay), with excellent chances for further increases as promotions come through.

In addition, you get an extra $500 for each year of active duty, and will be given a chance to compete for a commission in the Regular Air Force if you are interested in a service career.

This opportunity, which cannot be duplicated anywhere else at any price, equips men for well-paid, responsible positions throughout the aviation industry, at high pay from the beginning. It is open to you if you're single, between 20 and 26½ years old, and have completed at least one-half the requirements for a degree from an accredited college or university (or pass an examination measuring the equivalent). Ask for details at your U. S. Army and U. S. Air Force Recruiting Station, or write to Headquarters, U. S. Air Force, Attention: Aviation Cadet Section, Washington 25, D. C.

U. S. ARMY AND U. S. AIR FORCE RECRUITING SERVICE

NOTE: If you were awaiting assignment or taking training when the Aviation Cadet program was cut back in 1944-45, you can re-qualify simply by passing the physical examination, provided you meet the other requirements listed above. Write for information to Headquarters, U. S. Air Force, Attention: Aviation Cadet Section, Washington 25, D. C.

Coed Ping Pong Play Reaches Semi Finals

Another round in the coed table tennis tournament was completed yesterday and the four remaining girls will play off their semi-final matches in the next few days.

Those gaining victories were Frances Green, who won over Jane Morrison; Helen Crockford who downed Charlotte Johnson; Pat Winslow, who turned back Evelyn Pettitt; and Mary Ruth Davis, winner over Mary Lee Donoho.

From here on the Carolina lads continued to control the backboards and the scoreboard, too, while the first team retired and was replaced in turn by the second and third aggregations. High Point did come back into the game to a slight degree in the later portion of the half, entertaining what fans remained with a 19-point push that seemed the result of numerous pent-up scoring desires.

The game was an extremely rough one, with officials and fans alike having some trouble keeping up with the powerhouse tactics exhibited on the playing floor.

$50,000 Fire Guts Two Franklin Street Buildings

AN EARLY STAGE OF THE FIRE which swept two Franklin street buildings to an estimated tune of $50,000 is shown at upper right, as smoke pours from the rear and side of the building housing Western Union and Jefferson Standard Life Insurance offices. The crowd which later appeared has not yet gathered in the street. At upper left two unidentified students are aiding in removing laundry bundles from the University Service plant building, as water drips around them from the burning upper floors. Student Jim Blunt of Wilson stands in the background. Lower left, another student helps Durham Assistant Fire Chief C. H. Lawson pull a hose into position, while journalism major Gus Lacy is shown, lower right, on top of one of the burning buildings, axe in hand, as smoke almost overcomes him. The fire was reported to be the worst Chapel Hill has seen since 1924, when part of Franklin street went the way of all frame buildings. The blaze took two hours for Chapel Hill and Durham fire-fighters, with the aid of students and townspeople, to overcome. (Photos by Les Bodden)

Students, Townspeople Fight Blaze With Chapel Hill, Durham Firemen

By Chuck Hauser

"The biggest fire Chapel Hill has seen since 1924," according to local residents, swept through the second floors of two University-owned buildings on Franklin street yesterday afternoon to do an estimated $35,000 to $50,000 damage.

As Chapel Hill and Durham firemen battled the flames for almost two hours, University students were notable among those who pitched into the task of extinguishing the walls of flame which leapt from the windows and roofs of the University Service plant buildings.

Other students, not so civic-minded or eager to get drenched with the hoses being played over the structures, stood in the streets, on nearby rooftops, and even in the steeple of the Methodist church, cheering the firefighters on with such yells as, "Our town is red hot, beat Duke!"

Routine Fight?

When the quiet streets of Chapel Hill were first interrupted by the squawking fire horn at approximately 3:30 yesterday afternoon, no one thought they were rushing to see anything but a routine 10-minute smoke fight, and even pedestrians on Franklin street hardly noticed the thin column of smoke coming from the rear of the building housing the Western Union offices and the Jefferson Standard Insurance company, but within a half-hour, the billowing smoke and flames coming from the top of the building caused even the formerly indifferent Western Union employees to scuttle from the burning building, leaving telegrams unsent on the machines.

As a fire truck sent from Durham thundered up Franklin street at 4:30 to aid the overtaxed Chapel Hill regulars and volunteers, students had formed brigade lines and were tossing laundry bundles from hand to hand out of the University Service plant building, the roof of which was rapidly catching fire.

Florists Worried

Filing cases, tables, desks, records followed in rapid order, until the section was cleared, then the students pitched in to remove the contents of the University Florist's store next door, whose occupants were becoming worried that the fire might be carried over into their building.

The flames were brought under control approximately 5:15, however, after demolishing the contents of the upper floors of the two buildings nearest the Porthole alley.

The lower-floor offices of the Western Union, Jefferson Standard, and Service plant housings were a soggy mess of gushing water and falling plaster.

As students, without the protection of fire helments or other equipment, worked inside the burning buildings for more than an hour clearing out all perishable material, others climbed the rooftops with the heavy canvas hoses, fighting the blaze which threw enough heat across Franklin street to warm the faces of the hundreds of spectators who completely blocked traffic to stand and gape at the flames which spasmodically shot 30 feet or more into the air at the height of the fire.

First On Roof

Two students, Kurt Clauson and Charlie Stancill, were credited with being the first two men to reach the top of the burning buildings and play the first streams of water on the conflagration which lasted for almost two hours.

With damage estimates running as high as the $50,000 figured by Ed Bradshaw, University light and water head, to $35,000 by Recorder's court Clerk Moody Durham. Superintendent of Utilities Grey Culbreth figured that the cost of replacing the property destroyed was "intangible."

Local residents described the fire as the worst blaze to hit Chapel Hill since 1924, when several Franklin street frame buildings went up in flames. The last serious fire to be reported here was in 1942, when a school building, located on the present site of the Pittsboro road trailer camp, disappeared in smoke.

Not much more than a week ago, local fire-fighters were called to combat a blaze in the Hill bakery, which is located only a very few doors down from the ill-fated buildings of yesterday's catastrophe.

Looting of laundry bundles from the Service Plant offices was observed yesterday, but in the confusion of trying to fight the surging flames, police officers and other local officials had their hands too full to attempt to stop the law-breakers.

Other students were conspicuously observed wearing University florist carnations in their buttonholes.

Wicker Is Named As UWF Successor To R. G. Baldwin

Jake Wicker, of Sanford, was elected new president of the University chapter of United World Federalists in a late afternoon meeting yesterday. A junior and a political science major, Wicker succeeds Russell G. Baldwin, of Leland, in the position.

RUSSELL G. BALDWIN

Other nominations include: vice-president, Dean Matthews, of Decatur, Georgia; recording secretary, Betty Shouse, of Charlotte; corresponding secretary, Joy Blumenthal, of Greensboro; and treasurer, Herman Sieber, of Hendersonville.

The group met in the Grail lounge of Graham Memorial in the last UWF session before Christmas holidays begin. Retiring President Baldwin set January 8 as the date for a meeting of the steering committee. An announcement, said Baldwin, will be made at a later date for the first chapter meeting of the quarter.

Are They Joking?

The following notice was telephoned into the editorial office yesterday afternoon at 3:15. Laundry plans may have been changed since that time.

The University laundry will be closed Christmas week December 22 through 27. Pickups will be made December 15 through 20 and December 28 through January 3, after which the laundry will revert to the two week schedule. Included in the next laundry bundle will be a new schedule effective December 29 through June 2.

At the expiration of this period weekly service will be rendered throughout the summer months.

We wish to take this opportunity to wish all a Merry Christmas and a happy New Year!

University Laundry.

Forty Ex-Air Force Officers Prepare for Second Flight

Approximately 40 ex-Air Corps officers now at the University, who formed their own chapter of the Air Reserve this quarter, met yesterday for the last time before the Christmas holidays. Highlight of the meeting was the planning for a second contingent of reservists to fly next weekend to the Marietta air base in Atlanta, Georgia, for flight instruction.

Colonel Byron R. Switzer, commanding officer of the local Air ROTC unit, accompanied ten reserve officers last Saturday in the first of a series of trips to the Marietta base.

Air Reserve and Air ROTC

The Air Reserve and the Air ROTC, two entirely different campus organizations, were confused in yesterday's DTH. While the former is composed of men who were actually officers during the past war, the latter is made up at present of 30 veterans who were enlisted men but are now in a two-year training program to earn commissions in the air force reserves.

The ROTC curriculum trains supply and statistical control specialists and has no provisions for flight instruction. However, Congressional legislation now under consideration allows ten hours of flight training to be given Air ROTC recruits at 18 universities throughout the United States, including Carolina.

Those working for air reserve commissions this term are veterans in the junior class. In January elementary courses of the Air ROTC will start for freshmen with no previous service in the armed forces and sophomores with high school or military school ROTC experience. Enlistments in both of the new programs are now being accepted at the barracks annex behind the Naval armory.

WILMINGTON CLUB

There will be an emergency meeting of the Wilmington-Carolina club tonight at 7:30 in Gerrard hall.

Y Poll Indicates Rink Is Favored

To further sound public opinion on the proposed skating rink here at the University, the six-group representative committee took another poll on this question in the Y building yesterday morning.

This latest poll, combined with the recent one taken through the forum column in the Daily Tar Heel, gives majority of 79 per cent of 611 students polled in favor of such a project.

Members of the representative body that is investigating the possibilities of starting this rink on the campus, say they are now looking into the construction details as to whether the structure should be permanent or prefabricated in nature and the probable cost of each type.

Many favorable comments on the proposal were received in this latest quiz, such as "a skating rink would be something new", and would give the student body "a much needed recreation."

One student wrote on his answer blank, provided by the committee, that a rink "would provide additional recreational facilities, especially if run in a manner whereby dances and figure skating could be held."

ROOM KEYS

All dormitory residents not returning in January are requested to turn in their room keys to Bill Smith, Room 02, South building, before leaving for the Christmas holidays.

Teaching Hospital May Be Built Here As Merger Fails

Reasons for the previously reported rejection of the plan to combine the University teaching hospital and the hospital being built at Greensboro under the Cone foundation became clear here yesterday.

According to a statement released after the meeting Tuesday between the University trustees and the hospital trustees, "It is impossible to work out a plan of merger which will enable both institutions to perform their respective functions and, at the same time, comply with the limitations and mandates imposed on them by the terms of the Cone trust . . . and the policy . . . of a state institution."

As, under the provisions by which the Cone foundation has been set up, the hospital at Greensboro is to be operated primarily for the benefit of the residents of Guilford county, use of the hospital as an adjunct of the University could be considered to be a violation of the trust requirements and "could result in forfeiture of the entire trust in favor of certain other beneficiaries."

However, according to statements made yesterday by Governor Cherry and others, the failure of the plan may result in the construction of a teaching hospital in Chapel Hill.

Cherry's statement issued as a result of Tuesday's meeting indicated that plans for the construction of a hospital at Chapel Hill would be continued. An appropriation of $3,790,000 has already been made for such an institution by the General Assembly, and this amount is expected to be augmented by a Federal grant of $1,500,000.

The money has not been so far officially released, but the University has been authorized to have the architects' plans drawn.

Missing $7,000 Package Is Gloom-Causer in Yack Office

By John Stump

All was gloom in the Yack office yesterday afternoon as the editors and a few of the more hardy staff members sat biting their nails and writhing in the throes of "the worst scare to visit a campus organization this year."

It seems that last Saturday afternoon, as is their custom whenever anything is to be sent to the engraving company, the members of the staff put the finishing touches on several photographs and sent them across the street to Ab's bookstore—there to be wrapped and sent Railway Express to Charlotte.

The package contained all of the individual pictures taken thus far this year, the sports section to date, a part of the opening section, and the pictures taken of campus organizations. Its value, as conservatively estimated later, was $7,000.

According to an official of the bookstore, it was wrapped according to the Yack editors' request and picked up Saturday on schedule by Railway Express. He added that the package was insured for $1,000 because it seemed valuable; although he stated the Yack editors had not asked that it be insured.

A check with the Railway office revealed that the package to the best of their knowledge had not been insured. To the best of the Yack editors information, Ab's had been asked to insure it for $5,000.

However, yesterday the Yack staff was a little confused. The package with its year's work and $7,000 contents had simply disappeared.

The fact was announced to Ruth Evans in a telegram from the engraving company in Durham which stated simply "Yackety Yack pictures not arrived yet: please advise so that we may begin tracing".

Railway Express immediately put a checker on it, and an official here explained that the reason for the disappearance was probably the current Christmas rush.

With matters standing still, Gene Johnstone received the following late yesterday—"Yackety Yack photos received. Will notify engraving company. (signed) Herb Hitch".

With the Western Union office slightly burned up last night to send or receive messages, the mystery of where the package spent the last 5 days remains unsolved, but Johnstone remarked that "The student body has just saved $7,000, and the services of suicide-bent Yack workers."

According to Johnstone, "It would have been comparatively easy to locate the expensive packet, but the fire yesterday had to mess up Western Union so that they were unable to give us any service."

UNIVERSITY SCHEDULE

December 16, 17, and 18—Class tickets delivered to all pre-registered students, Registration hall.

December 13 through 18—Final examinations for fall quarter.

December 19 through January 5—Christmas recess.

Saturday, January 3, 1948—Winter quarter registration for new students and old students not pre-registered, Registration hall.

New Officers Named By Phi Kappa Sigmas

Members of Phi Kappa Sigma have elected new officers for the year. Going into office are George McLeod, president; Floyd Huffman, vice-president; Farrel Potts; treasurer; Bill Egeler, house-manager; Morris Knudsen, corresponding secretary; Dave Miles, pledge master; Jim Munden and James Austin, sergeants at arms.

Playmaker Head Samuel Selden to Read Dickens' 'A Christmas Carol' Tomorrow

Samuel Selden, director of the Carolina Playmakers, will carry on with a tradition started here 30 years ago by the late Frederick H. "Prof" Koch, founder of the Playmakers, when he gives a reading tomorrow night of Charles Dickens' "A Christmas Carol".

SAMUEL SELDEN

The reading, which is being presented to the students as a Christmas greeting from the University, is to be given in the Playmaker theater at 8 o'clock, and will be accompanied by special music.

"Prof" Koch, before his death in 1943, had given 278 readings of "A Christmas Carol" from California to the coast of North Carolina, including four times in New York's Town Hall and twice at Columbia University, over a period of 38 years. In 1942, Koch gave 19 readings of the piece in 17 North Carolina towns.

Selden joined the Carolina Playmakers in 1927. Before that, he was a charter member of the Yale Playcraftsmen, and his original play, "While the Horses Are Saddled", won the Sloan prize there. Later, Selden was with the Province Town Playhouse in New York, where he played Swanson in O'Neill's sea play, "Moon of the Caribbees".

The Best Possible Decision on the Hospital

The Chapel Hill community and those interested in establishing the four-year medical school here in Chapel Hill can breathe a sigh of relief now that the Board of Trustees have decided that no "satisfactory plan" can be arranged to merge the medical school with the Cone Memorial hospital of Greensboro.

The committee reasoned that a merger in which both institutions could perform their respective functions, would be very satisfactory. The provisions of the Moses H. Cone Memorial Hospital fund explicitly states that the hospital must be located in the Greensboro area. Therefore, if the University of North Carolina medical school were moved to Greensboro it would separate the medical school from its allied fields of chemistry, pharmacy and other sciences, and would not be a satisfactory arrangement.

The movement to combine the two medical projects began several months ago in the Greensboro-High Point area and it was given considerable editorial plugging by the High Point Enterprise in an editorial that was reprinted in several other state papers. It pointed out that Greensboro is one of the more densely populated areas in the State and is also in need of more adequate hospital facilities. The State could use the facilities of the Moses H. Cone Memorial Hospital as a training hospital if they established the medical school in Greensboro. It also stated that the Chapel Hill area does not need the hospital facilities since we have the Duke hospital here at our doorsteps.

But we, along with the committee which discussed the merger, believe that two separate medical programs would perform more service to the State. The medical students and the faculty need the facilities of the Pharmacy school and the excellent science departments which we have already here in Chapel Hill for training purposes. We believe that the committee has made the best decision possible and considered all aspects of the situation.

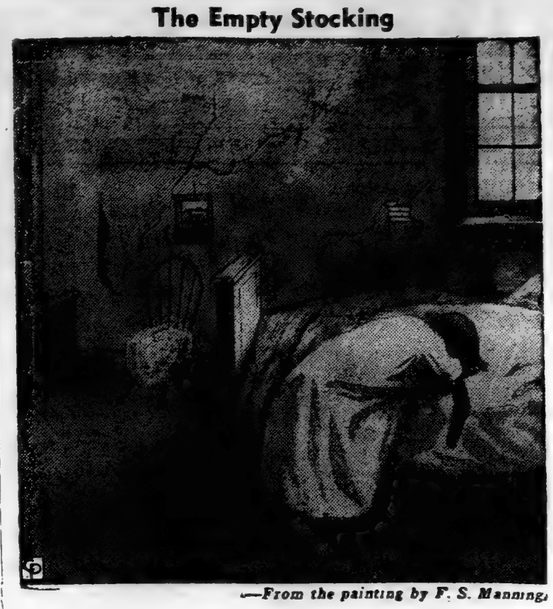
Hard to Replace

It does not hold true that an organization's most valuable members are its officers. Often a member who will be greatly missed is the man available at all times to do the "dirty work" of an organization—attend to minor details or carry out research on a project at a time when it would be almost impossible to get someone else to do the job. The University will be losing just such a man in the December graduating class—Jack Booraem. During his four years on this campus Jack was not elected to a single campus office, and yet, he served in many capacities. He was appointed by the presidents of the student body to do important jobs which had to be handled with delicacy and by a person who knew what he was doing.

Another man who will also be greatly missed is Bill Lamkin, DTH managing editor during the summer months and at present a valuable man at the Colonial printshop, where the DTH is printed. Lamkin, a good, dependable newspaperman, will be long remembered in publication circles. We wish him the best of luck on the Charlotte Observer.

Men such as Booraem and Lamkin are hard to replace and are a great loss to the campus.

Christmas Stuff



Good news for students and their wives spending the Christmas holidays in Chapel Hill comes with the announcement of the "Christmas Week" schedule planned for them by the Town Girls association and Graham Memorial.

The program, planned this year for the first time, will provide adequate and entertaining activity not only for students remaining here, but also for townspeople who have been invited to participate in the dances, caroling, game nights and the open house on Christmas Day at Graham Memorial.

An active group of students, led by Chuck Hilty, assistant director of Graham Memorial and Betsy Ann Barbee, president of Town Girls association are making an all-out effort to make the series of programs a success. Thanks to this group, Christmas in Chapel Hill will be home away from home for those who remain here. For them, and those who make it so, it will be a truly merry Christmas.

Campus Forum

Favor Turkey Holiday

By Pete Gerns

200 students were questioned during Tuesday and Wednesday to find their reaction to a prolonged Christmas season at the expense of a turkey-less Thanksgiving, and it was found that the system started this year is favored by a majority. 116 of those questioned (58 per cent) like to spend the Thanksgiving holidays at home.

Bob Green is not willing to give up his Thanksgiving holidays: "Here at Carolina, tradition means a lot; off hand can you tell me of an older tradition than these holidays?"

"Thanksgiving as it exists today is unique in that it is totally American. We should not lose the spirit it brings by being away from home in an utterly demoralizing place—Chapel Hill, or you name it. It ain't home". Charlie Kauffman. Speaking in the same vein is H. R. Cheek: "The holidays serve as a good time to get prepared for the final exams".

Two out-of-staters, Bob Goldwater of White Plains, New York, and Michael DeMaio of Turrington, Conn., say that they'd rather enjoy a Thanksgiving vacation even though they have to remain here; it gives them time to catch up on their track work.

On the other side of the fence sits Warren Olsen who gives us a good reason for abolishing Thanksgiving vacation: "There are many people on campus that are "out-of-staters" and would appreciate an extension of time to get home and back. The vacation break in the quarter merely tends to make the vital reviewing of the final two weeks a mess. On the other hand, many contend that a few days are desperately needed in order to go home for Thanksgiving dinner, etc., others say that a couple of days' "'rest' for the final two weeks is a blessing; but rather than 'resting up', the vacation is lost because of the football game, beer parties, et al.". Dan Lipman also thinks that Thanksgiving vacations are too close to Christmas to take any reasonable advantage of them."

Spencer Omalls adds to this that a longer Christmas vacation would benefit especially those who have to work to make a living, "such as many starving veterans". (sorry, if we didn't get that name right).

Others favoring Thanksgiving vacations are Robert Pittman, Fred Burgess, Don Latta, and Tom Holden. They'd like to have that extra chance to go home to visit with their folks. Less strain on the po' little minds. The only trouble this year was, adds Burgess, that the Graham Memorial office was closed, thus preventing the use of ping pong, chess, and cards.

"Tarnation" Review

Laughs! If That's What You Want

By Bob Sain

From early proofs of the new campus humor mag, this reviewer can honestly recommend it to those who have found the past two issues of the Carolina Mag more than a trifle too arty. "Tarnation," as the addition to the local publications field is called, has numerous laughs and will certainly tax no one's intelligence or perception.

Those looking for in "Tarnation" for remembrances of the fondly remembered "Buccaneer" and "Tar and Feathers" will find few. Editor Tookie Hodgson has a quite logical desire to remain Editor Tookie Hodgson, and he therefore, avoided the bawdy nekkid lady humor of his predecessors.

Hodgson and staff have numerous occasions pointed that they will not take themselves seriously, so there is certainly no point in a reviewer doing so

Chief source of humor for "Tarnation" is the female, her anatomy, her way of thinking, even her clothes. Some of it is quite well presented in the traditional (though toned down) collitch humor fashion, some of it falls slightly flat. Editor Hodgson himself, modestly relegating himself to the back pages, contributes a bit of "autobiography". This Thurberesque is not uproariously funny, nor was it intended to be. "Tarnation" staff has given itself the task of pleasing everyone, and everyone does not get his kicks solely on he-she gag.

Chiefly of value in this edition is the department profiling Prexy Tom Eller. For newcomers on campus this department is, and will be, useful reading. In a similar vein, though not at all serious, is a section depicting campus wheels—political, social, publications-wise. Editor Hodgson swears that he had no-one in mind for these "good-naturedly malicious" portraits—though you can think of two or three persons whom the shoes fit.....

Summing up, we present the DTH table:

Writing: fair to good.
Make-up: Not attractive.
Illustrations: Very good
Prospects for future edition excellent.

Just Here

You Cheat Only Yourself

By Larry Berry

On this campus there are several official honor councils. Most of us hear about them during election time when political aspirants seek positions. One of the functions of these honor councils is to enforce honor amongst those of us who believe it to be only a pretty word.

Tomorrow we start our fall quarter exams and as usual a few students will believe "the teacher has the honor and we have the system." The odds are that most of these will not be caught, although a few cheaters will have to present their version of honor in the near future before one of these councils. This is a rash statement, but every year a few students leave the University as cheats in our society. Of course for the many who cheat and remain, the question is different. Do they know who they are cheating? I doubt if many of our professors teach merely to find the students who are cheating, but I think they teach in hope of presenting material to us in an understandable manner.

When we cheat we are only robbing ourselves of (1) time, (2) money, (3) self-respect, and (4) good citizenship. This exam period will probably see more opportunities for cheating than ever before. Let's see if we can't carry the Carolina Spirit into our examrooms as something to be proud of no matter how many opportunities to cheat come our way.

Congratulations to all of you who graduate with the end of this quarter. About seven years ago I attended the New York World's fair. People were looking to the world of the future without atom bombs and other weapons. The emphasis was on a peaceful world to come in which people would no longer live in fear. Of course some of the nations represented were already fighting, but we hoped with the end of World War II that an end had been put to the aggressor nations.

We still like to think of the wonderful world of the future as more than a pipe-dream. Where does all this fit in with some students graduating from a southern university? The educated persons will lead us in this world of the future, and whether it is the world of the atom bomb jitters or the world presented by the Futurama of New York's World's fair depends on us. They say Universal Good Will is out of fashion now, but I believe that a few outstanding examples would help it on the road to recovery. You who are graduating have the opportunity. GOOD LUCK!

Dignity Gone

Bughouse Square Misses Lady Cop

CHICAGO (UP)—Some of the kindness and quiet dignity has gone out of Bughouse Square.

The "lady cop" has passed along and her beat, which she called a "hotbox," is patrolled by a male policeman.

The debaters, drunks, dope peddlers and addicts, derelicts from cheap hotels and frowzy pickups don't exactly take to men cops. They miss kindly, bright-eyed Mrs. Marie C. Hagan, 74, who before she died for 28 years kept peace in the mecca of soapbox orators and rebels.

Bughouse Square is sandwiched between Chicago's Gold Coast and the dingier near north side. From the break of day until nearly midnight and all day Sundays and holidays, the benches and walks are lined with debaters who argue until they are hoarse on most any subject.

After Mrs. Hagan's last visit, somebody asked her if she wasn't frightened at the tempo and topics of the arguing—religion. Russia, communism and capitalism.

'They were talking about the same thing 20 years ago. They talk a lot but they don't solve anything—and they don't hurt anybody."

Father, Son Team Crack Many Safes

SALT LAKE CITY (UP) — When Blair B. Fowler of Salt Lake City went to university, he studied to become a mechanical engineer.

But when he got out of school, he decided to follow in his father's fingerprints and become a safecracker, legally.

The father, Charles A. Fowler has been breaking into Utah safes by request, for more than 30 years. He estimates that over those years he has cracked more than 6,000 strongboxes.

Most of the safecracking jobs come to the father-and-son locksmith team from merchants who have lost or forgotten the combination.

But illegal burglars bring a lot of business to the legal breakers inners.

This Changing World

Is Everyone Really A Stinker?

By Bill Robertson

In past articles we have referred to the general feeling of disillusionment and despair that has gripped the student body. Recently this state of mind was given striking emphasis by a student in a bull-session. He stated, and we quote: human beings are fundamentally stinkers.

It so happens that we have known and loved quite a few human beings and we can not agree with that unpleasant idea. But one cannot idly dismiss such an idea by disagreeing with it. Rather it is a challenge to everyone who thinks otherwise to present a positive statement of his ideas on the subject.

Most people today recognize the importance of environment in moulding and shaping the personalities — and even the ideas—of human beings. But unlike other animals, or to a greater extent than other animals, human beings are able to change their environment Human nature may be fundamentally the same but it is certainly affected by the kind of society in which people find themselves. For example, it is possible for human beings to become cannibals, fascists, and race-haters. It is also possible for human beings to become courageous life-savers, democrats, and practicing believers in the brotherhood of man.

In our opinion all of the social evils of today, including the disgusting commercializing of the spirit of Christmas, can be done away with by bringing about changes in our social environment. Changes in social environment for the better are possible. More than that, they are taking place before our very eyes all over the World. The colonial peoples are achieving their freedom and idependence. The coutries of Eastern Europe (the ambassadors of both Poland and Yugoslavia have spoken to us) are making rapid strides toward recovery from the effects of war. And the beauty of it is that, in each case, people are working together to achieve this. Not only are they changing and improving their environments, but are changing and improving themselves.

But aside from all this—what can students on the campus do to improve conditions—and therefore to improve themselves? First of all, since they are students, they can study the causes of the present corrupt social environment which produces cynics, pessimists, and race-haters. Such types don't come by their qualities naturally. They are not born that way. But some are born rich and some are born poor. Some have economic security and some do not. (and that is the beginning of a radical idea).

We know of the ability of people to improve their environment by learning how it got that way and then doing something about it. We also know that as soon as the students on this campus see the connection between the refusal of the board of trustees to recognize a union of University employees as a bargaining agent and their own personal gripes,

Dear Editor:

Several times each year through this publication and other means, recognition is given to the loyal janitors of the mens dormitories. For some time now it has been the custom of the majority of students to allow their janitors the right to collect the deposit on all empty soft drink and milk bottles. A small way of expressing their appreciation for the janitors numerous services.

Recently I learned that even though two to three cents deposit respectively is paid by all students the janitor can only recieve one cent a bottle when he returns them. What is more he is required to pay the full deposit on all drinks he purchases. Where are these "hidden profits" going? Into the pockets of student employees or the cash register of the Armory store? If the former is true then it is the duty of the Student Legislature to take action. If it is the latter then it is my hope that pressure will be brought to bear by one of the student organizations dedicated to the prevention of such unfair and undemocratic practices.

A penny or two isn't much, but when multiplied daily by a couple of thousand one begins to see the size of the injustice that is being done.

No Paper

Dear Sir:

Yesterday I received the following postal from the DTH circulation manager, in questionably tactful reply to a delivery complaint.

Dear Sir:

The reason that you have not been getting a sufficient number of DTH's is that you didn't fill out cards. Set your own house in order before you scream for help.

—Owen D. Lewis
Circulation Manager

My reply in turn to him is listed below for the general edification of all other DTH'less students:

Dear Mr. Lewis:
Your card arrived this afternoon;
The language was quite strong.
But why are you browned off at me?—
I did no harmful wrong.

I merely said that, dammitall,
Instead of getting three,
We might get one, or none at all,
And that's what's eating me.

I know that I filled out a card,
But can's speak for the others.
And I don't have to scream for help,
For I don't need it, brother.

Why call each other all these names,
And start a campus battle?
Just send us each a DTH
And stop this childish prattle!

BIG YEAR IN SPORTS

ACCORDING TO THE calendar, it's the time of the year for Christmas cheer. And this being the final Daily Tar Heel before vacation time, it gives us a good chance to look back on the Carolina sports scene for 1947.

It was certainly a successful year. Southern conference honors were annexed in four sports—swimming, wrestling, track, and golf—and Tar Heel teams were runners-up in basketball, tennis, and showing. The overall varsity totals for the year show 102 wins against 33 losses, for an incomplete average of .756. The final percentage for the year awaits two more cage contests—tonight's tussle with Hanes and the New Year's Eve clash with Loyola.

Broken down by sports, the records are:

Basketball (46-47)	15	6	Tennis	21	1
Basketball (47-48)	4	0	Track	5	0
Wrestling	7	1	Golf	8	1
Swimming	6	2	Football	8	3
Boxing	1	5	Cross country	5	0
Baseball	16	11	Soccer	6	3

Wondering about that "3" in the football loss column? Just remember that Carolina played Georgia twice during 1947.

TURNING CALENDAR PAGES

GOING THROUGH MONTH by month and picking out some of the highlights, we find ourselves back in:

JANUARY—and Carolina's first trip to a bowl game . . . The basketball trip north with a double-overtime loss to LaSalle and a thrilling, two-point, upset victory over NYU . . . The Blue Dolphins' first loss in a home meet after 26 straight wins . . . The Phantoms versus Carnevale of Navy, and Carnevale winning.

FEBRUARY—and another overtime defeat for the cagers, this one to State . . . An overflow crowd at the first Duke game, Nemo tarting in place of "Hook" and pacing the way to a crushing 49-23 triumph over the unbeaten Devils . . . The football schedule finally released after months of waiting . . . The Carolina-State game in Raleigh "crowded out."

MARCH—and the Tar Heels start right in by getting a lion's share of the honors at the indoor track championship meet . . . Carolina wins conference tank and mat titles, loses in cage finals, all in one day.

APRIL and MAY—and the Whites nip the Blues, 7-6, in off-season football . . . William and Mary sweeps to the SC tennis crown, with Larned topping Seixas in the finals . . . The golf and track teams roll to loop championships . . . Tar Heel baseballers recover from a bad slump to down State in final two games and present Duke with the Big Four diamond crown.

ATHLETES GET HOT

THE SUMMER MONTHS didn't stop Tar Heels in sports—they ever became hotter . . . Seixas travelled the tennis circuit and did well all the way . . . Simmons did likewise in national track meets and with a touring cinder squad in Europe. Which brings us to . . .

SEPTEMBER—and the Tar Heel gridders avenge the New Year's Day loss to Georgia. That made it a fine month.

OCTOBER—and a few things not so fine . . . The eyes of Texas running all over Carolina and the Deacons preach a two-touchdown sermon the following week . . . Snavely's club hands SC champs, William and Mary, only loss of year.

NOVEMBER—and more big news on the gridiron . . . Revenge over the Vols . . . Murder in series renewal with State . . . Big weekend in Washington . . . CAROLINA 21, DUKE NOTHING . . . Cavaliers toppled for seventh straight . . . "A long, hard schedule and * * * * Carolina will not accept a bowl bid . . . The three "M's" continue to lead the way in cross country . . . Milne wins national harrier crown . . . Booters end successful season. All of which brings us down to:

DECEMBER—and back to basketball . . . Phantoms open season with four straight but State does even better with seven in row and 100 points in one game . . . 1948 grid schedule out already, with LSU added in place of Florida . . . Santa Claus is coming to town.

XMAS SHOPPING LIST

AND WITH only 11 shopping days left before Christmas, it's time to make out our list to St. Nick. And after lots of deliberation, we've decided to ask the jolly, old gent to deliver the following presents to the following people:

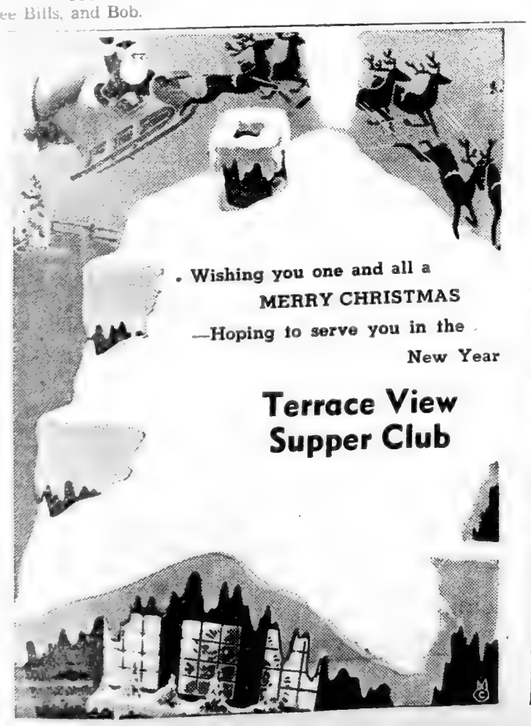
CARL SNAVELY—a branding iron to stamp UNC on the Longhorn Steer. Also a jet-propelled starter to push the Tar Heels in their first few games—they'll need a fast start with that schedule.

CHUCK ERICKSON—a Genie to deliver a prefabricated, indoor basketball stadium seating 12,000 and to be found on the intramural field come January 3. If no stadium in stock, leave lots of aspirin—he'll need it when it comes to seating the cage crowds.

BOB FETZER—put a collapsible track in the walls of Chuck's indoor stadium, and Coach Bob will really put on an indoor track show.

TOM SCOTT—lots of points when the Phantoms play State.

BUNN HEARN and WALT RABB—some more pitchers like DiLorenzo.



JOHN KENFIELD—a hatchet to use to scalp the Indians.

DALE RANSON—a pair of 9.8 sprinters.

CAROLINA COEDS, FELLOWS, and FACULTY—Merry Christmas and Happy New Year from Morty, Dick, Taylor, Kyle, Larry, the three Bills, and Bob.

Phantoms Face Hanes Hosiery In Winston-Salem Tonight

Locals in Final Pre-Holiday Tilt

By Dick Jenrette

Carolina's White Phantoms tonight will make their first out-of-town appearance of the season by travelling to Winston-Salem for a game with the strong Hanes Hosiery Knitters. The game is the last for Coach Tom Scott's outfit until after Christmas.

The Carolina boys will be out to make it five wins in a row when they tangle with the tall Hanes team. Boasting what is probably the best defensive record in the state, the Phantoms have disposed of Catawba, Guilford, Elon, and High Point with little trouble thus far.

Following tonight's contest Carolina will rest until the end of December before going north to meet Loyola in Baltimore. The next home game will be on Saturday, January 3—just before the Christmas holidays end—with Maryland's Old Liners providing the opposition in a Southern conference clash.

Scott's team finished second in the loop last season and this year is believed to be the biggest threat to N. C. State, which copped the title last year with a two-point victory over the Phantoms in the conference tourney.

See Acton Tonight

Against Hanes, Coach Scott is expected to open with Bob Paxton and Bill Miller at forwards, Nemo Nearman at center, and Norm Kohler and King Cole at guards. But John Dillon, who recently has been playing with the same old-time zest that made him an All-American, will see much action. Taylor Thorne, the scrappy guard who is a veteran of several good Carolina teams, also has been bringing a smile to Coach Scott with his good play.

Fred Swartzberg, Coy Carson, and Fred Ryan combine with Dillon and Thorne to give Carolina some capable reserve strength this year.

Beaten by State

The Hanes team hasn't had much luck against Big Four teams yet, losing to State by 14 points and to Duke by six. Nevertheless, they will give Carolina its biggest test yet. Holding State to a 14-point victory, while nothing to brag about, is something that no other team has been able to do yet.

Hilliard Nance, hefty center, is the mainstay of the Knitter quint. Hugh Hampton, a well known cage performer in local basketball circles several years back, coaches the team. Other stars include Don Anderson, former Phantom forward, Cedric Loftis, ace Duke guard for several years, and Howie Nance.

Carolina has limited its four opponents this season to an average of about 30 points a game. The Phantoms, meanwhile, have been able to score about 58 points a game on the average.A total of 74 markers against Elon was the biggest single output.

Seixas, Miller Set For Sugar Bowl Play Near End of December

Carolina's two representatives to the Sugar Bowl sports carnival in New Orleans continue to work out in preparation for their big tests.

Vic Seixas, who will play in the three-day tennis tournament that gets under way on December 28, expects to be in shape to meet some of the roughest competition that the South can offer.

Jimmy Miller, who will make his second attempt to win the Sugar Bowl 3,000-meter run, has been taking his workouts on Fetzer field daily regardless of the weather and is near top shape. The field in this event, also scheduled for December 28, is probably the fastest that has ever been assembled in Dixie. It includes Jerry Thompson, from the University of Texas; Curt Stone, Penn State's IC4A and NCAA two-mile champion; Miller, and Eddie O'Toole of Manhattan and the N.Y.A.C.

Other North Carolinians to run in the cinder classic are Chunk Simmons, in the 110-meter high hurdles, running unattached, and Roger Neighborgall of Duke.

Mary Davis Champ In Ping Pong Play

The semi-final and final rounds in the coed table tennis tournament were reeled off prematurely yesterday and when it was all over, Mary Ruth Davis had emerged the victor.

Representing Carr dormitory, Miss Davis downed Helen Crockford, 21-18, 21-15, in the finals to gain the coed table tennis title. In the semi-final matches, the new champion downed Pat Winslow, while Miss Crockford defeated Frances Greene. The other three girls all represented the Town team.

Miss Davis will be awarded a plaque for her victory. The Women's Athletic Association plans to hold another tourney in the Spring.

TANK TRIALS TODAY

Coach Dick Jamerson announced yesterday that time trials will be held today in Bowman-Gray pool. This will probably be the last practice for the Blue Dolphins until after the Christmas holidays. The trials will begin at 4:15 in the afternoon.

Fraternities Cop Mural Wrestling, Volleyball

By Taylor Vaden

The Intramural department closed its fall quarter sports program yesterday as Phi Gamma Delta copped the campus championship in volleyball and the fraternity wrestlers downed the dormitory representatives for the campus honors.

In the heavyweight division of the grappling tourney, Carl Simpson pinned Leon Todd in one minute of the third round to keep the heavyweight title which he won last year.

In the 165-pound class O. R. Swigart won top honors through a default over Cliff Frazier. Bob Barnes, SAE's lone representative in the all-campus tussle, pinned Boo Walker, a last year's winner, in 1:15 minutes of the third period.

The match between the two Kemp brothers, Bob and Phil, ended in a draw. Bob represented the Med School, while his brother was wrestling for DKE. Referee of the match was varsity matman Bill Kemp, another brother.

M. M. Boren, another champion from last year, outpointed Charles Jetty, 8-0, to maintain his crown in the 128-pound class. Carrol Fisher, representing Sigma Chi in the 145-pound group, outpointed Tom Allen for the top honors. Allen wrestled in the 136-pound class last year and took all-campus honors in that division, while Fisher copped the all-campus crown in the 145-pound class in 1946.

The fraternity representatives took the team honors by winning three matches and tying one, holding the dormitory grapplers to two wins and a tie.

Phi Gamma Delta again took the all-campus honors in mural volleyball by trouncing the Med School, 15-10, and 15-3. The Phi Gams led all the way in both games.

Five of Phi Gam's winning team members were also on last year's championship squad. Tom Stratford, Milt Cash, Ted Schultz, Bob Hines, and Julius Smith were the holdovers. Other members of the winning squad are Jack Pierce and Bill Tate.

Winter Sports Ready to Open After Vacation

When the winter sports squads return from their Christmas holidays their respective mentors will be hoping that they have had a complete rest and will be in condition to win Southern conference championships again this season.

The Blue Dolphins will continue to experiment to find the team that will keep the conference crown here. Coach Dick Jamerson has men who can compete successfully in many events of varying distances. His latest problem, and one he surely welcomes is the return of freestyler Dick Twining, the nearest thing to a fish that ever hit Bowman-Gray pool. However, Coach Jamerson said Twining would probably see action in the 100 and 220.

When the mermen resume practice for their opening meet they will be aiming to avenge the 51-24 beating the Florida Gators inflicted on them when last they met in 1940. In one of the best meets ever held here, eight pool records were broken. Last year Georgia Tech became the second southern school to out point the Jamersonians.

Due to the intramural schedule, the wrestlers started their vacation two weeks ago. However, many of the matmen have been working out on their own under the guidance of assistant coach Hobie McKeever.

The wrestlers lost only one meet last year as they half-nelsoned their way to the southern conference championship; three Tar Heels winning individual titles in the process. Irv Zirpel, 155 and Laurie Hooper, heavyweight, are the two champions in the group of seven returning lettermen. Phil Kemp, who received enthusiastic notices from Coach McKeever earlier this year, lived up to them by capturing the 155 pound intramural

Five Carolina Grid Seniors Oppose Clippers Tomorrow

Charlotte will be the scene of the final football action in this section of the country Saturday afternoon, when the College All-Stars try to do what no other club has done this season. That is, beat the Charlotte Clippers.

Peahead Walker of Wake Forest and Rex Enright of South Carolina are head coaches of the collegiate aggregate and it is their unenviable duty to mold a team that will be able to stop the Clip's stars, Butch Butler and Casey Jones. This pair has been almost unstoppable in all their games. The Queen city outfit is ranked by most observers as the leading minor league eleven in the country.

Walker and Enright have split the squad and the seniors from South Carolina are working out at Presbyterian college in the Palmetto state while the North Carolinians are practicing at Wake Forest.

Carolina stars that will take part in this contest are John Tandy, George Sparger, Jim Camp, Joe Wright and George Roberts.

Fraternity championship. The McKeevermen still have a lot to do before they open their schedule sometime next month.

The track squad as a whole will be pointing for the Southern Invitation games to be held in Chapel Hill on February 28, but Coach Dale Ranson's immediate goal is to develop a good one or two-mile relay team for the Millrose games in Madison Square Garden in New York on January 31.

Coach Ranson said yesterday that going to the meet depended upon the performance of the boys themselves. "It is up to boys like Don Nelson, Mark Burnham, Jimmy Miller, Julian MacKenzie, Halstead Holden, Bob Black, and Sam Magill to get us an invitation," he added.

Individual runners and field men will be competing in the various meets on the Eastern seaboard during January.

And, such being its nature, it is quite possible for it to grow until it embraces all the peoples of the earth.

Mag Will Be Issued Sometime Next Week

The Carolina Magazine will be ready for distribution during exam week, editor Fred Jacobson announced today.

In order for the magazine to be available to students who are still here, the magazines will be placed in stacks at key points on the campus, Jacobson said.

These points are Lenoir hall, the "Y", the Carolina Inn, the Vet's Co-op and the trailer camp.

Students who leave before the Mags are available will be able to pick them up at these same points when they return from the holidays.

One look and you'd say that a great deal of work lies ahead before this new telephone central office is completed. That's true. But already, much of the job is done!
For months telephone men have been hard at work—in offices and in the field. One group has carefully studied business and population trends and has forecast the telephone needs of the community for years to come. Another has determined the amount and types of equipment that will best meet these needs. Still others have found ways to make this new equipment a part of our world-wide communications network.
At our Western Electric plants the telephone equipment—the switchboards, frames and switching mechanisms, the cable, wire and relays—has been scheduled and is already being manufactured.
All this and more before the ground was broken!
The telephone business is a constantly expanding business in which thousands of college men are finding interesting and rewarding careers. There's a future in telephony.

Rumor Says Graham May Lose Presidency

The oft-recurring rumor that Dr. Frank Porter Graham is on his way out as president of the Greater University of North Carolina has appeared again, according to Roulhac Hamilton, Jr., head of the Washington bureau of the Durham Morning Herald.

Hamilton reported from Washington that rumors reaching there from North Carolina suggested that Dr. Graham, often accused of leftist tendencies, had possibly put the last straw on the back of the well-known camel when he added his name to the list of signers of the anti-segregation report released by President Truman's Civil Rights commission.
Document Displeases..... bf line

Reports indicate, said Hamilton, that the Board of Trustees and other influential people connected with the University were displeased over the controversial document which criticized racial conditions in the South.

The rumor continues that influential people in the state were irked recently when the House Un-American Activities committee and the Justice department recently released their list of "subversive" groups in the country, several of which Dr. Graham either belongs to or has sided.

One reliable source, continued Hamilton, even went so far as to say that an attempt had already been made within the Board of Trustees to either oust Dr. Graham or to publicly reprimand him, but that the move failed because it was instigated by the "wrong man." The identity of the "wrong man" was not revealed.

The dynamic little educator, now in Indonesia with a United Nations committee, is not expected to return to the campus immediately, according to his office in South Building. His official title is United States Representative on the Good Offices Council of the United Nations on committee of the Security Council on Indonesia.

University students may remember Reporter Roulhac Hamilton as the man who first reported last spring an unconfirmed and unproductive rumor that the House Un-American Activities committee was planning an investigation of Communists at the University

Three Days Mark First Orientation By Jess Dedmond

In a three-day round of activity, new students were registered and indoctrinated into the Carolina way of life this weekend under the direction of new Orientation Chairman Jess Dedmond.

Friday the neophyte Tar Heels waded through placement tests and physical examinations after a morning meeting in Gerrard hall at which Chancellor R. B. House welcomed the students, Claude Shotts discussed "Y" activities, and Dean Spruill of the General College outlined the registration and advisory program.

At a Saturday morning meeting, orientation counselors were assigned and new men headed for the registration lines. Almost all the new students were registered by 2 o'clock in the afternoon, according to Dedmond.

Sunday evening marked the last general meeting of new students. Opened by Rev. J. C. Herrin, Baptist student chaplain, the convocation heard addresses by Dean Fred Weaver on the Honor and Campus Codes, student body President Tom Eller on student government, Di Senate President Charlie Long on forensic activities on the campus, and Daily Tar Heel Sports Editor Bill Carmichael on publications.

Photostat Service Available on Campus

University Central Records office announced yesterday, by way of a reminder, that it offers to the student body a complete photostatic service.

Students who often go to unnecessary trouble in getting copies of discharges and other important papers can for the nominal fee of 50 cents per page get all photostatic work done overnight. This service is available at the Central Records office, 302 South building.

Campus Beauties Are Briefed On Friday Afternoon Contest

Carolina's beauties and their men were alerted yesterday by a bulletin issuing from the office of General Lil Hotard and outlining plans for the beauty contest to be conducted by the Yackety Yack this week.

Detailed plans are not yet available, but the general outlines of the campaign have been released. The contest itself will be held Friday afternoon in Memorial hall from 4 to 6, under the direction of man about campus Tag Montague who will serve as master of ceremonies.

Each of the 75 campus organizations contacted by the Yack was urged by Hotard to submit its candidates for Queen of the Yack between 3 and 6 o'clock Thursday in preparation for the contest on Friday. Only coeds may be considered, and each organization may be represented by 1 to 3 of them.

A charge of $5 per girl is being levied on the sponsoring organization to take care of picture space in the Yack. In addition to the Queen, a court of 16 girls will be selected to represent the peaches and cream of beauty at Carolina.

The student body is invited to the contest on Friday, and an attempt is being made to secure a band to add music to pulchritude for the afternoon's activities.

Montague, whose reluctance to take the job of MC was overcome almost without argument by Yack editor Bursley, opined in an interview yesterday afternoon that a full house would be present, "because of the interest that Carolina men have always shown in cultural subjects."

Dr. Frank P. Graham, according to a rumor received in Washington, D. C., from this state, may be the object of an attempt to oust him as president of the Greater University of North Carolina. He is shown above in the most recent picture of him received in the Daily Tar Heel offices. The photograph, taken in Honolulu, shows the dynamic little educator being greeted on his arrival in Hawaii on his way to the Dutch East Indies with a United Nations commission. At the left is Professor Henry Brandis of the University Law school, an advisor to the commission, and in the center Dr. Leo M. Brooks of the University Sociology department, who is at present visiting professor at the University of Hawaii.

Thousand Marines Leave N. C. Coast For Mediterranean

By United Press

MOREHEAD CITY, Jan. 5—Approximately 1,000 grim-faced marines set sail from here today bound for service with the United States fleet in the Mediterranean.

The marines sailed a day ahead of schedule as Marine Corps headquarters imposed heavy secrecy on the exact number who left and on the type equipment they carried with them.

Supposedly headed for shipboard duty, the leathernecks were observed loading tanks, bulldozers, guns, and combat equipment along. One dock observer made the remark, "Those aren't blanks they're loading."
Combat Veterans ....1 line ....bf....

Part of the detachment were combat veterans of the Pacific theater, and the others have been trained in amphibious warfare in long maneuvers on the North Carolina coast.

As about 100 members of the men's families waved goodbye from the pier, a small number of the fatigue uniform-clad youngsters climbed aboard the cargo carrier Montague, while the majority boarded the personnel carrier Bexar. The men were carrying helmets, rifles, and duffel bags.

Busloads of marines and truckloads of equipment moved through Morehead City today the ships were loading. All were shielded from view. Danger signals denoting a dangerous cargo were flying from the ships.

Observers say the equipment put aboard included food, gasoline, and oil. Several trucks were seen driving to the pier flying red flags, the sign that ammunition is being carried.

Unidentified Body Is Found in Durham

DURHAM, Jan. 5—(UP)—The body of an unidentified Negro man was discovered here today by former city employee Lewis Williams.

Williams stumbled over the corpse in his basement, and then dragged it out onto the street. The victim was about 60 years old, police officials said.

Mag Distribution Expected To Be Completed Today

By John Stump

Distribution of the slightly delayed December issue of the Carolina mag began yesterday afternoon, and all students are expected to receive their copies by this morning. Originally expected out before Christmas, it was delayed by another publication issued by the Orange print shop.

Features of the new issue are "Salute To Humor" by Charlie Gibson and "The Postman Rings Twice," a defense of the mag policies outlined by editor Fred Jacobson.

Gibson's article, written after research into past ventures into the humor mag situation at Carolina, does not mention the current one. However, mag sources indicate that it is intended to salute Tarnation and in the words of Jacobson "to send it on its happy way."

"The Postman Rings Twice" was written according to Jacobson in answer to "one of the best criticisms of mag policy yet received here." the Answer points out that the mag serves as a lab for campus journalists, and (mag staffers believe) should explain the mag's policy and situation to its critics.

"We do not receive the type of stories handed in to the Saturday Evening Post" Jacobson explained, "and if such are written on this campus they probably go to the Post, not to us."

This issue also includes a reprint of the Daily Tar Heel condemnation of the "My five year old daughter could do better school" of modern art with its defense. Conducted by Don Shields with an assist from James Moon, the article is an attempt to explain modern art to the average student.

Fact Films to Be Discussed on Air

The making of the documentary film, from writing through casting and production will be discussed on tonight's "Writers at Work" radio show, heard locally over WDNC at 10 o'clock.

Robert Schenkkan, radio writer at the Communications center, will moderate the discussion, and participants will be Edward Freed, new professor of motion pictures; Earl Wynn, director of the center; and Charles Milner, who is in charge of the distribution of educational films throughout the state.

Mr. Freed, winner of an Avery Hopwood playwriting award, has made movies with the Department of Agriculture, as well as in Hollywood. Mr. Wynn made films for the Navy during the war.

The full schedule of four weekly programs was carried out by the Communications center during the holidays, with the exception of the Wednesday night show, "Thirty-Three by Air." It will be resumed on January 14 with the production of "The Escape of Herbert Hinkle," a comedy written by Robert Rolnik, student in the dramatic script writing class.

Based on a news item relating how a New York bus driver drove his company's bus to Florida, the show will be produced by Marty Pearsall, and heard at 8:30 p. m.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 5—(UP)—The British have received permission to transfer to the Greek army any American lend-lease military equipment possessed by their forces in Greece. The State Department revealed tonight that it has given Britain blanket authority for such a transfer.

Stevens, McLeod to Lead UNC Debaters Against Benn, Boyle of Oxford Tonight

By Don MacDonald

Resolved: That the danger of war can best be averted by an all-purpose Anglo-American alliance."

Such is the resolution with which the University Debate council, led by Merle Stevens and Randall McLeod, plays host to the Oxford university debating team at 8 o'clock tonight in Hill hall.

Principals of the Oxford debaters include a 22-year-old member of Parliament, the Honorable Anthony Neil Wedgewood Benn, and Sir Edward Charles Gurney Boyle Baronet, secretary of the Oxford Union society.

The British visitors, who have been touring this country since September under the sponsorship of the Institute of International Education, will take the negative discussion. Tonight's appearance will be the only one for the group in North Carolina.

Benn, who was educated Westminister school and New College, Oxford, was selected as Parliamentary candidate of the British Labor party and won the election last year. He holds a bachelor of arts degree in politics, philosophy and economics and will be awarded an additional degree in June of this year. Sir Edward Boyle, Bt., was educated at Eton college where he edited the "Eton College Chronicle." During the war he served with the British Foreign Office.

National Champion

Carolina debaters Stevens and McLeod are active members of the Debate council. Miss Stevens, a co-ed from Forest City, is National Women's Debate Champion, a title she won last year while a student at Mars Hill college. McLeod, a native of Maxton, is a member of the Dialectic Senate and is active in publications. The two members returned before Christmas holidays from a Southern tour in which they defeated the University of South Carolina, North Georgia college and the University of Georgia.

A Carolina Inn banquet honoring the visiting debaters will precede the program, Earl Fitzgerald, Debate Council president, said yesterday. The Oxford debate begins the year's forensic activities for the Tar Heel team.

Methodist Church Holds UNC Plant; Fire Costs $60,000

With only one business day lost as a result of last quarter's extensive downtown fire, the University Service Plant is back in the "business as usual" routine in the old Chapel Hill Methodist church on Franklin street. The structure now temporarily housing the University's laundry, water and light offices was formerly used as a village recreation center.

The maintenance and repair sections of the Service plants are now working from one of the ex-army barracks behind Phillips hall. A space in the power house on Cameron avenue has been provided for the operations of the shop force with its machines and tools.

University Building Supervisor J. S. Bennett has said that damage done in the fire of December 11 has been estimated at over $60,000. Insurance protection for the building and its contents will only cover $55,000 of this.

University officials are already making arrangements to start the reconstruction of the damaged structure, which may be done in the prevailing Colonial style of the college community.

Room Assignment List Is Released

J. E. Wadsworth, University housing director, today released a list of 15 men who should contact his office on the second floor of New East annex immediately for room accommodations that have become available already this term.

These students entered the University during the last spring quarter of 1947 and have been on the housing office's waiting list for dormitory space ever since. As soon as vacancies occur, the next of those who made a $6 room deposit to get on this waiting file will be notified, according to Wadsworth.

At this time these rooms are available for the following students as soon as they report to the housing office in the New East annex: 201 Mangum for Deno S. Fasul, now in quonset hut 16; 18 Steele for Carl G. Mann, now in hut 15; 308 Aycock for Richard B. Veasey, in hut 23; 103 Manly for John B. Watson, Jr., in hut 27; 312 Ruffin for Philip Stonestreet in 305 Lewis; 308 Everett for Edward C. Lassiter in hut 23; 25 Old West for John C. Moyle in hut 27; 109 Aycock for Eugene D. Blackwelder in hut 35; 303 Aycock for Carl N. Harris in hut 34; 314 Manly for Daniel C. Holland in hut 18; 10 Pettigrew for Richard P. Joyce in hut 17; 412 Mangum for William C. Murphy in hut 19; 33 Old West for Parrott A. Parrish in "B" Stacy; 1 Old West for Hugh T. Watson in hut 20; aand 213 Manly for William C. Wheeler in hut 23.

Dr. Lucy S. Morgan, professor of Public Health education of the University School of Public Health, is now in Puerto Rico assisting in the organization of a health education curriculum there.

Rendezvous Open Under New Set-Up In Student Union

The improved Rendezvous room opened yesterday afternoon at its old stand in the basement of Graham memorial with what GM director Bill Shuford described as an emphasis on informality as its keynote.

Chief new features of the room are decoration in the Carolina blue and white colors, opening of a game room at the north end, and the addition of more sofas and chairs at the south end.

Shuford has taken over the management after what Tag Montague chairman of the GM board of directors described as "operation at a deficit" caused a change to be made. The new managerial set-up will put the Rendezvous under the direct control of the board instead of the indirect control under which it operated last quarter.

The room's hours will not be affected by the change. It will open at 2 o'clock each afternoon and close at the end of the coed day—11 o'clock on week-days, 1 o'clock on week-ends, and midnight on Sunday nights.

Game room facilities will be available to the students every afternoon, under the supervision of Graham memorial recreation director Nancy Tucker. The room will have dart boards, ping pong tables, and all of the games available at the main check room.

In addition to the addition of informal furniture the main room will continue to have a juke box available at all hours and will occasionally have a small orchestra to provide the music.

Shuford, who plans to remain in charge of the room until a new manager is selected by the board, is substituting packaged sandwiches for those previously sold. Reason given for this change is the difficulty of conforming to sanitary board standards.

Angier Men Held On Murder Charge

ANGIER, Jan. 5—(UP)—Two young men have been charged here with the gangland-style murder last November 23 of a 50 year-old Negro and the wounding of aanother.

Twenty-five-year-old Marvin Matthews and 22-yeaar-old Marvin Adams, brother of an Angier policeman, have been jailed without privilege of bond. Solicitor Jack Hook says he will send a bill of indictment charging them with murder to the Grand Jury, which is now in session. Their arrest followed six weeks of investigation.

Smith was shot down by bullets from a car which drove past him as he walked along a street in Angier. His companion, Daniel Lee Brassford, was seriously wounded.

UVA Holds Party To Welcome 1948

Winter quarter activities of the University Veterans association got off to an accelerated start last night with a New Year's welcome-back party which was held at the club house located in back of Lenoir Dining Hall.

This party will be followed by a series of open houses and planned parties for the 1300 UVA members. President John Clampitt said yesterday that veterans who desire to attend these parties must purchase their membership cards immediately.

The first open house will take place next Tuesday night at the club house. Present plans as announced by Clampitt will bring the CICA to the first party to provide entertainment. Specific plans for subsequent parties have not yet been announced.

Clampitt said that UVA membership tickets went on sale again yesterday at the club house and will be available for purchase between 3 and 5 o'clock each afternoon. Officials of the club plan to set up a booth in the "Y" this week to aid the sale of tickets.

Youth in Bad Shape In North Wilkesboro

NORTH WILKESBORO, Jan. 5—(UP)—Mack Shew, a 21-year-old youth, is in serious condition in a hospital here after being shot at his father's home.

The Same Old Story

The recently-publicized announcement that there is a movement afoot to oust Dr. Frank Graham as president of the Greater University of North Carolina is nothing new to many persons of the state. His many enemies have had such ideas for years. They have discussed it in their inner circles and each time that Dr. Frank is given a leave of absence from the University to assist governmental or other agencies their desires are given added fuel. And so when Dr. Graham accepted the position with the government to aid in the settlement of the Dutch-Indonesian dispute it was inevitable that another attempt would be made to rid the University of his presence.

His signing the anti-segregation report of the presidential Civil Rights commission did not begin the movement. It has been for some time and the Report just afforded an opportune time for his enemies to give it another try.

One of the previous attempts to oust the President was back in May 1944, when they worked under the guise that Dr. Frank was devoting too much time to work on the War Labor Board and that the University of North Carolina needed a president to devote his full-time to the coordination to the departments of the University and for post-war planning. They believed that if they gave him two alternatives—either drop the War Labor Board, a group of which he had been a member since its conception, or stay at home in his own back yard he would, out of devotion to his country, choose the former, leaving the Board of Trustees free to put in a more conservative president.

It was President Roosevelt who came to the rescue of Dr. Frank in a reply to Horace Carter and Sara Yokley, the editors of the Tar Heel. He stated: "I know that I can count on the University of North Carolina and the Old North State to continue to let the nation share Frank Graham's wisdom and energies in the cause to which the State and the University have sent so many of their daughters and sons."

So we can also judge that the recent attempt is just a renewal of the old urge. Let us hope that this time also Dr. Frank will be retained by popular demand and put an end to any future attempts.

The Plight of Education -- With Strings

At the present time there are 46,112 students attending institutions of higher learning in North Carolina. If the proposals offered by President Truman's commission on higher learning are adopted, in 1960 there will be twice this number. That is the hope of members of the commission. At first glance this new proposal appears to be a blessing for the educational system of the country and for the South in particular. But a closer examination of the proposal produces several snares which must be untangled before the paper work can reach reality.

Today a high school senior has only one chance in three of entering college next year. Two of every three applicants to our universities will be rejected because of lack of background. These figures show a great need for a more complete and diversified high school program for preparing young people for college work. If federal aid is to be rendered to colleges in order to make the first two years gratis to all students then it will be necessary also to grant federal aid to high schools. A two-year free college education will not greatly increase the number of students in college unless the High Schoolers have the necessary requirements for entering college.

Another necessary stipulation for a successful federal aid in education would be that the funds derived from governmental sources be supervised by state educational agencies which are already established in the individual states. Out of necessity there will naturally be a federal commission for allocating the funds to the states, but once in the hands of the State agencies they should have full jurisdiction over its disposition.

The problem of housing, feeding, and instruction for the increased number of collegians will be a tremendous problem to be confronted by educators and state officials. State junior colleges operating on a much larger scale than the present college center program would have to be adopted to accommodate the deluge of students. And if the federal government hopes to double enrollment it must place the junior colleges in localities which are convenient for commutors so that students will be able to cut expenses to a minimum by living at home. Living expenses comprise a comparable portion of the cost of attending college and are a definate barrier for many would-be college students.

In addition to a free educational system through the first two years of college, the commission proposed that expenses for the other two years be reduced considerably and that inexpensive and non-discriminatory graduate education should be instated in order to triple in a ten year period the number of teachers, doctors, dentists, and nurses in training.

But together with the proposals which are to double the number of students presently enrolled in American colleges, a two year free college program and the other proposals, is the statement denouncing the minority "quota systems" and racial segregation which are alleged to be fostering an "intellectual elite." This statement is hurled at 17 states and the district of Columbia where segregation is practiced.

On many occasions the two terms "discrimination" and "segregation" have been used interchangeably — something which cannot be done. If only one school system for both white and Negroes were maintained in the southern states many parents would send their children to private institutions and there would still be a problem of discrimination. But discrimination is not necessarily instated with segregation, if provisions are equal.

But these is little fear of coordinating the two school systems in this state. Even if Congress passes the commission's proposal and stipulates that in order for a state to be elgible for federal educational grants it must not practice segregation or foster an "intellectual elite", under the present ruling a state must request federal aid before it will be rendered. And there is very little reason to believe that North Carolina will request federal aid with such strings attached.

The Brassy Taste

One More Unfortunate?

By Bob Sain

Quite a few folk about campus know Bill McGirt, even though he is not a student. Bill is personable, talented and seems quite everything a thoughtful young man should be. Also, he writes poetry and backs Henry Wallace to the hilt. His job on the circulation desk of the University's library makes him, of course, a state employee.

In addition to all this, McGirt says he is a member of the Communist Party of the United States.

This we may or may not interpret as a crack in the tight wall of secrecy that has surrounded the Party in Chapel Hill. I prefer to think it is not. McGirt, remember, is not a student. I can imagine that a student might hesitate to proclaim himself a Party member if he thought that it would make him a social outcast. (I must admit that it probably would, although I have seen no mass "dropping" of McGirt.)

At any rate, conservatives can take heart in knowing that another of their avowed enemies has stated his position. Over the past few months, since Junius Scales first made public his affiliation with the Party there has been considerable speculation as to Communist strength here. Estimates as to the number of members have seldom exceeded two dozen. I doubt that the Party has accepted that many persons in Chapel Hill. McGirt pointed out in a talk with me yesterday afternoon that one "doesn't just join" the Communist Party. The Party takes you only if it is sure of your loyalty.

But to return to McGirt, he seems quite sure of what he believes. In addition to accepting the ready-made tenets of the Party, he backs Walace. (But, for that matter, so do many non-Communists.) McGirt has, however, withdrawn his name from the membership roll of the local Wallace Democrats club, (concerning which, see future columns.)

This writer often sides with many readers who consider such publicizing of Communists as tempests in teapots. It is not my intention to become hysterical over the presence on campus of some Communists. It is my intention, however, to let as many persons as possible know who Communists are when said Communists make known their affiliations.

Trieste -- Tinder-box For War

By Drew Pearson

TRIESTE. —By Wireless— If war comes during the year 1948, there are just two places where the explosion could occur. One is Greece, where a U. S. military mission is now face to face with Moscow's puppet Greek republic. The second is Trieste, where 5,000 U. S. troops of the 88th Division are separated by only a thin, vague line from the roughest, toughest Yugoslav fighters Tito can muster.

Of these two toruble spots, Trieste is by far the more dangerous. For just opposite the scarcely charted border between Yugoslavia and the free city of Trieste are 100,000 Yugoslav troops equipped with the latest arms Moscow can manufacture. They could wade through the handful of 5,000 U.S. troops—good as they are in short order.

The great danger here is that Moscow might be successful in establishing a puppet Soviet government in northern Italy, many of whose cities already have Communist-dominated municipal councils. In this case the Soviet puppet in Northern Italy would "immediately invite" Tito to send his army into that area.

Many diplomats who read the uncensored cables in Rome expect Moscow to move in this direction before next spring. One factor which appears to back them up is a secret military report just prepared by U. S. Central Intelligence showing that all Yugoslav troops opposite Trieste have been carefully selected for offensive combat, not mere guard duty. This column has been able to obtain a copy of this U. S. intelligence report and pertinent portions of it follow:

"All of these Yugoslav divisions are parts of the 4th Army and are composed of veterans, some of whom have been with the partisans since 1941. Sixty percent of them are members of the Communist party of Yugoslavia. The arms and equipment are of the latest type, all Soviet made, from bullets to tanks, with few insignificant exceptions.

The report then proceeds to list in considerable detail the offensive units stationed opposite Trieste, including the "proletariat division" commanded by Gajo Vojvodich, which is made up of the 1st Serbian proletariat brigade, the 3rd Krajiska proletariat brigade, the 13th Croatian proletariat brigade and an artillery brigade. Also in the Trieste army are the 7th Banjska offensive division under Colonel Gruber, the 26th Dalamatian offensive division under Col. Radoje Ilich, the 27th Slavonian shock division under Col. Radojica Nenezich and the 23rd Krajiska shock division under Col. Lazo, plus the first tank division under Colonel Stupar. In addition to these 100,000 men just across the border from Trieste, Yugoslavia is permitted 5,000 men as guards inside the free territory of Trieste.

"These men," comments the secret military report, "have the most modern arms and equipment, all of Soviet make and fully motorized. They represent the best material which the Soviet Tito General Staff has at its disposal. All the men are members of the Communist party and formerly belonged to the first proletatrat division."

Note—Despite the size and nature of the Yugoslav army, though, hard-hitting Gen Clarence Moore, commander of the 88th Division, has a far better trained, better equipped and tougher bunch of men in fact the 88th rates as one of the best divisions in the Army. They are only 5,000 men, however, against 100,000.

Senator Styles Bridges of New Hampshire aand his wife were being entertained in Paris on their recent visit to Europe by hard-working U. S. Ambassador Jefferson Caffery. To meet the Chairman of the Senate Appropriations Committee, Caffery had invited Foreign Minister Bidault, who sat on Mrs. Caffery's right. On the other side of Bidault sat Mrs. Bridges.

During the dinner Mrs. Bridges asked the Foreign Minister why it was that the French people did not realize how much food the United States was sending to France.

"It's because the Ambassador doesn't go down to meet the American food ships when they come in," replied Bidault, in French. Mrs. Caffery, who was acting as interpreter, conscientiously translated Bidault's reply even though it was critical of her husband. Whereupon Mrs. Bridges shot back: "If the Ambassador met all the American food ships unloading in France he would be so busy he would have no time for anything else."

Note—This dinner occurred before the Friendship Train. Ambassador Caffery not only met the Friend Ship when it arrived at Le Havre but worked out reception arrangements with French officials so that the French people would be sure to know the full story of the Friendship Train. Nine other French Friendship Trains of smaller size are now being run to different cities of France.

Make 'Em Temporary

Dear Editor

The so-called temporary buildings on the campus of the University campus are a result of the overcrowded which exist because of the influx of students since World War II. The permanent buildings on the campus portray security and consideration for the future. The erection of the temporary buildings has not only detracted from the scenic properities of the campus, but it has undermined the spiritual strength of the University.

Before the temporary buildings were constructed, it was easy to acquire the feeling of humbleness which is so necessary in education aand development. Now, when these ugly buildings smother the campus, it is quite difficult to view the campus and experience that feeling of respect which the old buildings command. The main the main theme of the campus seems to one of rushing, of doing everything today. This theme is the exact opposite of the one on which this University was founded.

Every fair-minded person will admit the usefulness and desirability of some of the temporary buildins. The temporary housing facilities for married veterans is an example of one of these useful evils. The buildings which cause the most undesirable effect are those which are erected on the campus proper. Even though these buildings are supposed to be temporary, they will be used for years. The olders they get, the more they will deface the campus. If they are to be called temporary buildings, why not use them as such!

Dignity Please

Dear Sir:

I wish to protest part of the article which Mr. Hauser wrote about the recent Chapel Hill fire. Perhaps he does justice to those students and townspeople who assisted the fire department; I thought the volunteer work was magnificent.

But to include in what most people regard as serious business the supercilious yell "Our town is red hot; beat Dook". seems entirely unjustified. Those of us who live here and know students realize that such a yell was only a manifestation of youthful exuberance, but people at a distance may conclude that students here are flippant. Is it not possible for the DTH to exercise some restraint when publishing articles of a serious nature? The University can gain nothing from such flippancy. It may actually receive harm.

Long Skirts Again

To the Editor:

This battle of opinions in reference to long skirts has aroused me to expressing my own, though I be tarred and feathered (figuratively) by the men and find myself dateless on that big weekend, I shall add mine to the ever growing list.

I like long skirts, just as I like long sleeves, both serve to hide the least lovely aspects of womankind; knees and elbows. Have you ever seen a poem in which either of these were brought out as points of beauty? I haven't and I don't think you have. In a bathing suit one does not notice knees or elbows for obvious reasons, but when a woman's hem line is just above her knees it is practically impossible to keep from seeing this most unlovely object.

A knee or an elbow can be most disconcerting when one views the beauty of womankind. The lines of a womans body are softly and delicately drawn, the curves are gentle yet pronounced but within this overall picture of delicacy and delight stand out knobby knees and just as knobby elbows. Cover them up! Hide them! Strike out this one false note in the symphony of beauty!

From my viewpoint this one point is enough to justify long skirts.

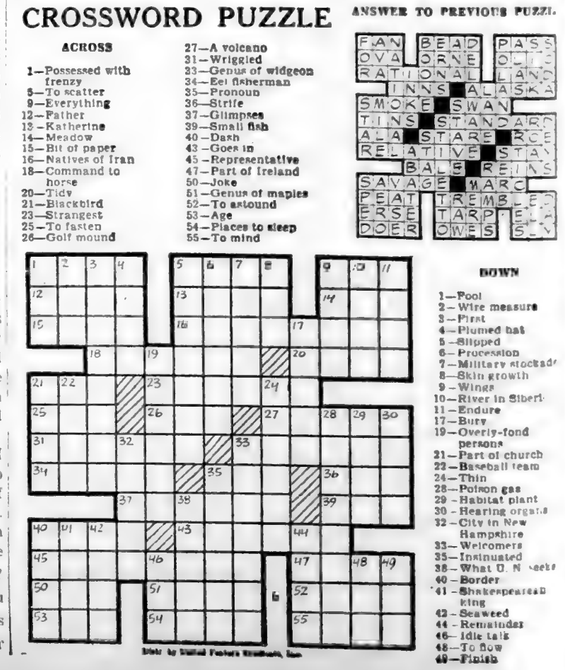
GM GRIND:



Any groups which have changes from their old room schedulings in GM are requested to make these revisions immediately in the student union office.

You won't be disappointed in the GM Rendezvous this quarter, director Bill Shuford, assisted by Arnold Wilson, put in countless hours working on improvements for the campus relaxation spot over the holidays...And they added a neat new game room in the old grill kitchen behind the Rendezvous.

GM's avid ping-pongsters may get a treat in the near future... The union is checking into the possibilities of getting Lou Pagliaro and Henrietta Wright, internationally famous table tennis champs, for a local appearance.

Beethoven's Sonata No. 23, (the "Apassionata") will be played on the evening's recorded dinner music concert from 6:30-7:00 in the main lounge.

Phanthoms Defeat Tennessee, 52-43, In Roughhouse; Tar Babies Win

The Sporting Picture

By Billy Carmichael III

Off on a Toot

THERE SEEMS TO BE a lot of big talk going around basketball circles lately to the effect that the game's whistle tooters, especially those in the Eastern regions, are getting a little too strenuous in the pursuit of their duties. In words of one syllable, which is the way many of the cage coaches usually express themselves, the referees are blowing their noisemakers too damn much. Such a statement calls for just a touch of violent disagreement.

The coaches, who so speak and have been recently supported by many a writer, say the officials are definitely slowing the game down to a proverbial walk. They point with no apparent pride to a recent New York encounter where a total of 70 personal fouls were called in one 40-minute session. That must have been a full night's work even for two youngsters who make their living at detecting the seen and unseen, and the coaches contend that's just too much foul shooting for any one evening.

The gentlemen state we must promote a fast and wide open brand of basketball that the fans as well as the players will enjoy. After all, there are a few bumps here and there, but no one ever gets hurt. Oh, yeh?

Out in the midwest they play the game in this hefty fashion. All the Big Nine teams move their big tackles right out onto the court as soon as the gridirons are rolled up and the body blocks and bruissing screens go right on with the only exception being the removal of the pads. The game survives, but it isn't quite basketball. The referees in Chicago and surrounding areas don't call the picks and blocks even though you are getting shoved all the way up into the dollar-ten seats, because the fans love it and after all they pay their money and therefore etc.

My Guy's a Corker

NEW YORK and the Atlantic Seaboard alone stand for the scrupulous calling of heavy contact and the effect is evident. In contests in eastern arenas the emphasis is more on skill and less on brute force. After all, the object to the game is to put the ball through the little hoop and to attain this goal in gentlemanlike fashion. Eastern games profit by their close officiating in as much as the play does not become rough, rowdy and as a result the outcome sloppy. There is nothing as uninteresting to watch as a game which has left the control of the green-shirted lads, who are placed on the court for a definite purpose.

The main fault seems not to lie with the officials but with the players and coaches themselves. They are the ones to commit the fractions and teach others the minor forms of hayhem which are in direct conflict with the rules of the game. It is instinctive that the majority of athletes will do anything permissible to exact victory when the will to win takes over the control of emotions and actions.

Which advances us to another point of discussion. If everyone wants to play the game rollipolly style, why don't they change the rules to read thusly. While they are at it, they might as well change the name of the game, number of players on the side, and make a few other minor modifications.

You Were Pushing, Suh!

REFEREEING IN THE SOUTH has never been what it could be. There are some good officials, some average officials, and then some that don't fit the position in any sense of the word. Yet, we have never reached the point where the Rebel playcallers have allowed some things that are considered big time stuff in other arenas. Southern officiating thus isn't outlandish, but it certainly hasn't reached the other extreme where we can say, "Call off the dogs, and let the boys and fans enjoy themselves."

Which brings one to the last topic on today's docket. Basketball has been for the past decade or so played heavily on an intersectional basis, yet there has been no attempt to standardize the officiating throughout the nation. Teams operating out of their own area are at a decided disadvantage since they must adapt their style of play to the ways and means of the region they are invading at the time. It could be that what the game really needs is a little standardization instead of official evasion.

As a matter of fact the foul shot lends an interesting change of pace to the whole game of basketball. It is the true "pressure" shot of the game, and surprisingly enough, is the shot at which most good players are least proficient. In 1946 Carolina didn't lose a game it couldn't have won on the foul line, and both of last year's losses to State could have been averted in the same manner. On the similar side of the ledger, many a contest is lost when a star goes out by the five foul route. Such are the times that try men's souls.

A popular official, if there is such a thing, once said that he believed in calling them like mad for the first minute of play. After that, he says, the boys know you mean business and settle down to playing the ball game instead of each other. The result, he holds, is usually good basketball.

So let's make a New Year's resolution not to condone foul play and let the whistle boys blow until the nation's basketballers come down to earth and play the game according to that there Hoyle. Which reminds one that sports writers like officials must know when to blow. . . .

Hook, Kohler, Pax Pace Local Attack

By Bob Goldwater

Carolina reversed the scoring procedure last night but the result was still the same. Forsaking their customary second-half splurge for a first-half spree, the White Phantoms opened up a four-game week with a 52-43 triumph over Tennessee to continue along the unbeaten trail with victory number eight. A capacity Woollen gym throng of 6,000 was on hand to cheer the results.

For the first 10 minutes, the contest showed signs of becoming a rout as Coach Tom Scott's charges, led by their high-scoring ace, Bob Paxton, breezed to a 21-8 margin. But the Volunteers fought back to close the gap to 10 points at halftime and seven points twice during the second half. That's as close as the rally came, though, and with Johnny Dillon pacing the way in the last 10 minutes, the Phantoms were never hard pressed for the win.

South Carolina, led by All-Conference center Al Adams, is the obstacle between Carolina and victory number nine this evening in a tussle slated for an 8 o'clock tipoff.

In the preliminary tilt at 6:30, the unbeaten Jayvees meet their toughest foe to date in Campbell Junior college from down Buies Creek way.

Rough and tumble all the way, the clash was marked by 49 fouls, including a few of the technical sort. It was these charity throws, in fact, that enabled Tennessee's Paul Walther to garner high-scoring honors for the evening with 14 and helped Ed Montgomery to gather 11 tallies. Paxton, Dillon, aand Cokey Kohler all hit the double-column figures with 11 each.

Caarolina wasted little time in drawing first blood, Paxton coming through on a free toss after 10 seconds and hitting with his one-hand speciality throw. 40 seconds later. Marshall Hawkins dumped in a hook but big Bob was accurate on two more foul shots. It was five minutes before the Vols could again connect from the outside but the Tar Heels were putting this time to good use, running the score to 15-4 with five minutes gone.

Assorted Scores

After Walther's layup, Carolina again got hot. Paxton, Kohler, and Bill Miller combined an assortment of push, set, layup, hook, aand foul shots to run the count to 26-13 at the 14-minute mark. Best shots during the splurge both came from Miller—one a lefty hook and the other a layup after a beautiful fake.

Now it was Tennessee's turn to get hot. Hawkins was good on a layup, Montgomery poured in four free tosses, and Walther hit with still another from the 15-foot line to narrow the advantage to 28-20. Kohler's two fouls and the first of Dillon's four hooks for the evening made it 32-20. A long one-hand toss by Montgomery one second before the gun provided a 32-22 tally at intermission.

Cooling-Off Period

Apparently the Phantoms cooled off in the locker room. In the first 10 minutes of the second half, the home forces registered only seven points while the Vols were proceeding to up their total by nine. Dillon's entry at the three-quarter mark of the game brought about a flurry of scoring, mostly through the Carolina cords and mostly by the Hook himself.

In fact Dillon and King Cole completely monopolized the Tar Heel scoring efforts throughout the final 10 minutes, save for a last-minute foul shot by Fred Swartzberg. Johnny was good on a free throw right after coming into the game and duplicated this after one by Cole. That made it Cole's turn to register, which he did with a long one-

Bowman Gray Pool Receives 'New Look' In Wood Bulkhead

The water of newly partioned Bowman Gray pool were once more frothing with activity last week as Coach Dick Jamerson and his Blue Dolphins resumed their daily workouts in preparation for their season's opener against Florida on January 15 in the local pool.

Something new was added to the pool during the holidays in the form of a wooden bulkhead which now gives the Dolphins a standard 25-yard course for intercollegiate competition. Coach Jamerson disclosed that he expected the pool's "New Look" to make the races more interesting for the spectators."

The Dolphins will be stroking to avenge a 51-24 shellacking handed them by the Gators in their last meeting. This setback is one of the two that the local tankmen have suffered in southern competition since Coach Jamerson took over the helm in 1939.

The men from the sunshine state reportedly have another strong band of mermen and the Dolphins will no doubt have a tough time shading the visitors.

The Dolphins distance aspirants are now one less in number for the release of last term's grades disclosed that Sam McCauley had been grounded due to scholastic deficiencies.

Five Carolina Trackmen Take Part In Washington Meet Over Weekend

A crowd of 4,825 fans gathered in the massive National Guard armory to see representatives from 30 colleges and many clubs vie for honors.

In the invitation mile, Jack Milne took the lead early in the race and held it until about 30 yards from the finish when Browning Ross of Villanova came wide and nipped him in the fine time of 4:13.7. Milne was clocked in 4:14.5. The Carolina runner and Bill Hulse of the New York AC battled shoulder to shoulder until the Villanovian galloped across the line. This was the fastest mile that Milne has ever run and indicates that he is in fine shape for the coming indoor season.

All men interested in indoor track are asked to report to Coach Dale Ranson this afternoon on Fetzer field at 3 o'clock or any time thereafter.

Sam Magill also turned in his best time when he took second place in the handicap two-mile run. He was timed in 9:38. The winner was James Bruce of Howard University, who had a 40 yard-handicap. Magill ran from scratch and gave the fans a terrific thrill when he took over second place with a fine kick finish. Alvin Smith of Carolina, with a five yard handicap, was fourth.

Jack Moody took a fourth place in the high jump with a leap of 6 feet, 1 inch. After hitting this mark he hurt his knee and had to drop out of the competition.

Jimmy Miller found himself in fast company in the 1000 yard invitation and took a fifth. The race was won by Jerry Connerly of Fordham in 2:11.

Duke took a third in the one mile handicap sprint-medley relay on the basis on an excellent anchor leg by Roger Neighborgall. The Dukesters were running from scratch with the winning teams each having 30-yard starts.

Tickets for Pro Net Match Here on Sale

The Athletic department announced yesterday that there are still plenty of good seats for the Bobby Riggs-Jack Kramer tennis match to be played in Woollen gym on January 20.

Matmen Lose Hooper Due to School Studies As Drills Continue

Due to a heavy scholastic schedule Laurie Hooper, last year's Southern conference heavyweight wrestling champion, will not be listed on the Carolina roster when the matmen open their season January 19 against VPI.

The loss of Hooper will undoubtedly harm the Tar Heels' chances of retaining the conference crown which they captured last year. Big Carl Simpson, intramural heavyweight champ, who performed with the jayvee grapplers last season is in line for the starting post. However, he may face some competition from Art Weiner, football star who is going out for the squad.

Six lettermen were among the men who appeared at the first post-holiday practice at Woollen gym yesterday. The veteran members of the squad seem to have their positions pretty well sewed up, but there is due to be some competition in the 136 and 145-pound classifications.

Doug Thompson will represent the Blue and White in the 121-pound group. TomUrunhart is expected to be the 128-pound entry. Southern conference champion Irv Zirpel, and Oscar Gupton, undefeated in regular season competition, will wrestle in the middleweight divisions of '55 and 165 pounds, respectively. Bill Kemp rounds out the returnees, wrestling in the 175-pound spot.

Kemp's brother, Phil, is leading in the race for the 145-pound position. Although only a freshman, he tied for the intramural leadership in the 155-pound class with another brother Bob. The other leading contestant for the post is Carrol Fischer, mural champ in his weight division in 1946 and 1947 and jayvee grappler.

Frosh in 50-37 Win Over ABJC

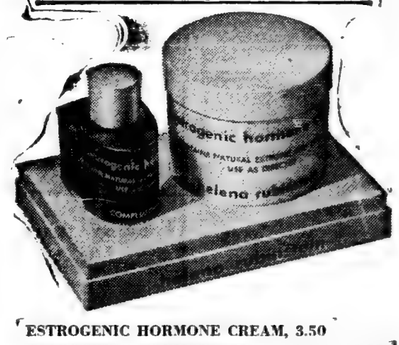
By Bill Kellam

Carolina's Tar Baby cagers, showing the effects of a lengthy holiday lay-off came to life late in the first half last night after trailing 12-2 earlier in the contest and finally hand the Asheville-Biltmore Junior College quint a bruising 50-37 beating.

The visitors apparently shot their bolt in their early scoring spree for after this splurge the sticky Tar Baby defense settled down and effectively shackled the shot happy losers for the rest of the tilt. The locals' ball handling was very erratic throughout the rough and tumble contest and the Pale Blue and White quint threw away innumerable scoring chances with their errant heaves.

Early ABC Lead

The Bulldogs jumped to the 12-2 lead in the first five minutes of play but then the Hamiltonians, paces by dead-eyed John Tsantes and smooth-working Bill White, staged a comeback that saw them zoom to a 26-20 halftime lead.



Tsantes, Hal Ferraro, and Gilmore lead the Tar Heel comeback that knotted the count at 12-12 after nearly 13 minutes of play. The scoring until the intermission was fairly evenly divided among the Tar Babies.

Bill Mauldin Is Again With DTH

Bill Mauldin, war-famed cartoonist and author of "Up Front" and more recently "Back Home" is returning to the editorial page of the Daily Tar Heel today, slightly toned down from his "radical ideas" that caused the cartoons to be suspended from the DTH and other state papers last year.

Mauldin, after much criticism and loss of subscribers, is turning out cartoons that again carry the punch of his ETO work and yet lack the post-war bitterness that he had a tendency to display in his earlier civilian work. The cartoons will be featured on the editorial page four times each week.

Hamilton's charges steadily increased their margin in the second half as Tsantes teamed this time with Thone Gregory to amass a 13 point Carolina lead late in the contest.

The Tar Babies were leading only 33-25 after six minutes of post-intermission action when Gregory took charge and tossed in six quick points to give the locals a 39-28 margin. Tsantes chipped in a couple of layups and a foul to run the count to 44-31 with five minutes remaining in the game.

The rest of the contest was a general melee and the Bulldogs gave the contest a hectic conclusion with two baskets in the last thirty seconds of the game.

A-B's impotent second half showing at the foul line, where they missed over a dozen charity tosses, ruined their chances for a victory since the tight Carolina defense limited the Bulldogs to only five field goals after the intermission.

hander to run the margin up to 11 points and the score to 44-33.

Hook, Hook, and Hook

Tennessee, unable for five minutes to connect for field goals, helped its cause along with foul shots. Montgomery hit with two, Walther with one, and Art Burris with another. But Dillon neutralized all their efforts with three successful hooks at different intervals. The third one at 15:30 gave Carolina a 50-37 lead —the same 13-point gap that separated the two teams at almost the same stage in the first half.

Foul shots by Dillon and Swartzberg during the final minute of play completed the home team scoring.

In the percentage department, Caarolina had a .304 accuracy average in its shooting, while Tennessee was far below with .185.

Reap's New Orchestra To Play at Beauty Contest

Ned Reap and his newly-formed orchestra will provide the music for the selection of this year's campus beauties in the Yack-sponsored beauty contest, Friday afternoon from 4 to 6 in Memorial Hall. There will be no admission charge to the concert.

From one to three entrants may be sponsored by each campus organization, and contest chairman Lil Hotard urges presidents of sororities, fraternities, and other entering groups to meet the deadline for submitting candidates, Thursday at 6 o'clock.

Each organization, Lil said, should nominate its candidates, get in touch with each girl to make sure she will accept, and submit her name and the $5 entrance fee to the Yack office between 3 and 6 o'clock tomorrow.

A long-standing tradition on the campus, the Yack beauty contest has previously been in the form of a dance. The concert-judging combination is being used this year to enable all students to see the beauties and witness the judging.

Out-standing members of the Chapel Hill community will be present Friday to choose the queen and her 15 attendants, who will be presented before the end of the afternoon's program.

Clarinetist Reap, who has been leading various dance bands since his high school days, is a veteran from Albemarle. Before entering the service he was on tour with Roy Nelson's orchestra, and while in the Army organized several bands, both in this country and overseas.

Working with Chairman Hotard on arrangements for Friday's concert and contest are Martha Rainsford and Caroline Gaither.

Dormitory Rooms For Next in Line, Says Wadsworth

Dormitory vacancies are occuring daily, according to J. E. Wadsworth, University housing director, who released another list today of students now at the head of his waiting list for rooms.

Approximately a dozen accommodations in dormitories are ready at present while others are expected almost immediately. The names of students who placed a $6 room deposit with the housing office to be entered on the waiting list will be announced frequently during the opening weeks of this term. At present practically all men who entered the University in the spring quarter have been situated in rooms, and those who came to Chapel Hill this past summer will be handled next.

Whatever space is available now will go to the first of the folowing 23 students to contact the housing office in room 22, New East annex: Simeon H. Adams, Robert M. Allen, Gerald N. Baker, Harry L. Brown, Frank Casey, Marvin J. Cowell, Marvin R. Dillon, Eldon F. Gaither, Winfree A. Hines, Leon M. Hollongsworth, John E. Hollowell, Lavis G. Huffines, Aubrey R. Johnson, Walter S. Johnson, Richard G. Kelly, Raymond L. Knowles, William McFarland, Joseph Michalski, Nanda D. Nath, Clyde Osborne, William J. Pettigrew, Marshall H. Pinnix, and Luther O. Stutts.

First ICA Meeting

The Carolina Independent Coed association will hold its first meeting of the quarter tonight at 7 o'clock in the CICA room upstairs in the Y. Plans for the membership drive and fashion show will be discussed.

Ned Reap

Today is Final Day For Schedule Shifts

Today University students get their last chance to drop or add courses in their curriculum or to register for the forthcoming quarter without paying a $5 fee for late registration.

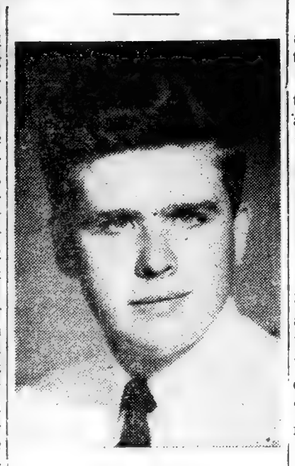
Registration hall will be open from 9 until 5 o'clock today for the last time for those with plausible excuses who desire to go through the customary procedure of submitting "green forms" with their advisers' consent for addition of specified subjects to the annex to Venable building.

According to University registrars, class tickets for courses being dropped must be returned to Registration hall. If these tickets have already been turned in to an instructor, students should ask for them back in order that the instructor might estimate the correct size of his class. Co-operation in returning unused class tickets will also make the same cards available for others trying to take that particular course.

Oxford Debate Team Defeats UNC Squad

Charlie Long to Resign as SP Chairman; Will Continue to Support Student Party

By Chuck Hauser



The ever-changing political sands of Carolina are shifting again with the forthcoming resignation of Charles O. Long as Student party chairman.

Speaker pro tempore of the Student Legislature and president of the Dialectic Senate, Charlie Long will tender his resignation to the Student party at its first meeting of the year in Graham Memorial's Roland Parker lounge No. 1 at 4 o'clock tomorrow afternoon.

"I will not be a candidate for re-election," said Long in a statement made yesterday. "However, I in no way want this to be construed by any quarter as indicating that I am leaving the party. I shall continue when possible to serve the party and work for its candidates."

Commenting on the approaching spring elections, Long declared, "I wish to publicly state that I will not seek a nomination of any form in the coming elections."

Long urged all persons holding allegiance to the Student party and those without other party affiliations to attend the meeting tomorrow to aid in laying the groundwork for the spring political battle.

Charlie Long

"The December elections have clearly shown that the campus has continued its support of the Student party and the policies of its candidates," opined Long yesterday. "In order to merit this continuing support we must devote our every effort to serving the campus with the best student government possible."

No Anglo-American Alliances, Say English for 2-1 Descision

By Donald McDonald

Debaters from Oxford university, upholding the negative, won a two-to-one decision in Hill hall last night over a University team composed of National Women's Debate Champion Merle Stevens and Randall McLeod. Topic of the debate was, "Resolved, that war can best be averted by an all-purposes Anglo-American alliance."

The program marked the only North Carolina appearance of Oxfordians Sir Edward Charles Gurney Boyle, Baronet, and Mr. David Kenneth Harris, who have been touring this country since September under the sponsorship of the Institute of International Education.

Benn Not Present

As originally scheduled the Honorable Anthony Neil Wedgewood Benn, Member of Parliament, was to accompany Sir Edward from New York yesterday; but plans were changed due to Benn's slight illness.

Beginning the discussion at 8 o'clock McLeod, a native of Maxton and a member of the Debate council, called for an alliance which would strengthen peaceful relations. "The United Nations," he said, "is now an agency of recommendation and discussion. We need some other agent, and Anglo-American alliance, to carry their ideas out."

Negative Discussion

Harris, an RAF liason officer during the war, offered negative discussion by first conceding that such an alliance can be drawn up but denied that it could preserve the peace. "I believe," Harris continued, "that the keynote of Russian attitude is suspicion. The Russians will say that those two imperialistic powers have united to smash us. Would they be so scared as to permit this alliance to cause them to be bullied into peace? I think not."

Accusing Russia of boycotting the UN, Miss Stevens, who won her championship debate title while a student at Mars Hill college last spring, said one reason for Russia's action is "her political theory has always been based on revolution and force." Miss Stevens, a native of Forest City, emphasized particularly an economic advantage of an alliance with Great Britian.

UN as Platform

Sir Edward added that Russia is not only boycotting the UN, but is also using the UN as a platform which to present her point of view. There is nothing in the UN Charter, he said, which is against an alliance, but the very spirit of such an alliance is forbidden.

UNC French Prof Falls from Train In Fatal Accident

The death of Curtis Earl Butler, 22-year-old French instructor and a 1947 University graduate, who fell from the Seaboard Railway's fast Silver Comet last Sunday in Hamlet has been termed "accidental with no evidence of foul play."

Sheriff Carl Holland of Hamlet investigated all the available evidence in Butler's fall early Sunday morning just as the Comet began its northbound run. When Butler was killed, he was enroute to Chapel Hill from Atlanta where he had gone to visit a friend. The train had not left the Hamlet yards when Butler was found beside the tracks and then rushed to a nearby hospital where he died a few hours later.

Railroad authorities stated that all exits to the train were supposed to be closed at the time Butler fell. After Sheriff Holland checked the information on hand, he concluded yesterday that there was no cause to believe that Butler's death was either murder or suicide.

The son of Mr. and Mrs. Curits Butler of Kelford, he is survived by them and by two brothers, Kenneth and Julian Butler. Services were held at the Baptist Church in Kelford.

Dorm Residents Asked To Label Door Plates

All dormitory residents are requested by Manager William L. Smith to keep their door nameplates correctly labelled with the names of the students residing in each. Smith said that besides any corrections necessary in the old door tags; new blank plates have just been installed in Old East, Old West, BVP, and Whitehead dormitories.

Di Senate to Discuss New Policy Tonight

The Dialectic Senate will hold a closed executive session tonight at 9 o'clock in the Di hall in New West building to consider newly formed executive policy, to confirm certain appointments, and to vote upon two important bills. All Senators are urged to attend.

Di membership chairman Gran Childress announced that there are several vacancies to be filled this term. All interested persons may obtain information or application blanks by addressing their inquiries to Childress in care of the Senate, box 547.

Blonde curls and shapley legs won for Virginia Grey the role of little Eva in "Uncle Tom's Cabin" at the age of nine. Today Virginia, a native of Hollywood, and daughter of one of the original Keystone Cops, is the winner of a seven-year film contract.

SA Center Gives Extra-Curricular Aid to Students

"Many of the new students may not be aware of the existence of the Student Activities center," said Jess Dedmond, SA director, as he finished interviewing one of them. "The new student will find that this organization does an important job on the campus."

The SA office will be open today from 2 until 5 o'clock, and students will be given assistance in selecting extra-curricular activities. At a later date, students will fill out the interest indicator cards with the aid of their advisors. The cards list over 100 activities, hobbies, and campus groups.

The center was formed to help stimulate a greater interest in all extra-curricular activities. Any recognized extra-curricular group may examine the cards and make a list of the students who are interested in their group. These students may then be contacted by postal cards, and an interview in the SA center will be arranged with them.

Committee Heads Selected by IRC

The International Relations club met Monday evening in its first business session this quarter to elect committee charimen.

Chosen by acclamation were Randy McLeod, speakers and forum chairman, John Bristow, membership chairman, and Mary Bates Sherwood, social chairman. Banks Talley was elected to succeed James Burwell as program chairman, and John Sanders was elected publicity chairman to succeed William Green.

Veterans Should Check Eligibility

All new students under the G. I. Bill of Rights and those with servicemen's benefits who are returning to the University after an absence of as much as one term are reminded that it is imperative that they drop by the campus veterans office, 208 South building, at once to complete their records of eligibility, according to F. Carlyle Shepard, University veterans director.

A subsistance check is not to be expected, Shepard explained, until the student's record is accurate and adequate. Those who for any reason failed to fill out the necessary forms during their registration last Saturday morning should report to 208 South building immediately.

A & P To Open Supermarket

Newest effort to alleviate the time and strain of grocery shopping in the Village is the opening tomorrow morning of a self-service supermarket, owned by the Great Atlantic and Pacific Tea company. Located at 210 W. Franklin street, the building will be opened to shoppers at 8:30 o'clock.

The announcement came from A & P officials who also said that the present store in Chapel Hill will be closed and combined with the new supermarket. Officials said that besides complete stock of fresh fruits, vegetables, meats, fish, seafood and poultry, the store will have a complete coffee department. Shoppers will be able to serve themselves, using rubber-tired gliders for collecting their merchandise.

L. E. Rackley, a Durham native who has been associated with the A & P company for 15 years, is grocery manager of the new business. Produce manager is T. W. Wilson, and Lee Williams is manager of the meat market.

New Deadline Set On GI Insurance

The deadline for veterans to reinstate their National Service Life Insurance without a physical examination has been extended from December 31, as earlier announced, to July 31 by a recent announcement from the national veterans administration.

V A forms 353a are now available here at 111 Peabody building for those who wish to renew their government life insurance before a medical report is necessary. After July 31, applicants for the reinstatement must also submit a physical testimony of their present health filled out by any licensed medical doctor.

Payment of two months' premiums must also accompany all the applications for reinstate-

Woman Author from Sweden Speaks at Methodist Church

Madame Signe Hojer of Stockholm, Sweden, whose report for the State Home and Family commission of which she is president has become a best seller in her country, will speak in the Methodist Church here Friday evening at 8 o'clock under the joint sponsorship of the Chapel Hill branch of the Women's International League for Peace and Freedom, the League of Women Voters and the University YWCA. The public is invited.

Madame Hojer who has recently come to this country on a lecture tour has been active in social and political fields for many years and in her writing and lecturing gives particular attention to questions affecting children and family life. She has four children of her own.

President of the Swedish section of the Women's International League for Peace and Freedom for 10 years, Madame Hojer has suggested in her report to the Swedish government some reforms to improve the lot of the housewife.

Purpose of the report is to persuade the government that a housewife's work should be accorded the same respect given other professions, "because of its value to the country in economic educational, moral and other aspects."

Argentine Envoy Speaks to CCUN

A banquet Thursday night in honor of Argentine Ambassador Dr. Don Oscar Ivanissivich will open the winter activities of the Carolina Chapter of CCUN, John Van Hecke, and Edie Knight, Carolina chapter co-chairmen announced yesterday. Ivanissivich, noted physician and diplomat was recently a guest of honor at a United Nations conference held in Statesville by the CCUN and Lions International. He will be accompanied by his wife and two children.

Prominent faculty members and students will be present at the occasion, to be held at seven o'clock at Carolina Inn. The banquet will be followed by an address by the Ambassador.

Six Quonsets to Be Closed, Emptied for Rest of Winter

By Raney Stanford

An estimated six of the University's quonset huts now in use as student dormitories will soon be emptied and closed for the winter, J. S. Bennett, school building supervisor, said yesterday.

The closure will be necessary, Bennett explained, because of the current nation-wide shortage of the oil used in heating these structures.

The petroleum scarcity hits the University hardest here, for outside of the quonsets, only a small quantity of fuel oil is used by the school in heating a few faculty residences and in the power plant. But in the former, Bennett estimated 5,000 gallons were burned during November, a figure that should rise considerably during the present colder months.

Any distribution by dealers on a past quota system will not ease the situation for the administration since all the heating units were recently installed and consequently have no previous consumption of fuel to be used as a reference.

"Students living in the buildings affected will be moved into vacancies in other quonsets, under the supervision of J. E. Wadsworth, University housing director, Bennett continued.

Bennett expressed the hope that these students will understand the necessity for the reduction of living quarters, and will cooperate with the University in this move to conserve enough fuel to keep the buildings warm during the winter.

Twelfth Night Revels Are Scheduled To Be Presented Saturday Evening

Members of the Carolina Playmakers will hold their Twelfth Night Revels in the Playmaker theatre next Saturday evening at 7:30. The program, in which the staff and students take time to laugh at themselves and generally have a good time, is open to the public and no admission will be charged.

Eleanor Ringer, graduate student in the dramatic art department, has charge of planning the program. The staff of the Carolina Playmakers will present a scene from Shakespeare's play "Twelfth Night", and a special skit will be presented by the students. Miss Ringer explained that the student's skit will be based on Playmaker activities during the past quarter, but that it is being kept "top secret," especially from the staff, until Saturday night.

Students who are on the planning committee include: Eileen Smith, James Geiger, David Samples, James Byrd, Mary Jo Cain, Helen Brown, and Erle Hall.

Comprehensive Exams In Hygiene Offered

All students qualified to take comprehensive hygene exams may do so tonight at 7 o'clock. C. E. Mullis, physical education instructor made this announcement and can be reached for information in his office in Wollen gymnasium, phone 3431.

EX-OFFICERS PLAN FLIGHT

The ex-Air Force officers now enrolled in the University who are members of the Air Reserve here will meet this afternoon at 3 o'clock in the Air ROTC building. At this time flights for this weekend will be scheduled to Marietta Air Base, Georgia, according to Randolph J. Stuart, Air Reserve captain.

Playmakers Sponsor Playwriting Contest

A statewide original play contest, sponsored by the Carolina Dramatic association, is now under way with a closing deadline set for January 19, according to John W. Parker, executive secretary.

The contest, which is for plays written by individual members of the Association, or by playwrights in the member groups, offers the Carolina Playmaker Award to the author of the original full- length play produced at the Association's annual spring festival in April, and the author of the best original one-act play to be presented will receive the Betty Smith Award. Every author whose play is selected in the contest for production during the festival will receive a special Author's Award.

The Carolina Dramatic association, now in its 25th year, is made up of college, high school, and community theatre groups over the state. It was organized to encourage dramatic art in the schools and communities of North Carolina and to stimulate interest in the making of a native drama.

Phi Will Consider Frank Graham's Removal

Group to Discuss Controversial Issue Of Recent Charges against President

Meeting in a special session, the Ways and Means committee of the Philanthropic assembly voted to consider the controversial issue of whether Dr. Frank P. Graham should be relieved of his duties as president of the Greater University of North Carolina.

This action came as a result of the recent criticisms leveled at Dr. Frank in state papers. Attackers have accused him of leftist tendencies, and of negligence in his devotion to University duties.

Several groups of which he is a member have been designated as "subversive" in a list released recently by the U. S. Attorney General's office. The report of President Truman's Civil Rights commission, which Dr. Graham signed as a member, added fuel to the opposition attack.

In the belief that this issue is of foremost interest to the students of the University, the Ways and Means committee made the decision to bring the following resolution before the Phi: "Resolved: that the trustees of the University at the present time are not justified in taking action to relieve Dr. Graham, as president of the Greater University."

The committee meeting marked the opening of the Phi activities for the winter session. A large number of bills were brought before the committee, most of them concerning topics of international significance. The first four bills placed on the agenda concerned: the sending of U. S. troops to Palestine, UN control of the Panama canal, the Republican tax bill, and Universal military training.

The debate on the bill concerning the advisability of relieving Dr. Graham is scheduled next Tuesday night at 8:30, in the Phi hall, fourth floor, New East. The privileges of the floor will be extended to all interested guests, and potential applicants for membership are invited to attend.

Next Move, Please

Henry Agard Wallace has announced that he will run for President on an independent ticket this fall. This bit of intelligence caused no great surprise among the initiated here on campus who have, since September, been solidly behind the former vice-president.

Organized by a group of veterans and somewhat guided by the ubiquitous Emanuel Margolis, the Wallace for President club budded but failed to bloom. Membership in the club remained rather limited.

After some time as the Wallace for President club, the group changed its name to the Wallace Democrats. At one point in its early history, the Wallace club received a query from a national magazine asking if they planned to picket or raise a ruckus when a group of "controversial" diplomats spoke here. The club answered no. It was not that kind of club.

Throughout its short history it has remained not that kind of club. When Bill McGirt, a charter member of the organization, announced himself as a member of the Communist Party he politely withdrew. (We do not intend to intimate that McGirt was asked to withdraw; he states that his working hours made attendance at the club's meetings inconvenient.)

Those of us who have watched the Wallace club at work for the past half year will now watch with renewed interest. We doubt that even half of the members of the group think that Wallace could become president in '48.

We similarly doubt that the club will disband for that reason; we predict it will be strengthened and will work very hard even if Wallace's name cannot appear on a North Carolina ballot.—B.S.

The Rule Could Be Worse

The new ruling of the campus Safety committee requesting that all students who live within walking-distance area designated by the committee leave their cars at home and walk to classes is not a hard and fast rule. It can be changed to a much more drastic step if it is not successful; they have the power to recommend to the faculty and Board of Trustees that students not be allowed to maintain automobiles on the campus.

The zoning of the campus took place only a few weeks ago about the time of the examination period and at a time when everyone was not inclined to give it too much of their attention. But now that we have begun a new year and a new school term, it is the best time for making our habits for the next quarter and virtually the rest of our stay in Chapel Hill. Your walking to class, if you live within the campus zone, is one habit which is necessary if you are to keep your automobile here and be able to use it for more important missions.

The necessity of some method of control was made evident by the vast number of automobiles which swarmed into the campus daily and jockeyed for one of the comparatively few parking places near classrooms. After the students living within easy walking distance of the classroom were able to get a parking place for their vehicles and the men who commuted from nearby towns or the more remote residential sections of Chapel Hill were left without a legitimate place to park and faced two alternatives—to either park illegally and risk receiving a ticket and creating a parking jam, or going into the classroom late, after securing a parking place several blocks from the building.

So leave those automobiles at your residence when going to class. You can keep them longer that way.

Maybe A Hundred Years

Cigarettes without ashtrays aren't healthy for rugs; reading lounges aren't much either without reading material. And with the newspapers and magazines and ashtrays constantly on the missing list, visitors to the Graham Memorial lounge have nothing to do but sit and drop their ashes on the floor. And perhaps twiddle their thumbs. Not a very interesting or fruitful pastime.

Such is the plight of students who visit the student union building, however, because inevitably the daily papers, and popular magazines such as Esquire, Life, Esquire, Time and Esquire disappear within a matter of minutes after they are placed in the lounge. The situation of stolen ashtrays is more hopeful, however, for eventually, in several hundred years, enough will be swiped to equip all rooms in all dormitories and those placed in the lounge will remain.

A hundred years is a long way off, though, and it is doubtful that you and I will still be rushing to eight o'clock classes. In the meantime, it is not much fun for those of GM in charge to be constantly convinced that petty thievery is a growing business at UNC.

The easiest way out, naturally, is to have a little respect for your fellow student, so when you finish reading the daily gazette, put it back where you found it. And just because you smashed a cigarette butt in an ashtray is no reason to stick the ashtray in your pocket.

Have a heart, the next guy may be able to read too, and he's got to have some place to kill his Sensations.—B.B.

Good Will Toward Men...

Old stay-at-homes who spent the Christmas holidays in Chapel Hill would have had a pretty dull time of it, had it not been for the Town Girls Association and the staff of Graham Memorial.

With streets deserted and beer joints closed tighter than drums at night, those who watched 1947 come to a close here were duly grateful for singing parties, bingo, and a Christmas dance held in the well-known warm cheer of Graham Memorial.

In these two groups—The Town Girls and the Graham Memorial staff—is found one of those rare cases of true service to others.

New Look or Not

They Like Their Sweaters

Chicago, Jan. 6 (UP)—A group of bobby soxers think the "new look" will do just fine as long as they don't have to take off their sweaters. Seventy-three high school sweater girls filled out questionnaires on what they thought of the new look. They agreed that sweaters — tight or sloppy — still were their favorite garb.

Fashion designers can make skirts with padded hips, pleats or hems to the ankles if they want to, the girls said, but woe to the artist who erases the sweaters.

A tabulation of the survey, made by a large department store, showed that a majority thought skirts and sweaters were typical high school garb. Some preferred to wear their sweaters tucked in the skirt, some out, and nine like the kind that button.

For activities outside school and casual wear, 21 chose slacks; five, skirts, and 19, blue jeans. All 45 said they'd take a sweater to go with them.

The rest of the 73 said they wore blouses or jackets with their slacks.

While they spend most of the day in their sweaters, the girls said they like to discard them in favor of skirts and blouses with "that ballerina look" for evening wear.

But they agreed that most of the time they'd rather be sweater girls.

NSA Meeting Negotiators

Madison, Wisconsin — Negotiators for politically autonomous membership of American college students in the International Union of Students were chosen by the Executive Committee of the United States National Student Association, Bill Welsh, USNSA President announced today.

Negotiations will be conducted at next summer's meeting of the IUS Council to be held in Prague, Czechoslovakia or Rangoon, Burma. USNSA will present terms agreed upon by delegates to the USNSA Constitutional Convention held in Madison, September. 1947, at which representatives of over 1,300,000 American students of 361 colleges voted provisional approval of affiliation proceedings with IUS.

Prior to their departure for the Council meeting, the negotiating team will undergo intensive preparation to deal with the conditions surrounding student affairs throughout the world, Welsh said. The IUS Council includes representatives of 51 countries, working in the fields of relief problems, cultural development, travel opportunity and exchange study of the world community of students.

Carolina Mystery

It's An Old Chapel Hill Custom

By Bill Buchan

The Carolina Society for the Advancement of the Left Hand had a fast talking representative at the student activities table last fall when Wilbur Amberson enrolled at the university, and after a swift sales speech, Wilbur signed his name to work with the group.

Of course, Wilbur was impressed with the long list of BMOC names that the fellow spieled forth as active members of the Carolina Club. Among them were big shots whose names were popular occurrences on the front page of the DTH. With such prominent membership, the unsuspecting freshman figured he'd just be another knot on the log of maybe some 700 members. (Figuring a course, on a percentage basis of nearly 8,000 students.)

How little he knew.

The Carolina Society for the Advancement of the Left Hand, in case you didn't know, is another one of those "active" campus organizations which was born when campus wheels decided the right hand had been used long enough. The purpose, Wilbur discovered, was to advocate the use of the left hand in writing, eating, beer drinking, and picking up butts. With such a noble goal ahead, the youth naturally was willing to do his bit, but he didn't figure on giving his all.

He was soon to find out however, that all those impressive names were listed as a selling item, period. The only time he ever ran into his more famous fellow members was during sojourns into "Harry's" or the "University" and at that stage of the game, they weren't particularly qualified to discuss problems. Furthermore, they were drinking their beer with their right hands.

Amberson isn't alone in his plight, however, for he has realized that the majority of the other joes in the organization—active ones (ten in all), that is, are freshmen or else new on the campus. Where the other members are, no one has satisfactorily explained.

So Wilbur wildly distributes literature calling attention to left hands and diligently prepares and presents thoroughly interesting programs for the campus' pleasure. His back is getting tired and he at times gets slightly discouraged. Always ahead of him, however, is that new goal which he can work for—retirement. For Wilbur has decided that he too, like all the rest, will have his name on the "BMOC" list next fall, and leave the actual work up to the freshman . . . or other suckers.

Or at least, that seems to be the custom ala Chapel Hill

Warm Blooded Animal

Hark! Sex Invades Britain

London —(UP)— Sir Alexander Korda demanded to know who had turned on the central heating. It was only Christine Norden entering his office.

The British movie producer took off his thick glasses—he didn't need them to see Christine. Through his mind ran the complaints from film house managers about austere British heroines chastely bestowing refrigerated kisses.

"Do you act?" he asked.

There was a low throaty reply. It was 4:30 p. m. Sir Alexander noted the exact time, for it was that moment that sex first raised a lovely blonde towards the British screen.

Meredith Agrees

Now, some two years later Sir Alexander believes he has the only British actress extant who belongs to the warm blooded animals. He doesn't count those who emigrated to Hollywood such as Merle Oberon (his ex-wife.)

Burgess Meredith agrees with him. It was after a love scene with Christine for their new film "Mine Own Executioner" that Burgess turned to an assistant director and stated:

"Remind me, occasionally, that I'm a married man."

Miss Norden has several distinctions besides sea-green eyes and a figure that meanders pleasantly from a 34-inch bust just beyond 34-inch hips to a pair of legs that won her a model job and caught the attention of two American G.I.'s jeeping down London's Edgware road.

She was probably one of the prettiest casualties of World War II. It happened in Normandy where she was one of the first entertainers to go overseas.

"I raced a piece of shrapnel to a slit trench near Caen," she said. "The shrapnel won but it only caught my arm and these scars are all I have left to show."

About the GI's. They were jeeping along when one of them Nick Brodszky, applied the brakes to get a better view of a lissome blond waiting to buy a movie ticket. Brodszky is a composer who knows many film people thus his opening line was the classic cliche: "You ought to be in pictures."

Later he told a friend in the Korda office about her and that led to the historic interview mentioned above.

VETERANS' CHECKS

Veterans who were enrolled in the University under the G. I. Bill of Rights during the last term who for some reason have not received subsistance checks since September 22, 1947, should contact room 111 Peabody building any day this week in order that their names might be telephoned long distance to the regional veterans headquarters in Winston-Salem for investigation.

Student Carpenter Wanted

There is an opening on the Graham Memorial staff for an accomplished student carpenter, to work part-time duty, on his own scheduled hours. Applicants for the job may contact student union director Bill Shuford any time today or tomorrow.

Tarnation Business Meeting

Pete Gerns, TARNATION business manager, has called an urgent meeting of the business staff for 4 o'clock this afternoon.

DISABLED VETERANS

All disabled veterans on campus under Public Law 16 should submit their registration forms to room 111 in Peabody building not later than January 16.

What's Up in Graham Memorial

GM GRIND:

Chief handy-man-cook-and-bottle-washer of the revamped Rendezvous is Arnold Wilson, sophomore from Candler. Arnold has a special interest in the Rendezvous, having put in about 25 work hours a day on fixing up the place during the Christmas holidays.

As soon as space and facilities permit, the Travel Agency will move out into the main lounge. Reservation and information calls became so heavy last quarter travel agent Bob Watson reported, that a great part of the time the agency entirely swamped all other activities of the student union office.

The recorded dinner music concert this evening will feature the following selections, most from the Fritz Kreisler album: Mozart, Symphony No 41, (Jupiter), Rhapsodie Espagnole

Write Away

An Old Fashioned Back Pat

Dear Sir:

Perhaps you have received many letters like this, but one more can't hurt anything. I wish to give a little belated praise to the Carolina students and their cheer leaders for their magnificent support of their team during the season recently closed. I would call them unsung heroes of Carolina football. It's true that they had a great team to support but not an undefeated team and they proved that they could take defeat as well as their team.

It was my sad experience to see one of those two defeats, but it was great to see the students cheer right on to the bitter end. They certainly gave all they had and went down fighting. Of course, thats' the way it should be, but it isn't the way it is everywhere. I don't know how many games the 1948 Tar Heels will win, but I do know what kind of support they will get.

Harmful Persecution

To the Editor:

From the program "Hollywood fights back" of the Committee for the First Amendment:

I testify that I am very much interested in the moving picture industry and that since my arrival in the United States nine years ago I have seen a great many Hollywood films. If Communist propaganda has been smuggled into any one of them it must have been most throughly hidden. I, for one, never noticed anything of the sort.

I testify moreover that to my mind the ignorant and superstitious persecution of the believers in a political and economic doctrine which is, after all, the creation of great minds and great thinkers and which has its adherents everywhere on earth—I testify that this persecution is not only degrading for the persecutors themselves but also very harmful to the cultural education of this country.

As an American citizen of German birth, I finally testify that I am painfully familiar with certain political trends: Spiritual intolerance, political inquisition and declining legal security—and all this in the name of an alleged state of emergency—that's how it started in Germany. What followed was Fascism. What followed that was war.

I think that these words of Thomas Mann, one of the greatest new American citizens, may well interest the students of UNC, and I hope that you will print them.

Hale and Hearty Holiday

THE CURRENT GREETING on campus, although definitely a temporary one that doesn't have many more days to live, appears to be a cheery "Didja have a nice vacation?" Though we can't speak for everyone on campus, we're pretty sure that a good number of Carolina's athletes enjoyed themselves. At least they certainly kept busy at their respective pastimes during the two-week sojourn.

Top example of this took place down New Orleans way, where three Tar Heels had a good time at Sugar Bowl time. But their visit wasn't purely social—one of them, Vic Seixas, was a leading contestant in the mid-winter sports carnival tennis tournament and the other two were Carolina's track twins, Jimmy Miller and Jack Milne, who took part in the Sugar Bowl track competition.

Of the three, Seixas turned in the best performance. The nation's ninth ranking netter, seeded third in the tournament behind Ted Schroeder and Gardner Mulloy, went as far as the semi finals where he came within two points of a major upset over Schroeder, currently number two in the country and the winner of the tourney. Leading at 5-4 in the fifth and final set, Vic eventually lost a deuced game aand Schroeder ran out two more games for a 4-6, 6-2, 6-4, 7-5 victory. The third set, which went to Seixas by a love score, gave Sugar Bowl net fans a clue that Vic will bear watching during the 1948 net campaign.

Seixas' quarter-finaal engagement saw the Tar Heel tennis captain get back at an old foe, Gardner Larned, who downed Vic in the Southern conference and NCAA tourney finals last year while at William and Mary. Now attending Rollins college, where he'll do W and M no good, Larned managed to capture one set from Seixas but that was one too few and the Blue and White star moved into the round of four.

Doubles play also saw Seixas perform well. Teamed with Irv Dorfman of Yale to form the second-seeded tandem, the Tar Heel-Bulldog combination made their way to the finals where they lost to the top-seeded pair of Schroeder and Mulloy in a three-set thriller.

Busman's Holiday

WHILE SEIXAS WAS running around the tennis court, the two M's of Tar Heel trackdom were engaging in a busman's holiday in the 3,000-meter run of the Carnival track meet. Both came in with creditable performances—Miller taking a third and Milne capturing a fourth in an exceptionally fast field. It was so fast, in fact, that Jerry Thompson of Texas broke the previous Sugar Bowl record with an 8:35.4 race with Curt Stone of Penn State and Miller also getting in under the old mark.

Norm Sper, of Carolina tank fame and a former National AAU diving champion, also spent the vacations in a sunny clime (plug for the Miami, Florida chamber of commerce). Getting in some practice in preparation for the Olympic tryouts this summer, Sper worked out from the 33-foot diving tower and the 10-foot board.

We haven't seen Dave Boak or Frank Nelson lately, and don't know for sure if they spent a pleasant holiday. But we're certain their vacations were brightened last weekend by the release of the All-American soccer squad, as chosen by the National College Soccer Coaches Association. Nelson was voted a third-team, left fullback post and Boak was given honorable mention at the outside left forward position.

Football also came in for its share of holiday news along the Carolina sports scene. Wingback Jim Camp gave a helping hand to the South grid eleven that routed the North in the annual North-South post-season clash.

Cagers Welcome New Year

All of which leaves one more sport in which Tar Heelia was well represented during the vacation. And that, sho' nuff, is basketball. Coach Tom Scott and his collection of Phantoms even welcomed in the New Year on the hardwood, opposing and subsequently defeating Loyola university in Baltimore on the evening of December 31. A 64-47 margin of victory helped to make it a Happy New Year.

Never ones to let success go to their heads—and they've been successful eight straight times—the Phantoms opened up 1948 with a sparkling 70-46 triumph over Maryland in their Southern conference inaugural last Saturady. The leader in both wins, with 17 and 19 points, was big Bob Paxton, who's as much of on Old Reliable as the football parley sheets.

ONE MORE HOLIDAY basketball note: Yours truly saw the Wolfpack of N. C. State perform up in Madison Square Garden just before Christmas. And though State college is against the nickname of Terrors when mentioning its team, we feel it necessary to use it just this once. Case, Dickey, and Company were truly Terrors in the second half, when they poured 49 points through the hoop to trample St. John, 76-56.

Redskins Sign Gilmer for 5-Year Term

New York, Jan. 6 —(UP)— Harry Gilmer, Alabama's passing wizard, has signed a five-year pro football contract with the Washington Redskins of the National Football league.

Gilmer will be paid $80,000 for the five years with the Redskins which is $20,000 short of the figure he demanded.

Gilmer was signed by Washington coach Turk Edwards soon after the Sugar Bowl game was concluded on New Year's Day.

Kohler Scores 15 In 63-45 Triumph

By Dick Jenrette

Cach Tom Scott's Carolina White Phantoms turned loose a torrid second half outburst in Woollen gymnasium last night to gain a 63-45 triumph over South Carolina in a Southern Conference scrap before some 5,000 fans.

Yesterday was Coach Scott's birthday, and his boys came through in fine style to help the mentor celebrate the occasion. The win was the ninth without defeat for the rampaging Phantoms and their second in conference competition.

Carolina next moves into Virginia, with VPI being the next opponent in a game that will be played in Blacksburg on January 9.

Slow Start

The Phantoms started out last night's fray with a sluggish brand of ball that provided their supporters with little to yell about. Carolina didn't score until over four minutes of play had elapsed when Norm Kohler, who was high point-maker for the evening with 15, connected on a set shot from far out.

With Kohler scoring 13 of his points in the first half, Carolina was able to build up a 24-14 lead at half-time, but the team had an overall shooting record of just nine goals out of 35 shots. Both clubs appeared off on their shooting, and the Gamecocks could hit on but 5 of 25.

Nemo Nearman limited South

Some good defensive work by Carolina's highly-regarded center, Al Adams, to a single free toss in the opening period, and Adams' ineffectiveness had a great deal to do with the Gamecock's poor offensive showing.

Paxton Starts It

Bob Paxton started the Phantoms on their 39-point second half by dropping in a layup after 1:55, and Nearman followed with two gratis shots to build the margin to 28-14. From there on the locals were off to the races and soon the game was safely tucked away.

John Dillon, who has displayed uncanny accuracy in recent games thrilled the crowd last night by connecting on three out of three of his special hook shots late in the game. He chipped in with three foul tosses to take third place in the scoring column with nine points. Kohler 15 aand Paxton's 11 were other Carolina highs.

South Carolina came up with a surprise center in Jimmy Slaughter, 6-9 stringbean from Roanoke, Va. Slaughter dropped in 14 points to lead the invading Gamecocks.

Shooting Percentages

Carolina had a total shooting percentage of .320, compiled on 24 hits in 75 shots. South Carolina had 17 for 68, with a .250 mark. Dillon, with three goals in four shots and Kohler, who bagged seven of 12 were the most accurate Caarolina plaayers. Most of the latter's shots were from far out.

The Carolina students indicated that they are ready for the State College game. Midway in the second half when South Carolina seemed thoroughly subdued, the students began to moan "Poor Cow College."

Mural Grid All-Star Eleven is Named

The Intramural office is humming with activity as mural directors caught up the loose ends from last quarter and prepared to launch an ambitious winter sports program.

Two all-star tag football teams for 1947, chosen by the intramural managers, were among the items of interest released yesterday. There were both fraternity and dormitory squads. Standout fraternity linemen are John Wilson, Chi Psi, Braxton Schell, Zeta Psi; Les McCloud, Sigma Nu; Lem Gibbons, DKE; Jack Folger, Kappa Sig; Tommy Stratford, Phi Gam; Jim Tanner, SAE ;and Don Ward, Phi Kap.

Six backs were chosen on each team. Cliff Frazier, Beta; Ott Evans, Phi Delts; Vinnie DiLorenzo, Chi Psi; Vic Seixas, Chi Psi; Norm Galinkin, TEP; and Charlie Smith, PiKa made up the fraternity backfield.

Dormitory Stars

For the dormitory men Walter Clark, Lewis; Jim Mock, Lewis; Boo Walker, Med School; Tommy Scheinman, Oakwood Drive; Tom Bethune, Stacy; George Clark, Aycock; Don Calloway, Grads: and Nevin Rice, Mud Dobbers were chosen to man the forward wall.

Lew Hayworth, Grads; Les Couch, Mud Dobbers; Ken Black, Grads; Jim Poole, Grads; Ralph Hodges, Mangum; and Don Skakle, Lewis carried the ball for the Dormitory team.

Rifle, debating, and water polo tounreys were among the items on the agenda at the meeting of Intramural managers yesterday. All three of these schemes are still on the very tentative list. Possibilities for running the swimming tournament on a team basis rather than having individual scoring and thereby eliminating delaying time trials were also on the agenda.

The seven events that will comprise the swimming tournament were announced. A 75-yard medley, 100-yard free style, 25-yard free style, 50-yard backstroke, 50-yard breaststroke, 100-yard free style relay and diving competition will feature the meet for which February 9 has been set as the final entrance date.

Handball entries wil be due by January 22 and play will begin January 2, 3, 4, and 5 with competition beginning February 10.

15 Meets Scheduled for Tankmen; Matmen Announce Five Matches

Carolina's Blue Dolphins open one of their most ambitious tank schedules in history on January 15 when they meet Florida's touring Gators in Bowman Gray pool.

The Gator splash will be the first of a 15 meet card that includes 11 dual tilts with collegiate foes and four tournament matches. The schedule features six home appearances for the Blue Dolphins including the Southern Interscholastics Meet which will be staged in the local pool on February 21.

In addition to entering the annual Southern Conference championship aquacades which will be splashed out in a still unspecified pool, the Blue and White mermen will also participate in the Eastern Intercollegiate meet on March 20, the site of which is still undetermined. In the NCAA meet in Ann Arbor, Michigan on March 26-27, the locals will continue to press their bid for national honors.

Assistant tank mentor, Ralph Casey, who has taken over the helm during coach Dick Jamerson's trip to New York for the NCAA confab, sent the Dolphins through another long and grueling workout in preparation for next week's opening water fight. The rest of this week will be spent in conditioning drills pointing toward the Gator clash.

The complete schedule.

Frat Cagers Begin Mural Season Today

Competition in the Fraternity division of the Intramural basketball tourney will begin today with four contests scheduled for Woollen gymnasium this afternoon. Due to the recently constructed basketball stands, play will be limited to only two of the four small courts in the gym until after the Wake Forest game Monday.

The deadline for Dormitory and Independent entries in the basketball tournament is six o'clock this evening, the Intramural department announced yesterday.

The Kappa Sigs, who won the Fraternity championship last year before the Grads defeated them for the campus title, will not see action until the second day of the tourney. Then their number one and two teams will engage Phi Gam No. 3 and SAE No. 1.

Squads representing four different fraternities will open festivities today. In addition to playing at four and five in the afternoon, games will also be played in the evenings to accommodate teams whose members have late labs.

This is the first event on the winter quarter intramural sports program.

FRATERNITY BASKETBALL SCHEDULE

WEDNESDAY

5:00 o'clock Court No. 3: Lamb Chi vs. Kappa Psi 1; court No. 4: Phi Delt 1 vs. KA 2.

Preparing for their first meet of the 1948 season, Carolina's matmen, last year's Southern Conference champions, are continuing fundamental drills and conditioning exercises.

Directed by Coach Chuck Quinlin and his assistant, Hobie McKeever, the wrestlers are rounding into shape to meet VPI here January 19.

Coach Quinlin stressed the need of more men for the squad in a recent appeal directed toward those men that were out last fall, but who have as yet not reported for the winter drills. "Although the University's enrollment is the largest its ever been, our squad is one of the smallest I can remember," Quinlin said. He pointed out that several positions are wide open and that substitutes are needed.

Last year the squad lost only to the Navy team. Championship honors were copped in the conference meet. T. A. Hearn and Irvin Zirpel won individual conference titles in the same meet.

The complete schedule follows:

January 19	VPI Here
January 23	N. C. State Here
January 31	Open
February 7	VMI There
February 9	W & L There
February 11	Duke Here

Jayvees To Battle Duke Here At 8 PM

Carolina's unbeaten Jayvee cage squad will face its first major competition in Woollen gym tonight when they meet the strong Duke University Junior Varsity. This traditional battle will get underway at 8 o'clock.

Coach Tom Hamilton's outfit will be out to further the splendid record that Carolina teams have been building against Duke in recent years.

Tsantes Gets 12 In 50-37 Triumph

By Bill Kellam

Carolina's rugged jayvees fought their way to another hard-earned victory last night in Woollen Gym as they staged a second half comeback to bury Campbell College's ebbing Orange Tide under the short end of a 50-34 score.

The juniors, who looked even rustier than the frosh cagers, were wilder than a Carolina League pitcher with both their passes and in shooting last night's rough and tumble contest and they did not begin to hit the bucket until midway in the last half.

The Phantomettes started out like a house afire but after amassing a 12-2 lead in nine minutes they let the Tide wash away their advantage and close the count to 17-15 at the half.

The score was tied three times after the intermission before scrappy little Bill White and John Tsantes finally found the range and gave the locals a 34-25 lead after ten minutes of play. From here on it was only a question of how much the Pale Blue quint would finally score. Charlie Thorne, high scorer Tsantes, and White finished the contest with a flourish by streaking for four layups in the last minute. Thorne dropped in two of these.

—One Cent—

Mr. MacRae can be criticized for the presence of nine gramatical errors and three major false assumptions including near-libel. I'll forgive him the grammer, but hardly the attack on the character of the store and its clerks.

I shall refute his unchecked assumptions: (1). "... the majority of the students allow their janitors the right to collect the deposit..." In five weeks as Acting Assistant Manager this fall, three-quarters of the complaints I heard were against the dormitory regulation which required the janitors to cleaan the bottles from the rooms. Apparently, the students "allowed" the janitors to pick up their bottles because they were too lazy to do otherwise.

(2). Mr. MacRae implies that the janitors receive only one cent for any bottles they bring back. Wrong! For reasonable amounts, i. e., what one might expect two or three people to buy for themselves (not for 150 students), janitors get the full deposit.

The store has as much moral justification as it may need for paying janitors only a penny per bottle. Enough students have complained to me, personally, for me to realize that an injustice is done to the students who cannot get their deposit money back. Perhaps after 2½ months of school, they have now gotten used to the situation. Yet from the store's viewpoint, it is immoral to pay anyone a full deposit for bottles he did not buy when the store has reason to believe that the purchaser has not given his consent, except because of lack of time to redeem the bottles himself. This is often the case.

Cohen Appointed Business Manager Of Carolina Mag

Mel Cohen, senior from Shelby, is new business manager of the Carolina Magazine, Editor-in-Chief Fred Jacobson announced in a statement yesterday afternoon.

An economics major, Cohen has been Mag advertising manager since last March and worked on the business staff prior to that time. He is vice-president of Hillel foundation and received the Hillel Key Award in 1946.

The Pi Lambda Phi scribe, an erstwhile Daily Tar Heel columnist, is setting up his business staff on a new basis, dividing it into departments, one of which is headed by Sally Woodhull, who is handling advertising layout. The contact department, under Cohen, is well under way, and the secretarial staff is now oranizing.

A great many positions are open on the staff, and interested persons are reminded that the job of business manager for next year's Mag might prove a lucrative plum for an enterprising business staffer.

Tax Reductions Sought by Truman Hit by Congress

Washington, Jan. 7 —(UP)— The future for President Truman's tax reduction plan, as outlined in his State of the Union address to Congress yesterday looks dim, various Republican leaders stated last night.

The Republicans said that there isn't a chance that his plan to slice 40 dollars from the bill of every American taxpayer and to tax big business for the difference will pass in Congress.

A similar view was taken by several influential Democrats. However, there will probably be some relief for the taxpayer during the year since the administration has joined the Republicans in advocating a tax cut.

The chief attack on the plan was led by Harold Knutson, head of the Senate Finance Committee, who called it, "political demagoguery." He said that it would boost corporation taxes as high as 50 per cent. He further stated that it would dry up capital needed for industrial expansion.

Eugene Millikin of Colorado maintained that the president is still committed to a policy of high taxes and high spending, and he charged that under the plan the nation's tax bill would not be reduced a cent.

Other features of the address which were overlooked during the tax dispute are a 10 year plan to strengthen national economy, build up human and material resources, raise living standards by 50 per cent, use of special emergency powers to bring back limited price and wage controls, the strengthening of rent ceilings, a raise in minimum wages, and legislation to see that every American family is provided a decent home.

Washington, Jan. 7 —(UP)— Republicans say they are going ahead with their own tax cut program which they assert is more sensible than the proposal submitted by President Truman today. GOP leaders charge that Mr. Truman's plan to give each taxpayer a cost of living tax credit of 40 dollars actually would add to inflation.

House floor leader Charles Halleck predicts that the Republicans can pass their own tax bill over a presidential veto. Many Democrats in the lower chamber admit the possibility.

The chief Republican policy maker in the Senate, Robert Taft, had no immediate comment to make on the president's State of the Union message today. The Ohioan is saving his opinion for his scheduled nationwide broadcast tomorrow night.

Secretary of the Treasury John Snyder is scheduled to give the House Ways and Means committee full details on the president's tax plan January 16.

Yack Queen Entrants Will Meet Tomorrow

Contestants in the yearbook's search for the girl who will hold the much cobeted title of Queen of the Yackety Yack were asked yesterday by Lil Hotard, in charge of the event, to be at Memorial hall by 3 o'clock on Friday.

Any of the girls, all of whom are expected to be dressed in evening clothes, who are unable to be there at that time were requested to notify the Yack office immediately.

Tag Montague, "the happy legislator", has consented with alacrity to preside as master of ceremonies at the affair, and the entire student body is invited. Talent scouts from Hollywood and from modeling agencies have been invited to view the event, but at presstime none had announced whether or not they would be on hand.

Music for the contest will be furnished by Ned Reap and his orchestra; there will be no admission charge. The judging is in the hands of a group of prominent townspeople.

Winner of the contest will have a full page picture in the Yack and each of her 15 runner-up attendants will grace its pages. Although feminine Yack staffers will be permitted to enter, Gene Johnstone announced yesterday that in the interests of fairness his beautiful colleague Ruth Evans will not be a contestant.

Hotard also emphasized that the names of all entrants must be submitted to the Yack office by 6 o'clock this afternoon. Each of the organizations must contact the girl they plan to sponsor but no picture of her will be necessary. A $5 fee must accompany each name.

Josephus Daniel's Condition Described as Still Critical

Raleigh, Jan 7 —(UP)— Josephus Daniels, 85-year-old editor of the Raleigh News and Observer, is still described as "very sick" at his home here tonight.

The former Secretary of the Navy, a one-time student at the University of North Carolina and member of the University Board of Trustees since 1901, has been ill with bronchitis for the last four days, Johnathon Daniels his son, stated yesterday.

"At his age, we are naturally apprehensive," was the way Johnathon put it.

The elder Daniels, still active as editor of his newspaper right up to the time of his illness, was Secretary of the Navy under Woodrow Wilson throughout World War I. His assistant in the post was Franklin Delano Roosevelt, who later appointed Daniels as Ambassador to Mexico.

The sick man studied law at North Carolina University in 1884 and 1885 under the late Dr. Manning, and taught a Sunday school class at the Methodist Church. He received an honorary degree in law from the University in 1914.

Film Men Sue

Hollywood, Jan. 7—(UP)Film tables who refused to say whether they were Communists or not have filed a multi-million dollar series of damage suits.

Writers Ring Lardner, Jr., and Lester Cole, and director Edward Dmytryk are suing the Hollywood studios which fired them for refusing to tell their political affiliation to the House Un-American Activities committee.

Dr. James L. Loeb Speaks Saturday

Dr. James L. Loeb, executive director of Americans for Democratic Action, will make an address on the current Washington situation next Saturday morning at 10:30 in the Roland Parker Lounge of Graham memorial.

He will speak to the local chapter of Students for Democratic Action, a member of ADA's student division, who have invited all interested persons to attend.

Doctor Loeb was prominent in the successful fight for full employment legislation several years ago, and has played an important part in many legistlative battles for progressive measures.

While in North Carolina, he will also speak in Greensboro, Durham, and Charlotte.

Grand Jury Indicts Two for Gang Murder

Angier, Jan. 7 —(UP)— The Harnett county Grand Jury has indicted two youths in the gangster style killing of Charles Smith, a Negro, in Angier last November 23.

The Grand Jury returned true bills on murder charges against Marvin Matthews and Wyatt Adams of Angier.

Smith was slain by shots fired from a car as he walked down the street. Another Negro with him, Daniel Lee Brassford, was seriously wounded but is recovering.

There were no arrests in the case until last week, when Matthews and Adams were arrested. The Tuskegee institute in Alabama had listed the case as a possible lynching.

Fraternity Seeks Establishment of KSK Chapter Here

Kappa Sigma Kappa, a 79-year-old social fraternity with 26 chapters in the United States and two abroad, is interested in forming a chapter on this campus, according to a letter received by the student government offices from its national headquarters.

The fraternity, founded at the Virginia Military Institute in 1867, is conducting a nation-wide program of expansion, according to National Secretary George R. Jefferson.

Members Sought

Any local organizations here interested in affiliating with Kappa Sigma Kappa or any non-fraternity men interested in forming a chapter of this fraternity are asked to contact Jefferson at Box 344, Fairmont, West Virginia.

Jefferson stated in his communication with Student Body President Tom Eller that a chapter could be organized at very little expense, and that operation costs would be kept at a minimum, in addition to the economy of living conditions in a fraternity house.

Man of Future Described By Anthropologist

New York, Jan. 7 —(UP)— If you can manage to stick around for the next half million years, you'll see some men that are pretty funny animals. Of course you'll seem funny to them.

One of the nation's leading anthropologists—those are the fellows who haunt ancient ruins and primitive tribes to find out how we got that way—has taken a look into the future.

Doctor Harry Shapiro, who is head of the anthropoloy department of New York's Museum of Natural History, says that for one thing, man 500,000 years from now will have a head as round as a billiard ball and almost as bald.

Shapiro says man has been shedding his furry coat for thousands of years because he doesn't need it any more. He thinks that in another 500,000 years about all that will be left is a little fuzz on top.

The New York anthropologist thinks the man of the future will have only four toes.

ABC Good News

Charlotte, Jan. 7—(UP)—The Alcoholic Beverage Control board plans a survey to determine whether to enlarge the operations of the Mecklenburg ABC Board during the coming year.

Chairman Frank K. Sims, Jr., says Mecklenburg system is doing the largest business in the state, averaging $1,000,000 each month.

Tall Tales from Tookie

Humor Editor Lost In Ozarks!

By Chuck Hauser

South building bigwigs are always hearing far-fetched excuses for absence, lateness, and the like, but one dean was ready to retire yesterday morning—he had heard them all.

"I got lost hunting timberwolves in the Arkansas mountains," was the plea put forth by Tarnation editor Matthew M. Hodgson, better known as "Tookie."

Murfreesboro, Tennessee, native Hodgson was spending what he thought were to be a few quiet days with friends in next-door Arkansas when the unbelievable incident happened.

After an evening of partying (Carolina style), Hodgson and his hosts decided that they would take to the woods and track down some of the timberwolves which had been howling incessantly during the night.

Deep in the woods of the Ozarks, with a rising wind disguising the direction of the relentlessly stalked and continually baying animals, Tookie headed the way from which he thought the sounds were coming while the others in the group headed in the directions from which they thought the sounds were emanating.

Approximately eight hours later, Tookie realized that he was lost. Lost with no supplies except his rifle, a Clark bar, a package of Nabs, and a good supply of Jack Daniel's Sourmash. Having nothing warmer on than a light tweed suit and a sleeveless sweater, he kindled a fire of pine chips with the aid of the Sourmash and lay down to wait for daylight.

The young Tennessean awoke several hours later with the shakes. To test his nerves, he explains, he raised his rifle, zeroed in a target, and fired a shot. He missed the mark by two feet, but he didn't feel too bad about it because the target was at least six feet away.

Starting out again, young Matt Hodgson figured that the only way to get out of the Ozarks was to lead downhill. Seven miles and a pint and a half later he realized that he should have headed uphill. Changing his tack, he finally emerged face to face with a slightly beat-looking shack labeled "Fortescue's General Store."

Fortescue dispatched Tookie to the stunted metropolis of Paraguide, Arkansas, where the exhausted editor was pointed out the way to Tennessee.

Reaching home slightly later than the time of his scheduled departure for Chapel Hill it was all he could do to stumble to his bed and collapse.

How does Tookie feel about Arkansas now? "I'll have to go back there sometime in the future," he says, "—about 80 years in the future."

Seventeen Killed in Georgia Plane Crash When DC-3 Liner Plunges Into Swamps

By United Press

Savannah, Jan. 7—Seventeen persons were killed and nine others injured when a DC-3 airliner loaded with homeward-bound Puerto Ricans crashed and burned today in a desolate marsh near the mouth of the Savannah river.

The plane's 24 passengers were all Puerto Ricans. The pilot, identified as A. Antonioli of Jersey City, New Jersey, was among the dead. The co-pilot, Ray Eick of Trenton, New Jersey, escaped with a crushed shoulder. He says the crash was caused by engine trouble.

The plane plunged into a swamp, a wilderness of saw grass and cyprus stumps, just eight miles from Savannah. It had refueled at Raleigh, North Carolina, two hours earlier, and was making a chartered flight from Newark, New Jersey, to Miami.

The Puerto Rican passengers, all believed to be from New York, were planning to continue their journey at Miami by other means.

The plane was operated by the Coastal Airways at Teterboro, New Jersey. Coast Guard efforts to rescue survivors were hampered by difficulties in getting through the swamp.

Morgenthau Says He Lost Money In Grain Markets

By United Press

The latest big name on the list of commodity market speculators has been quick to come up with an explanation.

Former Secretary of the Treasury Henry Morgenthau, Jr., says his grain market dealings took place 18 months after he quit his office. The one-time New Dealer says it is obvious that he had no inside information. He added, "I sustained a loss."

Morgenthau is now in the Caribbean. His office issued the statement after Morgenthau was named tonight in a list given to Congressional investigators.

Morgenthau's office says he was in the market, on the short side, between March and August last year. He lost because he expected the price of corn to drop, but it went up.

Morgenthau was among some 5,100 traders whose names were made public on the latest two lists by Agriculture Secretary Anderson.

Others named includes Governor H. B. Maw of Utah and Edwin Pauley, special assistant to the Army secretary. Both have been listed before.

The Senate subcommittee checking into speculation held an unusual night session behind closed doors. The Senate group questioned the Chief of the Agriculture departments Commodity Exchange authority. Subcommittee Chairman Homer Ferguson of Michigan refuses to talk about what went on.

Fritz Case

Raleigh, Jan. 7 —(UP)— Officials here say the State Board of Education probably will not have time to take up the case of former Hudson School Principal, R. L. Fritz, Jr., when it meets tomorrow.

The Superintendent of Public Instruction, Dr. Clyde Erwin, says he will not bring up the subject, and that the board is behind in its other work.

State Treasurer Charles M. Johnson said last month he would ask the board to restore the teaching certificate of Fritz. Johnson says now he will be away on a speaking engagement and will not attend the meeting.

The board lifted Fritz' certificate last summer after he admitted mishandling state funds. Fritz was acquitted, however, of false pretense charges in the case.

Informal Reception Will Honor Argentine Legate

Students unable to attend the banquet tonight at Carolina Inn for Argentine ambassador, Dr. Don Oscar Ivanissivich, will be able to meet and talk with the statesman at a reception to be held immediately afterwards at 8:30 in the lounge at the Inn, John Van Hecke and Edie Knight, co-chairmen of the Carolina chapter of CCUN, organization sponsoring the appearance of the diplomat on the campus, announced late yesterday.

Banquet at 7

Prominent faculty members and students will attend the banquet, scheduled to begin at 7. Accommodations were available for only 65, however, and the reception was scheduled to enable other interested students to talk with the distinguished visitor.

The ambassador will address the group after the banquet and it is expected that he will discuss US-Latin American relations.

A Tour of State

Recently a guest at a United Nations conference in Statesville where he vied for honors with Yugoslav ambassador, Sava N. Kosanovic, Ivanissivich expressed an interest in the North Carolina education system and is currently on a tour of cities and schools throughout the state. He has visited in Asheville, Statesville, Montreat and Durham. The ambassador is accompanied by his wife, son and daughter.

Louisville Pilot Killed in Crash Of Fighter Plane

Franklin, Key., Jan. 7—(UP)— A Louisville, Kentucky pilot Thomas F. Mantell was killed today when his Kentucky Air National Guard fighter plane crashed into a field five and one half miles south of here near the Tennessee border.

Mantell was a captain in the Army Air Forces during the war. He was identified by his army identification tags.

The plane, which persons at the scene of the crash say was a P-51 Mustang fighter, bore markings indicating it belonged to the National Guard.

National Guard officials at Standiford field in Louisville say one of their planes is missing and an investigation party is en route to the scene.

Mantell took off from Louisville this morning, with Atlanta, Ga., as his destination. He apparently crashed on the return trip, about 4 o'clock this afternoon.

Mrs. Joe Phillips, on whose farm the plane crashed, says she heard the plane roar low over her house. She went to a window in time to see the aircraft fall apart in the air, at about treetop height. It plunged to the ground about 300 yards from her home.

Concord Man Dead

Oakboro, Jan. 7 —(UP)—One Concord man was killed and two others injured when a train struck their car this afternoon near here.

The dead man has been identified as Fred Long. Raymond Drye and George Norton are in serious condition in Yadkin hospital in Albemarle.

Drye reportedly suffered fractured ribs and internal injuries and Norton suffered a fractured skull in the crash. Stanley county officers are still investigating the accident.

SOUND AND FURY

There will be an important meeting of Sound and Fury in Gerard Hall on Tuesday night, January 13, at 7:30 o'clock. Plans for a new show will be discussed, together with the election of officers. All past and present members are urged to attend.

Coast Guard Sailing To Aid Ship Aground

Wilmington, Jan. 7 —(UP)— The Coast Guard cutter Mendota has sailed from Wilmington to the aid of the tanker Sinclair Opaline.

The tanker ran aground early today two miles from the entrance buoy to the Cape Fear river.

The Coast Guard has reported that the sea is calm and the ship is in no immediate danger. The cutter hopes to be able to free the tanker at high tide.

The tanker, loaded with petroleum, was bound for Wilmington. It carries a crew of about 30 men.

Humor Mag Wants Talented Writers

Now that the student body has had a chance to see what the Tarnation staff considers humor, a sincere plea has come forth from the humor mag's GM office for criticism and comment.

With the ball at last rolling, Tarnation asks anyone who even thinks he's funny to drop in any afternoon or evening to offer a little assistance. Rumor has it that this talent search is all for a better humor mag.

Faculty Members of University Departments Attend National Meetings During Holidays

Many faculty members of the University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill took advantage of the holidays just ended to attend national or sectional meetings of organizations in their respective fields. A number of them presided over sessions and presented papers.

Such meetings enable the professors to keep abreast of current developments and to gain new ideas and inspiration for the year ahead.

The Romance Language Department was represented at the Modern Language Association of America, at Detroit, by U. T. Holmes, Jr., secretary, Comparative Romance Philology group, and chairman-elect, who presided over Medieavel Academy luncheon; S. E. Leavitt, executive committee member, Modern Language Teachers Association and American Association of Teachers of Spanish and Portuguese, who reported on the American Council of Spanish Societies; W. L. Wiley, with paper on "Who First Called Them Rhetoriqueurs?"; N. B. Adams, secretary and chairman-elect general topics section and chairman-elect steering committee for Spanish section, and Hugo Giduz, member executive council and associate editor "French Review," who also attended American Association of Teachers of French sessions.

Representing the Department of Germanic Languages were W. P. Friederich, elected secretary Comparative Literature section which he founded several years ago, who presented paper on "German Renaissance"; Frederic E. Coenen, and Herbert W. Reichert. Norman Foerster presented a paper on "The Responsibility of Scholarship in the World Crisis."

George S. Lane attended sessions Lihquistic Society of America and American Philological Association at Yale and presented a paper on "Recent Research in Tocharian and the present Status of the Berlin Materials." He was elected to executive committee.

The English Department was represented by Clifford P. Lyons and J. O. Bailey.

British Universities to Reserve 600 Seats for US Summer Students

Approximately 600 places will be reserved for American students at summer schools to be held by British universities and colleges during July and August of this year, according to a release by the British Information offices.

The schools will provide the second post-war opportunity for American students and those from other countries to meet fellow students from Great Britain.

The courses will last six weeks, the subjects ranging over a wide field, including European civilization, Shakespeare and Elizabethan drama, education in England, medical and scientific studies, and a wide choice of others.

The schools are intended primarily for graduates and teachers who have made previous study in the subjects offered, but in some cases junior and senior undergraduates will be enrolled.

More information may be obtained through the British Information services, 30, Rockefeller plaza, New York 20, N. Y.

They're Only Formal Bull Sessions

UNC debaters made their first appearance of the new year Tuesday night in a debate with Oxford universty prefaced by a banquet honoring the guests. It was a very successful meet despite the fact that our two-man team lost the decision, but we are reminded by Randall McLeod, a member of the team, that the campus has potentialities for a much larger and stronger team. Citing the example of a college at which he debated recently, McLeod stated that they have an abundance of talent because practically all organizations have teams to enter in intra-debates. The competition is especially keen between fraternities who turn their bull-sessions into a more formal occasion.

There is already the strong nucleus here—the Debate council—to assist debaters and line-up debates with other teams for the members. The UNC debaters already have the reputation and are recognized as having a commendable debating society or the Oxford debaters would not have accepted our invitation—their only engagement in this State.

When it is announced that our debating team is having tryouts for a debate it would seem that there would be such a deluge of eager participants that the tryouts would have to be held in an auditorium. Such has not been the case in the immediate past; only a handful have expressed interest.

Besides gaining invaluable experience in forensic activities, an individual has the opportunity to travel to other colleges and enter into competition with other schools. Also they are given the opportunity to view other campuses and have an enjoyable trip. One of the scheduled events for this quarter is a debate with Tulane university in New Orleans.

The talent is on the campus, and has been evidenced in frequent and verbose bull-sessions. Make your talents available to the Debate council.

Ambassador for World Accord

Tonight at a banquet at Carolina Inn, the first prominent speaker of the winter quarter, Dr. Don Oscar Ivanissivich, Argentine ambassador to the United States, will be presented by the Carolina Chapter of the Collegiate Council for the United Nations. A noted physician and educator, Ivanissivich has been in this country since 1935 when he accepted an exchange professorship at Stanford University. Since his first arrival here, the ambassador has shown an active interest in the American system of education and for the past several weeks has been making an extensive tour of the southern states.

Ivanissivich will be received on the campus with varied reactions. True, he is the official representative to this country of Argentina, often accused of being strictly a fascist domain under the reign of Juan Peron. However, on numerous occasions, and more recently at a United Nations conference in the state, he has shown a great and sincere interest in world peace and more specifically in the United Nations. The ambassador of his native country first, he is clearly also an ambassador for world accord.

Although the seating capacity of the banquet is limited, students unable to attend will be able to meet and talk with the genial statesman at a reception in the Carolina Inn lobby at 8:30.

It is to be hoped that his appearance on the campus today is the first in a series of notable speakers, both American and foreign. Last fall there was a noted decline in the number of such men. While statesmen such as Stirling of Australia, Kosanovic of Yugoslavia, Reid of New Zealand, Winiewicz, of Poland among the foreigners, and Broughton, Johnson and Cooley of North Carolina appeared here, their number was less than in former years. The Carolina chapter of CCUN is to be congratulated for getting the ball rolling.—B. B.

Until Year 2100

Taxpayers Will Keep Paying

By Dean W. Dittmer

Washington (UP) — Future American taxpayers probably will be footing the bill for World War II in the year 2100.

It is estimated that the last surviving veteran of the war will live until the year 2030. On that basis, some surviving dependents still will be living at the beginning of the 22nd century.

Veterans Administration records show that it wasn't until 1906 that the taxpayer finished paying off the last dependent of a Revolutionary War veteran. And although the treaty ending the Mexican War will have been signed 100 years ago next February, there are 45 dependents of disabled veterans of that war still collecting from the government.

Except for cemetery care and monuments, the only two wars completely written off the tax books are the Revolutionary War and the War of 1812.

The records show that the last Revolutionary War veteran, Daniel Frederick Bakeman, Freedonia, N. Y., died April 5, 1869, at the age of 109.

The last dependent to collect government compensation from that war was Mrs. Esther S. Damon, Plymouth Union, Vt., widow of a Revolutionary War veteran, who died Nov. 11, 1906, at the age of 92.

Hiram Cronk, Alva, N. Y., last veteran of the War of 1812, died May 13, 1905, and Mrs. Esther Ann Hill Morgan, daughter of a veteran, died March 12, 1946, 130 years after the end of the war.

Actuarial estimates indicated that the last surviving Civil War veteran would be dead at the age of 99, but the Civil War veterans fooled them. The youngest survivor is now 99 and several are 105.

For the Indian Wars stretching from 1790 to 1898, there are 797 veterans and 2,278 dependents on government rolls.

The Spanish-American War has 112,355 veterans and 80,679 dependents.

History shows that as the ranks of disabled veterans getting government help thin, the group of dependents grows.

There are 438,121 veterans and 389,232 dependents of World War I getting government aid and 1,712,696 veterans and 416,370 dependents on the service-connected disability list of World War II.

Thus far the post-war cost for payments to veterans and dependents of the Civil War—now about $8,200,000,000—tops the list. But World War I is catching up rapidly with about $5,800,000,000.

The Spanish-American War is way down with about $2,200,000,000. World War II? It hasn't got a good start.

One Side, Mister Marx

Letters submitted to the Write Away column must be double-spaced, typewritten, and shall not exceed 300 words. All contributions must contain the signature, telephone number, and address of the author (names will be withheld upon request). Dear Editor:

I am a student in the University Graduate School here: I am a veteran, a citizen of the United States by birth, and a firm beliver in the principles of Democracy. . . .and as such I protest the policies of your paper in allowing one of your reporters to give full vent to his vindicitive fanaticism against a man who has done no more than honestly speak the way he feels.

I'm talking about your Bob Sain and his tirade on Billy McGrit in which Sain, the self-appointed Pied Piper of Chapel Hill, enhances his ego with his "fearless" journalistic splurges. Anyway, I don't like the idea of one of your newsmen telling me who my "avowed enemies" are. When things come to that pass, your paper is hardly more than a propaganda sheet. I do not profess to know too much about communism, but I wouldn't say Sain is an authority either. I have yet to read of a Chapel Hill communist crying out against Democracy. . . .only against the Capitalist system. Ask any union man and he'll tell you he's an "avowed enemy" of that system.

But most importantly, I have never yet read a single constructive item in anything Sain ever wrote. That is one of the faults economists have pointed out in Marx. that he was destructive, not constructive; so....Heaven help me....but here Sain resembles Marx! When any man has the power to be heard to the extent that men on your paper have, Mr Editor, they should realize the power they wield has an accompanying responsibility. If fellows like Sain see something wrong, they should be intent upon pointing out ways in which the wrong can be rectified so it cannot happen again. When a man is sick, a good doctor doesn't simply try to make the man well, but also attempts to eliminate the cause of the illness.

So again I protest that at least one of your writers is ignoring his responsibility and obligation to the readers of the TAR HEEL by using his position to express his own personal feelings without regard for the far-reaching consequences of those feelings. And I do not want Sain to point at me merely because I am speaking against him!

Support for Henry Wallace

By Bob Sain

As this column went to press yesterday afternoon the campus Henry Wallace club was on the verge of meeting in Gerrard hall for re-organization and for planning of the campaign to put Wallace into the White House in '49.

Don't sell them short. Stranger things have happened.

At any rate, Joe Blake, chairman of the committee for permanent organization of the Wallace club, is confident that the required 10,000 names will be forthcoming to put Wallace's name on the North Carolina ballot. He believes that support will come not only from the general populace, but especially from such groups as organized labor and the Negro mass.

The club leaders certainly expected considerable interest in the meeting — they changed their meeting place from the usual Roland Parker Lounge No. 3 to the more spacious Gerrard hall.

It seems to me that they'll receive their expected interest not only from the no doubt numerous pro-Wallace students but from such groups as the Carolina Conservatives club. While Wallace backers line up their campaign, it seems logical to assume that the Democrats and Republicans hereabouts will plan a program to cut off Wallace support from Negroes and labor groups.

Wallace-men probably foresee this. Last night's meeting (which I will describe on this afternoon's Tar Heel News broadcast) probably sheds some light on how the local club plans to put their man over.

Scheduled for the program was Mary Price, an officer of the Southern Conference for Human Welfare, who accompanied Wallace on his recent Southern tour. Martin Knowlton, chairman of the Wallace Democrats, was to lead the discussion and explain the club's part in the North Carolina campaign.

Revise Entertainment Setup

By R. Foo Giduz

Memo to spring-thinking political party platform formers: One of the best flops around the campus in the past two years has been the well-meant Student Entertainment committee. . . . Its members have no doubt done their jobs as well as possible, and they have brought some good entertainment to the campus. . . . But since SEC went on a voluntary basis it's been doomed.

—Not to go into any great detail, or make any structure-shaking proposals now, but it seems logical from here that the moguls of campus government might do well to start again considering putting the Student Entertainment committee on a cooperating basis with the one overall full-time extracurricular and entertainment center of the campus—Graham Memorial. . . . The student union, through working full-time on entertainment anyhow, seems ideally equipped to take in this function, and thus stop the present expensive, ineffective, and totally unprofitable duplication. . . . That's putting it briefly, but the basic idea is there. . . . How about a "committee for the investigation of . . .", politicoes?

Among 21 bills on veterans affairs which Congress received during the final two weeks session before Christmas recess, was a measure to eliminate the requirement for the pauper's oath in applying for VA benefits (Sen. Pepper, Fla.) . . . If passed, this may extend VA medical facilities to ALL vets, whether service-disabled or not! . . . Interested? . . . Write! Also a House bill now in the hopper to extend on-the-job training limit from two to four years.

—Sorry to hear about earnest Ernie House's resigning from the Legislature. . . . Along with Charlie Long (rumor has it he's quitting too, though he'll deny it!) working, most capable, and certainly most COLORFUL characters—er legislators, in that august (?) body. . . . And with nearly half of the Legislature taking the oath of office for the first time next Thursday, this pair may be sorely missed. . . . Speaking of resigning and "Chubby Charlie"—It was "shades of Jarboe" yesterday when someone "resigned" from Lenoir hall with the erstwhile politicoe's brown overcoat! . . . (Oldsters may remember "Jarboe" was the quaint character with an overcoat eroticism who lifted over a hundred of 'em from Lenoir hall in the roaring pre-war days.

Dormitory Rooms Available for 16

There are 16 students now eligible for dormitory rooms who have until Friday to contact the housing office at room 22 in the barracks annex to New East building, University housing director J. E. Wadsworth stated yesterday.

These are men who entered the University in the Spring of 1947, paid a $6 room deposit to get on a waiting list for dormitory space, and attended the past summer and fall terms. If any of the 16 do not report to the housing office by Friday, Wadsworth warned that it will be assumed they no longer want dormitory rooms. The accommodations which are available will then be assigned to the next in line on the waiting files.

The students for whom space in dormitories is now ready are as follows: Simeon H. Adams, Robert M. Allen, Gerald N. Baker, Harry L. Brown, Frank Casey, Marvin R. Dillon, Eldon F. Gaither, Winfree A. Hines, Leon M. Hollingsworth, John E. Hollowell, Lavis G. Huffines, William McFarland, Joseph Michalski, Nanda D. Nath, William J. Pettigrew, and Marshall H. Pinnix.

Men's Fashions

Comfort Is the Keynote

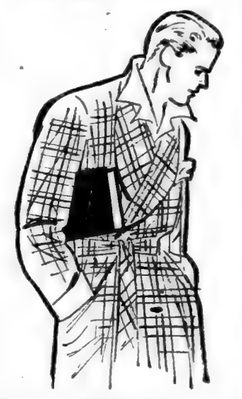
By the Fashion Editor of Esquire Magazine

There was a time when the college man—or any man, for that matter—could do one of two things; he could dress for comfort—he could dress for style. Today the comfort-conscious-no-less-than-fashion-conscious undergrad insists on both qualities in the same outfit. And, as usual, what the American animal insists on—he gets, but that's a matter of personal preference.

This information may never get you through your next exam—but it may help you through the long cold winter that's still ahead of us.

Wool-Gathering

Whoever it was that said that this would be a mild winter probably had a Caribbean cruise in mind at the time. For those of you who were left behind to stew and study, winter is never mild enough to forego the comfort of a warm wool sweater worn with your tweed jackets and slacks. The sleeveless sweater, worn in lieu of a vest, has become acceptable even in some of the more formal offices in town; on campus, it's practically been written into the regs. V-neck cashmeres in tan, blue, bluish grey and brown are thes most popular. As for the long sleeved species, fuzzy shetland wool type crew-neck pullovers in natural colors seem to be leading the field. But if its really out front that you'd be, rather than back in the crowd, latch onto a button-front cardigan. It's coming in for a big play from the college crowd.



Gathering of the Clan

When there's snow upon the campus and a draft runs through the dorm, a man's best friend is a warm wool robe. And when you're burning the midnight oil with a text book in one hand and a cup of black coffee in the other, a dash of bright color is a welcome sight. Put all this together and what have you got? Check! — a warm wool robe in a bright tartan plaid. The shawl wrap-around robe is still the favorite. For color, there's no other to compete with the clan plaids of Scotland. Some of the robes are on the dark side, but most of them reproduce the plaids in their authentic colors, including yellow, green and bright red. Get a really bright one and you can throw away that black coffee. As for pajamas, solid shades go best with all that color, but some men are never satisfied—blazer stripes are getting as big a play as ever. The coat style is slightly ahead of the pull over middy,

Footnote

If it's good enough for sweaters it's good enough for sock--the cable-stitch, that is. For years, the cable-stitch design has been confined (or almost confined) to the wool pull-over sweater that leading tennis players drape over their shoulders between sets. Today the cable-stitch is turning up in woolen and in corse-yarn cotton socks. The design dresses up that used to be a plain foot-covering and makes them as goodlooking as they are warm. The size of the cable is smaller, of course; the pattern has been reduced to conform to the proportions of the socks. These come only in soft colors; blue, bluish grey, tan and yellow. We say it's a particularly good sock to let come between you and your moccasin.

A Knee Poem

To the Editor:

I have restrained myself from evincing an opinion ever since the historic battle of Him vs. Hem began, but Miss (?) E. C. Morgan's letter to the editor gives me the opportunity to prove to myself that I am normal and add my note to the mounting cacophany.

The writer sounds like a misanthrope. Every male with whom I have discussed the subject inveighed against long skirts, with the exception of one gentleman who caressed my kneecap at least 10 times on the train between New Haven and New York, until I made him realize the snow wasn't that bad. But then, men may possess more handsome knees than the women our scribe has known.

In answer to the question posed, Yes, I have read a poem in which the knee figures as a point of beauty. The line "her almond-bolted knees blasphemed the gentler air" strikes me as being very beautiful.

I would not be making such a mountain out of mere elbows and knees, but for the fact that I consider long skirts a reactionary thought pattern which manifests itself in the realm of fashion, and no art can learn from atavists. I'll take the short-skirted flapper of the '20s: she lived in a decade of great esthetic progress, and the upward trend of her skirt was halted only by the depression.

I could also argue my viewpoint from an economic and a social approach if I had the space. All that Miss Morgan has succeeded in doing has been to arouse a strong desire in me to see her in a bathing suit and read Baudelaire to her on the subject of women's armpits.

AFofL President Opposes Wallace

Washington —(UP)— The president of the American Federation of Labor, William Green, says he is opposed to Henry Wallace for president and to a third party at this time.

Green stated that he thinks the third party movement at this time is a great political mistake. He says that the Wallace campaign will help to elect what he calls "reactionary Republican candidates." However, he adds that in his opinion labor generally is opposed to Wallace.

"I'm against him," Green said. "I've followed his speeches and I've got the impression from them that Russia is right and America is wrong."

Hillel to Hear Poteat Friday

The Hillel Foundation's program for the winter quarter with regular Friday night services conducted by Leonard Kaplan with Mr. Willian H. Poteat, former YMCA Secretary as guest speaker. A reception will be held after services for Mr. and Mrs. Paul Furgatch. Speakers for January services include: Rev. Charles Jones, on January 23, Rev. J. R. Nelson on January 30. Arrangements are being made to have rabbis from Raleigh, Greensboro and Durham conduct services in February.

Howard Perry is continuing the elementary Hebrew reading classes on Thursday morning at ten in the Hillel Lounge. All students interested are invited to attend.

Final plans are being made for joint discussion groups with the Hillel Foundation at Women's College in Greensboro. Students interested in taking part in those discussions are asked to leave their names in the Hillel office.

The regular meeting of the Hillel cabinet will be held on Monday, January 11 at 8:00 p. m. All Jewish students are invited to attend.

Back Tracking In Sports

Morty Schaap

Plenty of activity around the Tin Can means that it won't be long before the Carolina tracksters will be taking to the boards in preparation for the coming indoor season. Not that the season has not already started with last week's Washington meet under the heels for experience. The maintance crew under Mr. Hutchins, of the Athletic Asociation and Mr. Horney of the buildings department and their crews and Mr. Branch, University Purchasing agent, have done a fine job in ridding the old gym of tons of surplus equipment to ready it for the Fetzer-Ranson combine.

Saturday night the Tar Heel track twins Jack Milne and Jimmy Miller will take a trip to Brooklyn to compete in the invitation two mile run in the Knights of Columbus meet. This is the first of the many of the Metropolitan New York meets and will bring together such distance stars as Curt Stone of the Shanahan A.C.; Armond Osterburg, NYU, Eddie O'Toole, Manhattan; Leslie MacMitchell, N.Y.A.C.; plus many of the other New York collegiate and club stars. It should prove interesting to see what this coming season will offer.

While on the track picture the mentors of the cindermen are urging all men to come down and start working out. Track is fast blossoming in the indoor domains of the south and the newest meet to be added is the University of Maryland event on February 21 in the new College Park armory. This meet is one week before the classic Chapel Hill affair. The Tar Heels will also be active in Philadelphia, Boston and New York. So it looks as if the next few years will bring the South an attractive indoor schedule.

Woollen gymnasium will be the scene of another sport on January 20 when the finest tennis players in the world will perform. Bobby Riggs and Jack Kramer will continue their duel for singles supremacy and then join with Panch Segura and Dinny Pails to play doubles. A Segura-Pails singles match is also in the offing. Kramer has been wild in his opening matches but should have settled down considerably by the time that the tour arrives in Carolina. Tickets are available and choice reserved seats are being sold at the gym.

The soccer swan song that has never been sung for this season will finally arrive this Saturday in Baltimore. Three Tar Heel booters will take part with the other collegians and amateurs for places on the 1948 Olympic team. Frank Nelson, Dave Boak and Gus Johnston will be the trio from Chapel Hill and they will be up against the finest soccer players in the country.

Much interest for participants and spectators in such sports as track and swimming could be raised by a simple system. If the walls of the Tin Can and Bowman-Gray would have placards stating what the record and who the record holders are in the various events all concerned could have an added incentive. Might prove very worth while. Much interest could be added to the jayvee and freshman basketball games if the officials would use the whistle that they have around their necks instead of yard-sticks.

While on the subject of basketball officiation we were informed by Eastern authorities that the big difference between the refereeing in the various sections of the country is the intepretation of the pickoff play. In most sections of the country there is much lenience in this interference play while in New York's Madison Square Garden they are very strict. The least intention to move and block a man brings a whistle for blocking. This is one of the main reasons out of town teams find going rough in the metropolitan emporium. The basketball displayed in the city during the Christmas week was of the poorest brand ever displayed. Even the versatile Kentucky Wildcats were far from true championship style. Maybe is was jitters or perhaps basketball is falling off.

Meanwhile NYU's swashbuckling Violets go merrily along. They seem to be rated better than they actually are but their game is very similar to Wallace Wade Duke football. Give them a break and they will beat your pants off. The New Yorkers are loaded with such veterans as Dolph Schayes, Don Forman, Ray Lumpp, John Kelly, Joe Dohlan, Joe DeBonis and many other make an experienced and aggressive club. Temple of Philadelphia, another of Carolina rivals for the next weekend, has a much better ball club than they indicate from their won and lost record. They did manage to nip Kentucky by a single point and then go into a tailspin. The Owls are big and wise and will furnish a tough evening to any club in the country.

Dis and Data . . .

Ernie "Tiny" Williamson, former Tar Heel grid star and lately of the Washington Redskins pro-football team, has returned to school to continue his studies. . . Fred Bauer who has been on basketball, football, track and baseball teams at the university received a fine Christmas present from his wife in the form of twin girls, Susan and Joan . . . Many members of the football squad that took the marital road over the vacation take quite a ribbing from the other members of the football team .

Carolina Representatives At New York Convention

The University of North Carolina have seven representatives at the various athletic meetings in New York.

The group consists of R. A. Fetzer, director of athletics; Dr. A. W. Hobbs, chairman of the athletic council; O. K. Cornwell, professor of physical education; Charles P. Erickson, assistant athletic director; Coaches Carl Snavely, football, and Dick Jamerson, swimming, and Jake Wade. University News Bureau, director of sports news.

With the NCAA sessions the highlight, there will be national football coaches, physical education and sports publicity meetings.

Football fans may have to brush up on the rules of the game before they can settle down to watch the 1948 touchdown parade.

Phants On Road Over Weekend; Paxton Leads Scorers With 130

NORM KOHLER
Right Behind Paxton

By Dick Jenrette

Boasting a fine record of nine wins in an equal number of starts, Coach Tom Scott's Carolina White Phantoms will seek to further their victory string on Friday and Saturday of this week when they meet Virginia Tech and Washington and Lee in a couple of Southern conference contests to be played in Virginia.

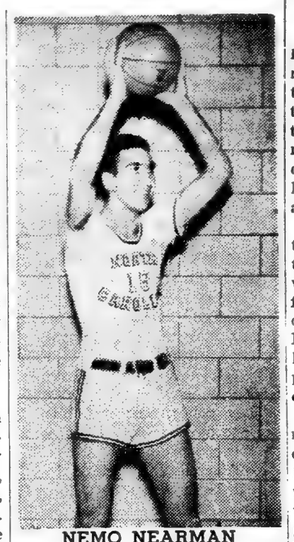
Carolina, which was rated by most observers as the team that was most likely to give N. C. State a battle for the loop crown, has shown this assumption was true. Carolina hasn't had a really close scrap as yet, and the Phantoms stand an excellent chance of beating the Raleigh outfit.

The Big Question

The argument about which school has the better team, Carolina or State, is growing day by day. State has been beaten twice, by West Virginia and Holy Cross, two of the nation's best teams. Their most impressive wins were over St. John's and George Washington, which already holds victories over many other conference teams.

Carolina's wins, in order, have been scored against Catawba, Guilford, Elon, High Point, Hanes, Loyola, Maryland, Tennessee, and South Carolina. The Phantoms have 16 more games left to play, five of which are slated for Woollen gym.

Captain Bob Paxton paces the Carolina scorers to date, with 130 points for an average of 14.4. Norm Kohler is second with 81.



Scoring Totals

Here are the totals for all the squad members who have scored thus far: Paxton 130, Kohler 81, Nearman 68, Dillon 56, Miller 49, Cole 46, Carson 39, Swartzburg 24, Scholbe 13, Thorne 11, Nathan 7, Nyimicz 4, Mitchell 4, Wagner 3, Ryan 2, Weinstein 1.

Yesterday the Phantoms went through a light workout at Woollen in preparation for their Virginia swing this weekend. The team will travel by bus.

Carolina's next home game will be against Wake Forest here in a Big Four and conference game on Monday night.

The big news around the conference yesterday was Davidson's 44-42 surprise win over Duke. Carolina's 63-45 win over South Carolina shared the spotlight.

Duke Battles NYU In Garden Tonight

New York, Jan. 7—(UP)—The Blue Devils of Duke University hope to reverse roles tomorrow night—from victim of on upset to winner of an upset.

Beaten by Davidson's Wildcats, 44-42, last night in the last 50 seconds of play, the Dukesters move into Madison Square Garden tomorrow to meet the strong New York University quintet, undefeated in eight contests.

Twice before the Duke team played in the Garden, only to lose in overtime games. Last year it took two extra periods for NYU to edge the Blue Devils by a 64-61 count.

On Saturady, Duke plays in Philadelphia against Temple. (North Carolina runs up against both clubs next week on a similar northern swing.)

Riggs Downs Kramer To Deadlock Series At Four Wins Each

Good seats for the Riggs-Kramer tennis match in Woollen gym January 20 are still available at the ticket office in the gym lobby, Business Manager Vernon Crook disclosed yesterday.

The cross-country tour, in its ninth engagement last night at Hershey, Pa., is all tied up at four wins each after Riggs came through with an easy 6-1, 6-3 victory at Ithaca, N. Y., last night.

Kramer, behind at one time in the series by 3-1, trimmed his diminutive rival three straight times before last night's loss.

Stirnweiss Signs

New York, Jan 7—(UP)—Second baseman George Stirnweiss today signed his 1948 contract with the New York Yankees, the club front office has announced.

The former North Carolina collegiate star is the third Yank to sign in as many days. Tommy Henrich came to terms on Monday and Joe DiMaggio okeyed his contract yesterday.

Court Openers See Phi Delts Cop 41-1 Rout

By Larry Fox

The Phi Delt cagers took a look at the one-sided margins rolled up by the White Phantoms this season and decided to see if they could, improve on them in the intramural basketball tournament that opened yesterday. They did it with a vengeance annihilating a hapless KA quintet by a 41-1 count.

The number one Phi Delt entry held KA No. 2 scoreless from the floor. Guy Kirby, KA forward, saved his mates from the fate of a shutout by connecting on a free throw. Ott Evans and Rotcher Watkins shared scoring honors for the victors with 10 points apiece. Walt Haywood was close behind with nine.

Sigma Chi No. 1 scored the most points during the afternoon easily by defeating Pi Lamb No. 1 by 20 markers. The final score was 47-27. Dick McDonald of the victors was high scorer for the game, notching 14 tallies. Mel Westreich starred in a losing cause by netting 11 markers.

Defensively, the tilt between the SAE No. 2 and Sig Ep No. 1 was the best of the afternoon. The final whistle saw the SAE's ahead by five points, 24-19.

In another one-sided match the Lamba Chi's took the measure of Kappa Psi No. 1, 37-13.

Walker, DiLorenzo Lead Mural Athletes In Point Totals for Fall Quarter Sports

T. E. (Boo) Walker, representing the Med School, led all intramural participants for the Fall quarter with a total of 73 points, according to statistics released by the intramural office.

Vinnie DiLorenzo, ace southpaw for the Carolina baseball nine, was runner-up with 71. DiLorenzo, representing the Chi Psis, led in the fraternity division.

Although the dormitory men copped first place, the 13 fraternity entrants listed all placed ahead of Jack Hartley, Sam Stallard, and Harry Probstein who tied for second in the dorms with identical totals of 57. Coming in third with 70 markers was Phi Delt Gene Turner. Bud Ruffin, Zeta Psi, was close behind the leaders in fourth position with 69.

Points were awarded on the basis of five points for each victory and a single tally for a defeat.

The list of high scorers in both divisions follow:

Last Minute Carolina Rally Falters; Peters, Tsantes, Top Men for Losers

By Bill Kellam

Carolina's previously undefeated jayvees met their Waterloo in Woollen Gym last night at the hands of Duke's underdog juniors when they were nosed out by the visitors in a rough and ragged contest, 41-39. The junior Phantoms had racked up five straight victories before last night's debacle.

Pappy Hamilton's rustily passing and shooting charges almost managed to pull this one out of the fire with a frantic last minute rally but this belated offensive outburst fell short when the final gun sounded during a scramble under the Duke basket for the ball.

Frail Thorne Gregory paced the Tar Heels jayvees with three points during their tardy scoring spree during which they closed the score from 39-34 to 41-39. Pete Peters contributed a follow-up two-pointer during this final seconds but and an earlier pivot shot by Simmons of Duke nullified his effort.

The visitors got off to a flying start and led 11-2 after seven minutes of play but then the Phantomettes came through with their only other show of offensive might as Peters and John Tsantes knotted the count at 11-11 after two minutes of heavy shooting. The Duke "B" Cagers broke away from a 13-13 deadlock and were never headed again.

Aided by the Tar Heels wild passes, the Imps steadily increased their 25-22 halftime lead and several times they were ahead by as much as seven or eight points. Throughout the game the Carolina Juniors broke up their own scoring drives by wild passes that either ended up in the stands or by tosses right into the hands of the Duke cagers.

Tonight at 8 o'clock on the Woolen Floor, the Frosh quintet face the Greensboro High School Whirlies. On Saturday night the Jayvees meet Presbyterian Jr. College on the Woollen court.

Dean Wettach participated in session to determine the organization of a Washington School of Public Law; Van Hecke participated in a labor law conference; and Miss Wallach gave paper on post-war law library problems.

Attending American Sociological Society meetings, New York, from Sociology Department and Institute for Research in Social Science were N. J. Demerath, Katherine Jocher, Daniel O. Price; Abbott Ferriss; Research Assistants George W. Baker, Hilda Kuper, Moya Woodside, and Graduate Students Leo Kuper, Jerry Daniel and Edith Semat. Dr. Demerath presented paper on housing and Dr. Jocher presided over a session, was elected to executive committee.

John E. Ivey, Jr., delivered two papers before American Association for the Advancement of Science, Chicago, and addressed joint meeting American Association of Biology Teachers and the American Nature Study Society.

Harold Hotelling, head, Department Mathmatical Statistics, and D. N. Nanda, visiting graduate student sent here by the government of India, attended joint sessions American Statistical Association and the Institute of Mathematical Statistics. Both presented papers. Dr. Hotelling is chairman of the Institute committee which reported last fall on the desirability of the teaching of statistics by well trained specialists. Reports were made on this need.

Political Scientists Meet

Attending Washington meeting American Political Science Association from Political Science Department were Department Head C. B. Robson, and Paul W. Wager, J. W. Fesler, and Graduate Students John McReynolds, Allan Richards, Donald Hayman, Hubert Marshall, Robert Jones and Joseph Reid. John A. Parker, head of Department of City and Regional Planning, and Dr. Ivey took part in a panel discussion on state and local planning.

Glen Haydon, head, Music Department, and J. P. Schinhan and William Newman attended Music Teachers National Association, National Association of Schols of Music, College Music Association and American Musicology Society.

Dr. Haydon presided over musicology section of MTNA, and was chairman special committee on publications, and membership committee AMS. Dr. Newman was elected to executive board Musicology Society.

Zoologists Convene

Members of Zoology Department at sessions American Society of Zoologists and the Genetics Society of America, Chicago, were Maurice Whittinghill, who presented a paper; David G. Frey, at Limnological Society of America, where he presented a paper, and American Society of Zoologists; and Miss Catherine Henley, research assistant, who presented joint paper by her and Dr. D. P. Costello, head of the Department here. Dr. Costello was elected treasurer American Society of Naturalists.

R. E. Coker, former head Zoology Department, was in Washington in connection with the Fisheries Research Institute.

Botanists Go To Chicago

J. N. Couch, head Botany Department, presented paper before American Association for the Advancement of Science. Louis G. Williams also attended.

E. L. Mackie, E. A. Cameron, V. A. Hoyle and A. T. Brauer of Mathematics Department, attended American Mathematics Society and the Mathematics Association of America in Athens, Ga.

L. O. Kattsoff and Martin Lean, Philosophy Department, were at Inter-American Congress of Philosophers, Columbia University. Dr. Kattsoff also attended sessions Association of Symbolic Logic.

Walter Spearman, Journalism Department, attended sessions American Association of College Teachers of Journalism, Philadelphia.

J. Sullivan Gibson, Department of Geology and Geography, attended sessions American Association of Geographers, University of Virginia.

F. J. Kottke, School of Commerce, attended meeting American Economics Association, Chicago.

Marvin Allen, soccer coach and member Physical Education Department, attended meeting National Soccer Association, New York.

Cause for American Pride . . .

Now we are engaged in a great civil war, testing whether that nation, or any nation, so conceived, and so dedicated, can long endure. We are met on a great battle-field of that war. We have come to dedicate a portion of it as a final resting place for those who here gave their lives that that nation might live. It is altogether fitting and proper that we should do this.

But in a larger sense we can not dedicate—we can not consecrate—we can not hallow this ground. The brave men, living and dead, who struggled here have consecrated it far above our poor power to add or detract.

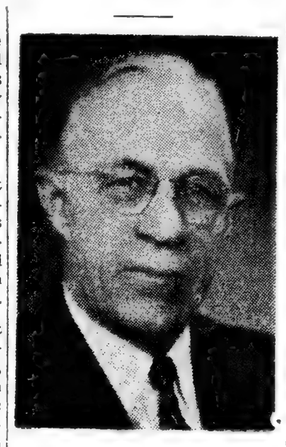
UP Names Vice-Chairman; SP Head Unpicked

LISTENING CAREFULLY, Republican Sen. Arthur Vandenberg (left), President pro-tem. of the Senate, and Republican House Speaker Joseph Martin (right) hear President Truman deliver his State of the Union message to a joint session of Congress. Vital part of the speech was the Democrat President's request that Congress vote an immediate tax cut of $40 to every individual taxpayer and each of his dependents. The revenue loss would be offset by a higher corporation tax, which would yeild $3,200,000,000. (International)



N. C. Business Foundation Vice-President Will Assume New Duties Here January 15th

By Nancy Stanford

Dr. I. G. Greer, renowned state educator and humanitarian, will come to the University campus January 15 to take up his new duties as executive vice-president of the North Carolina Business Foundation.

The new executive, the first full-time admitistrator of the activities of this group of business leaders working for economic education with the University, will set up his office temporarily on the first floor of South building.

Dr. Greer comes to this post from the helm of the North Carolina Good Healh Association, which made such great strides in the past months in publicizing the state's health needs and in advancing a constructive program to fill them. Before his service there he was superintendent of the Baptist orphanages in the state, and taught at Appalachian State Teachers College for 29 years. He received his education here and at Columbia University. In the past Greer has also held the presidencies of the North Carolina Conference for Social Sciences, the Tri-State Orphange conference and the state Baptist convention. He was given an honorary doctor of law degree in 1943 by Wake Forest College.

Dr. I. G. Greer

The organization which Greer will administrate here was formed in July, 1946, by a group of prominent industrial and professional leaders of the state in order to "increase the per capita income of our people, to diversify our economy, and to develop our unused resources, to stabilize employment, and to provide new and more profitable jobs," in the words of the founders.

To activate these aims, Foundation members will work through the Commerce department of the University, establishing new professorships, instructing and directing research in industrial and business techniques, and sponsoring institutes, conferences, and workshops in these fields at Chapel Hill.

Robert M. Hanes of Winston-Salem is president of the Foundation, Ben Cone of Greensboro is Treasurer, George Watts Hill of Durham is secretary, and six regional vice-presidents direct the organizational and financial work of the group throughout the state.

Machinery Rolls Toward Spring, Campus Elections

By Chuck Hauser

Campus political machinery, pointed in the direction of the spring elections, began to grind into motion yesterday afternoon as two party meetings dabbled in reorganization and consideration of candidates.

R. Charles Loudermilk, rising junior from Atlanta, Georgia, was elected vice-chairman of the University party, and Student party vice-chairman Charles Howe took over the SP reins temporarily pending a Monday night meeting when a new chairman will be elected.

Long Resigns

The vacancy was created when Charlie Long, present speaker pro tempore of the Student Legislature, tendered his resignation as SP head at yesterday's meeting. The secondary position in the University party was emptied by Ernest House, veteran Student Legislator.

Both men are reported to be handicapped by a large burden of studies, and it is rumored that both will resign from the Student Legislature in a short time.

Loudermilk, the new UP vice-chairman, is a March, 1947, transfer from Georgia Tech where he saw considerable action in campus politics. A commerce major, he saw war action with the Navy.

The Student party will meet at 9 o'clock Monday evening in Graham Memorial's Roland Parker lounge no. 1 to begin consideration of spring nominations, in addition to election of party officers.

Forty-Four Coeds Signed in Yack Race For Beauty Queen Scheduled Today

Amid feverish jockeying for position by both contestants and would-be members of the audience, the list of entries for the title of Queen of the Yackety Yack was officially closed last night.

Forty-four coeds representing the most beautiful of Carolina's women will vie for the title at 4 o'clock this afternoon when the contest is to be held. Ned Reap and his orchestra will begin the festivities at 3:45, and MC Tag Montague will lead the parade of beauties onto the stage, 15 minutes later.

The judges who will select the queen and her 15 attendants from the large field of contestants are all prominent local townsmen. They include William Meade Prince, a free lance artist whose work has appeared in Colliers and elsewhere, James Street, author of The Gauntlet, E. Carrington Smith, local theater manager-owner, James Davis, owner of the University Florist, and Director of Admissions Roy Armstrong.

The girl chosen as queen will receive a bouquet of orchids as a gift of the Yack staff and will have her picture featured in the book's Beauty section.

However, other students who wish to see the parade of beauties were advised by the staff to be on hand early as a full house is anticipated. Commenting on the advance estimates of attendance, Tag Montague repeated his earlier predictfon of a full house.

The girls who have been entered and their sponsors are: Pi Beta Phi; Liz Hazlett and Louise Dodson; Chi Omega, Lilian DeArmon and Rose Field; McIver, Sara Marsh; Delta Kappa Epsilon, Weddy Throp, Ferne Hughes, and Helen Bouldin; Kappa Alpha, Baba DeWitt; Stacy, Edie Knight; Old East, Carolyn Kimzey; Pi Kappa Alhpa, Tenn Mason; Beta Theta Pi, Mary Louise Poe and Cattie Lee Holt.

Chi Pi, Jean Marie Lester, Frankie Johnston, and Joan Lucas; Phi Delta Theta, Evelyn Pettitt, Phyllis Ganey, and Margaret Marley; Smith, Barbara Lynn; Tri Delt, Margie Norris and Marilyn Blackwell; Phi Gamma Delta, Peggy Edgerton and Geraldine Williamson; Zeta Psi, Helen Barnes; Kenan, Mary Jo Cain; Stray Greek (women), Doris Newburn.

Chi Phi, Betty Brown; Alpha Delta Pi, Bonnie Thrash, Mary Lloyd Craddock, Margo Martin; Kappa Sigma, Claudia Lee and Jane Lee Parker; Spencer, Marguerite Johnson; Alpha Gamma Delta, Sally Jackson, Becky Holton, and Margaret Allred; CICA, Marty Hinkle; Phi Kappa Sigma, Frieda Deans and Monk Pegram; Town Girl's association, Betty Vashaw, Jeanne Basnight, and Esther Cheek.

Argentine Legate For Understanding Stresses Education

By George Drew

"I am firm in the belief that justice, liberty and democracy will triumph in relations between Argentina and the United States," stated his excellency, Ambassador from Argentina Don Oscar Ivanissevich, to the group of approximately 50 faculty members and students attending a banquet in his honor at the Carolina Inn last night.

Ambassador Ivanissevich's speech emphasized the importance of education in creating better relations and understanding between the United States and South America, especially Argentina.

Cites Schools

Citing his nation's schools as examples, he pointed out that a main defect in the Argentine system was an inclination to place too much importance on abstractions rather than reality. He asserted that more study of Spanish in the United States would do much to help mutual understanding between the countries.

Argentine illiteracy is rapidly diminishing and the standard of living in that country has been greatly raised, he told his lis-

Marshall Rejects Repayment Ideas

Washington, Jan. 8 —(UP)— Secretary of State George C. Marshall told the Senate Foreign Relations committee today that this country is not trying to buy special advantages in Europe with its giant recovery program.

Speaking before the committee today, Marshall turned donw suggestions that the United States should demand strategic military bases in return for sending $17 billion worth of relief goods overseas. He took his stand on the question of repayment after telling congress it had the choice of approving the giant foreign aid plan in full or starting to arm the nation against World War III.

Marshall emphasized that he is offering his program on an all-or-nothing basis. "Either undertake to meet the requirements of the European problem or don't undertake it at all," he told the Foreign Relations committee.

Committee Chairman Arthur Vandenberg accepted the challenge by asking Marshall for a new balance sheet reporting just how much money the administration intends to spend abroad during the next 15 months.

In reply, Lewis Douglas, American Ambassador to Great Britain, said that he may have the balance sheet ready to submit to the senators tomorrow. Douglas has been mentioned as a likely candidate to be top administrator of the foreign aid program.

Daniels Still Critical

Raleigh, Jan. 8 —(UP)— The condition of 83-year-old Josephus Daniels, editor of the Raleigh News and Observer, remained unchanged today. The World War I secretary of the navy and former Ambassador to Mexico took a turn for the worse last night after being ill with bronchitis for five days.

Housing Office Issues New List

The University Housing Office today issued the following list of students now eligible for dormitory room. It is necessary that they come to the Office in New East Annex by Saturday.

Those eligible for rooms are: William R. Adkins, Charles E. Behrens, Thomas S. Bradshaw, Alton G. Buck, J. Clyde Carr, Roger M. Chandler, Wyndham S. Dukes, Charles W. Dwiggins, Cleveland J. Glover, Henry N. Goldstein, Franklin E. Green, Robert A. Hanner, David E. Hudson, Richard E. Johnson, John M. Lambros, Charles B. Moras, Alton S. Parrish, James C. Russell, Metsel K. Debate Practice Program To Be Organized Monday

A call for all interested persons to attend the first Varsity Debate practice program to be organized Monday night was made yesterday by Debate council President Earl Fitzgerald.

Designed to organize competent debaters on campus and to create a wider interest in University forensic activities, the 7 o'clock meeting is scheduled for the Dialectic hall, New West.

Future debates with Duke University and surrounding colleges and universities, expense-paid tours which the Debate Council arranges, will be planned at this meeting. Topic for most national inter-collegiate debates this year, which is also the topic for the February Inter-American Glendy-Burke Forensic tournament at Tulane university in New Orleans, is. "Resolved: that a world federal government should be established."

In connection with the New Orleans tour, a three-day event beginning February 26, Fitzgerald explained that no selections have as yet been made. The tournament will include not only regular debaters but also those who choose to take part in extemporaneous speaking, dramatic reading, after-dinner speaking and oratory.

Later in the year, the Debate president concluded, an intro-mural debate program is to be organized, for which the council hopes the Intra-mural department will award points in competition for winning organizations.

Board Restores Teaching Liscence To A. L. Fritz, Jr.

Raleigh, Jan. 8 —(UP)— The State Board of Education restored the teaching certificate of former Hudson school principal R. L. Fritz, Jr., in a meeting here this afternoon.

The board took away his right to teach last August when he admitted mishandling state funds at his Hudson school. Fritz admitted juggling some $16,000 to pad payrolls for teachers and to pay his wife for office work.

The matter was given to a Grand Jury in Caldwell county and Fritz was indicted for false pretense. The outspoken president of the North Carolina Education association went on trial in Caldwell county December 15 and was cleared by a non-suit six days later.

Though Fritz was freed, presiding Judge A. H. Gwyn stated

Delegate Reports To UVA Governors On Veterans Bill

By Herb Nachman

South Trimble, University Veterans Association representative to the National Conference of Veteran Trainees held in Washington recently, will make his official report Tuesday night at the regular meeting of the club.

In a meeting of the board of governors of the UVA yesterday, Trimble reported that he had served on the ceiling committee of the Conference which was composed of student delegates from 21 states.

Seek Increase

The object of the conference is to influence Congressional action toward a $35 montaly increase in veteran's subsistence allowances. The purpose of the ceiling committee on which Trimble served was to determine whether the ceiling should be raised on the amount of money a veteran may earn and still be eligible for subsistence.

Trimble reported that the committee voted to leave the ceiling as it is but the action was defeated by the conference. The primary result of the conference, Trimble said, was that the group definitely decided to support the Rogers bill, introduced early in the last session by Rep. Edith Rogers, (R. Mass.), Chairman of the House Veterans Affairs Committee. The bill was never acted upon by Congress.

Provisions of Bill

The Rogers bill would increase subsistence for single veterans from $65 to $100 per month; for married veterans from $90 to $125 a month with $10 for each additional dependent.

A House committee favorably reported on a compromise bill in July which would increase the subsistence for single veterans to $75 and married veterans to $105 with $15 for each additional dependent. However, the conference voted to put its efforts behind the Rogers bill.

At Tuesdays meeting, an official report will be made by Trimble in which he will call for an opinion from the club members as to whether or not the local UVA should take definite action to influence individual congressmen.

Mme. Signe Hojer To Speak Tonight

Madame Signe Hojer of Stockholm, Sweden, authority on problems of peace and on home and family life, will speak at the Methodist church tonight at 8 o'clock. Her topic will be "Ways of Peace."

In addition to the meeting tonight, a dutch luncheon will be held tomorrow in honor of Madame Hojer. At this time she will speak on "How Sweden Got Along with Russia During the War." Any interested students or townspeople may call Mrs. N. B. Adams at the Bulls Head Bookshop to make reservations.

President of the State Home and Family commission and of the Swedish section of Women's International League for Peace and Freedom, Madame Hojer will appear under the joint sponsorship of the campus YWCA, the League of Women Voters, and Women's International League.

Her report to the Home and Family commission has become a best seller in Sweden. Its purpose is to presuade the government that a housewife's work should be accorded the same respect given other professions. "Because of its value to the country in economics, educational, moral, and other aspects."

Active in social and political fields for many years, Madame Hojer is the wife of the Swedish Minister of Medicine, and they have four children. Her lectures and writing always give special attention to questions affecting family life.

Swedish Medical Man To Visit Here Today

Dr. J. Axel Hojer, head of the Medical board of Sweden, will visit the School of Public Health here today and tomorrow.

The faculty of the School of Public Health will give a dinner for Dr. Hojer and his wife tonight at the Carolina Inn. Following the dinner, Dr. Hojer will speak on "Sweden's public health problems and program" at 8 o'clock in the Library.

Campus Spokes Spin On Student Union Hub

By Elinor Woltz

Graham Memorial, is the very hub around which the spokes of University student activity revolve. At the humming core, in which originate student plans and projects, lies the unpretentious first floor office directed by an efficient staff of thirteen. This office renders student services all the way from travel reservations to a lost and found service which even includes locating lost week-end guests.

But the most patronized service is the information desk which puts up with a jangling phone all day. For instance, on the day of the Florida football game, two to three hundred students phoned to find out whether the game was to be broadcast. A switchboard seemed the only logical solution.

The splendid service furnished by this office is made possible to a large extent by Mrs. Dorothy Cooke, office manager. Poised and proficient in handling any situation, she is justly termed jack-of-all-trades. Besides general office work, her busy schedule includes mimeographing for any recognized organization, releasing equipment for student use, and presiding over the information bureau. Among strange requests recently came one from a gent for President Truman's signature.

But these tasks do not narrow down Mrs. Cooke's activities. She has assisted with University registration, directed a nursery school in Durham last year, regularly attends football games, and now maintains a four-room home in Victory Village for herself, her husband, and five-year old Dorothy Anne. After her 9 to 5 o'clock daily routine, Mrs. Cooke drives home with her little girl who attends nursery school and husband Pat, a law student at the University, prepares dinner, does the housekeeping. —Sounds exhausting, but, as Mrs. Cooke puts it, "You've missed half your life if you haven't lived in Victory Village." Pat often helps with the cleaning when he isn't head-over-heels in law work. —His excuse, "I'm here to go to school."

As if all this wasn't enough for one young person, energetic Mrs. Cooke knits avidly in her spare time, socks and gloves being her specialty. On week-ends she sometimes socializes with Pat's student friends and their wives during several bridge sets. Last year, however, spare time was employed to a more practical means—the miniature victory garden in their backyard—Its harvest for the season: three juicy tomatoes.

Mrs. Cooke is originally from Atlanta, Georgia where she attended the University of Georgia extension in that city and met her husband in a Freshman English class. Sitting next each other, one thing led to

A Class To Learn How To Learn

School papers from leading colleges and universities throughout the country have recently been recording the unusual successes of "How to Study" classes on their campuses. The classes, as outlined in one publication, are "two hour courses, open to all students and aimed at 'teaching students how to study and how to use their minds most effectively in getting through school.' The nucleus of the classes are labs in which the students study assignments from other courses under supervision."

While the course would likely be called a dressed-up study hall, there are probably numerous students on the Carolina campus who would be glad to enroll. If enough indicated their desires for the addition, however, perhaps the course could be opened, after approval from the faculty.

Wayne university and the University of Texas both report unexpected successes of the new course, and other schools, including Purdue, are considering adding it to their curriculum.

Doubtlessly, there is a sufficient number of exGIs and recent high school graduates who feel that they can use additional help in getting into the college grind. The high school grads, especially, since many people feel that they are coming to college at a disadvantage, as far as preparation is concerned, because of so-called 'lower standards of teaching' during the war years.

The fate of such a project, of course, would rest with the student body. If you're interested, write in to "Write Away" stating your opinion.—B.B.

Exchanging Guests Is Good Plan

We noted with interest last spring that the Sigma Chi fraternity took the lead in exchanging guests for the evening meal, one day each week. We had great hopes concerning the possibilities of such a plan and would like to see it reinstated. The plan as we understood it was this. One fraternity sends five men as guests to another house and in return receives five guests.

The advantages of such a scheme can be readily seen. There is no actual added expense in such a setup since the number of persons being served in the dining hall does not change.

By the very nature of a fraternity there is a certain tendency to become isolated from the remainder of the campus. The weekly exchange of guests will help remedy this.

Freshmen are especially harmed by the isolationism at a time when new friends are very important. It is true that even in exchange they are seeing only a comparatively small group, but it is one step toward breaking up any isolation tendency.

Then too, the presence of guests might be conducive to improved fraternity hospitality and fraternity relations.

This plan by no means demands excessive effort on the part of anyone involved. All that is required is a renunciation of individual and fraternal isolationism—a move which would be of benefit to all involved.

We hope that fraternities will take the initiative in considering such a program.

You Come, Too

There comes a time in the lives of all editorial staffers when they wish they were reporters again. That time comes around regularly—every time there is a beauty contest on campus. We wax especially nostalgic when it's a big-time deal like this afternoon's contest for Queen of the Yackety Yack.

The best in the way of campus pulchritude is expected to turn up on the Memorial Hall stage and who doesn't envy the young man who goes backstage to get a better view for the press?

This afternoon's set-to has been well planned by Lil Hotard, who is making her mark as an impressario here. She says Ned Reap's fine band will provide the "Pretty Girl is Like a Melody" music and that maybe talent scouts from Hollywood and the modeling agencies will be there.

The best looking lady in the group will be, of course, Queen of the Yackety Yack. But that isn't all. The next fifteen best looking will share honors with the Queen with full page photos in this year's Yack. (Did you ever try to figure out how one determined which girl was fourteenth best looking and which was fifteenth?)

But the best will be there. Also present will be prominent townspeople who will judge the affair. If we may quote Robert Frost . . . "You come, too."—B.S.

Record and Back Breaking

According to the financial letter issued by United Press at the beginning of this year, manufacturer's shipments of finished goods broke all previous records in 1947 at $171,500,000,000, a rise of $48,580,000,000 over 1946. National income topped all previous years at $203,000,000, up $25,000,000,000 from 1946.

Dozens of other records were broken for all time, including output of trucks, motor coaches, automotive parts and accessories, vacuum cleaners, bicycles, stoves and ranges, washing machines, cold rolled sheet steel and strip, electrolytic tin plate, electric weld pipes and tubes, woven wire fence, rails, track spikes, electricity, corsets and brassiers, tires, wheat, window glass and aluminum.

Car loadings made a new high on a ton-mile basis. Dividends neared the five billion dollar mark for the first time. Steel output made a new peacetime high and automobile production was the third best in history.

With record breaking production such as this it would seem that soon the market would be flooded with surplus commodities thus bring down prices. This is the hope of many housewives over the nation—probably one reason why Christmas buying showed a decided slump in comparison with previous years.

Dignity, Liberty and Liquor

Letters submitted to the Write Away column must be double-spaced, typewritten, and shall not exceed 300 words. All contributions must contain the signature, telephone number, and address of the author (names will be withheld upon request). Letters which contain obscene or libelous statements or letters which do not comply with these stipulations will not be published.

Dear Sir:

An editorial entitled "Best Temperance Talk" appears in the December 4th issue of the Raleigh News and Observer. The writer of this article cites General Order 99, prohibiting the distribution of liquor to men aboard naval vessels, as salutary and economical. I would like to point out, however, that this order, bearing the signiture of Josephus Daniels, may be less laudable than it appears.

I was in Nice, France last Christmas and had ample opportunity to observe American sailors ashore and to compare their behavior with that of British and French sailors on leave. The Americans were so eager for a drink and so resentful of the restrictions they endured aboard ship that they lost all sense of responsibility. Every morning found overworked S.P.'s picking sailors up out of the gutters. The British and French, on the other hand, drawing regular rations of liquor aboard, did not feel the same temptation ashore and so conducted themselves in a way which reflected some credit on the good sense of their governments.

You cannot make men temperate by withholding from them the source of temptation. You may even end by frustrating their wishes so that they are driven to lying, cheating, and worse to evade the law. It's high time that Americans who emphasize the dignity of individual liberty and restraint cease talking so much pride in authoritarian acts, however self-righteous they may feel about their own point of view.

Hutchins Says

Colleges Waste Students' Time

"Most American colleges do as much harm as good, waste as much time as they use well, and turn out as many failures as successes." That's the opinion of Robert M. Hutchins, Chancellor of the U. of Chicago.

In an exclusive interview in Varsity, the young man's magazine, Chancellor Hutchins provides several answers to the question: "What's wrong with American colleges and high schools?" Foremost, he says, is the trend towards specialization that begins in even the earliest schooling years. "Students learn to raise poultry, file library books, and predict the weather—but they don't get a sound cultural background."

"Most schools," the young and militant educator told Varsity, "have overlapping courses that teach the same thing again and again.

"Or, at the other extreme, they hammer away at so small a segment of the subject that they teach nothing at all. Students learn one poem down to the last comma—but learn little about poetry in general."

In his own school, Hutchins declared, students can be graduated at eighteen or nineteen years of age—giving them time to specialize and receive doubly-complete educations by the time their counterparts in other colleges have received their bachelors' degrees.

Practical Joke Gives Housewife Hard Time

Indianapolis, —(UP)— An Indianapolis housewife has appealed to police to find the practical joker making her life one hectic gag after another.

Mrs. Russell Dummich told the authorities that in one week she faced nine different taxicab drivers who insisted she had called them when she had not; the driver of a wrecker; an ice cream deliveryman who tried to collect for $10 worth of ice cream, and a washing machine repairman she had not called.

She kept the matter from the police until a truck driver showed up at the oil-heated Dummich home to deliver a ton of coal.

"Excuse me," she said as she walked into the country editor's office. "But you editors are supposed to know everything. Can you tell me how to treat sick bees?"

"Yes," was the answer, "with respect."

UMT Has Two Friends, Anyway

By Bill Robertson

As the New Year begins, there is every indication that Universal Military Training will become an important issue in our country. The Hearst Press is shouting from the roof-tops in support of it and the American Legion is doing its full share of the promotion job.

There are two powerful groups in our country which have much to gain by a program of universal military training. We refer to the military brass-hats and big business. As for the first, Hanson W. Baldwin, noted New York Times military commentator, has informed us that the influence of the military in American life has increased enormously in the past few years and that it has begun to threaten seriously our democratic way of life. As a "friendly" gesture to the Soviet Union we have sent that country a general as ambassador. It might be argued that this is because the Soviet people knows what war is all about (having seen it first-hand) and that our generals are anxious to learn from them.

But what can a general learn while serving as ambassador to Panama?

Aside from this, the economic and political interests of the brass hats in a large-scale military program should be fairly obvious to all by now. After all, General Myers and General Graham have shown that army life pays—at least for the brass-hats.

As for big business, it is certain that Wall Street fears an approaching crisis (or don't you read the Wall Street Journal?) Measures must be taken to handle a vast army of unemployed. What better way than to organize a large army to keep the idle workers in hand? Hitler did it! As a matter of fact, Hitler "solved" the unemployment problem in Germany that way!

But the American people, and especially those of us who are veterans, will not be so easily fooled. Although all of the noble aims of the recent war were not achieved we have learned that our enemies were race-haters. it is clear that a Jim-Crow army can not hope to carry out the noble task of "liberating" other peoples who happen to have passed laws making the advocacy of race hatred a crime. Nor is it certain that the loyalty of Negro troops, which was mercilessly tested in World War II, can be counted on in such a cause

All of the noise about the inevitability of World War III, only serves to cover up the rather vicious plans of the militarists and big businessmen. But, most importantly, they serve to remove the attention of the American people and especially that of the younger generation, from the pressing problems at home which have not yet been solved.

We of the younger generation have special needs to be fulfilled. We wish for expanded educational opportunities and facilities. We wish for state aid for housing. We wish for increased government subsistence aid for veterans. In short, we wish for a life of peace and security—a life of abundance which is so very possible in the richest country in the world.

It is clear, therefore, that an open fight against the Universal Military Training program is a part of a much larger struggle for a better and more decent America. This struggle can and must be won by and through the will of the majority of the American people.

More Useful Finals Needed

By Larry Berry

His wounds still smarting from the slings and arrows of the final exams of the late unlamented fall quarter, the Carolina student finds himself beginning a new quarter at the end of which another set of finals lies in wait for him. Perhaps it might be well to pause and consider the final exam and what it means to us.

Under our present system, we accept the final for what it is and ask no question; we rather try to answer a few as best as we can. I imagine a number of you have been told by the professor in his initial speech that you must pass the final in order to pass the course, or that a good final exam score will bring up a low quarter's average and enable you to pass the course with a decent grade.

As far as actual education is concerned, the inference is that you pick that up outside the course. This may seem to be an extreme observation, because the professor with a large class is more or less a slave to the aforementioned academic system, he has to prepare for the final and at the same time prepare you, the student, for the ordeal of this necessarily synthetic judgment.

Many professors are limited by the departmental examination, and cannot be sure whether they are teaching their students anything that will help them make a good grade on the final or not. Perhaps we can lay this particular evil to the larger evil of an age of specialization whose goal seems to be the quickest arribal at robot production of stereotyped minds.

When I go into a final exam room, my mind immediately tries to wander off to an irrevelant subject while I try vainly to concentrate in of the subject at hand. In an alarmingly short time, any kind of concentration is impossible and my objective becomes my rapid exit from the room as soon as convenient. Does this prove any knowledge on my part concerning the subject in which the examination was given?

The final exam could be made to serve a more useful end by a change from compulsory to elective. To me the final could prove the knowledge of the student if he has not already done so. A student who is failing throughout the course can redeem himself by a good final. By making the final a matter of choice, the average student will have added incentive to making a good steady average to avoid the mental pain of the final. Our goal: the last week of every quarter a time for relaxation from work well done!

How Do You Wake A Lady?

By Patricia Clary

Hollywood (U. P.)—A score of men are losing sleep these nights over the question of how to awaken a lady.

Half the staff at Eagle-Lion studios says Dennis O'Keefe ought to march right into Marsha Hunt's boudoir and yank her out of bed. The other half thinks he ought to tiptoe to her bedside and rouse her with a gentle, lingering kiss.

They've been arguing about it for weeks while the studio shot all around the important wake-up scene in "Corkscrew Alley."

O'Keefe, playing a man whose education never advanced beyond Sing Sing, has to get Miss Hunt up, in a hurry, because he's on the lam.

But when he sees her snoozing in a diaphanous wisp he begins to think he may have a moment or two to spare.

"The problem is keeping O'Keefe in character—strictly no good—and not let him go overboard with the mushy stuff," explained the director, Ralph Murphy.

Writers Differ

The writers—and one half the studio—figured that a man of O'Keefe's type would yank the sleeping beauty out of her slumber, caveman style. They argued that he wouldn't be capable of thinking up a gentler approach.

O'Keefe himself — and the other half of the studio — said there wasn't any man who could resist the captivating Miss Hunt. A girl who looked like her, they said, would never be awakened by anything but a slow, languorous kiss gradually draining the sand from her great big blue eyes.

Finally they compromised. The scene was shot both ways. And the executives started catching up on their sleep.

The decision on the awakening won't be made until the film reaches the cutter. Hollywood is waiting to hear the choice.

Penthouse Skull Trick Fails to Pass Exam

Boston. —(UP)— Thomas J. Grechan, Massachusetts director of civil service, tells of the case of the applicant with the penthouse skull.

A physical examination for patrolmen was being held in a Cambridge YMCA gymnasium. The height requirement was 5 feet 6 inches. The examiner called the weight of one of the prospective policemen, but was puzzled about the height. Calling the doctor, he explained: "This fellow has so much hair, I can't tell how tall he is." He patted the applicant on the head.

As he took his hand away, half a coconut shell, held in place under the long hair by bobby pins, fell to the floor. The applicant was only 5 feet 4½ inches tall.

What's Up in Graham Memorial

GM GRIND

—Queried on the possibility of Graham Memorial's taking over and (or) cooperating with the present languishing Student Entertainment committee, union director Bill Shuford yesterday said off-the-record he thought the idea would work fine. His three quick speaking points for joining SEC to the union were (1) Entertainment is the union's business; (2) they would have a full-time staff, rather than a volunteer committee; (GM is duplicating SEC functions already...convincing?

The student darkroom on the ground floor is all ready for work...Photo instruction classes are planned again for this quarter by darkroom director Bob Coulter...The evening's recorded dinner music concert will include the following: Prokofiev, Classical Symphony in D Minor; Wagner, Pilgrim's Chorus (Tannhauser); musical comedy favorites played by Kostelanetz.

99 and 44-100 Percent

THE NATIONAL COLLEGIATE ATHLETIC ASSOCIATION bigwigs are whooping it up in their annual winter meeting in New York this week and the main topic of conversation and discussion looks to be the annual attempt to whitewash college athletics, eliminate so-called professionalism and give the game back to the proverbial Indians. The device to be used is a brand new Purity Code which will, in full force, prevent any and all aid to athletes as athletes, and also disallow any type of recruiting of athletic competitors by the officials of any member school.

This plan to wash out the stadiums and gyms of the nation with high-powered soap, has a familiar and high-sounding ring, but the big question will be to what degree will it be enacted, and more important, to what stage will it be enforced. Regardless of what is done, it seems quite obvious that big time athletes, which means largely big time football, like radio and the atom bomb, are here to stay. And no Purity Code passed by the NCAA or any other group of relative power will be successful in deemphasizing it.

Certainly the college officials may live up to the code, but there is no method of forcing alumni and friends of a college or university to do so. If they wish to help an athlete through school, they will continue to do so, behind the back of the college officials if necessary.

Big, Bad Boogie Man

WHICH BRINGS ONE to the question of—Is Big Time Football the horrible monster that its enemies make it out to be? Is it really professionalizing college athletics. Before one condemns large scale grid activity, it might be well to look into the plus side of the football ledger. At the majority of the American colleges, football is the only sport in which the school shows any noticeable profit. All other sports, especially the minor ones such as track, tennis, baseball and the like, will never come near meeting their expense bill without the financial aid they receive from big brother football. The large scale intramural program, such as is put forth at Carolina, is another feather in the helmet of football, for no school can operate as extensive an all-around physical plant as does the University without a helping hand from the grid returns.

Besides all this, comes the realization of the opportunity that athletic grants-in-aid give to some athletes who otherwise might not have a chance to attain a college education. One values most highly academic scholarships for those who have shown the ability to use their heads in a fashion superior to that of others; then why not recognize on an equal basis the rights of others to excel in a like fashion on a mental plus a physical basis.

The Whine of the Nine

ONCE THE BASIS for the existence of Big Time athletics has been substantiated, one progresses to the manner and form in which it will be operated. The Purity Code if enacted in the strictest form will give the whole problem a subway outlook by forcing alumni and others who support the game underground in their activities. The Big Nine, which waves its white flag of purity every now and then, and damns the malpractices that exist in southern schools, has novel ways of keeping its halo in place and still fielding winning teams. One school of that conference is located near a large race track which has a summer meeting of some six or seven weeks. During this period the school's athletes are employed as full time workers, but since—according to "track" officials—there is a shortage of labor in this area, the athletes are "retained" throughout the remainder of the year to make sure there will be sufficient employees the following season. There never seem to be strikes because of wages. And the Big Nine talks about southern malpractices!

Many schools today have the entire athletic aid program on an individual basis, where an individual alumnus or friend aids an athlete, known or unknown to the school. This is what most schools will resort to along with the bogus job method if and when the new Purity Code is passed and enforced.

Cards on the Table

NEEDLESS TO SAY, all this would seem to intimate that, at least in one man's opinion, the Ivory look is not the answer to the football problem. It seems that if everyone wants Big Time athletics, why not come out into the bright and sunny open and have the aid program run, sanctioned, and regulated by the colleges themselves under NCAA sponsorship. It would be like having Christmas everyday.

The whole question looks to boil down to the point that it is time for some of the nation's athletic fathers to put away the paint brushes and give the collegians a chance to play without so much red tape and paper work. Big time athletics, a safe and sound venture, must be handled in a safe and sound manner.

'Twould be much sounder to put all the cards on the table and play the game according to Hoyle.

Phi Gam, SAE, Kappa Sig, KA Quintets Win

Eight teams got the hardwood test at Woollen gym yesterday afternoon on the last day of this week's action in the intramural departments round robin basketball tournament.

The number two quintet of the Phi Gams racked up the most points of the afternoon by winning decisively over PiKA No. 2, 43-9. Robin Hicks led the winners in scoring with eight points, while Bob Scarborough contributed six for the losers.

Willie Alston hit the nets for six field goals and three charity tosses to grab scoring honors of the day and lead his SAE No. 1 mates to a 36-10 rout over the Kappa Sig No. 2 five. Bob Cox was runner-up to Alston with eight points.

KA No. 1 had an easy time in winning over the Phi Delt's No. 3 team, 39-20, with Tom Belk carrying the scoring load with 12 points for the triumphant quintet.

Bill Olsen, aggressive guard for Kappa Sig No. 1, dropped in 14 points in pacing the Sigs to a 37-11 victory over Phi Gam's No. 3 entry. Another guard, Jack Folger, was second in hitting the baskets for the winners, with eight points on the records.

No games are scheduled for today, but the basketball program will continue Monday afternoon with four more games. After Monday night's varsity contest, the South stands in Woollen gym will be torn down for the remainder of the week.

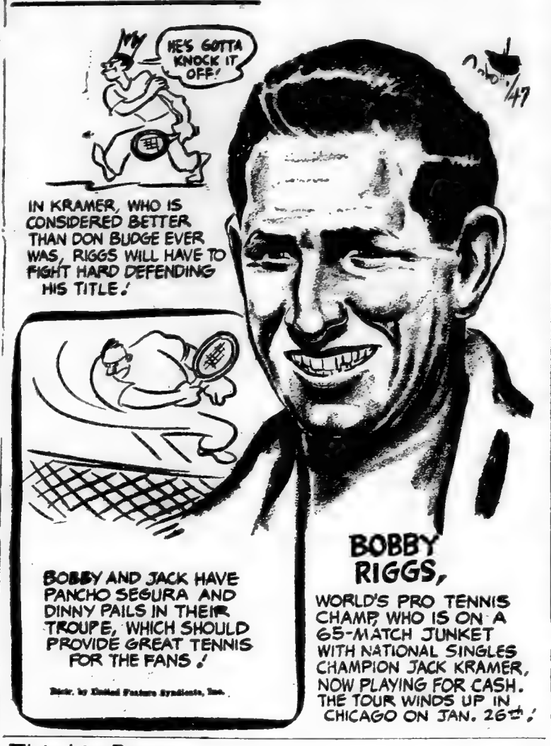
Walter Rabb, intramural director, announces that the first mural open house for the winter quarter will be held next Wednesday night at Woollen gym, and will continue on each Monday and Wednesday night thereafter if a basketball game is not scheduled. Badminton, table tennis, and handball will be played on those nights as part of the program.

Weiner Given Tips By Loop Mat Champ

If personal instruction from last year's conference heavyweight mat champion does any good, big Art Weiner ought to be progressing well in his attempt to gain the unlimited division post on the 1948 wrestling team.

The Newark sophomore, a major contender for the position, has been aided this week by the 1948 champ, Laurie Hooper. Hooper's academic schedule was too heavy for him to remain with the squad this season, but he took a few hours off on Wednesday to give Art some pointers in the grunt-and-groan art.

Elsewhere on the wrestling scene, Coach Chuck Quinlan is disturbed by the small number of matmen working out every day. "As it is now," Quinlin pointed out, "we'll have trouble in getting enough men to fill a complete card in all weight divisions." Only 15 men turned out for yesterday's drill, and they put in another day of conditioning exercises and fundamental work.



The Tar Heel wrestlers open their 1948 slate on January 19, when they meet VPI in Woollen gym.

Minneapolis Host For NCAA Track

New York, Jan. 8 —(UP)— The 1948 NCAA track and field championships have been awarded to Minneapolis for June 18 and 19, it was announced here today at the association's annual conference.

The championships will be turned into a "Junior Olympics" by adding all but three Olympic events to the program.

Tsantes, Ferraro Pace Frosh Triumph As Tar Babies Top Greensboro, 50-42

By Bill Kellam

Carolina's Tar Baby cagers slowed down Greensboro High's Whirlies till they were barely twisting last night in Woollen gym as they downed the Gold-clad quint, 50-42.

The visitors, who appeared to be lost on the spacious court during the first half, picked up speed after the intermission and threw a scare into the Blue and White hoopsters by closing the score to 46-42 with two minutes left in the game. However, Pappy Hamilton's charges regained control of the ball after this Greensboro outburst and added four more points to cinch the decision.

John "Little Hook" Tsantes, steady Bill White, and Thorne Gregory all turned in fine all-around performances as the Tar Babies racked up their third straight victory to maintain their perfect record.

The Whirlies started off like a whirlwind and swept to a 5-2 lead but Tsantes and Hal Ferraro staged a dual-scoring show to send the Blue and White quint permanently ahead, 11-10, shortly before the end of the first quarter. The visitors' offensive fell apart in the second period as Hank Lebed and Thorne Gregory hit repeatedly to give the locals a 23-13 lead at the intermission.

Apparently both coaches delivered inspiring pep talks during the halftime respite the teams returned to the floor and put on a wild and woolly third-stanza scoring exhibition. Speedy Ferraro and dead-eyed set-shot White did the heavy offensive duty during this point-heavy eight minutes which ended with the Tar Babies leading, 40-27.

Hamilton inserted his reserves with the locals ahead, 44-31, but

TANK TIME TRIALS

Time trials in all events will be held in newly-partitioned Bowman Gray pool Sunday afternoon, Coach Dick Jamerson anounced yesterday.

Meanwhile, the Blue Dolphins are continuing their drills in preparation for their opening meet against Florida less than a week away.

Kramer Takes Lead Over Bobby Riggs

Hershey, Pa., Jan. 8 —(UP)— Jack Kramer took a 5-4 lead over Bobby Riggs in their professional tennis series in a match here last night.

The 1947 amateur champion turned back the world's pro titleholder, 6-1, 3-6, 6-3 before a crowd of 3,117.

(The nationwide tour will be in Chapel Hill on January 20, and many good seats are still available.)

Cagers Leave On Virginia Trip, Play VPI In Blacksburg Tonight

Phants Seek to Extend Winning Streak In Loop Tilts With Gobblers, Generals

Carolina's White Phantoms, current pace-setters in the Southern conference, depart from Chapel Hill this morning for their game with Virginia Tech in Blacksburg tonight.

The Carolina players will meet at Woollen gym at 9 o'clock today and wil travel by bus. The team will stay over in Blacksburg tonight, moving on to Lynchburg to battle Washington and Lee in another conference game tomorrow.

Coach Tom Scott's charges will carry their gaudy nine-game winning streak into Virginia and should come back to Chapel Hill still unbeaten barring a big upset. However, Coach Tom Scott probably is not so sure about the outcome of the two games. The pressure of continuing the victory string will be on the boys, and both the Gobblers and Generals will be primed for the Phantoms.

Capable Reserves

Probable starters for Carolina against VPI tonight will be Bob Paxton and Bill Miller, forwards, Nemo Nearman at center, and Norm Kohler and King Cole at guards. This unit has started each of the games thus far, but Scott has some capable reserves to throw into action if any of the top five should have a bad night.

John Dillon, who is showing steady improvement lately, is sure to see much action along with forwards Coy Carson and Fred Swartzberg and guards Taylor, Dan Nyimicz, Fred Ryan. Carolina's excellent reserve strength is one of the main reasons that the team is undefeated.

Virginia Tech warmed up for Carolina by defeating Bristol YM CA this week, 48-42. Washington and Lee was beaten in its last start by Virginia, 73-54.

Other players making the trip are Roger Scholbe, Harvey Weinstein, and Marx Nathan. In addition to Coach Scott and the 14 players, the bu... assistant Coach Pete Mullis, Trainer Doc White, managers Bill Russell and Bill Spiegel, DTH reporter Bill Kellam, and a bus driver.

Little Practice

Coach Scott hasn't been able to get in much practice this week other than in the wins over Tennessee and South Carolina. On Wednesday, Scott did not require all his players to be present, so yesterday was the only real afternoon of drills.

The Phantoms will return to Chapel Hill on Sunday morning They meet Wake Forest in Woollen gym on Monday and then hit the road again, this time for New York. On Thursday night they meet New York University's unbeaten Violets in Madison Square Garden and on Saturday they are in Philadelphia for a game with Temple.

N. C. State's high-scoring Wolfpack is also getting ready for a pair of weekend conference engagements. Tonight sees Coach Everett Case and his charges in Charlotte, where they run up against a Davidson club riding high after an upset over Duke.

After the Davidson game, State moves on to Greenville, S. C., to take on a Furman team that scored a 51-50 victory over William and Mary in its only conference clash so far.

Miller and Milne Off to Brooklyn To Race in K of C Two-Mile Event

Carolina's distance twins, Jack Milne and Jimmy Miller, will head for Brooklyn, USA, tonight to compete in the Brooklyn Knights of Columbus Invitation two-mile run tomorrow night.

Miller, not superstitious, drew number 13 for Saturday night's event and will be competing in a field of 13 of the best two-milers in the East. Not only will he have to contend with teammate Milne, but also such runners as Curt Stone, Shanahan A C., who wrapped up most of the collegiate distance titles last year at Penn State, and Les MacMitchell, N Y A C, one of the greatest milers before the war.

Miller and Milne will depart from Chapel Hill tonight by train for New York and will return here Sunday night.

The rest of the tracksters are working out on Fetzer field in preparations for the meets next month. Coach Dale Ranson stated yesterday afternoon that the Tin Can would be ready for the cinder squad aspirants on Monday. He urges all men to come out as the squad lacks overall strength. No positions are sewed up, Ranson emphasized.

SDA Leader Hits Third Party Move

Deploring the reorganization of the local Wallace Democrats as a third party group (to be named on later inspiration), W. C. Dutton, Jr., President of Students for Democratic Action on the campus, warned last night that the Wallace candidacy may insure the victory of reaction.

"The crucial issues facing the country today," he declared, "are the survival and reconstruction of a democratic Europe, the control of inflation at home, and the preservation and extension of the social gains of the New Deal. If Henry Wallace insure the election of a Taft, all hope of a successful solution of these problems will be destroyed."

According to Dutton, a positive alternative program for progressives will be outlined by Dr James L. Loeb, National Executive Director of Americans for Democratic Action, in a meeting tomorrow morning at 10:30 in Roland Parker Lounge of Graham Memorial. All interested faculty, townspeople, and students are invited to attend.

ICRIL Will Hold Segregation Panel At Duke Saturday

A panel discussion on segregation is being presented by the Intercollegiate Council for Religion in Life at its first meeting of the new year tomorrow afternoon.

The meeting will be held at 3 o'clock in the President's club room, ground floor of the Women's auditorium, East campus of Duke university. All students and faculty of this university are cordially invited to attend.

Participating in the panel discussion will be Dr. J. S. Himes, head of the Sociology department at the North Carolina college for Negroes in Durham, Dr. Linsley L. Spraggins, head of the History department at St. Augustine's college in Raleigh, Rev. Charles McCoy, Methodist student worker at N. C. State, Mr. Herman Taylor, former professor of law at the North Carolina college and now a prominent lawyer in the NAACP.

The floor will be thrown open for questions at the conclusion of the panel.

Intercollegiate CRIL, the sponsoring organization, is composed of students from the various religious groups on the campuses of the University, Duke, and North Carolina college. Its purpose is to study present day social problems in the light of religious teachings, to initiate and carry out programs of social action based on religious principles, and to stimulate friendly communication and cooperation between the students of the three schools.

President Gives Post To Native of Durham

Washington, Jan. 8 —(UP)—A Durham native, George Allen was today appointed by President Truman to direct America's foreign information program. A career diplomat, Allen is replacing William Benton, who resigned last October after a dispute with Congress over the "Voice of America" Program.

The 44-year-old Allen has been in the foreign service since 1930 and is at present serving as Ambassador to Iran.

-Cooke-

another, and they were married as sophomores after Dorothy had worn a Sigma Pi pin several months.

When Pat enlisted in the army as a gunner, Mrs. Cooke moved to Texas for a year and a half, and they set up housekeeping near the Mexican border. It was a busy eighteen months. Pat was promoted to an instructor, and Anne was born shortly after. The only neighbors in the vicinity being Spanish-speaking Americans, Ann grew up with a deep foreign accent and a slight fluency in Spanish. Mrs. Cooke's strikingly "un-Georgian" accent is attributed to that period.

As soon as army discharge came, the family moved lock, stock, and barrel to North Carolina to enroll veteran Pat in the University law school. Pat's original home having been a small town in this state. Mr. and Mrs. Cooke "never thought of anything else." They bought a "wonderful, little house" in Durham while Mrs. Cooke taught in a Durham nursery school and took care of curly blond-haired Anne simultaneously. Pat commuted every day until travelling became so out of the question that they solicited space in Victory Village. Last August Mrs. Cooke took over her present job.

As an "adopted state" she loves North Carolina and is especially fond of Chapel Hill. Her present status as a temporary one, she states, is entirely satisfactory. She enjoys her tiny home, the shopping trips to the Village Co-op, and even the budget peeve which often bothers student wives. Also, Mrs. Cooke likes working with people and is never harried by the numerous items that are put to her good judgment. In combining marriage and work, quite evidently she has been most successful. But she confesses that she has no desire to continue work after Pat graduates, though approving wholeheartedly of careers for women, if they are the type. "I'm not," she says.

The future will change for Mrs. Cooke after next August when the family plans to return to Atlanta and build their own home. By her exit from Graham Memorial, the staff will lose an asset. She feels that the workability of the staff is evident, that a few improvements like more space and the setting up of a special information center will insure greater efficiency. But assuredly her calm, unflustered manner is a major reason why Graham Memorial gets things done.

Mural Debating Program Planned By Fitzgerald

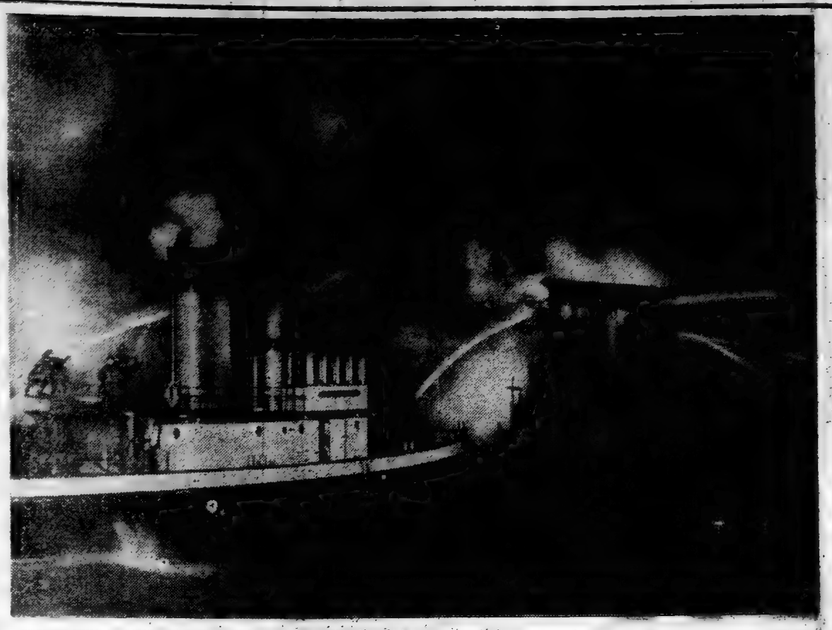
To organize an intra-mural debate program on the campus Debate council President Earl Fitzgerald this week asks all persons interested to see Debate council members at Graham Memorial and to arrange with dormitory and fraternity managers to represent their organizations.

If a program of this sort is worked out, Fitzgerald explained, there will be competition for any team representing a dormitory and a fraternity. Cups and awards will be given to the organizations which sponsor the winning debate teams.

Fitzgerald said that the Debate Council hopes to complete negotiations with the Intra-mural department to award points in intra-mural competition for winning groups.

Students Are Urged To List New Autos

All students possessing automobiles on the campus that have not been registered with the University are notified that these required liscence stickers still may be obtained from Dean Fred H. Weaver's office on the second floor of South building.



Latest figures from this office's records show that approximately 75 new vehicles have been registered since last quarter, bringing to 1500 the total number of licenses issued by the University.

Bingo to Be Resumed At GM This Evening

For a chill Saturday evening's diversion Graham Memorial offers an evening of Bingo, America's favorite old-fashioned game, beginning in the main lounge at 8:30.

Calling the numbers and winners for the play will be "Joker" John Van Hecke, student union master of sardonic wit and present co-chairman of CCUN. Nancy Tucker, Graham Memorial recreation director stated cash prizes will be awarded for the games.

For every card purchased (no limit) a fee of .02 will be charged, the proceeds to be pooled for the winner of each game. Later in the night variation Bingos will be interspersed with the regular games. Mickey McNutt will assist Van Hecke in directing the session.

East, West Collaboration Is Key To Peace ---- Mme. Hojer

By Sally Woodhull

"What Europe needs most of all is peace, and the best way to help her is through collaboration between East and West," said Madame Signe Hojer of Stockholm, Sweden, speaking last night at the Methodist church on "Ways of Peace."

President of the State Home and Family commission and of the Swedish section of Women's International league for Peace and Freedom, Madame Hojer appeared under the joint sponsorship of the campus YWCA, the League of Women Voters, and Women's International league.

Thought Levels

Emphasizing the need for cooperation, Madame Hojer said, "There are many different ways toward peace—we cannot expect that every country shall think the same about them. We must realize that levels of thought are different."

The Scandinavian way toward peace, according to Madame Hojer, is seen in the social field—"We have no poor people in Sweden"—and in labor relations —"For the past 10 years we have had very few strikes." Her country has tried to keep out of war, and has succeeded for the past 150 years.

Russian Interest

The Marshall plan, in Madame Hojer's opinion, should work out all right if not exploited for political means. "We are also hoping," she said, "that the United States will take a large hand in the work of the United Nations European Economics commission in Geneva in which Russia seems to be quite interested."

The Russians, she said, have behaved very well after the war in Scandinavia, removing all soldiers promptly. Sweden has also succeeded in having trade agreements with the USSR, as well as with the western countries.

"We don't approve of the Russian system of government," she said, quoting a Swedish proverb, "It's a good government of which you can say it's bad."

Housing Projects

The aid which Sweden gave so generously to other European countries during the war has proved in part to be responsible for her economic problems, Madame Hojer said, and she told of Swedish housing projects in France and Norway, of great quantities of food sent to Germany and the countries of southeastern Europe, and of the many refugees in Sweden. During the war, every thirtieth person was a refugee.

Leave in February

In an interview before her speech, the attractive blond, blue-eyed wife of the head of the Swedish medical board told how impressed she was with American universities, on this, her first trip to this country. She is now ending a three-month lecture tour, in which she visited college throughout New England and the Midwest. She and her husband, who spoke last night on public health problems in Sweden, will leave for England at the beginning of February.

Housework Help

Swedish young people now marry very early, Madame Hojer said, and frequently complete their education together much as G-I's and their wives do in this country. The young men, she said, are quite changed, now helping with housework.

Most women in Sweden either work professionally or have heavy volunteer schedules, she said, because the country is so short of manpower. The state provides many nursery schools for children of working women, the city of Stockholm, where Madame Hojer is a member of the city council, having about 80.

Speaking of the great strides Sweden has made in special legislation, Madame Hojer said that in her country of seven million homogeneous people, the task is far more simplified than in America.

Three Faculty Men To Attend Banquet

Dean of Men Fred H. Weaver, Professor of Physical Education Oliver K. Cornwell and Alumni Secretary J. Maryon Saunders will attend a banquet of University of North Carolina alumni in High Point Wednesday.

Professor Cornwell will show movies of the Carolina-Virginia football game following the banquet.

Colonial Press President 'Scoop' Campbell Fools Paper-Seekers With Pressman Routine

By Owen Lewis

An attractive, vivacious girl came into the plant of Colonial Press, Inc., printers of the Daily Tar Heel, late one night last quarter and asked the bedraggled unkempt, ink-smeared pressman for a copy of the morning's edition.

Having grown tired of many such requests, the untidy pressman denied her request with, "The last thing Mr. Campbell told me before he went home was not to give no papers to nobody."

Not a Smooth One

What the young lady didn't know, and what many visitors to the plant have failed to realize is that the impertinent printer was none other than Orville S. "Scoop" Campbell himself, former editor of the Daily Tar Heel in 1941-42 and present president and treasurer of Colonial Press. Like most enterprising young veterans who are going into business for themselves, Orville is learning by experience that the course of business is not always a smooth one.

When Colonial Press was organized last summer, one of the stockholders told Campbell that he should buy a duplex, flat-bed press and learn how to operate it in case anything should happen to the pressman. Campbell immediately agreed, hoping however that such a state of affairs would never exist. Four weeks after publication began, the pressman quit, and off and on since then Campbell has been operating the duplex, flat-bed press.

to perform the more menial tasks of the enterprise. For, he says, the experience gained in the process will help him to better understand the problems of the shop when conditions permit him to return permanently to a white-collar status.

When he was editor of the Daily Tar Heel, Orville used to get away from the print shop about 1 o'clock in the morning, dreaming of the day when he would no longer have to keep such unreasonable hours.

Credit Due

Campbell, a modest individual, assigns all of the credit for the success of Colonial Press to his business associates, Horace Carter, another former Daily Tar Heel editor, and Nelson Callahan and Bob Moore, two veteran Chapel Hill printers.

Yet the facts behind the establishment of Colonial Press do not serve to substantiate Orville's seclusion from the limelight. On August 20 of this year Campbell had no equipment, no building, in fact nothing at all except a contract to print the Daily Tar Heel for two years. On September 25, an eight-page, eight-column paper appeared, for the first time in University history. Now with the brand-new brick plant building in Carrboro and a spacious office building in downtown Chapel Hill, the organization employs 17 people and is engaged in general job printing in addition to publish-

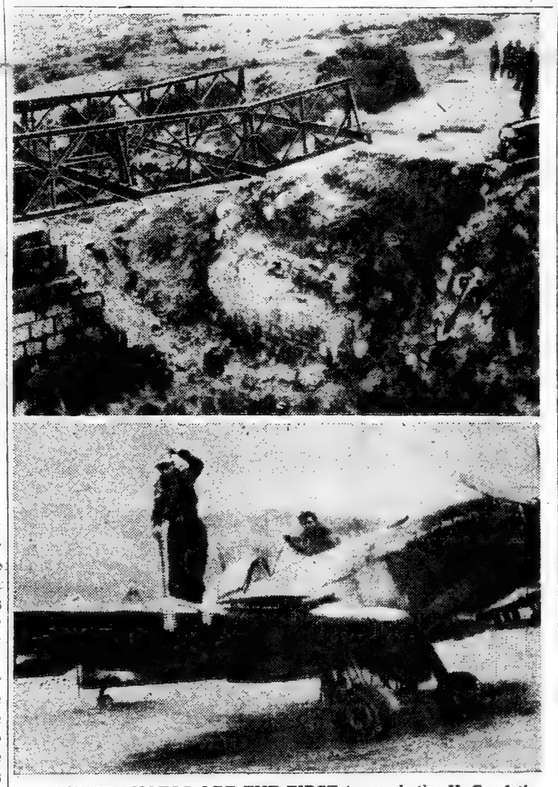
Players' Revels Will Feature Classical Skit

The Carolina Playmakers are holding their twentieth annual Twelfth Night Revels tonight at 7:30 in the Playmaker theater. The program, an occasion when the staff and students in the dramatic art department take time off for a good laugh at themselves, features the revel scene from Shakespeare's "Twelfth Night" and includes a skit based on the Playmaker activities of the fall quarter.



Shakespeare Scene

The Shakespeare scene will be played by a faculty - student cast, directed by Playmaker head Sam Selden. The cast includes staff members Lynn Gault, scene designer and technical director, Mary Jo Cain, assistant costumer, Foster Fitz-Simons, assistant director, and student James Geiger.

The skit, called "a tragedy in four scenes" by its anonymous student writers, is being kept under wraps in strictest secrecy by the student planning committee.

Cast Members

North Carolina Spent $155,099,000 On Veterans During Past Fiscal Year

Washington, Jan. 9 —(UP)— A total of $155,099,000 was spent on North Carolina's 55,498 veterans in the fiscal year ending June 30, the Veterans Administration reported today.

In the nation as a whole the VA spent a record $7,800,000,000 on veterans' affairs. Some $6,000,000,000 was for compensation including education, pension, unemployment benefits and other allowances. The latest estimate shows a veteran population of 18,600.

No estimates are available for the next fiscal year, but the Veterans Administration says it will equal or surpass the expenditures of the past year.

North Carolina's budget led the list among Southern states with Georgia following. Georgia spent $155.312.284 on its 57,550 veterans. North Carolina ranks third in the number of veterans within its borders, having 55,498. Alabama has 56,472 veterans and spent $106,470,476. South Carolina has the least number of veterans of the southeastern states and spent the smallest amount, $77,672,411, on veteran' affairs.

Betty Brown Is Yack Queen; Court Of 15 Beauties Chosen

By John Stump

Miss Betty Brown, 20-year-old coed from Asheville, was selected late yesterday from a field of 44 contestants as Queen of the 1948 Yackety Yack.

Unanimously picked by the five judges, the vicacious blonde flashed a dazzling smile, as local florist James Davis gave her the orchid corsage which signified that she had been chosen.

The new queen was sponsored by Chi Psi; she is unmarried, is a resident of McIver dorm, and has hazel eyes. Her vital statistics: height, 5 ft. 4 in.; weight, 116: bust, 36 in.; waist 26in.; and hips 35½ in.

Male Audience

The choice of a queen climaxed the annual Yack beauty contest which was held before a crowd of 2,000 people that left few of the seats in Memorial hall unocupied. Called by master of ceremonies Tag Montague the best audience that he has ever worked with at Carolina, it was composed almost entirely of men with only a few women scattered throughout the throng.

Joining Miss Brown in her triumph were the 15 runner-up contestants who will form her court. Most of them displayed the queen's reaction—a stunned speechlessness followed by gasps of "Just wonderful" as the fact that they had been selected slowly sank in.

Comments of the judges, illustrator William Meade Prince, novelist James Street, florist James Davis, and Director of admissions Roy Armstrong, expressed principally the diffuculty of their job. Davis was responsible for the first unscheduled incident of the well-timed program when in a burst of enthusiasm, he kissed the queen, as he was congratulating her.

Beauty Section

Each of the members of the court received an orchid corsage as a gift of the Yackety Yack. Their pictures will join that of the queen as features of the book's beauty section.

They are: Chi Omega sponsored Lillian DeArmon of Charlotte and Rose Field of Darchmont, N. Y.; Delta Kappa Epsilon representatives, Weddy Thorp of Rocky Mount and Fern Hughes of Rainelle, W. Va.; the Old East entry, Carolyn Kimzey of Brevard; Tenn Mason of Gastonia representing Pi Kappa Alpha; the Beta Theta Pi entrant, Mary Louise Powe of Durham; Chi Phi entries Jean Marie Lester and Joan Lucas of St. Petersburg, Fla.

Phi Delta Theta sponsored Phyllis Gainey; Smith dorm's entry Barbara Lynn of High Point; Hendersonville coed Peggy Edgerton entered by Phi Gamma Delta; Helen Barnes of Murfreesboro, the Zeta Psi entrant; CICA representative, Marty Hinkle of Winston-Salem, and Esther Cheek of Chapel Hill who was entered by the Town Girl's Association.

"Little Hope" For Daniels

Raleigh, Jan 9—(UP)—"Little hope for recovery" is the latest word from the doctor of the 85 year-old Josephus Daniels of the News and Observer tonight.

The former secretary of the Navy is under an oxygen tent at his home here and is "critically ill." Daniels has been stricken for almost a week with severe bronchitis.

Eight Students' Work Is Printed

Eight University student poets ave had their works included ecently in "America Sings", an nthology of college poetry published by the National Poetry association of Los Angeles.

The anthology is the fourth annual such publication, and works include selections from over 20,000 manuscripts representing every state in the nation.

University authors and titles of their poems are listed as follows: "Words to a Sea Shell", by Harry L. Barnhill; "An Heresy", by John R. Morgan; "First Love", by Everett Wilson Ford; "The Valley", by William A. Hover; "The Pines," by Jack W. Wilkerson; "Sleeptime Thoughts", by Gay Fitzgerald; "Nag's Head: Escaping From Them I Found Her," by William Session; and "Values" by Robert C. Hanes.

Rumor Says U.S. May Send Force Into Holy Land

Palestine, Jan. 9 —(UP)—Reports from abroad say tonight that United States Marines may soon be protecting American lives and property in war-torn Palestine.

High American and British sources in London report that the British foreign office has given the United States permission to land a small detachment of Leathernecks in the Holy Land.

However, the state department has issued a denial that any such decision was reached, though Washington officials admit that they are talking over the possibility of sending American guards to protect the consulate in Jerusalem. They said the guards might be either Marines or civilians. In the Holy Land, the violence between Arabs and Jews has taken a more warlike turn.

Arab Force Attacks

More than 1,000 Arab warriors swooped across the Lebanon-Syrian border today and staged a 7-hour attack on two Jewish towns.

Latest reports indicate however that the raid could not be called an invasion in the true sense of the word. Reliable sources in Jerusalem say the attack was staged by Palestine Arabs who had finished training for the threatened Holy war in Syrian military camps.

They laid seige to two Zionist settlements at the headwaters of the Jordan river and were driven back only after the British blasted their positions with warplanes, artillery and machinegun fire. And Jewish Haganah troops fought beside the British to drive back the Arab raiders.

Palestine authorities announce the situation is under control tonight but they warn that the Arabs may renew the attack at any moment.

Architects Will Hold Meet in Person Hall

The North Carolina chapter of the American institute of Architects will hold its annual meeting in Person hall, Art Gallery at the University here tomorrow, Manday and Tuesday, it was announced today.

A feature of the meeting will be a show of recent work by North Carolina architects, including homes, schools and public buildings now being erected throughout the state.

Thomas H. Creighton, editor of "Progressive Architecture," will speak on modern design Monday afternoon at 3:30.

By Donald MacDonald

A vertiable mob of reporters and photographers were on hand backstage yesterday to "cover" the soft-shouldered beauty contestants, a wide majority of whom came uncovered.

Statistics gathered by newsmen showed 24 of the 45 smiling entrants wore strapless evening dresses. 15 more conservative wore straps and fitted necklines, six went half-way with teasing just-off-the-shoulder gowns.

The beauty line generally appeared at ease as contestants gathered eleventh-hour instructions from contest chairman Lil Hotard: "You all really pose now. Remember it's the JUDGES!"

One by one the ladies nervously adjusted postures, acted as mirrors for each other, listened for names called by Emcee Tag Montague, then gracefully moved onstage into critical view.

They were met by cheers from a male audience which could scarcely control itself even after Montague had requested no applause. There was a brief session under the lights, time enough for a turn, a smile which one entrant said "caused my face to twitch," and a look at the wolf-packed auditorium.

Open Personality

Girls waiting their turn pulled on cigarettes, peeked through curtains and watched their rivals jockey into photographic positions on stage. One comment sounded a cat-note: "Look at that personality!"

It was an ordeal for some, as one girl told newsmen: "Just thank God you're a boy!" (Believe us, lady, we do.)

Worthy of Consideration

A recommendation worthy of a second glance by the Publications board and others concerned is that forwarded by Ben Perlmutter, former Carolina student who completed his studies here last month. In his recommendation, forwarded to the Publications Board, he suggested a university-owned print shop for publication of the Daily Tar Heel and the two campus magazines.

For the past two years, Perlmutter has had ample experience with the inadequacies of privately-owned presses while he served as business manager of the Carolina Mag, a job he performed with ability and competence. While a Carolina-owned press, as he suggests, would entail a large expenditure on the part of the university, it would doubtlessly soon pay back three-fold any cash invested.

In addition to his comments on the print shop, Perlmutter also left some final words on the status of the newly reborn humor mag, Tarnation. His opinions of it, submitted more or less as a recommendation, will surprise few, least of all Tarnation staff. He said, "I see no reason for its creation. I see no reasons for its continuation."

Because of his experience both in mag work and as an active student, his recommendations certainly rate consideration. —B.B.

Capitalism--"The American Way of Life"

"The American Way of Life" is a favorite expression used by practically all of us, in fact it is being bled of much of its original qualities. Like the army jeep it has been used for everything. In one group of incoming letters we noticed with little surprise that two of the many propaganda leaflets and public relations releases made use of the "American Way of Life" and used the words to best describe their sentiments.

Harold J. Laski, former chairman and present prophet of the British Labor party, stated in a recent article published in the Nation, that the "American Way of Life is nothing more than a pseudonym for American Capitalism."

An American big businessman, Harvey S. Firestone, Jr.—president of the Firestone Rubber company, used the phrase as the subject of an address delivered at Drake University in Des Moines, Iowa last October. In his address Mr. Firestone went through detailed explanation to demonstrate how every dollar of sales by manufacturers is spent. He showed that eighty-five cents out of every dollar of manufacturer's sales goes for salaries and wages. And that the average man derives many benefits from private industry. Only three cents out of every dollar goes to the owners of industry, and there are more that twelve million stockholders in the nation.

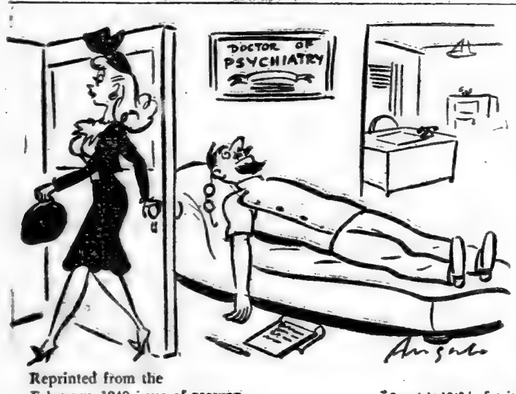
In their own manner each of these men get around to saying that the Capatalistic system is the basis upon which the "American Way of Life is founded".

We are convinced that American Capitalism and the American Way of Life are synonymous. And regardless of the many shortcomings and failures of the system which need correcting, we believe that it best suits the needs of the people of our nation.

Guest Editorial

An Honor System Without Honor

The following guest editorial, borrowed from the Emory University "Wheel" can well be thrown at the Carolina student body with the challenging threat—it could happen to you! For more detail, read on.



"The honor system has long been a subject for bad jokes and light conversation, but if the final exams of last quarter are any indication some other topic will have to found for the cynical. The honor system at Emory is dead.

"It went out accompanied by the soft shutting of text books nestled in convenient places. It died amidst the shuffling of exam papers being exchanged between students. Nothing fancy was needed. The trick watches and elaborate "horses" were left to the more imaginative scholars of other universities.

"Under present arrangements the honor system relies on the individual students. Violators have to be warned and reported by those who see them. But for some strange reason there is a prohibition against protecting one's own grade by reporting a cheater. It might be that no one likes to be known as a "squealer", or maybe its plain laziness. Whatever it is, the system isn't working.

"For years the Honor Council has been one of the most highly respected organizations on the campus. It has carried out its unpleasant duties in a manner entirely above criticism. Still, the Honor Council cannot carry the entire burden. That is where individual students have a duty. And this is where they have failed.

"Since the honor system has failed, something else is going to take its place. Emory is headed for examinations under supervision of professors. No amount of screaming about such a system being childish will change things. Although having a professor stand over you during examinations may hark back to high school days, it might be better than having a mumified honor system that has died at the hands of both cheaters and those who won't or can't report honor violations. R. T. E."

For Vets

Prospects Good For More Cash

Washington—Prospects of Congressional action to increase subsistence allowances for student vets early this session appeal bright, Chat Paterson, national chairman of the American Veterans Committee (AVC), said today.

Paterson said that he had been told by House Speaker Martin that House action on the Senate approved bill increasing allowances $10. for single veterans and $15. for married veterans could be expected near the beginning of the present session.

The AVC chairman said that his organization would press for amendment of the legislation on the floor to provide for increases of $35. for both single and married veterans.

"AVC's college chapter conducted a special "see your Congressman" drive during the Christmas recess and reports received so far indicate almost complete support of the increases," Paterson asserted.

"Surveys conducted last winter and spring by AVC college units demonstrated that even 'basic living costs' of student-vets far exceed present allowances," he asserted. "Single vets were found to be spending $105. monthly and married vets 150."

"Cost of living increases, particularly as regards food, since these surveys were made have probably added upwards of $10. to these figures," he added. "If Congress is to keep faith with the promises made in passing the GI Bill, immediate increases must be approved by Congress."

Paterson also predicted that the House would act affirmatively on veterans' bills boosting upward ceilings on combined wages and allowances of ex-GI on-the-job trainees and extending $1600. free car allowances to include amputees and blind vets. Both bills have passed the Senate and have been supported by AVC.

Paterson said that overwhelming support of subsistence allowance increases could be expected once the issue reaches the House floor. "Approval of a number of veterans bills could have been obtained last session if they had not been blocked by the House Rules Committee," he asserted.

Underwear And Little Red Bugs

Letters submitted to the Write Away column must be double-spaced, typewritten, and shall not exceed 300 words. All contributions must contain the signature, telephone number, and address of the author (names will be withheld upon request). Letters which contain obscene or libelous statements or letters which do not comply with these stipulations will not be published.

In a recent letter, Mr. Bob Shultz severly critized Mr. Bob Sain's method of handling his responsibilities and obligations to the readers of the Daily Tar Heel. Frankly, I am in perfect accord with Sain in his criticisms of the Communistic trends here at the university. Bob Sain is a writer who has the privilege of telling the students exactly what his opinions are concerning any subject he may wish. He is not telling anybody who their "avowed enemies" are. No one has to read the Daily Tar Heel. If I was Bob I would try and have them tarred and feathered. This so-called Pied Piper of the Tar Heel staff ought to "pipe" a little more and smoke out some of the little red bugs around the campus.

I realize that many of the students who are called communists are not in any sense of the word. They may want a new type of government that would function more smoothly than the one we have now, but they could not be called communist. Bob Sain is to be congratulated on his attacks on communistic activities. If he didn't remind some of our sleepy students about these activities, the students would be wearing "red" underwear and not even know it.

Keep up the fine work, Bob, and give 'em down the country whenever you think there are too many red faces around the campus which are not caused by the cold.

More Taters, Mashed

Dear Editor,

Having noticed that your column, "Write Away," receives numerous complaints from the student body, we have decided to represent the many students of UNC who want more mashed potatoes for their meals.

Although we hold Lenoir hall in high esteem, we are disappointed in the fact that they are able to serve string beans, navy beans, pinto beans, and kindney beans, yet, they very seldom serve more than scolloped potatoes, friend, potatoes, and boiled potatoes. The point is, where are the mashed potatoes?

Having conducted a poll throughout the campus, we find that the favorite potatoe preparation is mashed potatoes. Why then prepare potatoes in every way but the preferred method?

Name Calling!

To the Editor;

(In reply to a letter from Mr. Morty Seif condemning me for my letter stating that I liked long skirts.)

People like Mr. Seif amuse me greatly, he is to be likened to the man who makes great haste to board a train before he ever thinks of buying a ticket I say this on the grounds that he has ascribed to me a feminine gender, if he had really been unsure of my sex he could have quite easily have found that I live in the B. V. P. Trailer court. This should have proved conclusively that I am definately male. Then of course there is the possibility that he was very subtly calling me effeminate, I doubt this for name-calling is a manifestation of childishness that theoretically should not exist in those who are attending college.

The difficulty in replying to Mr. Seif's letter lies in differentiating between his attempted humor and what to me is subtle name-calling. If he was in any way likening me to the gentleman (?) that made passes at him on the train, I wish to reply that when a crime is reported the police first investigate the person that reported the crime.

After all it is only opinion on either side of the question and if Mr. Seif chooses to worship the knees, elbows and armpits of the girl he adores he is perfectly free to do that but from my point of view he has a strange idea of beauty indeed.

One Week Since Hamilton...

By Ro Foo Giduz

An admonition to all newspaper-reading Tar Heels: Don't put too much stock in rootin-tootin' unruly Roulhac Hamilton's recent Durham Herald story that Dr. Frank may be on the way out as president....

Hamilton, who has a reputation for sensationalism in news, wrote a story in an amazingly similar vein last spring to the effect that UNC was to be investigated by the Un-American Activities committee for alleged Communistic activities....(The Administration told 'em to come right ahead!)...DTH asked Hamilton for verification and details on the story via telegram and letter both, and he replied to neither...The whole story proved completely false.

Read his Durham Herald story of last Saturday on "the Graham Purge" and you'll see that just like his other story there is not a single concrete reference in it.

"Hearstish" Hamilton got his facts only from (1) "informed sources; (2) "reliable sources"; (3) "reports." . . . To all of which we say simply: Nuts! . . . A week has gone by and a while lot of nothing has come of it. . . . So come Hamilton-or-high water, here's hoping Dr. Frank, one of the South's greatest living men, will remain president of the greater UNC for the rest of his natchel life.

—Chapel Hill still too 'small for you? ...Over 16,500 people plus 7,500 students live in and around the town now... Both figures are double what they were two short years ago...And still the city limits cover a retangle less than one by two miles in area!...Our nemesis, Swedish fascist Axel Wanner-Gren recent guest-of-honor of the University, is in the news again... The wartime friend of Hermann Goering recently closed a deal netting him a monopoly on all of Mexico's telephones...Don't like to keep harping on one character too long, but friend Charlie Long made quite an apt, but unnoticed quip in his resignation before the Student party t'other day . . . "I don't think the party should have any one chairman too long," shirpel Chas. ! . It was politic, anyhow!

Sanguinary End

Warrant Recalls Dalton Boys

Tulsa, Okla. —(UP)— A piece of paper now in the hands of a Tulsa man has added a new chapter to the saga of the Dalton Boys, one of the old West's most notorious robber gangs.

The paper is a warrant for the arrest of the three Dalton brothers and five of their companions who blazed a trail of stage and bank robberies across Oklahoma and Kansas.

Had the warrant served its purpose, the bloody end of the Dalton gang at Coffeyville, Kan., may never have come to pass.

Fitted into historical records of the outlaws, the warrant shows that a U. S. deputy marshal wandered from place to place for two months in an effort to serve the warrant. The warrant charged Bob Dalton, Emmett Dalton, Grat Dalton and five others with the $11,000 robbery of a Wells Fargo Express Co. office at Red Rock, Okla.

The marshal was Bill Tilghman, whose reputation as a competent law officer was widespread. In August, 1892, a U. S. commissioner for the Oklahoma Territory handed him the warrant.

What happened during the next two months is not known but for a report scrawled on the warrant, and signed by Tilghman. It says:

"... endeavored with great diligence to execute the same by proceeding to the Creek (Indian) Nation and divers other places and hereby make due return hereon as not being able to find the within defendants."

On Oct. 5, 1892, the Daltons rode into Coffeyville. Bob and Emmett visited the First National Bank, and escaped with $23,000. At the same time, Grat Dalton, with henchmen Bill Powers and Dick Broadwell, went to the Condon National Bank. There a teller stalled them long enough for Coffeyville citizens to be alerted.

A party of vigilantes surrounded the bank. The Daltons were trapped. Powers and Broadwell reached their horses, mounted, but were cut down before they could get away.

In the same alley, Bob and Grat Dalton were riddled with bullets as they vainly tried to reach their horses. Emmett Dalton, still in his teens, was seriously wounded.

Coffeyville residents show visitors the alley where the furious shooting match took place.

Cabbages For Kings

If you want to show the woman in your life how much you live her—say it with cabbages—in Montreal, anyway.

Rising prices have made cabbages more expensive than roses. In Montreal you can get roses at $5 a dozen. But send the girl of your dreams a dozen cabbages, and it' llcost you $6.

The Brassy Taste

The Label Is Democracy

By Bob Sain

Some weeks ago Henry Wallace said he thought he could do the US some good by being its president. He looked around and told his friends to "Stand up and be counted."

I am now on my feet.

I am no Communist, think the Communists will, perhaps unwittingly, do the country (and the world) considerable harm if they have their way. The Communists support Henry Wallace. Don't hold that against him.

There have been numerous explanations of the Communist interest in Wallace. Some groups say the Marxists hope that by supporting Wallace, splitting the Democrats, they can get Republican Taft into office. Taft is supposed to take the country to the dogs tout suite, thus making it easier for the Communists to affect a revolution. Ask your poly sci prof. I do not know.

I can understand, however, that Wallace's views concerning labor, the race question, social reforms, international politics —he tie in with what Communists have long considered among their objectives in this country. The fact that Communists have some ideas in common with Wallace does not necessarily make Wallace easy prey to Moscow.

I have been told by good natured friends that Wallace was a very fine man with humanitarian ideals but that he was weak. So weak, they claimed, that his occupancy of the White House would immediately embroil us in a disastrous war with Russia. This point I have considered. As the situation now stands, we are certainly headed toward a war with Russia. Wallace's belief is that this country can settle its differences with Russia. He says he will work toward that end. The current administration is pursuing a course of "calling Russia's hand" which leads me to believe that Truman and company will not be satisfied until it controls the deal completely and down any man who says it can't pick a card off the bottom now and then.

We (the US and Russia) have become a couple of schoolboys standing off calling names, guards up, but neither ready to swing. Wallace would have us say something like, "What's the use of fighting. It won't prove anything but that it is easy to get hurt."

I know. It isn't all that simple. Balance of power, and all that. Instinct to find out who is the better man.

I cannot hope to explain in a column why I support Wallace, and I regret that it has become necessary to write about a personal matter. It seemed, however, only fair to let anyone who reads this column know how its writer stands politically.

(Note for red-baiters: this is not Communism. The label is democracy.)

Women Omit 'Men' In UN Declaration

The United Nations commission on the status of women—composed of 15 women—argued for 30 minutes today on the first man right.

It read, "All men are born free and equal in dignity and rights." A howl of protest went up. The delegates asked, "Why say 'men'?" Some wanted to substitue "human beings" for the word "men." Others wanted to refer to "brothers" or "persons." Finally work resumed happily. The women delegates agreed to replace "men" with "people."

THOSE 6,000 PEOPLE who squeeze into Woollen gym Monday night for the Carolina-Wake Forest double-header wil have halftime shows to watch in addition to the usual eage program. During the halftime break in the jayvee preliminary, two quintets representing the Chapel Hill younger generation will take to the floor for a 10-minute scrap. And then during the varsity intermission, the intramural awards for the fall quarter will be presented.

Looking ahead to the future, the youngsters' contest deserves a close watch. In fact we hear that Coach T. Scott will scout the game, on the hunt for good-looking talent for the future. Who knows—there may be a coming "Hook" or "Mr. Rebound" to play with the White Phantoms when 1956 rolls around. With Frank Murray coaching one team and Lew Hayworth guiding the other, the Town Terrors and the Hill Hotshots—all of whom are 12 or under—ought to put on one dandy tussle.

Then, come the second between-halves break of the evening, Director of Physical Education O. K. Cornwell will step up to perform the honors of passing out the mural laurels. Team trophies—donated by the various fraternities—will be presented to the fraternities who captured the titles in tag football, table tennis, volleyball, and wrestling. Then too, individual cups will be awarded to the tennis tourney victors. Last, but not least, individual medals will be given to the wrestling champs in all weight divisions and to the team managers on behalf of the members of the outfits.

All of which means that a lot of key chains and fraternity house mantles will have added decorations after Monday. Most of the trophies and awards, incidentally, are now on display in the window of the Carolina Sports Shop down town.

On the Mural Front

MONDAY'S AWARDS PRESENTATION winds up the most successful quarter of the intramural athletics in the history of the University. Almost 3,000 individuals—2,957 to be exact—took part in the department's seven activities, which, in addition to the above five sports, also included recreational badminton and dancing programs.

Broken down by activities, the statistics show that 1199 men engaged in mural football, 596 in volleyball, 334 in wrestling, 209 in table tennis, and 145 in tennis. Nor was the interest in intramural athletics confined to the campus males alone, for countless coeds appeared at many of the contests to cheer their boy friends on to victory.

It should be pointed out that a good many women even took part themselves in the other two activities on the mural program. Forty of the 145 who attended the badminton club meetings were of the feminine sex, and 83 women were included in the 329 people who went to the dancing classes.

As for the coming quarter, final plans will be completed this coming Tuesday evening, when the intramural managers meeting will consider putting three more activities in the point competition race. The three new sports—we use the word loosely—are soccer, rifle-shooting, and believe it or not, debating. Competition will also take place in basketball, boxing, swimming, and handball, and there will be a continuation of recreational badminton and table tennis in the Open House programs.

Which all points to one important fact. Intramural Director Walter Rabb and assistants P. A. Lee and Taylor Dodson are doing one fine job on the mural sports scene and deserve a rousing round of applause.

Time out while we clap! !

Caught In the Dark

CAROLINA MAY HAVE a few more representatives in professional football by the time the '48 season rolls around. Two Tar Heels, Jim Camp, and Bill Smith, were drafted by the Chicago Cardinals at the league's annual confab last month. Smith, second choice of the NFL champs, has two years of eligibility remaining with the Tar Heels, but the Cards apparently grabbed him for future use after his graduation. (We hope.)

We know for sure that several pro clubs have been after most of the other Carolina players who finished this past year. Jack Fitch, for one, has been made several offers to perform in the play-for-pay ranks, including one form the Pittsburgh Steelers. Jack hails from Etna, Pa., not for from Smokey City.

GATHERING UP THE LOOSE ENDS: Boxing instructor Joe Thigpen plans to form a ring team to represent Carolina in the Golden Gloves this year. Two of his prospects, heavyweight Ed McGee and light-heavy Oscar Webster, won AAU meet titles at Dunn last month... Not only does Carolina have high-ranking tennis and track stars, but the Blue and White may have a nationally-known links ace in Harvey Ward before the year is out. At least that's the prediction by Joe Day, former secretary of the U. S. Golf association, who names Harvie as one of the six leading contenders for the national amateur crown vacated by Skee Riegel... Over 100 teams will compete for the mural basketball crown this quarter.

SUDDEN THOUGHT DEPARTMENT: Wonder if Emerson field will be fixed up in time to play baseball there come Spring. As things stand now, Vinnie DiLorenzo will have a rock pile for a pitching mound.

Carolina Checks VPI For Tenth Straight Victory, 39-31

Nearman Leads Way With 13; Phantoms Play W & L Tonight

By Bill Kellam

Memorial Gymnasium, Blacksburg, Virginia, Jan. 9—Carolina ran its winning streak to ten straight games here tonight by defeating Virginia Tech's Gobblers, 39-31, in a Southern Conference headliner. The win was the third for Coach Tom Scott's invaders against loop opposition.

The Phantoms, who always seem to play their best ball in spurts, ran exactly on schedule tonight, and even a little more so. The Chapel Hill outfit romped to a 15-0 margin after six minutes of play, and the 3,500 partisan fans present had visions of something of a record defeat for VPI.

But then the Carolina offense hit the rocks, and the visitors couldn't make a field goal for some 13 minutes, until 19:15 of the first half when Nemo Nearman batted in a followup. By that time the Gobblers had managed to work through the tight Carolina defense to narrow the nargin to 24-15 at the half. A ast minute goal by Norm Koher helped account for the nine-point lead.

The Phantoms move on to Lynchburg, Va., this morning, where they will go against the Washington and Lee Generals this evening. The Carolina team returns to Chapel Hill Sunday morning.

Small Court

Both teams were off on their shooting during the first stanza, and the small court that the contest was played on probably had a lot to do with holding down the scoring.

VPI inaugurated a rally in the opening minutes of the second half that brought it to within four points of the lead at 24-20. Crenny Reed and Jack Chambers paced the splurge.

Coach Scott's charges, always hard to surpass once they get he lead, finally awoke from heir lethergy and upped the score to 33-23 in their favor at the 8:20 mark. Nearman, who played a great game defensively es well as offensively, was the eader, hitting a layup, followup, and three foul shots.

Biggest Margin

Carolina worked to its greatest nargin at 12:20, when John Dillon looped in a nice hook rom the circle. Then the Phanoms went on another of their scoring famines, with Kohler's oul shot being the only Carolina point in the last eight minutes.

Scott's men put on a slow freeze during those waning minutes and waived numerous foul shots in order to preserve their victory. The team's passing was good for most of the evening, in fact about as good as at any time his season.

Poor Shooting

In the matter of accuracy shooting from the floor, Carolina hit 15 of 51 for .294, slightly below their usual mark. VPI had only about .150. With Nearman, Bob Paxton, Bill Miller, and Kohler each turning in superlative defensive performances, the Tech players got few good shots at the basket.

Nearman's 13 points were high or the evening for both teams. Bob Paxton got 11 to run his season total to 141. Reed led VPI with 10.

NROTC Rifle Team Prepares to Compete Against Other Collegiate Reserve Units

By Paul Rothman

A yet- to-be chosen Carolina NROTC rifle team will fire about February 1 in the William Randolph Hearst trophy match for NROTC units, according to L. W. Smith, Jr., Marine captain attached to the unit here.

The team to participate will have possible competition from the rest of the 52 NROTC units at colleges throughout the nation.

All members of the unit here are trained in markmanship by Tech. Sgt. Herschel Baker. One of the sergeant's teams showed its skill Thursday by firing a score of 1681 out of a possible 2000 points while competing with the Oregon State NROTC team in an individual challenge match. Final results of the match have not yet been reported.

Those men who fired Thursday and their scores, are: H. P. Schoolfield, 341, H. L. Fremd, 241, R. G. Shannonhouse, 338, C. R, Stamey, 332, and T. J. Peterson, 329. The team's total score is the best fired by the unit.

Each team member fired ten shots per position, using the standing, sitting, kneeling, and prone positions. The possible score for each shot was ten points.

The team firing in the Hearst trophy match will fire small bore rifles, at a distance of 50 feet, in three positions, standing, kneeling, and prone. The targets will be sent to Washington for grading prior to February 15.

NYU Is Rough On Duke Quint

Duke's Blue Devils weren't by any means a happy team yesterday when they embarked from New York City for Philadelphia, for Coach Jerry Gerrard's basketballers had just absorbed a crushing 77-56 defeat from NYU, and prospects were poor for a win over Temple in the Quaker City tonight.

Little Don Forman paced the Violets ahead 16-6. Star forward over the Devils in Madison Square Garden yesterday evening.

Forman scored 35 points to set a new NYU individual record on 16 baskets, 14 of them from 30 or more feet out.

Except for the first five minutes when they trailed 8-6, the Blue Devils were never in the game. Baskets by Forman, Dolph Shayes, and Ray Lumpp put the Violets ahead 16-6. Star forwards Corren Youmans and guard Tom Hughes narrowed the difference, but the New Yorkers turned on the steam and upped their margin to 15 points.

Youmans with 15 and Hughes with 13 points followed Forman n the scoring column. Shayes dropped in 11 points.

Jayvees Oppose PJC In Wollen Tonight

By Larry Fox

Carolina's jayvees will attempt to show the world that their 41-39 loss to the Duke juniors Wednesday was a fluke when they take the court against Presbyterian Junior college cagers this evening in Woollen gymnasium at 8 o'clock.

Coach Jim "Pappy" Hamilton will probably go with the usual opening lineup against the hoopsters from Maxton, N. C. Sandy Hoft will start at the pivot post with forwards John Tsantes and Pete Peters and Bill White and Thorne Gregory in the guard slots. The Presbyterian squad is an unknown quantity, but they are believed to have one of the better junior college quintets in this section.

In their only workout of the week yesterday, Coach Hamilton had his charges practicing their set shooting and their offense against a zone defense. Deficiency in both these departments were primary causes of the Duke upset.

Busy Week

Otherwise, the juniors have been having a busy week, and there is no sign of let-up in the near future. They have played two games already this week, against Duke and Greensboro high school, another is scheduled for tonight, and four more are on the card for next week.

The Wake Forest jayvees will furnish the opposition Monday night as the preliminary attraction of a twin bill. The two varsities clash later in the evening. The local jayvees then take the road for their next three contests. They journey to Louisburg junior college on Wednesday night and on Friday meet the Duke juniors in a return engagement on the latter's home court Saturday the Tar Heel jayvees

Miller, Milne Race In Speedy Two Mile In Brooklyn Tonight

Brooklyn, Jan. 9—North Carolina's Jack Milne and Jimmy Miller are included in a fast 13-man field that will compete in the two-mile event in the Brooklyn Knights of Columbus Invitation meet here tomorrow night.

The field for the race contains some of the best distance runners in the East, including former collegiate champions Les MacMitchell and Curt Stone. This will be Miller's first venture into big-time competition on an indoor track, but his teammate is a seasoned campaigner over the boards and is listed as one of the favorites for the race.

The two Tar Heel runners will arrive here tomorrow morning and are expected to work out on the armory's flat track in preparation for the evening test.

It seems that Campbell has now played the field in newspaper work—as a successful writer for various publications, as a cameraman in the navy—and now as a printer and publisher, in a phase of the work he never expected to try. He still holds his own in the writing end of the business, too, since he is editing the programs for the Tar Heel football encounters at Kenan Stadium.

Although many UNC alumni profess a desire to return to Chapel Hill when they retire, Orville is one of the few old grads to come back to engage in business. The work is quite gratifying to him, too. He is always in his best humor when he greets the DTH circulation manager in the early morning hours, with a decided feeling of accomplishmen—and relief— to know that another issue has rolled off the press.

A good explanation of Campbell's meteoric rise in the publishing field is to be found in the words of the present Daily Tar Heel editor, "Orville Campbell's the handshakingest man you ever saw."

Rubber accelerators lead the way to new agricultural fungicides

Vulcanization accelerators for rubber and agricultural fungicides would seem to have little in common. But the wide variety of interests of men in the Du Pont organization sometimes result in outstanding developments from such apparently unrelated products.

A rubber chemist suggested to a plant pathologist that derivatives of dithiocarbamic acid, NH_2-C(S)SH, parent substance of a well-known group of rubber accelerators, be tested as insecticides. His suggestion was based on the possibility that sulfur combined in this form might be more effective than free sulfur, recognized insecticide.

Entomologists and plant pathologists investigated the fungicidal as well as the insecticidal properties of this group. One of the first compounds tested, sodium dimethyldithiocarbamate, $(CH_3)_2$N-C(S)SNa, even in dilutions of 1:30,000, was found to be a powerful fungicide, but somewhat injurious to plant life.

This led to a systematic program of research including other metallic salts, the ethyl, propyl, butyl, phenyl, and other aryl derivatives of the dithiocarbamates and thiuram mono- and disulfides, and the related compounds made from ethylenediamine and morpholine. In this phase of the work, organic chemists played an important role by suggesting various derivatives and preparing them for tests. Later, in cases where proper dispersion and adherence of the compounds to plants were important, the skill of physical chemists was called upon.

In general, the compounds of greater chemical stability were found to be less effective. Fungicidal efficiency diminished with increase in size of alkyl radical, and as aryl radicals were substituted for alkyl. Thus the unusual situation developed that with the exception of the bisethylene (dithiocarbamates), the first and simplest products tested, the methyl derivatives, proved to be the best fungicides.

Iron and zinc dimethyldithiocarbamates, $(CH_3)_2$NC(S)-S-M-S-(S)CN $(CH_3)_2$, are now sold as "Fermate" fungicide and "Zerlate" fungicide respectively, for control of fungous diseases of many fruit and vegetable crops, tobacco, flowers and other ornamentals. Zinc ethylenebis(dithiocarbamate), Zn(-SC(S)NHCH$_2$CH$_2$NH(S)CS-), marketed as "Parzate" fungicide, has specific action in the control of late blight on potatoes and tomatoes. Tetramethylthiuram disulfide, $(CH_3)_2$NC(S)-S-S-C(S)N$(CH_3)_2$, is used in two compositions, as "Arasan" disinfectant for seeds and "Tersan" fungicide for turf diseases.

Overall, the derivatives of these groups of compounds proved to be outstanding as fungicides, rather than as insecticides. Although a marked degree of specificity for different pests was characteristic of the members of this series, it is interesting to note that all three were highly effective. This work offers still another example of how the breadth of interest in a company like Du Pont can lead to worthwhile developments.

Trustees Shape Med School Plans

Ballentine Is In State Race For Farm Head

Raleigh, Jan. 10—(UP)—Lieutenant Governor L. Y. Ballentine announced his candidacy for State Commissioner of Agriculture last night.

Ballentine, formerly considered a potential candidate for the governorship, says he will enter the race to rpelace W. K. Scott who anounced his intention not to seek re-election as head of the North Carolina Department of Agriculture.

Coltrane In Race

D. S. Coltrane, the present assistant commissioner, has also said he will enter the race for commissioner.

Ballentine's withdrawal from the race for the governorship leaves four announced candidates in the field, state treasurer Charles M. Johnson, R. Mayne Albright of Raleigh, state representative Oscar Barker of Durham and Olla Ray Boyd, Pinetown pig breeder.

"I am a candidate for Commissioner of Agriculture in the Democratic primary this spring.

"For many months, as my friends well know, I have considered entering the race for governor of our great state. My interest in that office was based on the belief that my experience as a farmer and business man and my knowledge of the problems confronting our people would enable me to make a definite contribution to the development of our commonwealth.

"Kerr Scott has done such a good job as Commissioner of Agriculture that I had not considered replacing him. Now that he has taken himself out of the picture, I have concluded that can render perhaps as valuable service to my friends and my state as head of the state's Agriculture department as in any other capacity.

"I shall always be grateful for the support tendered me as a prospective candidate for governor, and I sincerely hope that all my friends will appreciate my sincere desire to be of service to them and will rally to a program of progress and development for North Carolina."

Students to Set Up Dry Cleaning Service In Graham Dorm Basement Next Week

A dry cleaning collecting room for the benefit of dormitory residents is to be set up next week in the basement of Graham dorm, J. S. Bennett, University building supervisor, announced yesterday.

The new concession will be entirely student-operated, Bennett explained, and three students will be selected by Edward S. Lanier, director of the self-help office, to manage the room.

Bennett said he hoped that this move would place the door-to-door canvassing for various cleaning establishments that has been done in the dormitories in the past on a definite business basis, with all this activity concentrated in the new collecting room.

"Students bringing cleaning to the room, which should be in operation by Tuesday or Wednesday, can select any commercial establishment they wish to receive their clothes, and the managers will supervise the sending and the receiving of the garments from these cleaners. If the student doesn't specify a definite place to have the cleaning done, the manager will make the choice," Bennett concluded.

James Street Says Democrats May Consider Graham for V. P.

The possibility that the Democratic party may be considering University of North Carolina president Frank Graham for the vice presidential nomination was mentioned yesterday by author James Street in a letter to the Durham Herald.

Commenting on the much discussed Herald story which reported a "rumor" that Graham was "on his way out" as president of the University, Street, writer of The Gauntlet, based his remarks on the Washington dateline which the story carried and on the many references to annonymous sources.

"Cowardly Attack"

Stating that North Carolina, not Washington, was the place for discussion of Dr. Graham's position, he criticised the practice of hiding sources of such critical comments under the veil of anonymity. His belief that the Herald would not fall for "a cowardly attack on Graham" led him, he wrote, to look for another explanation for the story.

He supports his conclusion that Graham may be being considered for the vice presidential nomination by pointing out the belief held by some that a Southern liberal of Graham's stripe would be an asset to a Truman-headed ticket.

Some Tar Heels, according to his letter, might prefer to see Graham in the vice presidency than to have him active in North Carolina. Street closed his remarks, however, by saying that he for one would not swap a top-flight educator for three vice presidents.

Daniels Worse

Raleigh, Jan. 10—(UP)—Doctors say the condition of 85-year-old News and Observer Editor Josephus Daniels is worse tonight as he continues his downhill fight against a severe case of pneumonia which developed with complications from bronchitis early today.

Editor Daniels has been in a coma most of the day and his doctors say there is very little chance for his recovery.

Cobb To Head Committee To Plan Building

By Raney Stanford

Plans for the University's four-year medical school and its affiliated hospital are beginning to take definite shape, with the appointment of two subcommittees on construction and policy here yesterday.

The committees were chosen by the Trustee's committee on the school and hospital, under the chairmanship of Maj. L. M. McLendon, which met in the Carolina Inn yesterday afternoon.

Employment of Architect

Collier Cobb, Jr., of Chapel Hill, was appointed chairman of the committee on building the hospital, and the main committee authorized the immediate employment of na architect to draw up plans for the structure.

A request was also submitted to the University trustees, who hold a full meeting again in February, to press the state administration for release of the appropriated funds to push the building to completion.

Ready by May

"It is thought that these plans should be ready by May," Chancellor Robert B. House estimated.

A sub-committee on personnel and policy was also chosen, and Victor Bryant of Durham was named as chairman. Bryant's group will assist the dean of the medical school and the University administration in selecting the hospital director, the teaching staff of the school, and deciding other matters of general policy affecting the venture and its execution.

Other trustee activity in the Inn yesterday included a meeting of the committee on the University's financial needs, which is drawing up a report to submit to the main February meeting.

Bulletin

Raleigh, Jan. 10—(UP)—The Trustees' committee of the University of North Carolina Medical school has urged Governor Cherry and the Council of State to begin building the new four-year medical school and teaching hospital.

Officials say construction of the enlarged medical school and hospital has been held up because the state was waiting on the outcome of negotiations between the Cone foundation, which is also building a hospital, and the University Trustees.

Enlarging the University medical school was authorized by the 1947 General Assembly as part of the state's Good Health program. The Legislature provided that the start of construction would wait on orders from the Governor and Council of State.

The Trustees' committee is headed by Chairman L. P. McLendon of Greensboro.

Mikado Operetta Is Set for Production

The famed Gilbert and Sullivan operetta, "The Mikado", which is the third major production of the Carolina Playmakers' thirtieth season, will be presented in Memorial hall at 8:30 on January 30 and 31. The production is under the joint direction of Paul Young of the music department and Lynn Gault of the Playmakers.

Rehearsals for the operetta are now underway, and the setting designed by Gault is under construction in the Playmaker scene shop. Gordon R. Bennett, shop foreman, is supervising the scenery work. The music for "The Mikado" is being handled by Young, and Gault will direct the staging.

John W. Parker, Playmaker business manager, places the start of the reserved seat ticket sale on January 21. "The Mikado" is being presented jointly by the Playmakers and the Music department.

Loeb Seeks Local Chapter of SDA; Regrets Wallace Third Party Move

Calling for the formation of a local chapter of Americans for Democratic Action, Dr. James L. Loeb, Executive Secretary of Americans for Democratic Action, told some 60 persons at a meeting in Graham Memorial yesterday morning that ADA was a "solid, realistic progressive movement."

He also announced that it was with "extreme regret" that ADA was forced to consider the Henry Wallace announcement for the presidency an "unfortunate move."

Dr. Loeb asked for the formation of an ADA chapter here "within about three weeks" so that this community might be represented at the first ADA convention in Philadelphia on February 21, 22, and 23. He asked for a chapter with a membership of about 25 before that time.

Dr. Loeb scanned the one-year history of ADA, calling the group, among other things, "heir to the old Populist movement" and a "continuation of the New Deal."

Declaring that freedom and economic security were inseparable bases of liberalism, Dr. Loeb introduced by Dr. Woodhouse.

SP to Meet

Consideration of its nominee for president of the student body, subject to the spring general elections, will be the main order of business of the regular Student party meeting tomorrow evening at 3 o'clock in Graham Memorial's Roland Parker lounge no. 1.

A permanent party chairman will also be elected at that time, Charles Howe, vice-chairman and present acting chairman, stated. All interested students are invited to the meeting.

Lady Is Real Lady—She Lost Her Fleas

St. Louis (UP)—Lady, once the queen of Bikini atoll, is a lady. She never scratches.

The reason, said Coxswain James Nestor, 19, who adopted the frisky black-and-white terrier that survived the atomic experiments at Bikini, is that "all her fleas must have been blasted away by the bomb."

Lady is believed to have been the only dog on Bikini to pull through the double blast in the atoll's lagoon. One year after the experiments in 1946, she was found running about one of the sand spits by an advance group of Seabees searching for signs of radio-activity.

She was taken aboard the transport USS Chilton by the Seabees and turned over to Nestor.

Unled Observation

When the Chilton docked again in the United States, Nestor asked if he could take Lady to his home in St. Louis. Navy officials assented on the condition that the dog undergo extensive observation.

Lady spent a month under the care of Navy scientists at San Francisco, who feared she might have been affected by the atomic blasts or radio-activity. What happened to her there hasn't been disclosed, but she was returned to Nestor with a clean bill of health.

"She hasn't a scar of any kind," Nestor said when he turned Lady over to his parents here. "She's a little near-sighted, though. But no fleas. Hasn't had any since we found her."

Lady Well-Dressed

Lady, after her life in the tropics, doesn't care much for cold weather. On chilly days she wears a natty blue topcoat bearing the insignia of amphibious froces with the one chevron and crossed anchors of a coxswain.

Nestor believes Lady was left on the atoll before the bombs were exploded by some unit that forces with the one chevron and evacuate. When the Seabees discovered her she was wild and apparently enjoying her freedom.

A rabbit trap baited with a hambone was her undoing.

Leap Year, When Women Chase Men, Bequeaths Coed With Upper Hand After Three-Year Wait

By Margaret Gaston

It's strictly a woman's world this leap-year of 1948. Even the cherub who ushered in the New Year as Father Time faded out of the picture was a member of the fairer sex.

Armed with the knowledge that this is leap-year, girls took the reins starting New Year's Eve. At parties THEY were the ones who lined up at midnight to go around the table to kiss the boys, thus reversing the usual procedure. (It's rumored that anything done January 1 will be repeated throughout the year.)

Opinions as to the affects of leap-year on campus differ. Some of the more amorous lads expressed grave disappointment in the results to date. "I have had only three proposals thus far, and last year, which was just an ordinary one, I had six." This Casanova should not be discouraged, as the year is young.

This year will be filled with trials and tribulations for the more bashful Carolina men. They've probably checked that "new look" on the Carolina coed—and this has no reference to clothes. The new leap-year look is a certain gleam in the coed's eye—suggesting a double whammy at the slightest provocation.

The more bashful men on campus did not return this quarter. (Parents were very understanding when potential—or so they thought—Phi Betes informed mama and papa they wouldn't return to the Hill, for the coeds were wild enough in ordinary years.)

Men and the Creeps

One Carolina gentlemen reasons that all the cute girls will grab all the cute boys, and "that'll leave me and the creeps." Another gay young blade, suffering from every complex known to man, rationalizes that he will be much better off this year, although the ratio is still six to one.

Coeds feel that this will be a prosperous year. No longer will they be forced into seclusion on weekends. Some have been planning their strategy for three years, and they intend to make the best of this golden opportunity. Boys needn't be surprised if anything in a skirt jumps out from behind some tree and snatches them to the local movie. The question is, at whose expense?

Wisconsin String Quartet To Play Here January 18; Admittance By Guest Ticket

By Nina Davis

The Pro Arte Quartet of the University will appear in Hill hall auditorium January 18 as the fifth program of the chamber music series which has included the London String Quartet, the Kroll String Quartet, and the Gordon String Quartet last year and this year Yves Tinayre has appeared under its auspices.

All of these programs are made possible by the cooperation of the Elizabeth Sprague Coolidge foundation of the Library of Congress.

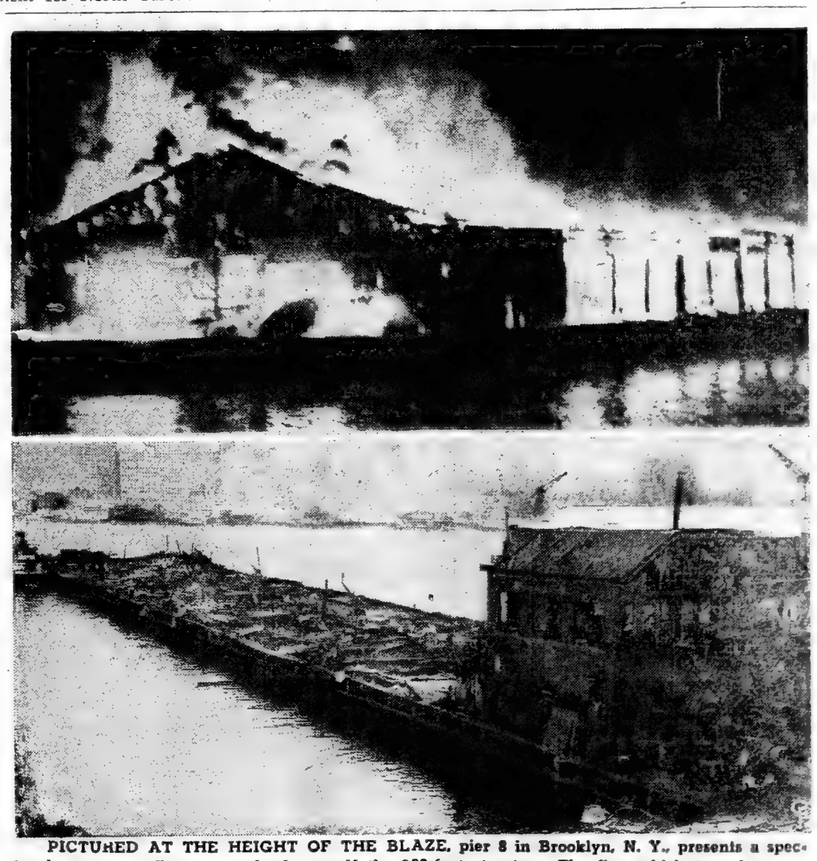
Standing Room Only

Guest tickets for the Pro Arte Quartet will be available Monday in the foyer of Hill hall. These tickets will be honored until 8:30 after which time the general public will be admitted without tickets. Due to the previous attendance at these events it is expected that there will be standing room only after 8:30.

The Pro Arte Quartet is composed of Rudolf Kolisch, Albert Rahier Bernard Milofsky, and Earnst Friedlander.

Rudolf Kolisch, first violinist, has studied violin under Sevcik in Vienna, composition under Schoenberg and Schrecker, and musicology under Guido Adler at the University of Vienna. Because of an early injury to his left hand, Kolisch reverses the functions of the hands in playing the violin.

Founded Quartet



The Vienna String Quartet, later known as the Kolisch Quartet, was founded by Kolisch in 1922 and he toured Europe, South America, and this country with this ensemble until he joined the Pro Arte Quartet in 1944. From 1940 to 1944 Kolisch lectured at the New School for Social Research in New York and his study "Tempos and Character in Beethoven's Music" appeared in Musical Quarterly.

Wesley Club To Fete State College Group

The regular Sunday night Wesley foundation student supper and program will be hosts to a delegation of students from State college this evening at 6 o'clock in the Methodist church dining room.

The program will consist of the Christian's concern for world peace.

Tryouts will be held later this evening for the Wesley players' future production of T. S. Elliot's "The Rock." The play will be given in Winston-Salem on February 6 as part of the North Carolina Methodist Student Movement conference.

PICTURED AT THE HEIGHT OF THE BLAZE, pier 8 in Brooklyn, N. Y., presents a spectacular scene as flames completely engulf the 600-foot structure. The fire, which spread to two ships tied alongside the pier, caused damage estimated at $1,500,000. Below, after the smoke had cleared, only debris remains. (International)

Test Registration

Thursday noon, January 15, is registration deadline for February graduate record examinations, results of which are necessary for admission in most graduate schools of the United States and Canada. The announcement was made yesterday by Dr. W. D. Perry, institutional examiner, from his office in 102 Peabody.

Hours for registration, Dr. Perry said, are from mornings at 8:30 until afternoons at 4:30. All applicants must register with the examiner before the deadline if they wish to take the tests given February 3 and 4.

No exceptions to the rule will be made, said Dr. Perry, since the examination is administered only four times each year on a schedule which is congruous nation-wide. Fee for the February examination is five dollars, payable at the beginning of the first testing session.

Welcome, Americans for Democratic Action

We have not a great deal of information on Americans for Democratic Action—an organization which seeks to establish a chapter in Chapel Hill. But after listening to Dr. James L. Loeb, the executive secretary of that group in a talk in Graham Memorial yesterday, we do not hesitate to welcome such a group to the campus.

Dr. Loeb is a forceful young man. He makes no bones about being a liberal and at least seems not to be frustrated. We have viewed numerous liberals in our time and have found that most of them get tied up in knots over the prospect of remaining liberal in a conservative age.

ADA is heavy at the top with displaced New Dealers. Such men as Leon Henderson and Chester Bowles are in the ADA policy-making group. Dr. Loeb likes to call the charter members of ADA "the United States government-in exile."

There are definite ties with Franklin Roosevelt in ADA policy. Mrs. Roosevelt is a leading member and so is FDR, Jr. The organization seems to offer congenial surroundings for Roosevelt admirers.

In the Roosevelt tradition is the groups belief in government planning for economic security. Dr. Loeb says that there is no freedom so long as there is not economic security—on which point, we feer, all will agree.

Politically, ADA is not committed. It has not decided to support Truman, though it has taken a stand against Henry Wallace. Dr. Loeb points out that it is possible that ADA may not endorse any presidential candidate in 1948, though it is probable that it will. He believes that congressional elections will be more important in the fall and says that ADA will concentrate its efforts in that direction.

One point heavily in favor of ADA, we believe, is its strong stand against Communists in its ranks. While admitting the right of the Communists to have their own organization in this country, ADA does not believe that they are liberals and that, therefore, their place is not in ADA.

Many will, no doubt, welcome the opportunity to affiliate with a liberal group that s not dominated by Communists. —B.S.

Pros and Cons of Dutch-Indonesian Dispute

News releases keeping the nation informed of the Dutch-Indonesian dispute and of Dr. Frank Graham, who is a member of the commission appointed to settle the differences, have been few and far between. For this reason we know very little of what is actually being accomplished. Even Mrs. Graham, the wife of the President, remarked last Thursday night that she and Mrs. Brandis (wife of Henry P. Brandis of the law school faculty who accompanied Dr. Graham) often get together and compare the scanty news of their husbands' work which they glean from their letters.

One of the very few articles which has been published since Dr. Graham accepted a position on the commission is contained in the January 10 issue of the "Saturday Evening Post,,. Although the article is primarily written to portray an average Dutch family living in the Netherlands East Indies, it does uncover invaluable information which helps us realize the relative importance of the job facing the president of the Greater University of North Carolina.

Here's what Harold H. Martin, author of the article "The Bedeviled Dutch of Java", has to say of the situation as he sees it in Batavia:

"By keeping order, by stamping out pestilence, and by bringing great new areas of rice land under irrigation, the Dutch had seen the island of Java increase its population from 4,000,000 to more than 40,000,000. But, critics pointed out, the bulk of this great population had never received more than a subsistence wage—as low, during depression years, as one American cent a day. Mammy and papa, weighing the arguments, tried to decide whether it was better for a Javanese to have lived hungrily under the Dutch than never to have lived at all.

"The pros and cons were endless. The Dutch had built universities to train Indonesian youth as doctors, lawyers, and engineers. But they had built no schools to train Indonesian economists. Holland's critics said there were no school of economics because the Indonesian had no head for business and no interest in trade. They offered in evidence the fact that all the little businessmen—the middle class of the Indies—were Chinese or Hindu."

We understand that the commission has now finished its investigation of the question facing them and are now prepared to study all of the evidence and reach a decision. There is not the slightest indication of what the settlement will be, but we do know that Dr. Frank will weigh the matter carefully and will vote for the suggestions which to him seem the fairest for all concerned.

Consider and Promote

The Intramural department would do well to consider in detail the possibilities of coordinating an intramural debate program into their already-established athletic program. To those who conclude that there are no conceivable reasons for establishng a forensic group within the Intramural department, we beg to disagree.

It may be quite true that the individual managers of the fraternity athletic teams are interested in athletic events themselves and not in oratory. But we believe that it would be advisable for the intramural group to take debating within the fold and help nurture it as a special division of the department—headed in the individual fraternities and dormitories by seperate managers.

The Council could do much toward creating an interest in debating among groups on the campus and after it becomes established it will be able to grow under its own momentum.

President Earl Fitzgerald, of the Debate Council, has mapped out a promotion plan for campus debating. Recognition in the form of cups and awards will be given to the teams and individual members who sponsor the winning debates.

Debating is a worthwhile activity which can very well die unless it is given some consideration and promotion.

Chicago Trib Says

Reds Infest the Ivy League

By Alex C. Hoagland, Jr.
(Reprinted in part from the Harvard Crimson)

Searching diligently for The Monster Communism, an ubiquitous reporter from Colonel Robert Rutherford McCormick's Chicago Daily Tribune rode the Harvard-Yale-Princeton circuit Sunday and reported that the three colleges are "infested with padagogic termites of communism, socialism, world federalism and other foreign-born schemes which would weaken the American Republic."

Under a lead front-page headline revealing candidly that "Red Poison Tinges Ivy of Harvard—Classrooms Hear Alien Doctrines," the writer, Eugene Griffin, charges that "Harvard makes almost a fetust if of permitting radicalism to flourish, and a visitor is impressed by the prevailing spirit that 'revolution is wonderful.'"

Griffin, who has been circulating throughout the "dangerous" east, attacked all of the Big Three but devoted the body of his article to Harvard. Presumably stories on Yale and Princeton will appear in future issues of the "World's Greatest Newspaper."

During his perambulations, Griffin spent two days in the CRIMSON building pouring over back issues of the undergraduate daily. While here he said that McCormick had sent him on a tour of the three colleges after the wealthy publisher had attended the Harvard-Yale game and found things weren't as they used to be at his New Haven alma mater.

He states that "Harvard is noted in the east for its stable of professors who frequently come out from behind their books to toe the communist party line, perhaps absently-mindedly." In this paragraph he includes Professor Harlow Shapley, director of the College observatory, Kirtley Mather, professor of Geology, and Arthur M. Schlesinger, Jr. '38, associate professor of History.

Reaction in Cambridge was rapid and unfavorable. After hearing excerpts, Professor Mather labeled the article "the same old smear technique," adding, however, that "I don't think he's done a very good job of it." He said his personal critique of communism is clearly on record in his book, "Enough and Dispair," published in 1944.

Promising that "I'll sue if I mean it when you said you wanted nothing to do with the selection of my staff?"

Startled, Hoffman demanded: "Does this mean you are telling me to go to hell?"

"Yes!" barked Bender.

Hoffman's next step was to call a secret huddle of the Republican members of his committee. They kept Bender on the carpet for an hour, but he refused to budge from his nonpartisan stand. Ex-missionary Walter Judd of Minnesota was the most vitriolic, and accused Bender of harboring left wingers. Bender retorted that he had asked the FBI to investigate Rosenberger and Schimmel at their own request. All the FBI could dig up was that Rosenberger belonged to the Southern Conference of Human Welfare which opposed the poll tax and that Schimmel once ate lunch with a left-wing scientist.

It was this meeting which brought out the names of the true people behind the plot. Senators Wherry and Ball, Judd, who took his stand against the two New Dealers at Ball's prodding, shouted: "These men are pesonally offensive to two Senators, Mr. Wherry and Mr. Ball."

Bender finally stung Judd into silence with the caustic rebuke: "This is a poor way for a Christian missionary to act. What are you trying to do, crucify those guys?"

After the meeting, Bender summed up his position in a letter to Hoffman.

"Of course I knew," wrote Bender, "that both Mr. Rosenberger and Dr. Schimmel had worked for a prominent New Deal Senator (Harley Kilgore of West Virginia). When I asked them to serve . . . I assured them that I wanted the investigations . . . to be conducted with complete impartiality, without political partisanship or favoritism to any individual group.

"From the beginning . . . I have received reports that Mr. Rosenberger and Dr. Schimmel were New Dealers or left wingers. In every case I have felt that I knew Mr. Rosenberger and Dr. Schimmel and their work much better than did those who brought me such reports."

Nevertheless, both men resigned over Bender's protests.

"I feel," explained Rosenberger in a formal letter, "that the efficient functioning of an investigating arm of the Congress can be maintained only if the staff enjoys the full support of the committee members."

Latest report is that Rosenberger will stay with Bender and work in his private office.

Note: No one disagrees politically with Rosenberger and Schimmel more than Bender, himself. In fact, Bender will take the soapbox from Bob Taft at the GOP Presidential convention this year. It is still supposed to be a secret, but Bender has promised to be Taft's keynote speaker at the convention.

Notes From Your Friend In The Cabinet: The revelation that Brig. Gen. Wallace Graham, White House physician, was a grain speculator, coming on top of the big mystery over the disappearance of that inflation-control bill from the desk of brain truster Clark Clifford, caused another Presidential aide to quip somewhat ruefully:

"Brother, are we in trouble? One of us is found to be gambling and the other losing important

Look for the Best in Lite

By Dr. Herbert Spaugh, D. D.

Why not look for the best in life rather that the worst? You will be far happier, win and keep more friends if you do. You will even enjoy better health.

There are many more honest, lovable, charming people in this world than some would lead us to think. Whether we discover them depends upon whether we look for them.

Some people seem to go through lift in reverse. They are always looking for the worst in life, expecting the worst of people. Certain occupations provoke such an attitude. In my earlier days, before I entered the ministry, I was in the furniture manufacturing business. I had a job as inspector of machined furniture parts. It was my task to look for the flaws, and throw those pieces out before they were put into the finished furniture.

I soon found myself looking for flaws in everything and everybody. When I woke up to that, I changed jobs, as I knew I could not afford to go through life with that attitude. Since then I have been trying to live by the motto, "Look for the best instead of the worst." It has certainly paid good dividends.

There are some whose work provokes a critical attitude, police officers for example. They deal with law violaters so much that if they aren't careful, they'll begin to suspect that there are only two classes of people, the caught and the uncaught. Such an attitude is dangerous. I am convinced that the majority of people are honest, and desire to be helpful. Stop your automobile in any town, ask for information. You'll be surprised at the willingness of people to give it.

Most people will be helpful if they are approached properly. Recently in Charlotte, a housewife hid $500 worth of Government bonds between the leaves of a telephone directory while she was absent from her home for awhile. She planned to put them in her bank box at the next opportunity. Then she forgot about the bonds. New telephone directories came out, and she threw the old ones in the waste basket. Out in the garbage they went and off to the city dump. The next day her husband asked her for the bonds, saying that he would take them down to the bank.

Suddenly it dawned upon her what had happened. They contacted the Superintendent of the Sanitary Department. He was sympathetic, and promised to institute a thorough search on the morrow. The next evening the garbage collector appeared at her door with the telephone book containing the bonds, which after diligent search he had found among burning papers and trash, and everybody was happy.

Expecting the best of people instead of the worst may cause you to "be taken in" occasionally. But you run twice the risk with the other attitude, for people will be out then to try to "take you in." I found no better way to make a marriage, a home, or a business successful than to expect the best of the others in it, let them know you expect it, then express appreciation when they do it.

Honest George Gets His Lumps

By Drew Pearson

Notes From Your Keyhole Congressman: For his statesmanlike pains to keep politics out of an investigating committee, Congressman George Bender is nursing the scars of a cat-and-dog fight with his fellow Republicans. The chubby Ohioan stood up for two New Dealers on his subcommittee staff and took an ear-cuffing from GOP colleagues.

Savagely he turned his back on the lot of them, but their overwhelming pressure forced the resignation of his chief counsel, Coleman Rosenberger. The second in the controversy, consultant, Herb Schimmel, had planned to resign anyway.

The amazing thing is that the fight was not stirred up on the House side at all, but by two Senators who were miffed at the New Deal pair and who, incidentally, had no business poking their noses into a House committee. The first direct action was taken by George Smith, staff director for the Senate Republican Policy Committee, who wrote to House Expenditures Chairman Clare Hoffman of Michigan. Bender's subcommittee was carved from Hoffman's command.

The letter hinted darkly that Rosenberger and Schimmel, former Senate investigators, are political pinks. What it didn't mention was that two prominent GOP Senators, Ken Wherry of Nebraska and Joe Ball of Minnesota, instigated the plot.

Hoffman dutifully brought up the complaint with Bender, who could not stomach petty politics and spit back acidly: "Did you

Who's Robertson Kidding?

Dear Sir:

Who is Bill Robertson trying to kid? His column in Friday's Tar Heel is old stuff. It merits no attention whatsoever other than the fact that it is presented in a more naive manner than one would expect of a college student.

First of all the statement Mr. Robertson attributes to Hanson W. Baldwin. Apparently his source was Mr. Baldwin's article "The Military Move In" in the December issue of Harper's Magazine. In this article Mr. Baldwin was supposed to have concluded that the influence of the military has begun to threaten seriously our democratic way of life. As a matter of fact he concludes no such thing.

He says the military has its place in the American system and that REASONABLE military precautions are an essential if the peace is to be preserved. He also says present military influence is within reasonable bounds in light of the world situation but that we must always remain vigilant to safeguard our basic liberties.

A more serious complaint is Mr. Robertson's failure to face the basic questions involved. He muddies the waters by throwing in the Hearst Press, American Legion, Wall Street, military brass-hats, and Hitlerites. He never comes to grips with the issue. How are our commitments to the European and Asiatic nations to be carried out without an Army and Navy to back them up? By what alternative method is our own security to be assured? Mr. Robertson, what program would you suggest?

New Year Opens With Many Plans

By Betty Peirson

The New Year really looks like a busy one for the YW. Unfortunately, in the midst of planning for the coming activities, Betty Rose Dowden suffered acute appendicitis on Wednesday night. She is now recovering at Watts hospital in Durham, and Ruth Evans is doing a grand job of filling in during her absence.

Emily Von Borrees and the members of the Executive council are busy meeting with members of the Junior council. From the latter group the 1948-49 Y Cabinet is selected after a series of meetings and interviews with each girl. As a climax to the activities of the Junior council, a Retreat is also being planned.

Big plans are being made for the YM-YW joint Conference February 20-22. The Retreat committee, led by Julia Ross and Pete Burks, has announced that after corresponding with some 25 places, Natural Bridge, Virginia, has been chosen as the location for the conference. The guests will include old and new YM and YW cabinets, adult leaders, and campus leaders. Further plans for the conference will be announced later.

The other big event which is being planned now is the clothing drive to be held January 25-31. Sunny Sunstrom and Gene Turner are in charge of this campus-wide drive, and will announce plans for it next week.

YW committees will meet this week at their regular times. The publicity committee will meet on the second floor of the Y building Monday at 5 o'clock.

What's Up in Graham Memorial

GM GRIND:

—Beginning tomorrow Bob Coulter, GM's photo darkroom chief, will be in the union office from 2-3 each weekday through Thursday, and from 10:30-12:00 Saturday mornings . . . Sorry to report the art and poster shop is not open this quarter, however, the union hopes to have the old GM barber shop functioning in those quarters soon.

If you haven't gotten a student directory yet, there are still a few available in the Graham Memorial office. . . Selections on tomorrow evening's recorded dinner music concert will include Shostakovitch, Symphony No. 9; Strauss, Emperor Waltz; Bizet, Carmen Overture; Tschaikovsky, Nutcracker Suite.

Back Tracking In Sports

Morty Schaap

The participation in minor sports has hit an all time low. Why? It seems as if the men in school that wish to compete in sports such as swimming, wrestling, tennis, track and golf feel that the competition is too fast for them and they will not make the grade. In sports such as these, it is almost impossible to get enough boys to obtain competition for varsity men in the various classes. Coaches, if they could obtain the material would schedule freshmen and junior varsity contests.

In order to have good varsity teams there must be men who will come out and work with the better boys and thus aid themselves and the varsity men. Where would a football team be if it did not have some team to scrimmage with them? Boys that come out for the various sports as a freshmen will be in the limelight by their junior or senior years, if they show the will to work and enough intestinal fortitude. If we are to find the University up on top of the heap in minor sports, new life blood must be added to the teams. It is the freshmen and the sophomores that will be the pillars of strength in their closing years.

The minor sports offer no lucrative financial situations but they do offer men the opportunity to compete and earn a varsity letter. All these sports come under Coach Bob Fetzer's dream of Athletics For All. These sports are for the student and those who wish to take their place in intercollegiate athletics can do so by going out for a team.

Big Time Racquet

On January 20th the University will be honored by the appearance of the two finest tennis players in the world. It will be another chapter in the battle to decide who is the best tennis player in the world, Jack Kramer or Bobby Riggs. After a slow start Kramer has found the touch that is needed for play on the canvas. Chapel Hill will be the only stop in North Carolina and it is only through the untiring efforts of tennis coach John Kenfield that the tour will be at the Hill. Jack Harris, who is the promoter of the tour, has always stopped off here with his various tours but in the last couple of attempts the attendance was not too good.

With ducats priced at one dollar for students and two dollars for others, people in these parts are getting the same how that brought a six-sixty top at Madison Square Garden in New York. This will be an opportunity for everyone to see some exciting matches and the finest tennis play in the world. Along with Kramer and Riggs will be Pancho Segura and Dinny Pails. These two boys have been battling each other tooth and nail. In their first match at Ney York Pails won 15-13. The matches thereafter have been just as close. These two pair up with Riggs and Kramer for doubles to close out a star studded show.

A Word of Praise

Plenty of praise should go to Jim Hamilton smiling coach of the freshmen and jayvee basketballers. Hamilton who was great on the court for the Phants last year has translated his savvy to the boys that are under him. His clubs are aggresive and feature a fast break type of play. Some of the lads on these clubs are definitely varsity material and before long these lads will be the stars of the conference. . . . . Hobie McKeever is next in line for a friendly word as his outstanding work with the wrestlers during the fall quarter when Coach Quinlan was tied up with football, will pay off in the victory column when the season gets underway. . . . . Joe Hilton has been working with the track-candidates since early September and now will devote his time to bringing along the hurdlers, sprinters and jumpers. Hilton is a tireless coach with a wonderful disposition and gives his all, 25 hours a day. . . . . Ralph Casey, who has been working diligently with the swimmers aiding Dick Jamerson is another who deserves credit.

These are the men behind the scene, the men who make or break athletic teams and everyone of the men mentioned above is a man that competed in his undergraduate days at Carolina.

Dis And Data

The work in freeing the Tin Can has been completed and all track aspirants may get on to the board track starting Monday . . . . Major league scouts are high on Carolina pitcher Frank Robinson . . . . Footballers' Merle Norcross and Fred Ogden have transferred over to track. . . . . The coaches are hopeful that some sprinters will show up before the indoor meet on February 28. . . . In answer to many questions on the campus, the Olympic height for basketball is six-feet-two and under. . . . In compliance with a suggestion in this column Coach Dale Ranson is drawing up a set of University Records to be posted where the man on the squad can see the marks that they are shooting at. . . . . Dave Boak, Gus Johnston and Frank Nelson took place in the finals of the Olympic tryouts in Baltimore yesterday. . . . . The Olympic track coach will be named today. . . . . Boxing tryouts for the Olympiad will be held in Boston in July. . . . Leo Durocher returns to the National battle scene and George Magerkurth, 19 years of umpiring in the senior circuit, retires—any relationship . . . . The East-West football game turned over a check for $110.266 to the Shriners' Hospital for Crippled children, one very worthy Bowl game.

Carl Snavely Made Trustee In Grid Group

New York, Jan. 10—Coach Carl Snavely of the University of North Carolina was named a trustee of the American Football Coaches Association at the group's meeting here yesterday.

Jim Phelan, St. Mary's grid mentor, was selected as president of the organization to succeed Tad Weiman of Maine. Other officers named were Harvey Harmon of Rutgers, first vice president; Dutch Meyer of Texas Christian, second vice president; Earl Blaik of Army, third vice president; and Tuss McLaughry of Dartmouth, secretary-treasurer.

Elected trustees along with Snavely were Lynn Waldorf of California, George Munger of Pennsylvania, Don Faurot of Missouri, Ray Eliot of Illinois, Lloyd Jordan of Amherst, and Ike Armstrong of Utah.

The grid coaches' convention was held in connection with the annual NCAA convention.

Casey to Hold Tank Time Trials Today

Time trials in all events will be held in Bowman Gray pool this afternoon, as the Blue Dolphins continue their drills for their opener against Florida next Thursday.

The team appears to be rounding into good shape, and assistant Coach Ralph Casey, directing the tank activities while Dick Jamerson is at the NCAA convention, is hopeful of good times today.

In the Gators, the Dolphins will be meeting one of the Southeastern conferences's perennial powers in tank competition. Florida holds one of the very few victories over a Jamerson-coached Carolina swimming team, having trounced the 1940 crew by a 51-24 score. The two teams have not met since that year.

Juniors Crush PJC Cage Team

By Larry Fox

With every man on the squad breaking into the scoring column, the Carolina jayvees rolled up the highest score of any Blue and White quintet this season burying a feeble Presbyterian junior college five, 77-22.

Coach Jim Hamilton emptied his bench midway in the opening half when his charges had already amassed a 23-5 margin. The second-stringers carried on to bring Carolina's half-time total to 39 points against seven for PJC.

The Cardinals were the first to score with Claud Connor making good on a free throw in the opening seconds of play. A foul shot by Peters knotted the count and another charity toss, this time by John Tsantes, put the locals in the lead. Six minutes after the start of the contest, Homer Nichols, PJC forward, threw in a one-hander for the visitor's first field goal raising the score to 13-3.

The second string entered the game and proceeded to hold the visitors scoreless while they racked up 15 points to make the half-time score 39-7, favor of Carolina.

The visitors opened up the second stanza by making three quick baskets while Carolina could register only one basket and a foul shot; both by Tsantes. Play in the second half followed much the same pattern as the initial stanza. The jayvees would net three or four baskets before he Cardinals could register once. The first stringers set the pattern n the opening minutes and the eserves follow it faithfully.

With several minutes to go in he contest and with the score resting at 75-20, Ham's boys resorted to a modified freeze that succeeded in further holding down the visitor's total.

The Box Score:

Carolina (77)	pos.	PJC (22)
Tsartes (10)	RF	(8) Nichols
Peters (6)	LF	(4) Bowman
Hoft (2)	C	(8) Connor
Thorne (12)	RG	Rowe
White (7)	LG	Knox

Substitutes: Carolina: Ferraro (8), Lebed (2), Wilkerson (8), Holmes (2) Gregory (7), Powers, (2), Terrell (2), Morrison (6), Godman (3).

PJC: Coates, Wood, McConegagy (2), Patton, Robertson, Gilliam, Steed, Bass, Beker, Hendrix.

Boxers to Meet

All boxers, preferably with some experience, who would like to box in Golden Gloves competition as a member of a team representing Carolina are requested to meet with boxing instructor Joe Thigpen in the Woollen gym boxing room Tuesday afternoon at 4 o'clock.

Dormitory Cage Play To Begin Tomorrow

The first full week of intramural basketball gets under way tomorrow afternoon when fraternity competition, already two days old, continues, while dormitory play sees its first action.

Opening up the dormitory schedule will be a clash between Everett No. 1 and Alexander No. 1. All of the other five contests will be fraternity struggles.

Tomorrow's six games will be he lowest number of tilts scheduled for any day this week. After the Carolina-Wake Forest battle tomorrow evening, the stands on the south side of Woollen gym will be torn down, thus freeing more courts for intramural play.

As a result, 10 games are slated for Tuesday and 14 for Wednesday and Thursday afternoons. In addition, the mural department has arranged to play evening contests Thursday night, and 14 more tilts have been scheduled at that time.

An intramural managers meeting will be held Tuesday evening, the department has announced, and all fraternity, dormitory, and independent managers are asked to be present. Final plans for the mural program for the rest of the winter quarter will be discussed at that time.

Basketball, boxing, swimming, and handball are already on the list for point competition, and the managers will consider adding five-man soccer, rifle-shooting, and debating to the program.

Paxton Paces Tar Heel Scoring; Wake Forest Here Tomorrow Night

By Bill Kellam

Lynchburg, Va., Jan. 10—Carolina's high flying White Phantoms made it eleven in a row last night by downing the Generals from Washington & Lee, 60-36 in a game played here.

The Generals could not penetrate the tight knit man-to-man defense that the Tar Heels threw at them. Bob Paxton paced both teams' scoring as he swished the nets for 18 points. Jack Goldsmith, one of the leading scorers in the Conference, hit for 16 to lead his team. This was the fourth win for Carolina in loop play.

The Scottmen held W & L to three field goals in the first half and a total of nine points while the Carolinians tallied 27. Paxton hit the nets in the initial stanza on five out of nine attempts. Norm Kohler turned in a fine defensive game while blanking Ike Pears one of the big guns in the Southern loop. After five minutes of play Caro-

The Phantoms will be back in Woollen gym tomorrow night, when both they and their jayvee cohorts engage Wake Forest quintets. The jayvee preliminary gets under way at 6:30.

Between the halves of the opening tilt, the Hill Hotshots and the Town Terrors, both composed of youngsters under 12, will battle in a 10-minute scrap. Fall quarter intramural awards will be presented during the varsity intermission.

ina had a 10-2 lead and then at the 14 minute mark they were ahead 20-4

Varsity Retires

Scott removed the whole varsity after seven minutes of play n the second half and let the eserves see action. John Dillon then got in the game and even though he was double-teamed he hit with three hook shots. Near the end of the contest W & L rallied and, paced by Ed Thomas, who racked up two quick buckets, pulled up to 46-21.

Cov Carson and Roger Scholbe paced the Phants in the last four minutes of play to put the game way out of reach for the Virginians.

Carolina made good on 25 hots out of 56 attempts while he Generals could only make 13 out of 37

Nemo Stars

Nemo Nearman played a fine game in the first half both offensively and defensively and when he came out of the game Goldsmith had made only five points.

It was just a case of too much Carolina power and reserve strength and the starting team played excellent ball and were in complete charge all through their stay in the contest.

However, this wasn't the only time in recent years that an important document was lost at the White House. The late Franklin Roosevelt had a similar experience back in 1939, though on that occation the missing paper turned up after much hilarious excitement.

FDR was on the point of proclaiming a pre-war state of limited emergency, when suddenly he couldn't find the proclamation. Newsmen on hand for the momentous event tittered as the President rummaged furiously through papers on his desk. With mock seriousness, Roosevelt declared that Attorney General Frank Murphy "must have run of with it" and dispatched someone to pursue Murphy, who had just left the room.

When Murphy returned Roosevelt demanded, "Frank, where's that copy of the proclatation you ran off with?" Murphy searched his papers, but protested innocence. Someone suggested that Assistant Secretary of State Adolph Berle might be the culprit, and Berle was sent for. Meantime, Roosevelt searched his waste basket. With this crowning touch, the conference became a riot of laughter.

Reporter Visits Toughest Street in World, Views Marseille's 'Hell's Hundred Yards'

By Robert Musel

Marseilles (UP)—A gendarme slithered out of the shadows, his blue cape swinging, and murmered:

"Monsieur has a passport?"

Monsieur handed over his passport and looked down on one of the most incredible sights possible for a man who likes to observe his fellow man.

I was standing at the top of the narrow, curving Rue Des Chapeliers—toughest street in the world to those who claim to know about such things.

Rue Des Chapeliers is short—"Hell's Hundred Yards," some call it. From curb to curb it is filled from dawn to dusk and beyond with a milling throng of the cutthroats and outcasts of many nations.

All Kinds There

All colors and all sizes and all costumes—Arabs, Greeks, Italians, Spaniards, Corsicans, Africans—they discuss projects, compare notes, arrange nefarious deals and, for practice try to swindle one another.

Before the war they used to live in a rabbit warren-like district along the Old Port of this fierce city. But during the occupation so many German soldiers were garroted or had their throats cut there that the Wehrmacht ordered the entire half-mile of houses blown up.

Not a matter of patriotism, mind you. The denizens of the Vieux Port are loyal only to themselves. But the Germans complained about the prices in the brothels or the fixed wheels and dice in the gambling hells or the watered-down opium in the dives.

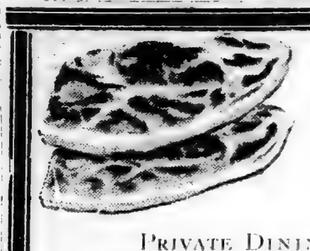
"Monsieur is indiscreet," said the gendarme, recovering gallantly from the shock of my passport photo. "To go into Rue Des Chapeliers is not advisable."

Monsieur Takes a Chance

Monsieur, having been similarly warned by the American consul, shrugged, wrapped his raincoat a little more tightly, clamped his right elbow against the wallet in his inside jacket pocket and started down the hill.

Almost as though there had been the signal: "A sucker has arrived"—heads began to turn towards me. A bumnoosed Arab made the first pitch, shrewdly assessing that I was guarding a wallet. He pulled at my arm obstensibly to draw my attention, actually to give an accomplice a chance at my pocket.

"Zomting to zell?" he whispered.



I shook him off and was surrounded by a knot of Italians.

Mrs. Groves To Talk To Coeds On Dating

"Campus problems and dating" will be the subpect of a lecture to be given to University coeds tonight by Mrs. Ernest R. Groves, Vice-president of the American Association of Marriage Counselors. The lecture, to be given in Hill hall at 7:30, is the first in a series to be presented by Mrs. Groves during the winter quarter.

Following her lecture, Mrs. Groves will open the floor for questions and discussion by the coeds, who may also make appointments for personal counselling.

Mrs. Ernest R. Groves

Author and Editor

Mrs. Groves, who is an eminent authority on marriage and family relations, is particularly familiar with this phase of the field, having gleaned wide knowledge through years of experience dealing with campus problems at many leading universities and colleges including the University of Illinois, Oregon State College for Women, Wesleyan College in Georgia. Wesleyan College at Middletown, Connecticut. She has, since 1941, carried on the work of her late husband, who first introduced marriage courses to the University.

In addition to her extensive work in colleges and universities, Mrs. Groves is the author of numerous books including the college text, "Marriage and Family Life" and is American editor of "International Journal of Sex and Sex Problems," a journal on marriage hygeine. Mrs. Groves is among the small percentage of women represented in Who's Who and she has recently been elected vice president of the National Council on Family Relations.

Present GI Subsistence Legislation Will Be Discussed by UVA Members

Veteran subsistence will be the topic for consideration at tonight's first University Veterans association business meeting of the year which will be held at 7 o'clock in the UVA club.

The entire meeting will be devoted to a discussion and presentation of pertinent facts concerning the subsistence proposal, the Rogers bill, which will be introduced during the present session of Congress.

President Johnny Clampitt said that the purpose of the discussion and the vote to follow will be for the local club to decide whether they will lobby for the proposed bill or whether they will attempt to influence their congressmen towards a more liberal or a more conservative bill. The Rogers bill would raise veterans educational subsistence from $65 to $100 a month for single men and from $90 to $125 a month for married veterans with $10 a month for each aditional dependent.

At tonight's meeting, South Trimble, who represented North Carolina at a recent Washington meeting of the newly formed National Conference of Veteran Trainees, will make his official report to the members and it is presumed he will make suggestions as to what action the local group should take.

Sadie Pierson, president of the CICA, announced yesterday that the co-ed group would be on hand to sponsor the first open house of the year which will begin at 8:15 tonight immediately following the business meeting.

Clampitt announced that the UVA membership tickets will be on sale today in the "Y" between 10 and 11 o'clock and will also be available tonight at the door to the club house.

Lionel Nelson, snack bar manager, said that all kinds of sandwiches and cokes, cigars, cigarettes and gum will be on hand

Open House Program Set Tomorow Night

The first of the Winter quarter Open houses will take place tomorrow night and entries for the all-campus badminton tournament which will be conducted during club meetings on Mondays and Wednesdays may be placed at that time.

The second round of the badminton league will be played this quarter with matches scheduled with Raleigh, Burlington, and Durham. The first match is here with Raleigh on January 21. All students and faculty members regarless of age or sex, are invited to participate.

Summer Entrants Can Get Rooms

All students who entered the University for the summer session of 1947 are now eligible for dormitory rooms upon request at the Housing Office, 22 New East Annex, before January 15.

Students who entered for the summer session are listed in part as follows: Lonnie G. Albright, John G. Bambalis, Dan T. Barker. Richard L. Bowen, Billy H. Brandon, Bruce Buckner, John L. Chambers, Jr., Scott J. Childress, Dallas D. Cline, Henry E. Diggs, James C. Dismuke, Joseph G. Edwards, Marvin R. Farley, Julian W. Hamrick, Faison Hicks, Harry H. Horton, Paul O. Hudson;

Donald B. Ipock, Boyce O. Jenkins, Franklin P. Jones, Baldwin Kahn, Paul W. Lentz, George J. Miller, W. Frank Mustian, Robert E. Noell, Marion W. Peebles, Jr., William S. Peebles, III, Wilton Rankin, Frank Ratcliffe, Perry M. Sapperstein, William K. Sonntag, Charles E. Stevens, Glenn E. Taylor, Benjamin E. Thompson, James S. Waddington, Edward K. Washington, Leonard White, Everett P. Williams, Francis E. Winslow, Arthur D. Xanthos.

Political Union To Take Members

In their Sunday evening meeting the members of the Carolina Political union agreed to admit a number of new members to their ranks during the winter quarter. Chairman Bill Kemp stated that persons interested in political affairs of any nature may apply for membership in the non-partisan group, which meets in Graham Memorial Grail room every Sunday evening at 8 o'clock.

Union application blanks are available in the YMCA office, and interested applicants should obtain these as soon as possible.

All general discussions of the Union are open to the public, and students and faculty interested in joining during this quarter are requested to attend next Sunday's discussion on the topic, "The Role of the Third Party in America."

Phi Will Discuss Graham Question In Meet Tonight

By Gordon Huffines

The question as to whether or not Dr. Frank Graham should be retained as president of the Greater University of North Carolina will come before the Philanthropic assembly tonight at 7:30 in the first session of the winter quarter.

The Phi bill, resolved that Dr. Graham should be retained as head of the Greater University, was reported out by the assembly ways and means committee in view of recent rumors, reported by Roulhac Hamilton of the Durham Morning Herald, that the University president was to be relieved of his duties.

Graham Criticized

Criticism of Dr. Graham has appeared in State papers in which he has been accused of holding leftist views and neglecting his duties as head of the University. He is also, listed as a member of several groups which have been reported as engaging in subversive activities by the U. S. Attorney General's office.

To Install Officers

Also scheduled for tonight's session is the inauguration of the new officers of the assembly at which time Speaker Chester D. zum Brunnen will deliver his inaugural address. Applicants Mae Belle Enman of Asheville and Graham E. Jones of Winston-Salem will also be initiated into the assembly.

Speaker zum Brunnen announced that a meeting of the executive committee will be held immediately after the adjournment of the assembly and that the alumni committee would meet in the Phi hall Wednesday night at 7:30. Members of the alumni committee, headed by Chairman George Rodman, are Earnest House, Charles Dixon, Emily Claire Baker, Frank Giraffe, and Ruth Bradley.

Deadline Shifted For Medical Test

Although the deadline for the February medical professional aptitude tests has passed candidates may still register, Dr. W. D. Perry, institutional examiner, has announced.

Deadline for the February 2 test was orginally set for November 15 of last year. Because no definite ruling has been given the examination, results of which are required by the Association of American Medical colleges as auxiliary evidence of preparation for medical study.

Dr. Perry urges all non-registered applicants to come to his office in 102 Peabody to register between the hours of 8:30 and 4:30 o'clock. All applicants must pay a fee of five dollars in the form of a money order made payable to the Graduate Record office (New York city) on the day of the examination.

Inquiries concerning the test may be addressed to Dr. Perry or to the individual's premedical student advisor. The interested persons will be supplied a prospectus and registration forms.

230 Students Dropped For Academic Reasons

By Raney Stanford

In contrast to the current rumors about the vast number of students who failed to met the required academic standards of the University last quarter, totalling of official figures from the three main schools show that actually about 230 did not make the necessary grade level to enable them to register for the winter quarter. And 80 of these have already been readmitted to the University by the various readmission boards of the different colleges.

College Breakdown

Breakdown of this academic failing list shows the majority, 142, came from the General College, with 60 being dropped from college of Arts and Sciences, and about 30 from the Commerce school. Fifty-seven students went before the boards of the latter two colleges and 18 have been readmitted.

Of the number who went before the board of the General College, 62 have been granted reinstatement.

In commenting on the general academic statistics of last quarter, Dean D. D. Carrol observed that students in his Commerce school made the best record in the school's history, one out of seven equalling or bettering an average of 92.5.

Academic Regulations

Current regulations governing student standards at the University, call for a freshman to pass at least 30 hours during his first year. He must pass five hours in the first quarter following this, and average 35 during every three quarters until completion of his required course.

If a student fails to meet these requiremnets, and desires readmission, he submits a petition to his dean, and the petition is considered by a special dean's committee of each college before the quarter's opening. Academic deficiencies may be made up through correspondence work or during the summer sessions of the University.

Playmakers Need Agile Safe Hands

The ability to crack a safe is not a quality which an applicant for a job usually emphasizes when talking to his prospective employer. However, the Playmakers have a job that only a man with educated fingers can handle.

A safe delivered to the Playmaker offices in Swain hall has failed to respond either to its combination or to the rather inexperienced efforts at cracking it made by the Playmaker and buildings department staffs.

The safe was originally used here during the war by the navy. Yesterday, it was transferred with the aid of a truck and ten handlers to the Swain hall headquarters of the dramatics group.

Robert Walker of the Playmakers tried to open it first. When he failed, five additional combinations known to fit safes stored here were used—with no result.

The buildings department, called in by the somewhat distraught staff, was likewise at a loss. They did get to the point where only one number and one direction in the combination were wrong, but could get no further.

Latest word on the recalcritant object was that if the appeal to unemployed thugs failed, the Playmakers would have to tell it to the marines—or at least to the navy.

LE CERCLE FRANCAIS

An important meeting of Le Cercle Francais will be held this evening at 7:30 in Caldwell "Y." At 6:30 those interested in eating together and speaking French will meet in the Carolina Inn.

Campus Leaders Move Tentatively To Dissolve Entertainment Committee

By Chuck Hauser

Tentative plans were discussed to dissolve the Student Entertainment committee and a decision was made to cancel two programs in the remaining four of the series at a meeting of the committee, student government and administrative representatives yesterday.

The move to dissolve the Entertainment committee was brought up by student body President Tom Eller, Graham Memorial Director Bill Stuford and Dean of Men Fred Weaver, who met last Saturday to discuss the situation and reached the decision that the dissolution was the most practical thing to do under the circumstances.

Called Agencies

Dr. J. P. Harland of the committee spent the late hours of yesterday afternoon calling New York booking agencies in an attempt to cancel the scheduled programs of Iva Kitchell, dance satirist, and the Philharmonic Piano quartet.

The Mikado, Gilbert and Sullivan opereta which was included on the entertainment series, will reach production on schedule under the auspices of the University Music department and the Playmakers.

Arrangements are under discussion to bring Franz Polgar, magician and hypnotist, here under sponsorship of some other organization than the committee Graham Memorial was suggested as a possibility.

Reminded of Contract

The NCAC, agents of Iva Kitchell, were "rather loathe to cancel the engagement,' when Dr. Harland spoke to them over long-distance yesterday. "They reminded me that we had signed a contract," he said.

A representative of Columbia Concerts, agents of the Philharmonic Piano quartet, is scheduled to be in Chapel Hill today to confer with Harland about the quartet's engagment.

Gault Announces Tentative Cast For 'The Mikado'

By Mark Sumner

Lynn Gault, drector of the Carolna Playmaker production of the Gilbert and Sullivan operetta, "The Mikado", which is to be presented here on January 30 and 31, announced the tentative cast list and understudies last night.

"Yum-Yum" will be portrayed by Barbara Edwards, who recently appeared in "An Enemy of the People", and the understudy is Milton Bliss. Andrew Griffith is to play "Ko-Ko", and Sam Hirsch, who played the lead in the Forest theater showing of "Macbeth",, will be seen as "Poo-Bah". His understudy is Lanier Davis.

Perry As 'Nanki-Poo'

Carl Perry is to play "Nanki-Poo", with John Brinegar serving as understudy. "Pish-Tush" will be played by either Sara Greene or Ramon Askew, and Tal D. "Dick" Smith will appear as "Go-To". Mrs. Virginia Johnson is cast as "Pitti-Sing", with Mary Lambeth as understudy, and Ferne Hughes will be seen as 'Peep-Bo". Barbara Young is the understudy. Mrs. Catherine Covington, who appeared in last summer's presentation of "The Late Christopher Bean", is to act "Katisha", with Lucille Arnott as the understudy.

Forty-Voice Chorus

In addition to the ten feature roles and nine understudies, a chorus of 40 voices will be used in the production, and twenty students are serving on the various technical crews.

"The Mikado", generally considered to be the outstanding operetta by the Gilbert and Sullivan team, is being presented jointly by the Playmakers and the Music department, and Paul Young is directing the musical end of the production.

AVC Will Discuss State Convention

Members of the University and Chapel Hill chapter of the American Veterans Committee will consider plans for this weekend's state conference of AVC chapters, to be held in Chapel Hill next Saturday, at their meeting this evening at 7:30 in the Presbyterian church.

The weekend conference, intended primarily for the officers of the ten AVC chapters in the state, will consider the questions of what action AVC should take specifically on a statewide plan, and also methods of organizational expansion in this area. Jim Crawford, southeastern regional organizer for AVC will be present for the sessions.

A report on veterans legislation now pending in Congress, election of delegates to the Chapel Hill Community Council, and other miscellaneous business will be considered at the meeting this evening. Chairman Jehan Van De Velde announced that all meetings of AVC are open to the public.

PAUL GREEN, well known Chapel Hill playwright, will address The Carolina Dames Club tonight at 8 o'clock in the main lounge of Graham Memorial. The Dames Club of Duke University has been invited to attend.

Creighton Pushes New Architecture

A distinctive regional type of architecture for each section of the United States was advocated in a talk delivered by editor Thomas H. Creighton of Progressive Architecture magazine before the annual meeting of the North Carolina chapter of the American Institute of Architects in Person Hall Gallery yesterday.

Creighton, a former practicing architect, pointed out that in this respect California and the midwest are far in advance of the East. He criticised what he called the East's "fake cultural tradition" and compared the attempts to copy colonial styles to "trying to make a 1948 automobile look like a buggy".

The lack of professional criticism of architectural trends in the general press and more particularly in the professional press was also scored in his remarks. He stated that, in his opinion, "competent and objective criticism" could do much to solve the problems confronting the profession.

This session of the North Carolina chapter is expected to last through Tuesday.

SOCIETY STAFF MEETING

There will be a short meeting of the society staff of the Daily Tar Heel today at 3 o'clock in the news office. Campus organizations that have not already done so should appoint a representative to attend this meeting.

Ivey Will Speak At U of Illinois

John Ivey, Division of Social Science Research at the University, is among some of the nation's top men in the field of communications who will convene at the University of Illinois, January 19, 20, and 21, for the first conference to be conducted by the newly established U. of I. Institute of Communications Research. Ivey will speak on "Communications as a Social Instrument".

Discussion topics for the three-day meeting will concern specific problems of communications control, extent, and support, process and channels, audiences, and social effect, in addition to problems of a new communications research center.

Comm Center Will Air Radio Play by Rolnik

By Herbert Nachman

"The Escape of Herbert Hinkle", a thirty minute radio show by student playwright Bob Rolnik, will be heard tomorrow night at 8:30 over radio station WHHT, WPTF, and WHHT-FM.

Originating in the studios of the University Communications Center, the show will be the first 1948 production of the weekly student program, "Thirty-Three by Air".

Directing the production is Miss Marty Pearsall assisted by Miss Joyce Corbett. Music will be under the direction of Harold Schiffman.

Basis of the show is a last year's news item in which a New York busman became distatisfied with his route and took himself and his bus on a thousand-mile trip to Florida where he was caught by police when he wired his company for money to buy gasoline. He is now back on his old route in Ney York city.

In the play, Herbert Hinkle, a New York bus driver played by Mac Shaw, becomes interested in Floridian luxury when he overhears a conversation between two of his bus passengers, Ben and Sam, portrayed by Bob Epstein and Merv Lenz.

His boss Slattery, Jim Geiger, adds to his disatisfaction by continuously heckling Hinkle about the daily trafic jams he causes. His nagging wife Edna, played by Edna Dooley, doesn't detract much from his misery and his decision to leave is made the following day when his Bus, played by Dick Katzin, talks to him about Florida.

When he arrives in Miami he is disappointed to find that it is raining and the people there shove and speak gruffly to him even more than they did on his old route.

When confronted by reporters and photographers he decides to admit his guilt, which he does and returns home a national hero. As the play ends he is back on his old route after receiving world-wide distinction and is still mixed up in one of his oft-reprimanded-for traffic jams.

Other members of the cast are Woman, Pat Palmer, and Guy, Bill Workman. The technical crew for the play includes Earl Hartsell and Jim Tucker, sound; Babe Hooks, turn-tables; and John Young, control engineer. The announcer will be Robert Andrew.

Prof. Taylor Will Speak At Book Tea

Professor George Coffin Taylor, of the English department, will be the Bull's Head bookshop speaker at the first tea of the new year scheduled for tomorrow afternoon at 4 o'clock. The announcement was made yesterday by Mrs. N. B. Adams, hostess.

Title of the address will be "A Two-sided Man In A One-sided World." The tea will be held in the staff room, next door to the bookshop on the basement floor of the University Library.

Professor Taylor's new book, "Essays of Shakespeare," has been receiving varied reviews since its publication by the Putman company in November. Taylor, according to Mrs. Adams, will first attack his own book, reading the worst reviews of it, and will then attempt to defend it.

Sound & Fury Will Elect President, Form Committees at Meeting Tonight

By Paul Rothman

Elections to fill the vacancies created by the resignation of Doug Gardner as president and Nancy Tucker as secretary-treasurer will head the agenda when Sound and Fury holds its first official business meeting of the quarter in Gerard hall at 7:30 tonight.

The musical comedy organization is also considering creation of the office of vice president.

Social and production committees are to be set up, and publicity, ticket and program committees will be organized under the production committee.

Formation of plans for an organization party will follow the reading of a financial report by Jerry Weiss, who is acting as secretary-treasurer until elections are held.

Plans for two new shows and adoption of a key to be awarded or effort and length of service in Sound and Fury will also be discussed.

Ken Gammage, who is temporarily acting as president, will preside over the meeting. All persons interested in musical comedy work are cordially invited to attend.

For Your Convenience: A Branch Post Office

There are many advantages which are to be gained by establishing a branch post office on campus, states Mr. W. S. Hogan in a recent interview published in the Chapel Hill Weekly. But there are also numerous details which have to be worked out; foremost among them is the location of proper housing for such an office.

If a branch post office were established it would enable students to receive their mail several times a day from their post office boxes instead of the present dormitory delivery method which provides only twice daily delivery during the week, one Saturday and no Sunday delivery. Students who live out in town would no longer have to waste time standing in a general delivery line each day, and congestion in the downtown post office would be greatly reduced. Also a branch office would relieve South building and post office workers of added work and expense. At the present time South building is in a continuous strut changing students' addresses for mailing purposes. In a branch post office each student's mail would be placed in a lock box, probably shared with two others, and he would retain the same box as long as he remains in school, regardless of the number of times he moves.

Post office employees will benefit, according to Postmaster Hogan, because it will cut down the number of times the mail has to be handled.

But any definite action toward establishing a branch post office on campus must originate from the University itself, says the postmaster. The reason for this dates back to several years before the war.

According to Mr. Hogan, around 1937 the Post Office Department went to considerable expense by sending inspectors to Chapel Hill to work out the details for a branch office. But after such work was completed, the University refused the proposals of the Department. "Evidently," stated the Postmaster, "someone in South building talked the students into believing wth them" that a branch post office would not give as adequate service as the present system. Mr. Hogan added, "At that time they could not see its advantages."

Under the old proposals the University was to furnish proper housing for the office and had its choice of one of two propositions: it could operate the post office as part of the University and collect all lock box rentals, or the post Office Department would take complete charge. It is quite possible that the same proposals will be offered the University if it decided in favor of a branch office.

There is a great need for more adequate post office facilities; the long lines at the downtown post office bear out this belief. Student action could establish a post office here on the campus—a post office to which you are entitled.

Don't Lose Your Shirt

We seek not to discredit the University building supervisory department when we say that it is about time that a safe and sensible system was instituted in the collection of clothes for dry-cleaning.

Though not rooked ourselves, we have heard that more than one $65-a-month peasant has lost valuable articles of clothing in the hit-or-miss unauthorized collected system.

Word comes from Mr. Bennett, building supervisor, that a dry-cleaning collecting room for the benefit of dorm residents is being set up this week in the basement of Graham dorm.

There is no tie-in with any one dry-cleaning establishment. Ed Lanier has appointed three students to run the concession. They will take your clothes for delivery to any dry-cleaner you specify. Of course if you don't have a favorite dry-cleaner (do any of us?), the manager of the room will make the choice.

Mr. Bennett says that the room will be operating either today or tomorrow.

The Beauty Was Suprised

By R. Foo Giduz

The crowning moment at Friday's Yack beauty contest came as a real surprise to beauty Betty Brown.....The comely coed from Asheville thought she was to be the last choice for the queen's court, and then completely and flabbergastingly to her su-prise, Judge James Davis planted the large orchid boquet on her signifying her qeenship. (And that aint all he planted on her, brother).... .....(The beauty business isn't exactly old stuff for Betty, but she did confide she once won a beach bathing beauty contest.)

Look for two big names in politics on the CPU speakers platforms to come to the campus soon; one this month, a very prominent national GOP Political wheel, and another next month, a tip-top minority party leader, well-known to all local oldsters.....

DTH recently aired two very worthy views on publications biz which erstwhile Mag business manager Ben Perlmutter forwarded to the Publications board. Another idea, which Ben proposed, which wasn't mentioned, and which PB should most certainly effect, is that of creating special subscription rates for faculty and administration members..... Innumerable University teachers and workers, who should keep in closer touch with students through DTH, Mag, etc, are financially denied the opportunity through the too-high subscription rates. (DTH charges as much as New York Times, per annum.)..... 'Twould be a most worthy gesture, especially on a point where relations are quite strained now.

Walt Spearman's drama criticism class surprised themselves recently when they found their favorite movie for 1947 was NOT an American show. (Producers note.).....The neophyte critics picked Gentleman's Agreement, Dear Ruth, and Crossfire, as their choices for best U. S. shows, and Great Expectations, Odd Man Out, and Stairway to Heaven for their top foreign shows.....But in the final tallying the foreign shows topped the domestic productions. .....What did YOU think of them?

Playing it to the Chapel Hilt

Sief Returns, Proust On His Lips

Ed. Note: The columnist, a former Tar Heel scribe, resumes the writing of this column after an absence of two years. It was a Playing It to the Chapel Hilt column which touched off the fireworks against the U.S.S. Neversail and the subsequent Battle of Chapel Hill in 1945.

By Morty Seif

It was Marcel Proust who said that 'The heart changes and that is our worst misfortune." I wonder. Often I ponder over the meaning of that sentence. It is so very applicable in some cases, and so inept in others. In the years away from Chapel Hill, my heart has changed, but yet, strolling about the campus on those lonely days immediately after Christmas, renewing my acquaintance with the mute landscape, no misfortune seemed to occur. And still, just a few weeks from now, I will take this all for granted and the magic will have disappeared from the day.

If I were the ghostmaster presiding at this resurrection of Playing It to the Chapel Hilt, I should be hard pressed whether to describe the previous existence of the column as a notable or a notorious one. Undoubtedly, there are present at the disinterring ceremonies more capable judges than I. To all those who once enjoyed or endured reading my saber-tipped self-expression in print, I'd like to take this opportunity to greet you, and to the parvenu who have as yet not suffered Seif (it was quite a fashionable craze back when), I extend a welcome.

I understand that a New Era is under way at Carolina. It is also the Age of the Ball Point Pen, and keeping in line with the trend, you will probably observe that the sharp point of my vindictive pen has become somewhat blunted. I shall have to see what can be done about that, for my psychoanalyst claims that I just love being ferocious, and to act otherwise is downright sublimation.

The curious can find in the the files of the Tar Heel evidence to support that contention. They would have to be myopic to miss it, because my name was printed in 48 pt. bold letters (that means they were pretty big) and unless I discover Hitler's hideout in the center of Hiroshima, where atomic radiations are rapidly bleaching his mustache an unrecognizable blonde, I don't expect to see my name publicized to such an extent ever again. Ah youth, your name is Mitty!

All that is another story—the Battle of Chapel Hill, when campus est omnis divisus in partes tres the civilian, the veteran, the scholastic servicemen of the U. S. S. Neversail who fancied themselves warriors. Now please do not misconstrue that last remark. So far I have not had to sleep with a stiletto under my pillow.

Campus Forum

To Be Impartial Is The Aim

By Pete Gerns

To be impartial has been the aim of this column since its inception last fall. We believe that we have succeeded in this aim and have shown both sides of the question objectively. In order to reach a greater number of students, a poll box will be located in the Y in addition to the one that has been in use at Graham Memorial.

Let us shortly review some of the things you wanted according to fall term's forum columns and see how we have fared.

You wanted varied speakers. Dr. Loeb, executive secretary of ADA, and Dr. Ivanissivich, ambassador from Argentina, have already spoken when this goes to press; the CPU has plans made, but as yet unannounced, to present two other prominent men in the near future.

You favored intercollegiate boxing. Well, boxing was not resumed on a collegiate level; however, a team selected from students will participate in the coming Golden Gloves tournament.

A committee headed by Nancy Tucker of Graham Memorial is checking all possibilities for erecting a skate rink, since 83 per cent of students polled by this column and 79 per cent of those polled by Nancy separately have favored the project.

Another bit of good news is that the board of aldermen of this lovely town have definitely decided against parking meters. To alleviate the parking situation, however, a committee headed by Ernie House has specified an area within whose confines students may not use cars for class-to-class transportation. This regulation will be strictly enforeed.

Nothing has been done about the number of oragnizations on campus, and most likely we will see an increase in this case. The ADA will seek to establish a chapter in the near future, and re-organization of the German honorary, Delta Phi Alpha, a Pan-American club, and "Stassen-for-President" club seem to be in the offing. On the other hand, many organizations have folded due to lack of interest and finances. Mostly finances.

This is your column, contribute to it freely; if you feel that you have an interesting question to suggest, send it to the DTH.

The first question, for Friday, is: "Do you think that Henry Wallace as president of the U. S. would be as much of a national mistake as public opinion now considers it?"

Poll boxes will be emptied two nights preceding the day of publication of this column.

Minnesota Featured In Magazine Article

What college do you want to attend?

Tens of thousands of parents and prospective students are pondering the answer to that question.

To provide this essential information, Cospolitan magazine, in the January issue, begins a series of articles on American colleges, describing in detail every facet of college life.

First college to be described is the University of Minnesota, largest university on a single state campus in the United States.

With 28,000 students and five graduation classes each year, the University of Minnesota offers a cirriculum that should appeal to virtually every prospective student.

A few of the highlights of the University of Minnesota follow:

It operates its own airport for fledgling fliers. There is a university radio station over which professors broadcast their disquisitions, making it theoretically possible for a student to win his degree by merely listening to these broadcasts without ever leaving bed.

The university maintains its own police force which is empowered to pursue and arrest a fugitive any place in Minnesota. The Minnesota Daily, the student newspaper, boasts the largest circulation of any college newspaper—34,350.

"The cirriculum is positively staggering", the article states. "The university's graduate schools offer advanced study in every field except theology. There is a college of agriculture, forestry, and home economics in St. Paul on the 'farm' campus, which is a short trolley hop from the main campus in Minneapolis.

"The admission requirements at Minnesota are flexible; there are even a few students without high school educations. For those with special needs there is University College, a division of the university that manufactures curricula on order."

GM GRIND:

—Hardly a day goes by, it seems without some addition to the GM family. . .Not the latest, but certainly the eutest recent addition is Vikki, Director Bill Shuford's pure-bred Cocker Spaniel puppy. . .

Winner of Saturday evening's Bingo session grand prize of a whole $6.30 was none other than the Rendezvous' own Fred "Sergei" Burgess. . .The clever caricaturist (get him to draw one of yourself) said it's the second time he's won the grand prize!

This evening's recorded concert will feature: Romberg, Desert Song; Gershwin, Somebody Loves Me; Bach, Air in G; Herbert, Indian Summer.

The Bingo-brains of the union hope to have a free game set up for next Saturday, with the prize being offered by a local merchant. . .Hard luck story of Sat. evening came from bigtime Bingo playing Randy MacLeod who played up to seven cards at a time, and won a total of: thirty-four cents — which was split six ways!

Hollywood Film Shop

How Not To Excell In Film Land's Merry-Go-Round

By Patricia Clary

Hollywood — (UP) — Out of years of unhappy experience with movie-struck hopefuls, George Sidney, has compiled his rules for how NOT to get in the movies.

Don't even try, warns Sidney, if:

You look like some popular player.

All your friends say you look just like her.

Your high school coach, fortune-teller and boy friend assure you you could double for her any time.

You are terribly ambitious.

You just love to act.

Everybody has said since you were a baby you were a natural-born actress.

All those factors, say Sidney and his wife, the dramatic coach Lillian Burns, are tragically misleading.

Individuality Wanted

"If there's one thing movies don't want, it's the beginner who looks like an established player," Sidney said. "In Hollywood we stress a new player's individuality, the fact that she reminds you of nobody else on the screen.

"Some actors who have had everything else have been failures because they happened to look like a star. Who wants a duplicate of a top personality?"

The most hopeless of hopefuls think their success is assured by the fact that they are desperately anxious to succeed. The "I-would-work-hard-to-be-the-best" approach doesn't impress hard boiled movie scouts or producers, Sidney said.

"You have to have more than ambition or desire," Sidney said. "For every top star there are thousands of girls who are just as ambitious and work just as hard but don't have the rest of what it takes."

The Brassy Taste

There's Gold in Them Hill

By Bob Sain

The movies and romance fiction have created an image in my mind: the actor (or actress) walking despondently along Broadway or some other street, sitting sadly in a producer's outer office, eating bread and cheese in a fourth-floor room. These struggling, young (and always beautiful) people are forever unemployed.

From reliable reports this image seems now not to be completely imaginary. Good actors are now so numerous (in New York) that playwrites, producers and critics are getting worried. Since production costs have cut drastically the number of plays going before New York audiences, only a few actors actually get on a stage. When a return to normal production does come, many theatre-folk feel, the current overlarge crop of talent will have been allowed to rot in the field. Acting talent will have been broken on the rack of a theatrical depression.

I have seen several excellent actors and actresses perform in the Playmakers theatre. I have seen some untalented ones, too. But there is no great problem here. At Chapel Hill, almost any one can get on the stage—if only in experimentals.

The DA department is turning out competent actors by the dozen, genuinely talented ones (Buddy Westover, Eleanor Ringer, Fred Johnson, Dave Samples, Jim Geiger and others) less often. Tradition will, however, take these talented actors to New York, where they will join the already too large stock.

These persons seriously interested in the theatre might well consider the advice offered by playwrite-critic Irwin Shaw in the January 12 (you should pardon the expression) NEW REPUBLIC.

Shaw offers what seems to me to be an excellent plan to keep actors in the theatre and, at the same time, increase the demand for good drama.

Shaw suggests that good actors form companies and establish themselves in sections of the country remote from New York. Under such circumstances actors could produce their own shows, gain experience on the stage, create audiences in places where the theatre was only something the people had heard about.

He adds that "the disappointments would be many, but there would be the sustaining satisfaction of work."

It sounds sensible.

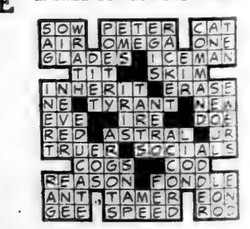
Write Away

Now We're Out In The Open

Letters submitted to the Write Away column must be double-spaced, typewritten, and shall not exceed 300 words. All contributions must contain the signature, telephone number, and address of the author (names will be withheld upon request). Letters which contain obscene or libelous statements or letters which do not comply with these stipulations will not be published.

Dear Sirs:

I want to congratulate you. At last you have found a cause to espouse—captialism. True, it is a safe one but nonetheless I appreciate your speaking out clearly at last. Anything is better than your misty editorials which are firmly planted on the air.



As for captialism, I have no argument with you on that score. There are still millionaires who believe in the System: the eternal one. What I object to is the free advertisement you gave Firestone, the robber-baron, who ought to pay for his ads same as I do. Might I remind you that Firestone, the czar of Liberia, is a staunch member of the National Association of Manufactuers, the very same outfit which invented the slogan to cure-all-ills, "American Way of Life." Might I also call to your attention the fact that the NAM spent $5,000,000 last year to convince us that the "AWL" is synonymous with our democracy? You probably know as well as I—very likely you possess a copy of Monograph 26, TNEC Report—that the NAM represents the most powerful financial and economic interest in the US—the powers that openly boasted $19,000,000,000. As a matter of fact, Firestone's statement is part of the 1948 NAM plan to "rationalize" their unholy, ill-gotten profits.

Now that you too have come out into the open, how about being democratic: speak for the they destroyed the OPA, whereby they have reaped the greatest profit-haul in our history, majority of students in Chapel Hill, the vets and their families who are struggling to get along. Say something about the miserable wages paid in and around the campus. Yes, take a stand—with the people. Use your own ideas. Leave the propaganda of the NAM to the commercial press where it speaks all the time.

The Sporting Picture

By Billy Carmichael III

Getting in the Swim

The turbulent turquiose waters of Bowman Gray swimming pool are heaving heavily against the scum gutters of that edifice of late, which is a heafty way of saying that the 1948 Tar Heel swimming crew is making last hasty preparations for the opening of splash season later this week. And Coach Dick Jamerson has his charges going off the deep end this year in the strictest sense of the word, with only the deep half of the pool being used since the recent partitioning of Bowman Gray divided the water surface at its midpoint.

To clarify this point is the explanation that the pool in its entirity measures 50 yards in length while the bulkhead version is 25 yards from wood to tile. The longer version is known in swimming circles as a long course and the other as a short course. Most intercollegiate meets are run off on short courses, and the most popular and frequently broken records are short courses ones. Times for any distance are faster on the short courses because of the added number of turns which give the swimmer an extra push or two over the shortest of distances. There are times on the long courses when one is almost out of sight if land.

The golden dividend of the wall though, is the ability to turn half of the pool back to the students for use in the afternoon even while the varsity swimmers are going through their grind. Which is another good example of the Athletic department's attempt to present the student body at large with a complete athletic program.

Butting Heads with Bulkheads

The effect the revised waterway will have on the swimmers is said to be negligible except that two or three of the mermen claim splintered heads and hands with the excuse being, "I forgot the darn thing was even there." With these possible exceptions the Tar Heels have taken to their new run like ducks to water.

One possible drawback to the whole construction might come from the spectators' point of view, since the use of only half the pool cuts the seating capacity in half. But Jamerson has forseen this and provisions will be made to have seats on both sides of the pool. The only other complaint that has been raised is the distortion to the beauty of the pool, but one hopes that this sacrifice will pay off in student enjoyment and in the performance column for the Tar Heel swimmers this winter.

The latter hope can be found to have good foundation since Jamerson has a better than average array of talent to send into the chloriness depths. Hhe Army returned Dick Twining, who can do everything most fish can do and carry on an interesting conversation to boot, in about the same shape they took him, and Dame Rumor hath it that the versitile speedster is rounding back into shape for the long winter crawl.

Shh! Olympic Talk

All of which seems to bring talk of Olympics this summer and whether or not Twining can make the grade. Having been out of competition for the past several years makes the task all the harder, but there are always possibilities. Everyone at the pool from Jamerson down to the lowest tank tipster is noncommital about the whole issue which allows for the use of clique No. 37—No news is good news.

While mentioning the Olympics, it might be well to mention Norman Sper, who according tothe latest talk likes the London weather around July and August. Sper heads the Tar Heel aquabatic staff and seems alone on his talented perch since Buddy Crone has taken his last dive for dear old Carolina.

The lad who hails from the western land of sunshine (?)—California—is at heart and perfection a platform diver, but since be seen in this occupation this winter. The tower operation is his speciality, though, and it will most probably be his ticket to the One World games.

The rest of the swimming outlook as far as winter competition for the Tar Heels is concerned looks as bright as the proverbial penny even with the local entry facing the toughest schedule in many lunar phases. Thus with the "newlook" pool and a similiarly equipped team, Jamerson doesn't really need the crying towel as much as he chooses to use it.

For a group of athletes who are all wet by trade, the Tar Heel swimmers show promise of a quite successful season.

Carolina Takes Two From Wake Forest, 56-35, 50-33

Miller, Nearman High for Phants

By Billy Carmichael III

Carolina's hot popping Tar Heels took a now shaky, now not leap over their twelfth hurdle of the season last night at the expense of Wake Forest college to be assured of sashaying undefeated into Madison Square Garden Thursday for their first big test against NYU. At the conclusion of hostilities the damage was estimated at 56-35.

Bill "Wahoo" Miller lead the local pack with six big field goals, the majority of which were scored outside, to tie Nemo Nearman for high honors at the 13 point level. The Deacons as was reported, tossed up a fast sliding zone defense that at times had the Tar Heels' attack stiffled ,but the ability to hit from the outer egions when the chips went down brought eventual triumph to the Tom Scot entry.

Paxton Performs

Bob Paxton performed in his usual style of a man being plugged for All-American honors, but he didn't outshine Miller, who turned in his best night as a Tar Heel. No less recognition goes to Nearman, who tossed in four needy field goals besides playing shadow to Doran Walters for the better part of the evening. Kohler was his steady self and the rest of the Tar Heels performed at the par level.

The visitors jumped to a 1-0 lead after five seconds had passed, but Nearman hooked one at the one minute mark and the Tar Heels were never again headed. With all hands tossing in the counters, they moved to a 9-3 lead after five minutes, a 19-7 margin at the halfway point, and with diabolical movement worked to a 32-21 lead at halftime.

The Tar Heels started the second half in a similiar fashion and for a while it looked as if the game might turn into the proverbial track meet. The Wake Forest boys weren't getting many good shoots away because of the smouthering defensive play of the Carolinians, and for the most part were heaving the ball from lack of something else to do with it.

Tar Heels Bog

Suddenly, though, the Tar Heels' atack bogged to the hub caps and the Deacons finding the range, bombarded their way to within seven points of the locals at the ten minute mark. The score stood at 38-31.

The closeness of the count must have scared the Tar Heels with point they came back to stave off visions of an upset, for at this the push on a couple of free tosses by Paxton and Nearman and a

Dolphins Only Fair in Trials

Florida's mermen will probably leave the sunshine at home and make things pretty gloomy for Carolina's Dolphins in the local natators' opener on Thursday afternoon if Coach Dick Jamerson's aquacious competitors don't show a little more speed on the day after tomorrow than they did on Sunday afternoon in a pre-meet time trial.

Coach Dick Jamerson disclosed that the times turned in during the Sabbath workout were only fair and thus he wasn't too optomistic over his charges chances against the touring Gators. The orange-state squad has six lettermen from last year's team and will probably be plenty tough.

The tentative starting for the Delphin debut, which starts at 4:15, won't be announced until Thursday morning but Coach Jamerson did indicate the 18 top candidates for the opening positions. In addition, to these 18, Coach Jamerson plans to continue his policy of past years of using as many men as possible in each meet.

Six men were named as potential openers in the three-event medley relay; namely, Jim Thomas or Norm Sper in the backstroke, Bob Ousley or Dan Breeden in the breaststroke, and Dick Twining or Steve Osborne in the free style. Either Floyd Drew, Jesse Greenbaum, Twining, Allison Pell, or Bill Pritchard will take care of the 50 and 100-yard sprints.

Ike Morrow, Bob Hutton, Ike Norwood, and Norm Basesu will handle the 220 and 440 yard distance chores. Sper, Thomas, John Bippart, are leading back stroke candidates while Ousley, Jerry Cook, and Breeden head the potential breaststrokers. Sper, Mac Erle and John Whichard will take care of the diving.

Fall Quarter Mural Prizes Are Awarded

Intramural awards for the Fall quarter were presented last night to team and individual champions between halves of the Carolina-Wake Forest game by Director of Physical Education O. K. Cornwell.

Individual medals were awarded to the team members of all of the dormitory and fraternity champions. Special trophies were given to the winning teams in the fraternity division. Wrestling champs received medals and tennis title-holders got cups.

The Phi Gams set the pace in the fraternity division by copping two titles. The Chi Phi volleyball trophy and the Zeta Psi wrestling award will remain in the Phi Gam house until next fall. The Phi Gam's award for tag football supremacy went to Chi Psi. The Phi Delts won their own trophy by taking the table tennis crown in their division.

Double Win

Med School teams also scored a double victory. The future doctors took the Dormitory volleyball and wrestling championships. The Grads won the tag football title in their classification and the Everett dorm paddle-wielders took the dormitory table tennis crown.

Milt Cash and Charles Lambeth won the novice doubles tournament and Roy Jones won the novice singles crown. Varsity netter Ray Morris took the open singles championship and teammates Clark Taylor and Charlie Rice took the doubles title.

Mat Champs

In frratenity wrestling, Ted Barnes and Neil Beard, SAE; Gurney Boren and Marvin Wilson, Zeta Psi; Leon Todd, Phi Gam; Cliff Frazier, Beta; Phil Kemp, DKE; and Charley Fischer, Sigma Chi, won in their weight divisions.

Boo Walker and Bob Kemp, Med School; Oscar Swigart and Charles Jetty, Emerson; Cait Simpson, Town; and Ted Allen, Lewis won titles in the dormitory division.

Dormitory basketball competition opened today as Everett 1 doubled up the score on Alexander 1, defeating them 39-18. Jack Smith, Everett guard, led the scoring with 19 points while Lu Potter paced the losers with seven.

Phi Kap 3 edged out DKE 2 by the extremely low score of 16-10. Chi Psi 2 routed Sig Ep 2 38-11. In the other games played yesterday afternoon Chi Phi 3 defeated ZBT 31-18, Sigma Chi outscored AEPi 37-19, and Beta 1 overpowered Phi Gam 1 49-14.

Today's Murals

INTRAMURAL MEETING

There will be a meeting at 7:30 tonight in Woollen 303 at which representatives of all team entered in the intramural basketball tournament are expected to be present. The meeting will decide if rifle shooting, five-man soccer, and debating should be included in the intramural program and if team points should be awarded in these activities.

Three Trackmen Place in Meet

Three members of the Carolina track team competed in the Brooklyn Knights of Columbus meet last Saturday night and turned in creditable performances.

Jack Moody, competing in the high jump, showed his ability by tying for second place with Josh Williamson at 6 ft., 2 inches. The jump was won by Irv Mondschein, NYU, with a 6 feet, 6 inches leap. Moody is the Southern conference champion and record holder.

The Carolina distance duo of Jack Milne and Jimmy Miller took fourth and fifth respectively in the Conklin two-mile run. The winner was Jim Rafferty, for the second straight year, who copped the race in 9:22. Milne was timed in 9:24, with Miller a couple of steps behind.

This week will be an idle one for the tracksters as far as competition goes, and they will concentrate on familiarizing themselves with the boards. The Tin Can is open and all runners will begin preparations for the Indoor games.

Coach Dale Ranson said that a good-size delegation would represent the University in the Philadelphia Inquirer Meet in that city on January 23.

Tsantes Sinks 15 To Spark Juniors

By Bill Kellam

Carolina jayvee cagers gave Wake Forest's Baby Deacs a little oldfashioned religion last night in Woollen gym as they soundly trounced the scrappy but outclassed visitors, 50-33.

John "Little Hook" Tsantes paced the Tar Heel Juniors to their seventh victory in eight starts by turning in a top-notch performance under both boards in addition to tossing in 15 points.

Jim Hamilton's charges jumped to a 1-0 lead right after the gun when Charlie Thorne, whose ball handling and driving layups were other bright spots in the local's victory, made good a charity toss. The Blue and White continued hitting from the foul line to run up a 5-2 lead before the ever-hustling Tsantes drew first blood from the floor with a pretty hook. From here on it was just a question of how much the Tar Heels would score as they rolled to a 29-21 lead at the intermission. Tsantes and Peters paced the Carolina offense during the first half.

The Juniors' defense looked almost as tight as their big brothers' after the half for they limited the raggedly performing Deacs to only twelve points. This sudden interest in the defensive aspect of the game by the Carolina cagers caused their offensive to suffer accordingly and consequently they hit the loop only sporadically during the final twenty minutes.

In a halftime feature the Town Terrors nosed out the Hill Hotshots 3-1, in a rough and tumble contest between teams of youngsters. Tommy Lloyd's pair of foul shots paced the victors while Sonny Fitch's hook shots were the losers' big threat.

Coed Basketball Tournament Starts Tonight With Four Games on Slate

Four games tonight will hearld the start of the coed intramural basketball tournament, in which 14 teams will compete for the title gained last year by Pi Phi.

Tonight's slate pits CICA against Carr at 7 o'clock, Tri Delt versus Kenan at 7:15, Smith versus Alderman at 8 o'clock, and ADPi against Chi Omega in the evening's finale at 8:15.

In addition to the above eight outfits, teams competing are Archer, McIver, Spencer, Town, Pi Phi, and Alpha Gam. All 14 clubs are in one league, and each team will play four games in modified round-robin style.

Basketball manager K. D. Durham and faculty adviser Frances Burns have requested that all teams be at the gym on time so that games can progress according to schedule. The second halves of games set for on the hour will start half-past-the-hour, while the quarter past contests will be concluded at 7:45 and 8:45, respectively. Line-ups should be turned in 10 minutes before game time.

Teams are reminded that they are responsible for providing their own timer and scorer. Any outfit that forfeits in the first round of play shall be eliminated from the tournament.

Play in the tourney is scheduled until February 10. Finals between the teams tied for the lead at that time will be played thereafter.

Riggs and Kramer Overflow With Confidence In Ability to Defeat Each Other in Net Series

By Bob Goldwater

There's nothing like having confidence in yourself. And the top two tennis champions who will match strokes in the feature engagement of the professional net program in Woollen gym next Tuesday have lots of it. Confidence, that is.

We refer, of course, to Bobby Riggs and Jack Kramer—the two "top" champions in a troupe of four titleholders. Due to the combination of outstanding net stars—all champions in their own right—assembled by Promoter Jack Harris on his current tour, it's important to distinguish between the two top kings and the pair of lesser champs.

Professor Riggs

But getting back to Riggs and Kramer and how they have confidence in their own ability. For over two years, the diminuitive Bobby, current king of the professionals ,former amateur champion, and the world's leading exponent of the "I'll hit it back until you miss" school, has put forth the word on how he'd welcome the chance to teach Kramer the finer points of the game.

"Kramer's a nice guy," Riggs wrote in a recent issue of Sport Magazine, "but that has nothing to do with being a great player. I can beat Jack every day in the week and twice on Sunday, especially if I'm paid for it."

Talking Racquet

All of which prompts Kramer, the 1947 American and Wimbledon titleholder, to reply with a confident, "Riggs always did like to shoot off his mouth in print. I have nothing but respect for his game, but this racquet will do my talking."

So far in the two-week-old series, Kramer's booming bat has done most of the talking. Be-

Uses Two Hands

As for the other two champs on the show, Pancho Segura, former South American kingpin, hind at one time by 3-1, big Jake now holds a 6-4 advantage over his rival. They played in Boston last night, then proceed s a top drawing card all by himself. His two-handed forehand makes the colorful Pancho

Galloway Assumes Duties Here As Vocational Guide

Joe M. Galloway, formerly of the University of Tennessee's Bureau of Personnel, has just assumed his duties as director of placement at the University of North Carolina.

Under Mr. Galloway's supervision, the vocational guidance and placement activities for men and women students will be combined.

Miss Kathryn Cook, who has served as vocational adviser for women, will become associate director of placement, working with both men and women students.

Fred H. Weaver, Dean of Men, who made the announcement, said that under the setup steps will be taken "to improve student personnel records and coordinate the placement work now being performed in the various schools and departments with that of the central office. Also, with the full-time services of Mr. Galloway and Miss Cook, it is envisioned that liaison with business and other fields of vocational opportunity will be improved and placement work extended considerably."

A native of Knoxville, Mr. Galloway was a University of Tennessee graduate of 1940, and soon after entered the armed service and went overseas with the famous Ninth Division which under General Eisenhower made the African invasion. He also served with the Allied Forces Headquarters and the Sixth Army group under Gen. Devers as supply officer in southern France and Germany. He reached the rank of Major before being discharged in 1945.

Since then he has been in placement work at the University of Tennessee.

Mr. Galloway is married to the former Miss Margaret Moore of Marion, N. C., and they have a new baby daughter, Jo Angelyn.

hook by Miller.

Wake Forest still had some more big ideas following this rally and sets by Mueller and Patton again put the Tar Heels within dangerous reach, 42-35, with a little over five minutes to go in the game.

Roof Falls

Then the roof fell in on the Deacons as the Tar Heel outside game which had been on and off all the evening, went on in a big way and set shots by Miller, Kohler, Cole and a pair of fouls thrown in for good measure Kelvinated the game for the Scottmen. John Dillon came to the floor and delivered the clincher with a left-handed hook and passed to Taylor Thorne for another just for kicks.

The Tar Heels averaged .344 from the floor, canning 21 for 61 shots. The Deacons hit 15 for 59 for a .254 percentage.

Baptists Announce Vacancies In Full-Time Nursery School

By Jane Mears

The Baptist nursery school, Chapel Hill's only full day nursery school, now has a few vacancies. Children of veteran students whose wives are employed are given preference in filling these vacancies.

The Nursery school employs trained personnel, headed by Miss Lucy Horne. Other members of the staff include Mrs. Helen Morrison Ettenger, in charge of the younger children. Mrs Rachel Fleming Edwards is director of activities for older children. Mrs. Frances Koral is assistant teacher and Mrs Ann Martin is health supervisor.

Activities of the Nursery school, which is open from 8 until 5 Monday through Friday, include art, coloring, finger painting, clay modeling, songs, games, and listening to a special set of children's records.

The children are checked by Mrs. Martin, a graduate nurse, as they enter school each morning. A hot lunch is served at 12 o'clock. After rest hour, which is from 1 until 3 o'clock, the children enjoy supervised play until their parents arrive to take them home.

The Baptist nursery school is open to children of all denominations.

Ex-Army Pilots Keep Commission

Ten former Army pilots, now attending the University, flew down to Marietta Air Base, Ga., last week-end, to participate in the aerial training required to keep their reserve commissions in good standing with the Air Force. Reservists taking part in this two-day flight and ground training session were Robert L. Milks, Henry F. Welfare, Randolph J. Stuart, Pete M. Ebersole, Owen H. Hoke, Karl Kurbjun, Jr., Raymond E. Dunn, Vernon L. Sawyer, Roger S. Howell, Jr., and George G. Roberts.

Latest schedule set up by the University Air Reserve Officers Training Corps., which is helping the reserve pilots to get their program functioning, calls for a C-47 to take any qualified air force reserve pilots to the training base from Pope Field every other week-end. All personnel interested may contact Captain Stuart in the AROTC office, located upstairs in the Navy annex.

UVA Supports Bill Giving $35 Increase In GI Subsistence

By Herb Nachmann

In their first business session of the winter quarter, the University Veterans association voted almost unanimously last night to support the Rogers bill asking Congress for a $35 per month increase in student veterans subsistence.

Besides endorsing the bill which will be introduced in Congress for the second time next month the local UVA decided to begin an immediate lobby aimed toward informing North Carolina senators and representatives of their endorsement of the bill.

Contact Chairman

UVA President Johnny Clampitt will prepare letters immediately to the 13 representatives and two senators. The regional chairman of the National Conference of Veteran Trainees at the University of Georgia will also be contacted in order to determine lobbying policy and methods of regional cooperation.

South Trimble, the North Carolina UVA representative to the conference held recently in Washington, D. C., presented pertinent facts to the group. Following this a general discussion was held by the members to determine which legislation they will back.

Political Football

In commenting on the procedure and policy of the conference, Trimble said in his official report to the group, "The national conference is definitely a lobby organization. This subsistence question is a political football and was put off during the last session of Congress because of the coming elections."

Childress Elected SP Chairman; Gaskin Is Treas.

New Chairman Is Critic of Di Senate, Former Member of Student Legislature

By Chuck Hauser

"Local boy makes good" should be the way to say it, as Gran Childress, Chapel Hill student, takes over the reins of the Student party as its newly-elected chairman following the resignation of Charles. O. Long.

John Gaskin of Albermarle was elected treasurer of the party, the post vacated by Childress.

The new chairman, a junior majoring in political science, is a former member of the Student Legislature and the present critic of the Di Senate.

Good Student Government

"It is my purpose," stated Childress yesterday, "that every interested member of the Student party shall participate in its policies and program. I believe firmly that each member should know what our party stands for and what we believe good student government means."

Nominations for the post of president of the student body were made Monday evening at what has been called by party spokesmen a "spirited" meeting. These nominations have been referred to the steering committee for further consideration.

Meeting Tonight

The party will meet again this evening at 7 o'clock in 101 Alumni building. One item of business will be the election of a new steering committee and the remaining party officers. Chairman Childress urged all party members and other interested students to attend.

Loss of Miller Stunning Blow

By Morty Schaap

Carolina's cage fortunes were dealt a severe blow last night when first-team forward Bill Miller was ruled ineligible for further competition by the Faculty committee on Eligibility of the University.

The committee said that is discovered that Miller had stacked up quite a bit of time with Eastern Kentucky Teacher's college before he was called in service in March 1946. The committee has ruled that since he was not in service before August 14, 1945, he does not meet conference regulations.

It seems that Miller's eligibility slip had been cleared through the department of Intercollegiate athletics earlier in the season. But only now was it brought to light that under Artcile VII of the By-laws and Rules of Eligibility Applicable to All Sports, that any man who entered the armed services after August 14, 1945, shall come under the rule of a transfer student and thus be ineligible for any sport he had competed in at another institute of higher learning.

Miller, a 6 foot, 3 inch sophomore from Williamsburg, Ky., came to the University from Fort Benning, Ga., where he had been a member of the post team. The lanky Kentuckian has been a mainstay for the Phantoms under the boards all year. Yesterday's sour note came just 24 hours after he had hit his best offensive night of the season when he bagged 13 points in the game against Wake Forest. Miller is also a standout baseball and track man.

Coach Tom Scott had little to say about the case as he prepared to lead his team to New York for their Thursday night's game with undefeated NYU in Madison Square Garden. Miller will make the trip with the team. Scott's final words before he left were, that he was not a bit

Iva Kitchell, Piano Quartet Will Not Appear Here, States Harland

Dance satirist Iva Kitchell and the Philharmonic Piano quartet will not play the University of North Carolina this year, according to Dr. J. P. Harland of the almost-still-in-existence Student Entertainment committee.

Telephone connections between Chapel Hill and New York severed the Iva Kitchell contract, although according to Harland, the NCAC agents were "reluctant" about it.

Agent Here

A representative of Columbia Concerts, agents of the Piano quartet, was in Chapel Hill yesterday to arrange the dissolution of their contract with Dr. Harland.

According to student body President Tom Eller, the Entertainment committee has not been dissolved, and in all probability will not be disposed of in the near future. Eller has appointed a new member to the committee, B. J. Strong, to replace Jack McBride, former student chairman who did not return to schol this quarter.

Back in the Black

The new committee will have a slightly different function than before, says Eller. Their primary purpose now will be to arrange with possibly the Grail or Graham Memorial to sponsor Franz Polgar, magician-hypnotist who was included on the season program of the entertainment series, and to work toward putting the finances of the committee into the black again following their loss on the Madame Butterfly opera which they presented here during the fall quarter.

Arrangements are being made now to refund a portion of the Entertainment committee season ticket subscriptions.

Eller has stated that by tomorrow he will have a proposal ready to submit to the Student Legislature which will put the Student Entertainment committee back on an involuntary basis, instead of voluntary as it has been in the past two years.

"The committee is not to blame for the present state of affairs," stated Eller.

Attempted Break From State Pen Results in Death

Raleigh, Jan. 13 —(UP)— One of two prisoners who tried to escape from Central Prison at here today has been placed in solitary confinement after his companion in the attempted dash for freedom died of a broken neck when he slipped from the rain-soaked prison wall.

The prisoner who died was Elmer C. Turner, a 38-year-old life termer from Kannapolis.

Hosea Parker, a 32-year-old Negro from Magnolia, successfully climbed the wall and squeezed under high voltage wires at the top. When he reached the other side he encountered a prison guard and was returned to solitary confinement.

Parker escaped by the same method in 1946 but was back in prison a few days later.

Turner was serving a life term for kidnapping plus terms for murder and highway robbery.

String Quartet, Appearing Sunday Night, Will Play Selections from Mozart, Berg

The Pro Arte Quartet of the University of Wisconsin which will appear in the Hill hall auditorium January 18 is one of the first internationally recognized string quartets to maintain residence at an American university. Nation wide appearances of the Quartet include concerts for leading universities, colleges, chamber music societies, the International Society for Contemporary Music, and New Friends of Music.

In Wisconsin the Quartet functions as a cultural institution of the state and each year two concert tours are arranged which bring the finest of string quartet music to small rural communities, educational institutions, and metropolitan areas throughout Wisconsin. On the Wisconsin campus the Quartet plays a reguar series of concerts and presents a course for University credit—"String Quartets of Haydn, Morzart and Beethoven."

Tickets Available

The program here Sunday night will include a selection by Mozart, one by Alban Berg and one by Schubert. Guest tickets for the concert are still available in the foyer of Hill hall.

The reputation of the Quartet rests largely on the training and experience of the four artists. First violinist Rudolph Kolisch has studied under Sevcik, Schoenberg and Schrecker, and Guido Adler. He founded and toured with the Kolisch Quartet until joining the Pro Arte Quartet. Albert Rahier, second violinist, was a pupil at the Royal Conservatory of Music in Liege and under Eugene Ysaye. He was concert-master of the Opera of Brussels, professor of violin at the Royal Conservatory of Ghent for twelve years, and toured with the Belgian Piano String Quartet.

Trained Peabody

Violist Bernard Milofsky received training at Peabody Conservatory, Curtis Institute and George Washington University. He has held the position of violist with the Pro Musica, the Kolisch, and the Gordon String Quartets, and in 1947 made his New York Town Hall debut.

Studied at Vienna

Ernest Friedlander, cellist, after study at the Vienna Conservatory of Music and the Hochschule fur Musik, toured Europe as a cello soloist, first cellist of the Vienna Concert Orchestra and a member of the Popa-Grama String Quartet. In the United States he has served as principal cellist with the Indianapolis Symphony and the Kansas City Philharmonic Orchestra, toured as soloist and appeared in recital at Town Hall, New York, in 1943.

Condition Same

Raleigh, Jan. 13—(UP)—Doctors of Editor Josephus Daniels of the Raleigh News and Observer say there has been no change in is condition this evening.

The World War I Secretary of the Navy is still hanging on in his fight against pneumonia, but Dr. Hubert Haywood says there is no hope. "Only a very strong heart and great vitality are keeping him alive," according to Haywood.

The elder Daniels attended the University of North Carolina in 1884 and 1885 and was awarded an honary law degree there in 1914.

Police Search for Stolen Automobile While Student Rides Cabs to Classes

Chapel Hill and Durham police were still keeping a sharp eye out last night in a stolen-car search which has thus far prover fruitless.

In the meantime student Edwin Tenney, Jr., and his wife are walking and riding taxicabs back and forth between their home in Carrboro and the campus.

The car, a black tudor 1940 De-Soto sedan, was stolen from the parking lot behind the YMCA around 3:30 Monday afternoon after Tenney had left the keys in the ignition switch when he parked it there.

While law enforcement officials generally frown on the practice of leaving keys in a car, and persons are fined in some localities for doing so, Tenney declared that he "thought we had an honor system here." He does not believe a student stole it, however.

The car carries 1948 North Carolina liscence plate no. 259-163, and no. 334 University student sticker on the windshield. Chapel Hill police sent out a radio alarm on the theft Monday evening, but no word has been received on the vehicle yet.

"As long as I have lived in Chapel Hill," declared Tenney, I have never known of anyone having a car stolen." The local police department did not corroborate this statement, however, but pointed out that an automobile stolen almost two months ago from Chapel Hill has not been heard of since.

House to Speak to Di Senate At Installation of Officers

Robert B. House, University Chancellor, will speak tonight at 9 o'clock when the Dialectic Senate installs its new officers for the present quarter in a meeting in the Di hall on the third floor of New West building.

A former member of the Senate himself, Chancellor House will present a resume of leaders are given on the Senate floor for expressing themselves clearly, accurately, and precisely and to the many outstanding personalities this forensic organization has furnished the campus, state, and country.

Prominent Members

The second oldest literary society in the country, the Di has a list of such prominent former Senators as James K. Polk, Frank P. Graham, Thomas Wolfe, and Zebulon Baird Vance.

Prior to House's speech, Charlie Long will deliver a brief inaugural address after taking the oath of office as president of the Di for his second term. Long will discuss the present status of the Senate and its extensive plans for the forthcoming quarter.

Following the meeting, there will be an informal reception in the Di hall in order that the Senators present might meet Chancellor House.

Pro's Embarrassed

The case of the recalcitrant Playmakers' safe had a sequel today. An amateur embarrassed the pro's by getting it open.

The safe, one stored here by the Navy, was transferred to Playmakers headquarters in Swain hall Monday. But there its unknown combination baffled all attempts to open it.

Lock experts from the Buildings department were called in and spent fruitless hours trying to discover the combination. Finally an S-O-S to any gentleman in the educated-fingers profession was printed in the DTH.

Yesterday, however, two perserving lock-pickers from the Buildings department tried again. Armed with an electric drill they worked all morning on the obstinate object. At dinner time they gave up in disgust.

Then yesterday afternoon James Geiger, a student actor from Miami, Florida, gave it a try. For two hours he tusseled with the tumblers, finally learned the combination—and presto, the job was done.

But there was a secret behind the amateur's success. Geiger's father is a locksmith, and Jim grew up cracking safes.

PUBLIC LAW 16

Approximately 200 Public Law 16 veterans have failed to leave their registration schedules with their training officers at 111 Peabody.

Training officer Elliott G. Bourne announced that it is absolutely necessary that these schedules be handed in this week.

Dr. Glen Haydon Attends Meeting

Dr. Glen Haydon, head of the music department, represented the University at the 23rd annual meeting of the National Association of Schools of Music held recently at the Hotel Statler, Boston, Massachusetts. Also attending from Chapel Hill were Jan P. Schunbar and William S. Newman.

Recognized as the only accrediting agency for schools of music in the United States, the association numbers among its members more than 170 music schools throughout the nation.

Highlight of the convention was an address by Dr. Howard Hanson, director of the Eastman School of Music, in which he made a plea for a return to the creative approach to the arts, urging colleges and universities to become a sanctuary of the arts and the creative spirit of man.

The association adopted a resolution against the proposed ban on recordings, stating that such a ban would deprive schools of music of one of their most essential tools in the teaching of music, and that the basic economic problem involved cannot be solved merely by discontinuing the making of recordings.

Trials and Tribulations of Magazine Editor Revealed as 'No Bed of Roses' by Jacobson

By John Stump

Editor Fred Jacobson of the Carolina magazine does not have gray hair.

That statement made about the ordinary student here would be scarcely newsworthy, but when it is true of the editor of one of the publications, and especially of a magazine man, it is headline stuff.

The combined bogies of finance, technical difficulties, troubles with advertisers, handling of temperamental staffers, and the never-ending fight to come through the maze once a month with a creditable magazine have been the cause of more than one slightly beat Man-of-Distinction looks on the part of Carolina's harrassed mag editors.

"For example," Jacobson volunteered when we queried him regarding the rumored difficulties connected with his job, "many students wonder why the mag does not include color work on its inside pages. The cost to us, and indirectly to the student body, of such a feature would be upwards of 1,000 per page. Of course, we would like to carry such a feature, but it is a financial impossibility."

He went on to outline some of his more painful headaches incurred as a result of trying to run a $10,000 enterprise on a $7,000 appropriation. "We make up the difference in advertising." he explained, but he left the impression that while not a shoestring venture, publication of the mag on such a limited budget must have its trying moments.

However, according to Jacobson, technical difficulties—an all-inclusive phrase that can refer to anything from publication delays due to lackadaisical printers to color covers in which the red is printed on the characters nose rather than on her face—run financial worries a close second.

"The average student", he related, "has no idea of the work that goes into the make-up of an ordinary 3-color cover."

He went on to explain that for these covers a separate plate must be made for each color. This, in turn, entails making up 3 separate designs with each color appearing alone on one of them.

An interesting fact revealed during our discussion of the process was that in order to make one detail of a cover stand out, the wrong color is used. Thus, the cover of a recent mag issue had a student's face printed as blue rather than white. We had noticed the student, but until pointed out, the unusual color had escaped our scrutiny.

Regarding advertising, Jacobson used the Pepsi Cola advertisement as an example. "Several persons have commented to me on that one", he told us, "and each one has criticised it as appealing to only the morons—a class of people supposedly absent from college campuses. But the point is that they have noticed it. Some advertising is designed to irritate" We commented that that being the case the Pepsi Cola ad must be very successful.

"Another type of advertising is Kapp's. It is intended to appeal to the reader," he commented, "and incidentally their advertising has been a mutually satisfactory arrangement."

On this first happy note, Jacobson relaxed a little and smiled. However, as we were leaving, we noticed him reaching for a package of Stanback as another problem came to his attention.

And he whispered the understatement of the week—"It's no bed of roses", breathed Fred Jacobson, editor of the Carolina mag.

Handbook Editor Will Be Selected

Barbara Cashion, Speaker of the Coed Senate, announced at a recent Senate meeting that the editor of the Women's Handbook will be selected this quarter.

All coeds who are interested in the position should submit a letter of application, containing information of previous publication experience, especially editorial, to Barbara Cashion in 303 Alderman. The editorship will be awarded by a vote of the Senate.

The handbook, which is the only publication containing coed social rules and regulations, is sent to new coeds during the summer before they enter Carolina. In addition to presenting rules to the new students, the handbook presents a historical sketch of the University.

University Graduate Rex Coston Dances, Sings in Broadway Musical

Although "The Cradle Will Rock", a short-lived musical satire glorifying labor unions and hissing capitalists, lasted less than one month, University graduate Rex Coston has at last realized a Broadway ambition. The Winston-Salem native acted and sang the role of a reporter in Marc Blitzstein's musical which closed at the Mansfield theatre Sunday.

Coston graduated from the University in 1946 with a bachelor's degree in music. His part is the first of what Coston hopes is the beginning of his Broadway career. Singer Alfred Drake was the star of the production which opened on December 26.

While a student here Coston was a member of Sound and Fury, musical comedy group, the Glee Club and the University Band. He participated in several Playmaker dramatic and musical productions and served as campus radio engineer and announcer. A brother of Pi Kappa Alpha, Coston is also a member of Phi Mu Alpha, professional music fraternity.

Before entering the University he worked as staff vocalist for WAIR and WSJS in Winston-Salem, and as studio engineer at WPTF, Raleigh. Coston is the son of Mr. and Mrs. F. E. Coston, of Winston-Salem.

Dilemma in Student Entertainment

Student leaders and members of the faculty interested in the Student Entertainment series were at a loss as to what to do at their meeting Monday afternoon. The whole story of the dilemma and their concern is evident in the meticulously-kept figures of Dr. J. P. Harland, who is greatly interested in the SEC and has been an important member of the committee for several years.

His figures show that the SEC now owes the Carolina Playmakers $1,500 on an "overnight-loan." The $1,500 had to be borrowed to pay the "Madame Butterfly" troupe which performed here last November. There was not even enough student interest in the Puccini opera to cover the costs of the performance—and what is more disturbing to those who attended Monday's meeting is that "none of the remaining attractions (Iva Kitchell, dance satirist, the Philharmonic Piano Quartet and Franz Polgar, magician and hypnotist), except Polgar would even make expenses, needless to say, make up the deficit."

So actually after the committee considered all phases of the question there remained little choice. They felt that they could either go through with the series and lose more money, or try to cancel the remaining attractions with the hope that the booking agencies would agree since the SEC has been in operation over 15 years. But another serious problem confronts the group. The Carolina Playmakers have to be repaid the $1,500 which they loaned just as a convenience to the SEC. This is $1,500 of which Business Manager John Parker says the Playmakers are in dire need to carry out the planned program of the year. In his own words ". . . our more expensive programs for the year are yet to come." This problem remains to be solved by a committee which will be appointed by Tom Eller, president of the student body.

There is no need for holders of season tickets to get frantic over the money they have invested. It will be refunded in full; we can assure them of that. The SEC is a reliable group. Back during the depression when there was no money for a curtain for Memorial hall, the SEC reached into their reserve fund and provided a curtain. The new president-appointed committee will begin work on methods of fund-raising soon. Graham Memorial Director Bill Shuford has offered his services to help make up the deficit—and it is quite possible that Polgar will appear on campus, sponsored jointly by Graham Memorial and the SEC. Money from such a program would reduce the debt.

Probably one of the more important issues of the spring elections will be whether or not there should be a compulsory SEC operating under the supervision of the Graham Memorial student Union. We're in favor of it if investigation proves that it will provide good and less expensive student entertainment—entertainment that will appeal to the campus in general.

Please, How Do You Sex Baby Chicks?

Shortly before the Christmas holidays The Gamecock received a letter from Alfonso Aguero Capo, of Aguas Buenas, Puerto Rico, enclosing 50 cents in stamps for payment of a subscription. But it seemed that, reading further on in the letter, Alfonso wasn't exactly interested in the activities of the Carolina student body.

He was curious, yes. But his questions concerned the system of sexing baby chicks, how to prevent cocks from fighting, and records for breeding one cock and ten hens. And at the end of the letter he asked for a catalog describing the breeding stock we have on sale.

Since few on The Gamecock staff have delved into the science of raising cocks as a business, the stamps were returned to Alfonso, with the hopes that he may find the answers to his questions elsewhere in the field of publications.

Still, some of our Southern conference opponents can testify that the breed we raise here most certainly is the fighting kind!

Ghosts Don't Haunt Old Octagon

Washington (UP) Some folks may think that ghosts creak through the Octagon—the historic dwelling which once served as the White House

But James D. Cypress, the Negro caretaker who has lived there nearly 26 of his 63 years, protests that "they never bother" him. His wife, Carrie, feels much the same way.

Cypress works for the American Institute of Architects, which maintains headquarters in the eight-sided brick mansion where President James Madison and his wife, Dolly, sought refuge when the British burned the White House during the war of 1812.

The caretaker as well as institute officials, get frequent inquiries about t ethsrdoe g inquiries about the storied ghosts who reputedly dwell there.

No two persons can agree on the legends of the Octagon ghost or ghosts. (One school of haunted thought claims there is a solitary ghost, while another maintains with equal lack of authority that there are two.)

Nobody seems to know whether the wraiths were supposed to frequent the place back in the days when Madison signed the Treaty of Ghent, ending the war between the United States and Britain, in the circular room of the residence.

According to the legends, both the ghosts were daughters of Col. John Tayloe, reputedly intimate friend of George Washington. The first president is said to have prevailed upon Tayloe to build his winter residence here. The Octagon was the result.

Histories of the period detail the splendor of the mansion and the entertainment there for the great of two continents. But only the legends tell of the tragedy which is supposed to have struck at Tayloe on three occasions.

His son, Charles—the stories recount—died under mysterious circumstances and his two daughters died from falls down the 40 foot-high circular stairwell.

One daughter is supposed to have plunged to her death a short time after her father forbade her planned marriage to a young British officer.

Now the ghost or ghosts—depending upon the legend preferred—are supposed to tread the spiral staircase. And according to one more detailed version, one sister on stormy nights can be heard tumbling to her death.

The caretaker has heard all these stories. He has turned away many such persons as the old lady who recently asked if she could stay around for a while in hopes of seeing a ghost.

But he says he never hears "any noises that I can't put to something else."

Washington Merry-Go-Round

Leahy Wants a 'Preventive War'

(Ed. Note: This is the second of Drew Pearson's columns on the most important problem facing the country—the danger of war with Russia.)

By Drew Pearson

Washington.—Some observers have come back from Europe recently saying that the Cold War has been won. I do not agree.

Russian-inspired Communism, it is true, has taken some severe jolts in France and Italy, where attempted strikes, riots and revolution failed. But they already are being revived. And everyone who knows the Soviet system also knows that when the boys in the Politburo take a defeat on one front it only increases their determination to score victory on another.

So not only will they take more and tougher punches at France and Italy, but already Soviet preparations for eventual we don't-know-what have intensified in other areas.

Meeting with a group of Senators not long ago, Chief of the Air Forces Gen. "Touhy" Spaatz revealed:

1. The Red Army now has taken over German jet-plane plants and developed jet-propelled planes which are faster than those built by the U. S. Army.

2. The Russians have improved on the German buzz-bomb to a point where they now are producing a dreadly controlled missile that will travel between 1,700 and 1,800 miles, whereas the imperfectly controlled German buzz-bomb merely flew across the English Channel.

3. The Russians, according to General Spaatz, have complete information about the location, size and production capacity of every air plant in the United States, to say nothing of landing fields, control towers and other aviation facilities.

Even if we assume that General Spaatz was subject to the usual exuberance of a military man, the fact is inescapable that at the last Russian military maneuvers, six new types of jet planes were flown in view of foreign military attaches—the Ilyushin, Yakovlev, Sukhov, Tupelev and Lavochkin, and Mikoyan.

It is also a fact that French, Italian, and German war prisoners released from Russia all tell the same story—of feverish war production behind the Ural mountains; of demobilized Soviet troops instructed to remain under military supervision to work in munitions factories because a new war is impending—the last great inevitable conflict between Communism and the forces of Fascism.

It is also a fact that most German prisoners are being kept in Russia to work in these factories and that only prisoners no longer fit for physical labor are being returned to Germany.

Reliable Intelligence reports also tell of intensive air-base building in eastern Siberia with 51 fields in that general area, six being on the Bering Sea nearest Alaska. It is also known that the Russians now have acquired and perhaps refined all the secrets of the German submarine, including the Nazi "Snorkel." This is a device allowing subs to run constantly under water, without coming up to the surface to recharge batteries. Toward the end of the war the Germans had rubberized their subs so that Radar could not detect them, had installed miraculous new motors and were using canvas breathers which extend just above the water and are extremely hard to see.

All of these secrets the Russians now have, and some of their 256 submarines have been sighted around Greenland, Kiska and only 300 miles from Pearl Harbor.

These are some of the belligerent preparations on Moscow's side which worry the United States.

On the other hand, certain military preparations in the United States probably are causing worry in Moscow.

Last summer, for instance, Secretary of the Army Royall released a report calling for the use of natural caverns and abandoned mines for underground aircraft factories in the United States. And while Secretary Royall would have been remiss had he not warned of the need for protecting air factories, and while U. S. military preparations are far less offensive than the Russians', nevertheless Moscow uses them to try to keep the Russian people in a constant state of jitters. Whether the Russian generals themselves are also jittery is not known.

However, there is one small school of thought in the United States which does give the Politburo legitimate reason for worry—namely the school which believes that the United States should wage a "preventive" war rather than a defensive war later.

It is no secret to the Russians that such a school does exist in the United States and that it is headed by the Chief Military Adviser to the President—Adm. William D. Leahy.

It was a well-known fact that Admiral Leahy constantly goaded Jimmy Byrnes, when the latter was Secretary of State, on the charge that he was too conciliatory toward Russia. In fact, it was Leahy who had most to do with easing Byrnes out of the State department.

It is also known that at times Leahy has considered General Marshall too weak toward the Russians and has taken steps to toughen him up.

Few outsiders realize how great a role the Admiral plays in American foreign affairs. For instance, when the Truman plan for aid to Greece and Turkey was first prepared in the State department and was sent over to the White House, it did not contain any provision for military aid. When it came back from the White House, it contained a plan for U. S. military aid to Greece. Admiral Leahy had inserted it.

Most important in Leahy's background, however, is the fact that when Chief of Naval Operations in 1937 he sold Franklin Roosevelt on the idea that a preventive blockade of Japan could stop what was sure to be eventual war in the Pacific.

And it was Leahy who worked out the master plan for Roosevelt's "Quarantine" speech in Chicago, plus the attempt to mobolize the peace machinery of the League of Nations and the nine-power pact to break the Japanese military machine.

Undoubtedly Admiral Leahy at that time was right. Undoubtedly if Cordell Hull hadn't got cold feet, and if Roosevelt had followed through, the United States would have faced the Japanese crisis at a time when it was ready and prepared, instead of five years later with war on every front and when the Japanese were ready and prepared.

It is no secret that Admiral Leahy now proposes applying the same general strategy to Russia. In other words, if there is to be eventual war, he would pick the time and place rather than let the Russians do the picking. And he would pick it early, when the United States is better prepared, rather than late.

But in blunt, cold words, that is the heart of the Russian problem in the minds of some of our top military strategists. Whether they are right or not, and what are the alternatives in this most important of all questions will be discussed in future Washington Merry-Go Round columns.

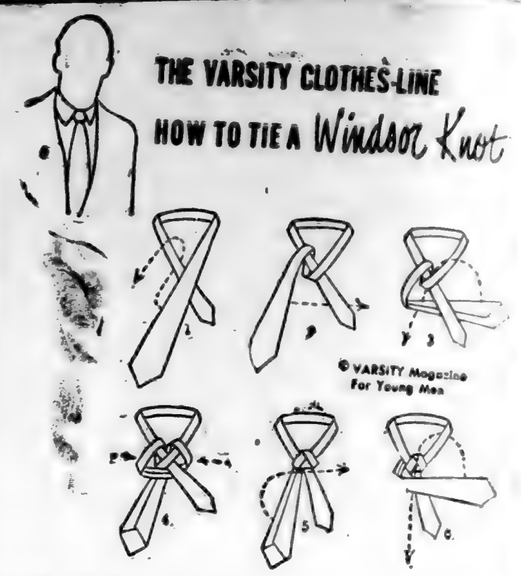
Dogpatch and Crossword

By Bill Buchan

Bob Wilkensen, close buddy of Wilbur Amberson, is one of these "Lil' Abner—Crossword puzzle" fans of the Daily Tar Heel. First thing he does when he finds a copy of the DTH is read the Dogpatch hero, then glance over the headlines on page one, and fold the paper down around the crossword puzzle.

His methods of perusing the paper are also repeated in his other campus activities. Unfortunately, he is one of the majority who take little or no interest in campus politics, programs that are presented, or national or international issues. His world is a pretty tightly drawn circle of his dorm room, bi-weekly poker games, infrequent trips to uptown beer parlors and the hometown girl friend.

In spite of his lack of interest, he is quick to criticize and attacks with a withering tongue those who do participate in campus affairs. He thinks that campus politicians are full of baloney, but makes no effort to run for any offices or even to take the time to vote in most elections. And while he thinks the writers for the campus magazines and the DTH are "lacking," he can offer no worthwhile suggestions for improvements, though he is quick to remind anyone that he is "required" to give out ready cash for subscriptions.



The face of Bob Wilkensen can be seen in the mirrors of toilets in any dormitory on the campus every morning in the week. A conservative estimate says that nearly seven-eighths of the Carolina student body do not take an active part in student activities. They are willing to sit back and let the few take the reins and guide campus affairs in any direction they choose.

True, studies are the first and most important duty of anyone on the campus, but they also can be overdone to the extent that would-be scholars easily develop into closed-in characters. There are dozens (and dozens and dozens and dozens) of organizations on the Carolina campus which ambitious students, regardless of their beliefs and principles, can join.

A great many dorm residents could use a little outside interests.—Or else they could can their comments.

Thought for consideration: The campus exponent of a satisfying brand of cigarettes doesn't use 'em himself. Prefers stogies. Maybe he thinks the twenty-for-17-cents brand of tobacco is unhealthy.

'Complete, Wholesome Life'

Although the average girl doesn't realize it, there is ample time each day to do everything that goes to make a complete, wholesome life.

All that is needed is a little planning, and she can reduce her weight, enhance her beauty, and give her life a new richness by finding time to do the many little things that most girls put off to "some" other time."

How to accomplish all this with a minimum of effort is described in an unusual feature article in the January issue of Junior Bazaar, which gives a program of diet, exercise and general activities for each day.

"Accomplishments of a day are measured not by the size of your schedule but by your effectiveness," the article states in part. "We've sketched a week to include the mechanics of life—and the essence. Here begins our seven day picture of your life seven days of beauty, diet, and general activities—the last being a large expression which includes just about everything you do, from your ordinary curriculum to making time for music and conversation, attending meeting of the U. N., clearing your closet of clothes to send to Europe.

The implication is that there's time in your day for everything you really want to do. As to our seven day diet, it's especially designed for the college girl, and is thought out not merely from a weight losing standpoint, but also with a sharp eye to your good looks and well-being.

"It's very easy to follow and allows you to lose from two to five pounds a week. You'll never feel hungry, but you will get thinner and look prettier

In North Carolina

Few Vets Use Allowance

Raleigh—Only 2.5 percent of North Carolina's approximately 375,000 World War II veterans whose war services made them eligible for servicemen's readjustment allowance were still drawing allowances at the end of last year, December 31, it is revealed by Chairman Henry E. Kendall, of the State Employment Security Commission, which agency administers this phase of the Veterans Administration program.

In fact, only 40 percent of the eligible veterans had ever drawn as much as one payment of the available allowances, and of all the veterans who applied for and drew allowances, only 45.7 percent of the amount to which their services entitled them had been drawn by the end of 1947.

Approximately 400,000 North Carolina men and women entered service during World War II and approximately 375,000 of that number had been discharged by the end of 1947. These figures are based on records of Selective Service up to the time local offices closed and an estimate of the number of discharges since that time.

The first application for servicemen's readjustment allowances was made in September, 1944, and in the 40 months since that time, through December, 1947, only 140,328 veterans, 40 percent of the total number had recieved as much as one payment under the G. I. Program. Of these, 108,828 were unemployed veterans and 41,500 were claims of self-employed veterans, about 98 percent of whom filed claims as self-employed farmers.

During the 40 months of operation of the G. I. Program, $71,488,696 had been paid to World War II veterans, $33,493,381 of it going to unemployed veterans who filed weekly claims while they were applying weekly for jobs, and $37,995,315 to self-employed veterans who were supplementing their monthly incomes from their operations, about 98 percent being farmers. The average amount drawn by veterans in that period was $475.55, or 45.7 percent of the maximum of $1040 to which their service entitled most of them, if oterwise eligible.

Of the 108,828 who drew unemployment allowances, only 6,126 or 5.6 percent exhausted their allowance priveleges. On the other hand, of the 41,500 self-employed veterans drawing allowances, 14,500, or 35 percent, exhausted their allowance rights. As of the end of the year, only 9,331 veterans, 2.5 percent of the estimated 375,000 Tar Heel veterans discharged, were filing claims, 7,263 for unemployment allowances, and 2,068 for self-employment allowances. As of December 31, records show, 13,128 veterans were registered in the local employment offices for jobs.

Who would ever think E. C. Morgan was a man, too! I retract my statement about wanting to see him in a bathing suit. If he were a girl I'd say let's kiss and make up, but since he isn't let's just do the latter and no hard feelings, Gene.

Adventure in the Big City

ALTHOUGH IT WON'T make the best selling collection by a long shot, a new adventure story entitled "Tom and His Buddies Invade the Big City" rates as a "must" on the Carolina reading list for the next few days. For in the 48-hour period starting at 10 o'clock tomorrow evening, the fortunes of Carolina's 1948 basketball campaign might very well be decided.

This new saga is a strange one in many ways. The first 12 chapters tell how the maincharacters—Tom and his buddies that is—breezed through the wilds of Tennessee, the sandhills of South Carolina, and various other obstacles on the way to their ultimate goal, success in the Big City. Chapter 12 is the most interesting one in this section, which falls under the subhead of "On the Way."

That particular chapter is divided into two parts, the first giving an account of how a band of Deacons tried, without success, to convert Tom and his buddies to the "We've been defeated" club. There's a god bit of mystery surrounding the second part, which tells vaguely how one of Tom's buddies, Bill by name, is refused the right to take part in further adventures of the group.

The strangest thing about the whole story is that no one—not even the critics of which there are many—know the outcome of the adventure. The end, conclusion, denouement—take your pick—just isn't there. Which gets us back to where we started, since the 13th and 14th chapters will be written before the weekend is out.

We do know, however, the subject material for these two unwritten chapters. The 13th will tell how Tom and his buddies fare in the Big City once they finally arrive, while No. 14 takes up the matter of the little side trip to the Borough of Brotherly Love. It's rumored that should the band of voyagers prove to be ungrateful guests by rudely boxing the ears of their hosts, they will definitely be asked back for a return visit to the Big City, at which time the other cheek will be extended. But that comes much later—in chapter 29.

One Less Unbeaten Team

ENOUGH FOR STORY-REVIEWING and on to the business at hand; namely—what will Friday's Daily Tar Heel have to say regarding the big basketball battle in Madison Square Garden tomorrow evening. One thing is certain—an unbeaten team is going to bite the dust come 11:30 p. m. tomorrow.

At least we think it's pretty certain. It isn't that we are expecting a Carolina setback for the first time this season and are therefore ready to puff that Peace Pipe being extolled in song these days. The only thing that definitely prevents an undefeated streak being broken would have been an upset victory for Cornell over NYU last night. We doubt if that happened.

Which means that both North Carolina and New York University will be out to protect perfect slates. That isn't too common an occurrence, even for Madison Square Garden. Just for the record, Carolina is ahead in the score, 12-10.

New York's Finest

WITHOUT A DOUBT, this year's bunch of Violets can rival Mayor O'Dwyer's boys in blue for the title of New York's Finest. They have played exactly nine games in the friendly (?) and smoky (!) confines of the House that Rickard Built, and those against some of the nation's top quintets. Most of them weren't even close—scores such as 77-56 (Duke), 64-41 (Temple), etc. over Tulane, Arkansas, Colorado, and others.

But what about tomorrow night. No one can deny that the loss of Bill Miller, especially coming at such a late our, will hurt the team a whole lot. But we think is probable replacement, Fred Swartzberg, will carry on capably in is absence and that the team may still spring the upset of the Garden season. As Coach Scott said yesterday evening before the team departed for the Raleigh Seaboard station, "We've got a 50-50 chance of coming through with a win, and you can be sure the boys will be out to do their best."

AN UPSET OVER NYU would be nothing new to four of the White Phantoms heading northward at this moment of writing. Johnny Dillon, Bob Paxton, Taylor Thorne, and Roger Scholbe were all members of the Carnevale-coached crew that twice plucked the Violets during the 1946-47 season. They were also on hand last January about this time—exactly one year ago today, in fact—when Carolina fought back from a seven-point, halftime deficit to eke out a 50-48 triumph.

We were there last year to cheer them home, and this evening we head that way again to see what we can do about bringing home a victory. With the good luck charm that we're wearing, maybe we'll do some good.

AND JUST IN case anyone's interested, here's what we think:

UNC 53 NYU 49.

UNC 58 Temple 46.

Never mind the correct scores, Mr. Jordan. Just give us the right winner.

Plenty of Tennis Tickets Left

Plenty of excellent seats still remain for the headline tennis match between world's amateur champion, Jack Kramer, and the world's professional champion, Bobby Riggs to be staged in Woollen Gym next Tuesday afternoon. 2,000 student tickets, which sell for one dollar each plus athletic ticket number 16. Over 1,000 ducats for the general public, going for two dollars each, are also still available.

The tickets are now on sale at the Book Exchange and all students who are intending to see the match are urged to purchase their pasteboards early so as to avoid probable late rush.

Also touring with the champs are the ace South American racketeer, Pancho Segura, and 1947 Aussie champ, Dinny Pails.

Zirpel, Kemp Selected As Wrestling Captains

Irvin Zirpel and Bill Kemp were elected co-captains of Coach Chuck Quinlan's wrestling squad this week.

Zirpel, from Washington, D. C., is entering his fourth year of mat competition. Last year he copped the Southern conference championship in the 155-pound class.

Bill Kemp, who hails from Goldsboro, won his letter last year wrestling in the 175 pound division. Although a top-notch wrestler, Kemp has been bothered recently with stomach trouble.

Another Match

Coach Quinlan announced yesterday that one more match has been scheduled for the coming season. The squad will travel to Davidson February 4 for their first match away from Woollen gym.

The mat crew preparing for their first match with VPI January 19, worked on fundamental exercises as competition for starting berths in the 121, 145, and heavyweight classes grew keener. The middle weight classes are more definitely established, however, with two lettermen returning. Zirpel, 155 pounder, and Oscar Gupton, wrestling in the 165-pound division, are slated to start in their respective classes.

145-Pound Class

The hotly contested 145-pound class has four men competing for the opening berth. Phil Kemp, Carrol Fisher, Ralph Marshall, and Dave Beecher are all working for the starting position.

Carl Simpson, intramural heavyweight champ, will probably start in that position.

In the 121 and 128-pound classes Doug Thompson, last year letterman, and Collier Cobb, a newcomer, are both competing for the opening positions. Both Cobb and Thompson are able to enter either class.

Bill Kemp, another returnee, will start in the 175-pound class. Tom Uuquhart and Charles Jetty are both working for the starting berth in the 136-pound class. Urquhart, a member of last year's squad, has a slight edge over Jetty.

Cage Thrillers Feature Murals In Court Play

Close finishes were the order of the day in yesterday's intramural cage play as four of the ten games played ended with no more than two points separating the competing squads.

Miller Hall edged the Old East hoopsters by the narrowest margin possible, one point. The final score was 24-23. Benny Gregory, Miller center, was high scorer with 13 points while Joe Sills, of the losers, was runner-up with nine.

The Black Balls, led by Leon Mitchell with seven points, edged the Unknowns, 22-20. The score was even closer at the half as the winners were ahead by a 10-9 count. The other two-point victories went to Kappa Psi 2 over SAE by the same score as the abovementioned contest. In this game the losers came from behind at the halftime break to overcome a 14-8 deficit. Bill Horlen, Kappa Psi, was high man with 11 markers.

In the lowest scoring contest on the agenda, TEP 1 held St. Anthony to 14 points, but was unable to count more than 12 themselves. The Seiler Five, Gra-superstitious as he was taking 13 players on the 13th of the month, in quest of their 13 straight win. He also said that his office number was 313, and his home address was 607, which adds up to 13. The smiling Kansan said hat Fred Swartzberg from High Point would probably take over Miller's slot.

Temple Saturday

The rest of the team had little to add and they still feel that they can win the game. However, they were far from overconfident for they fully realized that whatever chances of a bid to a post-season tourney they have will probably hinge on the outcomes of the NYU clash and the meeting with Temple in Philadelphia's Convention hall on Saturday night.

The Violets, rated only as a so-so outfit at the season's start, have surprised the experts by maintaining a perfect record against some of the nation's top teams. Last year, the Carolinians nosed out the New Yorkers, 50-48, in the Garden but the Violets gained partial revenge by smearing the locals, 60-47, in Woollen gym later in the season.

The players that are making the jaunt are Captain Bob Paxton, Nemo Nearman, King Cole, Norm Kohler, Fred Swartzberg, John Dillon, Coy Carson, Rip Ryan, Taylor Thorne, Roger Scholbe, Dan Nyimicz, Harvey Weinstein, and Marx Nathan.

Football Schedule Still in Muddle

The Latest headache for the North Carolina's football schedule-makers is where to play two of the grid classics on the 1948 card.

It all goes back to the mixup over who is to use Griffith Stadium on Saturday, November 13. Carolina and Maryland had been signed to meet in the nation's capitol that day but now it turns out that Duke's Blue Devils are scheduled to meet George Washington in the same park.

That leaves the Tar Heels and the Terps out in the cold.

As if this is not enough there is another problem. Last year the Carolina-William and Mary game was played in Williamburg nd by tradition it should move to Chapel Hill. But since they have had to schedule most of their games away from home for the coming season, they have requested that the game be moved back to Williamsburg.

One answer according to the United Press, would be to have Maryland play in Chapel Hill and meet the William and Mary Indians in Williamsburg. But since there is no way out that will please all parties the question is what to do.

In one word, the quote from the Carolina officials is "Snafu."

Chi O and Tri Delt Cop Close Contests

Three close contests marked the first court play in the coed basketball tournament which had its first action of the season last night in Women's gym.

In the best game of the evening, the Chi Omega sextet gained a 15-13 decision over ADPi. Barbara Ann Covington tallied eight points to take the scoring honors for the evening.

The Tri Delts also squeezed out a narrow win, downing Kenan by 8-7. In still another tight fight, in fact tighter than all the others, CICA and Carr battled to a 10-all deadlock. Tourney rules do not call for an overtime session to break the tie.

Alderman forfeited its tilt with Smith and was dropped from the tournament. This leaves 13 teams to battle for the crown won last year by Pi Phi.

Play will continue tomorrow evening.

Jayvees Take To Road, Play Louisburg Tonight

By Bill Kellam

Woollen gym's main court will be as bare as old Mother Hubbard's cupboard this weekend for, along with the White Phantoms, Carolina's jayvee cagers will take to the road tonight for the first time this season when they journey to Louisburg to meet Louisburg Junior college in a return engagement.

The Blue and White juniors trounced Louisburg, 45-30, early in December in their season's opener but since then the initial Tar Heel victims have become a team of mystery and thus how the locals will fare against them is also a mystery.

Coach Jim Hamilton will head the 18-man party, including 13 players, which will make the trip to Louisburg. The Tar Heel cagers will return immediately after the contest.

The hoopsters making the trip include Pete Peters, John "The New Hook" Tsantes, Thorne Gregory, Bill White, Charlie Thorne, Bill Harrington, Hal Ferraro, Jack Wilkerson, Sandy Hoft, Floyd Gilmore, Warren Morrison, Hank Lebed, and Simon Terrell.

The juniors continue their forays on Friday when they travel o Durham to tangle with Duke's Blue Imps in the second of their four game series. The locals will be out to avenge last week's 41-39 upset handed them by the Toaccomen. This setback is the lone blot on their eight-game escutcheon.

On Saturday the juniors motor to Charlotte for a meeting with the Charlotte Extension of the University. The jayvees will remain overnight in the Queen City and will return sometime Sunday.

In their eight contests thus far this season, the Tar Heel cagers ave tossed in 408 points for an average of 51 tallies per game. Their opponents have been able to rack up only 254 counters for an approximate 32 points-per-tilt average. Tsantes leads the juniors with 86 counters tallied in the eight clashes.

Bill Pritchard New President Of Letter Club

Bill Pritchard of Chapel Hill was elected President of the Monogram club last night to succeed Len Szafaryn.

Pritchard who earned his letter in football has long been one of the organization's most active members. It was he who originated the idea of the Spring Blue-White game.

Jim Godwin, also a football letterman was elected Vice-President to replace Jess Greenbaum.

Morty Schaap, last year's cross country and track manager was reelected as Secretary and treasurer. Mike Morrow, former Club president was elected as representative to the Athletic council succeeding John Dillon.

The new president took over at the meeting and appointed a committee to draw up a constitution for the lettermen's organization. Len Szafaryn, Bob Hutton, Mike Rubish and Bob Elliot were named to the Constitution committee.

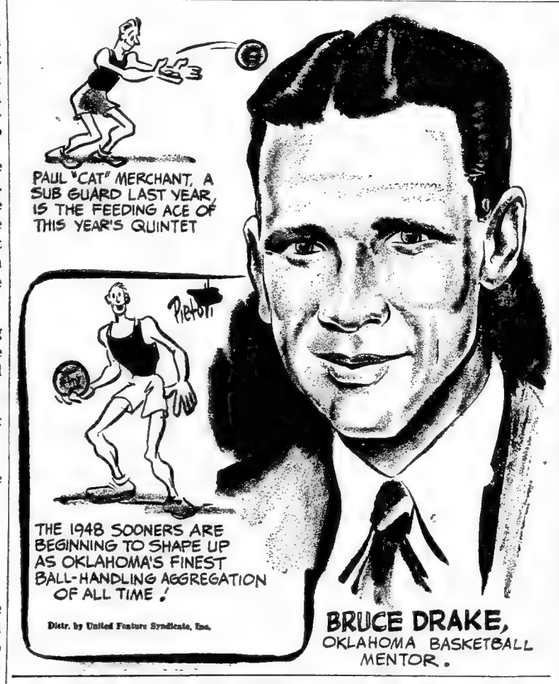
Pritchard will also lead his fight for 150-pound football's establishment at the University. He had been Social chairman of the Club for the past six months. Bill spent 1946 at the Naval academy and returned to Carolina in the spring of 1947.

INTRAMURAL OPEN HOUSE

The Intramural department will sponsor another open house program tonight at Woollen gym, with the festivities scheduled to get underway at 7 o'clock.

Walter Rabb, intramural director, announces that open house will be held in the future on Monday and Wednesday nights unless a basketball game is scheduled on those nights.

Carolina, State Remain Unbeaten In Conference Cage Competition



Richmond, Va., Jan. 13. (UP)—After last night's win over Wake Forest at Chapel Hill, North Carolina's White Phantoms continue to lead Southern Conference play with a record of five wins and no defeats. Still undefeated is N. C. State's Wolfpack, who rate the second place spot with a perfect mark of three victories. George Washington's luke warm Colonials have the most wins and hold third position with a 7-1 record.

Bill Cantwell of George Washington paces the conference scoring with a total of 90 points. Washington and Lee's Bob Goldsmith and Buddy Cheek of Davidson are tied for second place honors, each having snared 83 points.

Chester Giermak of William and Mary has the leading scoring average, havng tallied 78 points in four games for an average of 19.5 points per game.

UNC Sponsors Med Courses To Open in State This Week

The first of the series of Post-graduate courses in medicine, to be resumed under the sponsorship of the University after discontinuation during the war, will get under way again this week at Lumberton and Salisbury.

The course in Lumberton, to be held weekly through February 14, will open Wednesday, and the first program in Salisbury will open tomorrow and continue weekly through February 26.

In each town, outstanding authorities in their fields of medicine will lecture each week, one lecture being sponsored by the North Carolina division of the Harvard Medical school, Boston, will discuss diabetes at the opening session in Lumberton today. There will be a clinic at the American Cancer society.

Dr. Howard F. Root of the Moore elementary school at 4 o'clock, to be followed by a dinner at the Lorraine hotel at 6:30, and then the lecture at the school building at 8 o'clock.

Dr. Root will also appear at the opening session in Salisbury tomorrow with a clinic at 4 o'clock at the King's Daughters hut, a dinner at the Yadkin hotel at 7 o'clock, and the lecture to follow there immediately afterwards.

Next week, Dr. I. A. Bigger of the Medical college of Virginia at Richmond, who is being sponsored by the American Cancer society, will speak at Lumberton and Salisbury on "Cancer of the gastrointestinal tract from the standpoint of the general practitioner."

There was some discussion concerning the Meade bill, a similar piece of legislation, which would allow a $10 montly increase instead of the more liberal demands made by the Rogers bill.

Passed by Senate

A point was made from the floor during the discussion that the more conservative bill would have a better chance of passing Congress when introduced for the second time. It was passed by the Senate but rejected by the house during the last few days before the end of the 1947 session.

It was farther brought out that the Rogers bill will be narrowed down by Congress and would consume more time in passing, whereas the Meade bill might receive immediate endorsement.

$35 Increase

However, in the voting the group decided to support the $35 increase for single men. All members agreed that endorsing a single bill would have more effect on the individual Congressmen. The Rogers bill has also been publicly endorsed by the national conference.

President Clampitt reported that the Board of Governors of the UVA has decided to purchase facilities for providing the sale of coffee at the club's snack bar in addition to the now available sandwiches, cold drinks, gum and cigarettes.

ATO 3 trounced their neighbors, TEP, 2, by 13 points, 37-24. ATO was ahead by only three notches at the half, 19-16. Jack Hadley led the pack with nine counters while TEP's Dave Isaacs scored eight to place next.

Another close contest saw Whitehead 1 squeeze by Honeycut Manor, 26-22. Bill Slack dumped in 16 markers to pace Whitehead and Manorman Paul Van Bramer was second with eight. Phi Kap 2 outscored Sigma Nu 3 by 14 points, winning handily, 36-22. Buster Stevenson dropped in 12 points for the winners.

Zeta 1 defeated DKE 1 by a 31-16 score. Bob Ruffin, Zeta, and Bill Dodson, DKE, divided scoring honors with 10 apiece. The Cruds swept by Lewis 3, 40-31. They were ahead 22-18 at the half, but increased their lead during the second stanza. Bob Smith paced the victors with 11 counters.

Democrats Use Wrong Symbol Visiting Professor Asserts

Maybe the elephant should be the symbol of the Democratic party instead of the Republicans, according to the deductions of Dr. Norman W. DeWitt, visiting professor of classics in the University of North Carolina, who presented his views at Yale University in an address before the American Philological Association of which he is president.

Dr. Dewitt points out that the influence of classical Greek and Roman models upon the framers of the American Constitution is familiar in general, but that historians have never detected a phase of this influence which can be traced all the way back to reports of the behavior of Indian elephant herds by the scientific staff of Alexander the Great.

His reasoning is that "Thomas Jefferson fathered the principle that the best government is a minimum of government. He borrowed this idea from the political speculations of the English philosopher John Locke. Locke in his turn had borrowed from the teachings of the Greek philosopher Epicurus, which in the seventeenth century were enjoying a revival.

"Epicurus, in revolt against the totalitarian tendencies of Plato, had limited the function of government to protecting the safety of the individual. In so doing he was taking a hint from Aristotle, who pointed out that the teachings of nature could best be observed from the behavior of irrational creatures. Knowledge of the elephant opportunely arrived at this moment.

"In a state of nature the wild herds not only refrain from injuring one another but also organize themselves for protection against outside enemies. This is the minimum of government as taught by nature."

New England's hens lay more than 200,000,000,000 eggs per month, while the area's hatcheries hatch about 3,500,000 chicks per month.

Student Legislature Holds First Session Tonight

Phi Praises Graham's Services; Gives Him Vote Of Confidence

By Gordon Huffines

Expressing confidence in Dr. Frank Graham as president of the Greater University of North Carolina, the Phi assembly passed Tuesday night, by a vote of 45-3, a resolution stating that the University Board of Trustees has no justification for any attempts to remove the famous educator from office.

There was no direct opposition offered to the Phi bill from the floor, as members of the assembly expressed themselves in favor of Dr. Graham's policies and praised his service to the University and nation. The president's membership in the "Communist-branded" Southern Congress for the Advancement of Human Welfare, and his actions in protecting certain communist members in this state, one University faculty member, were questioned by a minority of the representatives, none of whom directly attacked his policies.

Vice-Presidency

In view of a recent rumor that Dr. Graham is being considered for the 1948 vice-presidential nomination by the Democratic party, several representatives took the stand that the University head could best serve his country by devoting his full time to national affairs.

Rep. Bill Duncan expressed belief that, in light of Dr. Graham's long service to the nation, especially as a member of the War Labor Relations board under Franklin D. Roosevelt, the renowned educator could have advanced to an important position in national politics had he not remained loyal to the University.

Unfounded Attacks

Speaker-pro-tem John Giles, who introduced the bill before the assembly, stated that the board of trustees has been trying since 1933, to oust Dr. Graham from the presidency mainly on the grounds that his numerous tours of duty for the U. S. government have interfered with his duties as head of the Greater University. He added that attacks directed against Dr. Graham, criticizing him of holding leftist views, are unfounded.

Pointing out the fact that Dr. Graham had served on the staff of the University since 1913, except for the time he served in the Marine corps in the first World War, Rep. George Rodman stated that the University president was as much a part of this school as the old well, the Y court, or Dan the Dog.

The Phi, assembling for the first time this quarter, inaugurated new officers of the assembly at which time Speaker Chester D. zum Brunnen delivered his inaugural address. New members Mae Belle Enman and Graham Jones were also initiated into the society in a candlelight ceremony.

CP to Meet

The Campus party will meet this afternoon at 4 o'clock in Graham Memorial's Roland Parker lounge No. 2 to discuss party organization and candidates for the spring elections. The meeting will be limited to one hour and all party members are asked to be present.

Council Vetoes Debating Credit

Debate council president Earl Fitzgerald announced yesterday that a proposal to place intramural debating on a yearly point system received a "thumbs down" disapproval from the Intramural council Tuesday night. The intramural managers considered the proposal at a meeting in Woollen gymnasium.

Although the council voted against coordination of a debate program into intramurals and awarding points in competition, the managers agreed to help the Debate council secure teams and to create student interest in forensic activities.

Chief proponents for the move, which the DTH editorially called "advisable" and "worthwhile", are Fitzgerald and Randall McLeod, members of the Debate council.

Daniels 'Weaker'

Raleigh, Jan. 14 —(UP)— Josephus Daniels, the 85-year-old editor of the Raleigh News and Observer, has been reported "definitely weaker" tonight in his long fight against pneumonia.

The World War I Secretary of the Navy went to bed with a severe cold after attending church on January 4. His illness soon developed into bronchitis, and then pneumonia set in.

Doctors say that only his amazing vitality has kept alive the man whom Roosevelt called "Chief". However, neither his doctor nor his family appeared encouraged by his long battle against death, and there is little hope that he will recover.

Bill to Boost Profits Taxes Reaches House

Washington, Jan. 14 —(UP)— A bill, modeled after the proposal made last week by President Truman and calling for a $40 tax credit to all taxpayers, has been introduced in the House.

Democratic Representative Dingell of Michigan put the bill before Congress. A two point measure, it differs somewhat from the President's original plan although it calls for the "cost of living" tax credit for all taxpayers which Mr. Truman suggested.

However, it proposes to offset this loss by a 75 per cent excess profits tax on the nation's corporations, most of whom are now carrying a large portion of the tax load. According to the President's suggestion, the loss would have been made up from the regular corporate taxes.

Dingell introduced his bill shortly after conferring with the President. The Michigan Democrat, a member of the House's taxwriting Ways and Means committee, claims that his bill would affect less than 22,000 of the country's 360,000 incorporated enterprises.

House Republican leaders have already given notice that they want no part of such a bill. They are planning to go ahead with their own bill for relief through a general income tax cut.

AVC Plans Visit Of Gen. Holdridge

The local chapter of the American Veterans committee Tuesday night voted to sponsor the appearance at the University of Brig. Gen R. Holdridge, retired, and all members of the local group are invited to attend this day-long meeting to map the future of AVC in North Carolina.

The AVC also passed a motion to write the chapter's disapproval of the military training plan to all North Carolina legislators. It was agreed to form a committee to work with any other campus groups who also oppose this proposal.

Walter Spearman, past regional vice-chairman of the veteran's organization, was elected as the local group's delegate to the Chapel Hill Community council, and Henry Saunders was chosen as alternate.

Other business at Tuesday night's session included a discussion of this Saturday's conference of AVC state officers, to be held in the Grail room of Graham Memorial. All state officials of the various chapters,

Long, House Not Resigning, Will Stay With Group

By Chuck Hauser

The Student Legislature will hold its first meeting of 1948 tonight, and contrary to all rumors and reports, Legislators Charlie Long and Ernie House will be on hand along with the rest of the returning members and neophyte lawmakers.

Both of the outstanding legislators, Long of the Student party and House of the University party, were planning to resign from the Legislature because of heavy loads of academic and other work, but on the request of student body President Tom Eller both are continuing in their legislative capacities.

Very Encouraging

"It is very encouraging," Eller stated yesterday, "to hear that Charlie Long and Ernest House are remaining in the Legislature. Both men deserve a great deal of credit for contributing so much time and work for the benefit of campus government.

"They represent just about all that is left of the Old Finance committee of the Legislature, and are singularly valuable."

Even with political whips Long and House present, however, tonight's session does not promise to be an exciting one.

Agenda Listed

The following is the agenda as listed by Speaker Jack Folger:

1. Installation of new members; 2. Election of following officers: Speaker pro tempore, clerk, parliamentarian, sergeant at arms, chairman of committees; Ways and Means, Elections, Finance, Rules.

3. Report on regional assembly of the National Students association: 4. Old business: A bill to appropriate expenses for the delegates to the regional assembly; 5. Approval of schedule of future meetings.

Gibson Is Selected Mag Managing Editor

CHARLIE GIBSON

The selection of Charlie Gibson of Winston-Salem to replace Jud Kinberg as managing editor of the Carolina magazine was made public yesterday by Fred Jacobson, editor of the publication.

A former Mag associate editor, the 21 year-old Gibson's promotion came as a result of the resignation of Kinberg who graduated at the end of last quarter. He has already assumed his new duties.

"Gibson's imagination, ingenuity, and ability to write coupled with his natural ability to get along with people will make him a great asset to the magazine as its managing editor", Jacobson declared in announcing the appointment.

DTH Staffer

The new managing editor is a night editor and reporter for the Daily Tar Heel and a member of the Tarnation and Yackety Yack staffs. Described by Billy Carmichael, a member of the publications board, as "an excellent choice", his selection evoked wide - spread approval among publications men who could be reached for comment.

Gibson served 21 months with the AAF as a sergeant and saw overseas service in the Phillipines. Previous to enrolling at Carolina, he spent a quarter at Vanderbilt.

He graduated from Reynolds high school in Winston-Salem where he served as editor of the newspaper, the Pine Whispers. Here, he is a member of the Kappa Alpha fraternity, the Di Senate, and the ROTC.

Final approval of Gibson's appointment rests with the Publications board.

Donovan Praises Friendship Group

"Let me express our sincere thanks to you and the students of your department of journalism for your splendid cooperation and most generous contribution," wrote John Donovan, assistant to Sponsor Drew Pearson of the nation-wide Friendship Train drive, to Chancellor R. B. House yesterday.

Donovan acknowledged the receipt of $737.50 as a result of the November 19-26 campaign of Lawrence T. McQueen's Friendship Train committee, and said the money had been spent to purchase milk and flour for the needy peoples of France and Italy.

Queen's committee, composed of students in John McReynold's journalism class, sent its donation to Columnist Pearson through Chancellor House's office.

Inhale Deeply, Major

Commerce student Robert Warthen Johannesen, Major, USMRC, was a weighted-down man yesterday afternoon when NROTC executive officer A. G. Schnable, Commander, USN, finished pinning recently authorized Naval decorations on his chest.

To begin the list, Johannesen was awarded two gold stars in lieu of a second and third Distinguished Flying Cross. Next on the list, he received the Air Medal, and (inhale deeply, Major) gold stars in lieu of the second, third, fourth, fifth and sixth Air Medals.

In addition to the gold placed on his chest, the former Marine air officer was presented with eight personal citations. All citations, medals, and stars were earned while the major was serving actively in the Solomon Islands area in 1942.

Johannesen, who was discharged in 1946, was employed by the General Electric company as an engineer with its hydraulics development division from the time he was released from service until last January, when he entered school here.

Mrs. Johannesen, the former Miss Dell Bush, UNC class of '43, is now enrolled as a graduate student in the University's journalism department. During the war she spent three years as a WAVE officer.

Problems Arising from Secret Marriage Almost Insurmountable, Says Groves

By Sally Woodhull

Stressing the necessity for emotional maturity before marriage, Mrs. Ernest R. Groves, vice-president of the American Association of Marriage Counselors, spoke Tuesday night in Hill hall on "Campus Problems and Dating."

Sponsored by the Coed Senate for the student body in general, Tuesday night's lecture was the first of two which Mrs. Groves will deliver. Next Tuesday at 7:30 in Hill hall she will talk on problems immediately preceeding marriage, with special emphasis on the engagement period.

Dating is one way in which the emotional maturity necessary for marriage may be secured, Mrs. Groves said, and she explained various emotional blocks which may prevent one from dating. Though a wide dating experience is valuable in learning to choose one's marriage mate, Mrs. Groves mentioned several cases in which popular young people had made poor marriages.

Emphasizing the fact that marriage should never be entered into as an escape from anything, rs. Groves said that marriage is not an easier way of life. Secret marriages, she said, are never advisable, for the difficulties arising are almost insurmountable.

Following her lecture, Mrs. Groves answered questions from the audience. She also announced that she was available for personal counseling at any time.

Barbara Cashion, speaker of the Coed Senate, has announced that questions to be put to Mrs. Groves at next week's lecture may be placed in a question box in the Y information office before the lecture.

Rendezvous Plans Coming-Out Party

The Rendezvous has set its new year's coming out party tomorrow night with an open house program and entertainment. Feature attraction of the evening will be a short "experimental" floor show, to begin at 9:15, and last 30 minutes.

Explaining the program, organizer Clarence Barbour stated all actors are giving their services free, in effect employing the Rendezvous as a proving ground for their various talents. "The whole thing will be on the order of an audition or dress rehearsal," explained Barbour, "And if the idea is successful, we hope to continue it weekly."

Singing Cabbie

One of the top attractions of the evening is Forrest "Nick" Covington, the singing cab-driver. A sophomore from Washington, Covington is choral director of Sound and Fury. Lyric tenor Robert Barbour will also sing on the show.

To add a touch of slapstick to the scene, "Joker John" Van Hecke will "get in the way" as his co-workers phrased it. An adagio dance routine is set by director Clarence Barbour with petite Nita Sanders.

Since reopening last week the Rendezvous, located on the ground floor of the student union has drawn good crowds nightly, according to its manager, Graham Memorial director Bill Shuford. Considerable remodeling work has been done to give a more intimate atmosphere, and the whole south end of the room around the fireplace has been made into a "baby" lounge.

Gammage Elected Sound and Fury Prexy; Thomas Handles Vice-Presidential Spot

By Paul Rothman

Ken Gammage was elected to fill the Doug-Gardner-vacated president's post during Sound and Fury's initial meeting of the quarter Tuesday night.

Gammage, an ATO, is typical of the officers elected in that he has risen in the ranks of the organization within a short period of time. After joining the group last summer, the new president gained in popularity with the other members as a result of his efforts in the well known "Blip" skit, publicity for the fall freshman night show, and the role of co-author of "Gin Lane."

Thomas Elected

Tommy Thomas, another of Sound and Fury's new members, was voted to fill the newly created office of vice-president. Thomas, who began his career in the group by heading the "Gin Lane" work shop and taking a leading role in the same play, is now writing part of a production scheduled for next quarter.

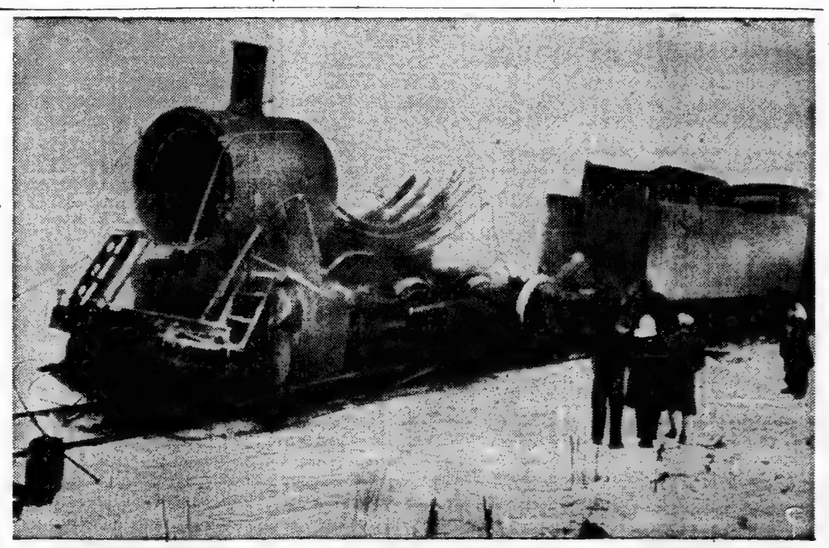
Both old and new were combined to take Nancy Tucker's place as secretary-treasurer. The post is represented by Faith Adams who was elected secretary. Faith, a Tri Delt, joined the musical-comedy players last quarter when she took the feminine lead in "Gin Lane." Jerry Weiss, now treasurer, represents the old, for he has done programs and publicity for Sound and Fury ever since its post-war revival.

Utterly Unoriginal

Before the elections the members discussed plans for "Roll Them Over," an intimate review that is tentatively scheduled for the latter part of next month. The authors, whose names are withheld by request, state that the work will be "completely and utterly unoriginal." Plans for a spring performance were also discussed.

The group approved drawings of a Sound and Fury merit key presented by Ken Gammage, but requirements for the key have not yet been established.

Also left on the agenda was the appointment of committee members.



It was agreed that regular business meetings will be held in Gerard hall at 7:30 every Tuesday night, at which time all persons wishing to participate in musical-comedy work will be cordially welcomed.

Moore Reassures State Motorists

Raleigh, Jan. 14 —(UP)— North Carolina's motorists, some of whom are fearful that they will have to drive several hundred miles to get their cars inspected, were reassured here tonight by Arthur T. Moore, chief of the state's auto inspection program.

He stated that there is absolutely no need for drivers to worry provided their vehicles are able to pass the requirements of the state's new "Anti-jalopy" law.

36 portable inspection lanes have been obtained for use throughout the state in the inspection program. These lanes will be moved in a wide area about their headquarters in order to reach all of the state's motorists.

THE FIREMAN WAS KILLED and the engineer received third-degree burns when the boiler of this Milwaukee Railroad locomotive exploded near Portage, Wisconsin. The Blast, heard six miles away, derailed two of the eight cars. The train was en route from Portage to Madison, Wisconsin. (International Soundphoto)

UP Legislators

A meeting of all University party legislators will be held in Roland Parker lounge No. 3 of Graham Memorial this afternoon at 3 o'clock. All UP legislators are urged to attend as urgent business will be discussed.

WORLD FEDERALISTS

A meeting of the Carolina chapter of the World Federalists has been called for 5 o'clock this afternoon in the Grail room of Graham memorial. Jake Wicher,

—JUST FOR KICKS—

A long boring meeting of the Wilmington club will be held Thursday night at 8 o'clock in Gerrard hall.

It Could Happen Here

In a recent decision the Supreme court upheld its 1938 ruling that a state is permitted to maintain separate but equal institutions for Negroes, but emphatically added another stipulation—Negroes must be able to begin training in such institutions as quickly as any other groups. Such a decision on the part of the Supreme Court was handed down in the case where the state of Oklahoma refused a Negro girl admittance to law school because there is no state Negro law school in Oklahoma.

Today, a new term at the all-white law school in Oklahoma will open and the Supreme Court ruling that the State must provide equal schooling for the Negro applicant today. So, if Oklahoma is to adhere to the decision, all that remains is for Oklahoma to admit the Negro girl in the already-established law school. The chancellor of the Oklahoma board of regents stated it was up to the people of the state to decide what policy is to be followed.

As this publication has stated before, the day is not too far off when this may happen in North Carolina. It could happen tomorrow. If North Carolina is going to stick by her previous practice of a segregated school system, and if it, along with the other southern states, adopts the plan for regional specialized schools for Negroes, then expediency must be used to get these institutions established.

The Supreme Court decision pointedly shows that pigeon-holing a Negro's application to a school which doesn't exist for him will not be tolerated by law.

Once Again We're to Carry A Big Stick

We suppose the world is full of idealists. Idealists have a way of getting on your nerves. But, knowing this full well, we intend to be, hergin, idealistic—and perhaps we can get on your nerves.

We don't like Universal Military Training. We think it would cause no end of difficulty and do not one whit of good.

This UMT proposition is before the House now: HR 4178, it is. It would send every physically-fit 18-year-old youngster in this country into uniform for a spell. One year may not seem like much to some of us, but to others it's a big gap in a young, developing life.

The boys pay off big for their training in left-dressing and right-facing, for learning to pull a trigger, for learning to jump when the man with a stripe says jump. They pay off in loss of self-respect, in a blind but grudging respect for anyone claiming authority. Psychologically, the UMTies themselves will not profit.

Will the people of the nation profit? We think not. Seeing Junior in uniform, seeing thousands like him, may well make Mom and Dad figure, "Well, if Russia don't like what we're doing, we'll just fight 'em. We got the men." Political leaders and diplomats are not notably unlike Mom and Dad.

But will men—just men who were trained for one year—win the next war? Doesn't seem likely. We didn't win the last one that way. We won it because we had scientists and technicians who made this nation technologically superior. In addition, we had young men who were trained to fight not as a business but as a matter of urgency.

The most misleading of all the arguments put forth in favor of Universal Military Training by otherwise sensible men (Truman, Eisenhower) is that UMT would help keep the peace.

Hello UMT! Goodbye UN! It's as simple as that. If we arm in an effort to frighten or bluff other nations out of a war with us, UN would fall apart. Though UN workings thus far have been faulty, we honestly believe that without that organization the world would have already lined up teams for the War to End All People.

Maybe it's idealistic to think or hope that war with Russia can be avoided through negotiation. But if the time has come, even before all the dead from the last war have been buried, to line up another lump of humanity for another war—then we don't want to be only idealists; we want to be hermits.

Limit on Supply Purchases by Vets Unlikely

Several large schools throughout the country have adopted a "mass production" system in issuing supplies to veterans on the campuses. The latest school to follow the system, the University of Indiana, outlines the contents of the kits as containing one notebook, one notebook index, three notebook fillers, one typing pad, one bottle of ink, one ruler, six lead pencils, one ink eraser and one box of gum reinforcements. Once these supplies are issued, no additional ones can be drawn unless authorized by the course instructor. One would gather then, that after the three packs of paper and six pencils are used, the student will stop writing and take the rest of the quarter at ease until his is issued another kit at the beginning of a new term. It's a nice method, but it won't work.

An official of the University when approached on the subject, emphatically stated that Carolina would not adopt such a system unless forced to do so by the Veterans Administration. Even then, the official pointed out, the student could very probably carry the case to court and easily win a decision in his favor inasmuch as there is no definate way of determining what the individual student needs for his courses.

In order to comply with the VA directive that schools prepare a standard list of books and supplies, a survey was made of the faculty to determine necessary equipment for the various courses. After the survey was completed, the requested materials were placed on the shelves of the Book X for the students. Only two items, typewriter ribbons and scotch tape, were removed recently when a VA inspecting team visited the school.

Obviously there are many veterans on the campus who take advantage of our present liberal system by buying supplies that they themselves do not need for other students. A step in direction of halting this practice has been taken in limiting the number of articles that can be purchased at one time. Veterans will be wise if they buy their supplies with a limit on the extravagant side. It is not altogether unreasonable that pressure could be put on the University of North Carolina to follow the examples of Indiana, Purdue and Wisconsin and adopt the "kit system". Co-operation on the part of veterans will delay such a move —B. B.

Carolina Carousel

After 153 Years, This!

By R. Foo Giduz

This relatively normal sounding date, January 15, in actuality marks another most significient day in University history... For 153 years ago (that's 1795, according to this feeble brain), on a day just as cold as today, the University of North Carolina was formally opened... And a most noteworthy event it was then, indeed ... Several hours of open-air ceremonies (imagine that today!), governor, legislature, and all trustees in attendance... In fact, they had all the essentials of a great institution — except students!... Yep, so the twice-told tale runs, it was not until nearly a month later on Feb. 10 that the alma mater's first eager student, Hinson James, arrived after a long snowy walk from Wilmington.

And Tar Heelia was no mean slouch in those days either... Think you've got it rough now with pop quizzes and sleepy eight o'clocks?... Those poor characters had to get up every day at sunrise, go to mass prayer meeting, then return to rooms for an hour's meditation, and "study" and THEN eat breakfast!... (That's all right grandpop, we can tell our kiddies about GI checkless months and six-to-one ratio!)

Hundreds said it'd never happen, but they've finally filled in that foxhole in the pavement in the middle of frat court... Jeep owners had fun bouncing through it, but it was tough on civilized autos and sleepy studes... Credit should go where credit is due, and in this case, frat court residents can thank Chapel Hill's own Donald Stanford, (Sigma Chi) who filled in the hazard with his own little bag of cement...

Sex lecture sidelights show that coeds of Tarheelia are (1) not interested in the subject; (2) know all they want to know about it; or, (3) were out getting first-hand knowledge of the stuff... At least, that's the only conclusion we can draw from the small ttendance seen at Mrs. Groves Tuesday night lecture on the timely topic, "Campus Problems and Dating."... Our Gestapo reports that at total of 48 coeds, two men, and seven Dook students were all that took in the eminent marriage authority's Hill hall talk.

Among other things Mrs. Groves made the observation (warning to men) that college males are really wolves-in-sheeps clothing, and often brag about sex experiences they've never had. (A pox upon you unscrupulous ones!)... And that on the whole the current generation is pretty morally straight—(physically strong and mentally awake; too—our Boy Scout motto).

Mudville Mutterings

Spirit Plus Webbed Feet

By Don Sapp

Village newcomers are getting an early explanation for our community's sub-title "Mudville"; all it takes is a good rain and it becomes rather obvious. These new arrivals however, to be vulgar "Ain't seen nothing", they should have been here when the roads weren't paved, those were the days which required the true pioneer spirit plus webbed feet.

Speaking of newcomers, we want to take this opportunity to welcome the four newest arrivals to the village: Mr. and Mrs. Bob Lewis, and Mr. and Mrs. Dick Bennet. The Lewis' have recently returned from Paris where Bob was attending the Sorbonne. He is now instructing French here at the University. The Bennets recently arrived from Tenny's Circle where they have been sweating it out for a village apartment. Dick is majoring in journalism.

Crime has reared its ugly head in these parts: this time it's a bicycle theft. James Ewart tells us that his bicycle, which is his only means of transportation, has recently been stolen. James doesn't beleive that the theft was committed by anyone living in the village nor do we, but he is naturally very anxious to know who did steal it.

This is the sort of thing that gives a nice community a bad name. A word to the wise should be sufficient, if you have a bicycle or anything else of value that you normally leave out of doors it might be a good idea to lock it. You never know when some low foreign matter may appear after dark.

The lonesomest man in town right now is probably Don Koonzie. Don's vacation is over but Margie's isn't. She's still in Asheville with Don Jr. visiting her family. That's a cruel thing to do, make a man eat is own cooking.

Actually Margie wasn't well enough to make the trip back with Don, but we hope she'll be well soon.

A Rousing Welcome for Mr. Seif

Dear Sir:

Aside from the fact that I am naturally suspicious of anybody who ponders Proust, it is with the wildest lack of enthusiasm that I greet the reappearance of Morty Seif on the DTH columnist scene.

Seif, who admits with no sort of blush that he was "a fashionable craze back when" (back when it was fashionable to be crazy, one may presume), and who furthermore "just loves to be ferocious," leaves me deeply unimpressed. In his introductory column Mr. Seif deals adequately, if not intelligently, with Mr. Seif and with the sweetly sick memories bestirred by his return to dear old alma mater. My impression when I had finished was that Mr. Seif cherishes a great deal of affection for Mr. Seif.

If we are to see the fruits of a fabled "vindictive pen", that's fine. If we are to have any repititions of today's (Jan. 12) column, let's leave the field to the estimable, somewhat, Messrs. Gerns, Sain and Giduz.

Sigsbee Miller

'Too Anguished'

Dear Sir:

From Mr. Shanker's letter may we conclude: (1) he is to anguished and mad to see straight, (2) he has seized upon the NAM as a convenient scapegoat for the inflation that nobody seems able to stop?

Why the NAM? Don't motor companies sell cars far below demand prices and even try to lower them further? Hasn't General Electric recently announced a reduction in prices? Do the shoe manufacturers make up the whole NAM?

Don't U. S. government agencies themselves push up food prices by exports of food, however necessary, but especially by sudden large purchases for export instead of spread buying? Aren't farmers receiving high prices? Hasn't the volume of money and credit been tremendously expanded by government war spending—creating an inflationary pressure? Didn't Mr. Shanker or his friends deal in the black market and make a mockery of price controls? Although it seems certainly true that those that though prices wouldn't go up much were wrong, just how does the NAM merit all the blame?

Commies Ignored

Paris, Jan. 14 —(UP)— Regardless of an impending Communist boycott, the French national assembly will meet tomorrow on schedule.

After failing to get their candidate elected to the first vice presidency, Red leaders tonight walked out of the Assembly hall in a body. However, the other delegates finished the business at hand and then adjourned.

One spokesman for the patriotic delegates told newsmen that the assembly would function with or without the Communists. He explained that if they are not replaced, business would just continue without their "assistance."

'Quickie Way'

Language Method 'A Racket'

New York, N. Y. (I.P.)—The so-called "Army-method" "quickie" courses for the teaching of foreign languages ha reached the proportions of a major racket, according Professor Ephraim Cross, of the City College Roman Language Department.

Large-scale training of diplomats and business executives through the short-cut conversational courses now being offered throughout the country constitutes a growing threat to world understanding and peace, Professor Cross pointed out.

Professor Cross, whose writings on language study in the armed forces were cited by the Office of War Information during the war, has received acclaim from leading language authorities, both civilian and military, for his work in exposing linguistic frauds.

"Catchwords like "Army methods' and 'intensive' have been wildly and indiscriminately broadcast on a confused and credulous public," asserted Professor Cross. He pointed out that even trained linguists could not hope to learn an unfamiliar foreign language in less than a year. In spite of this some conversational courses hold out the promise of a working knowledge of a language to the layman within a matter of weeks.

"Even during the war," Professor Cross declared, "high-speed conversational courses were found inadequate for military intelligence work. They were able to serve only the purpose of the combat soldier who needed to know how to ask for road directions or other simple information.

"In ordinary peacetime travel, a superficial fluency, such as that gained from "quickie' courses is bound to lead to confusion and misunderstanding. The stud gets a false idea of his abilit use the language and his und standing of it may lead to seri difficulty for him."

Behind the boom in abbrev ted language courses, accord to Professor Cross, is a sm group of unscrupulous lingu "who see an opportunity power."

Millerless Carolina Basketballers Face NYU In Garden Tonight

Back Tracking In Sports

with

Morty Schaap

Never a Dull Moment

Now that the initial shock of the announcement that Bill Miller has been declared ineligible to play any more basketball for the White Phantonms has worn off, we can settle down for moments of sitting and "sweating it out." Meaning that we can just wait for the scores to come in for the NYU game and Temple on Saturday.

Even though there is no cage action here over the weekend, there is still plenty of action for sport's enthusiasts. This afternoon at 4:15, Coach Dick Jamerson will take the wraps off of the 1948 version of his Blue Dolphins. The swimmers have been working long and hard in preparation for this season. This afternoon they meet a strong Florida Gator team that should prive mighty tough to handle. However, Jamerson has great potential material and if they produce in the manner that they are capable of, this might be the best squad that has represented the University.

Saturday afternoon Coach Chuck Quinlan will unveil his wrestling squad. The opposition will be furnished by the Gobblers of VPI, and Quinny is hoping that his club can carve themselves some drum-sticks before the afternoon is over.

To add to the hangover of the weekend whirl will be Tuesday night's World's tennis championship play in Woollen gym. Not enough can be said about the calibre of the players on this tour as each is a champion in his own right. If you haven't got your ticket now take a trip down to Woollen and purchase yours while good seats are still available. Incidentally, those students who don't believe the greatness of this tour, tune in to WDUK at 1:30 this afternoon and listen to Coach John Kenfield and Captain Vic Seixas of the Tar Heel tennis team.

Jayvees Journey

With the varsity basketball team on the road the junior cagers also take to the highway this week. Last night they engaged Louisburg Junior college at Louisburg and tomorrow night they head for Duke to seek revenge for the only blotch on their schedule. This game will be played as a preliminary to the Duke-Clemson, Southern Conference clash. Not including last night's game the Tar Heel Jayvees had won seven out of eight which is a great tribute to all the men on the squad and the coaches. If sufficient interest is shown in other sports, Jayvee and freshmen teams will be organized too. In fact, some "B" team meets are scheduled for the winners.

Track Notes

It was with amazement that we opened our eyes on the Tin Can last Tuesday afternoon. Mr. Buck Huggins and his crew had swept and scoured the floor till it looked like new. The hard wood was not yet dry when every basketball court was in use and many men were working out on the track. Now that the track is ready for use the coaches are hoping that it will take some pounding from the members of the cinder squad. There are only six weeks till the indoor games and as yet a great number of lettermen have not appeared on the scene. The coaching staff would like all the men to come down and start workouts. They also issue a special plea to any men in school who have sprint experience or who have the speed and stamina for the short distances. The way things stand now there is no one who will be able to stay up with the field in the Invitation games.

A little premature talk on this biggest indoor classic in the South indicates that it will be the greatest field ever sent to one meet below the Mason-Dixon line. This will be the sixth of the Invitational gatherings and it has been divided into three sections, Scholastic, Freshmen and Varsity. Some 25 colleges and universities will probably be represented in the Varsity competition.

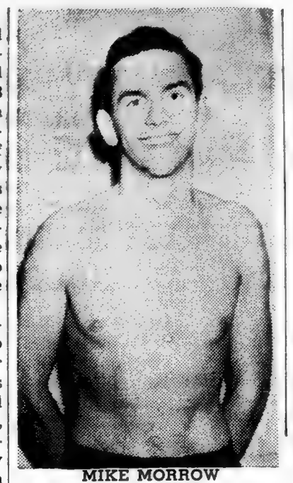
Trackmen are idle until next week when a delegation of some six men will head for Philadelphia for the Philadelphia Inquirer Meet. Those expected to compete are Jack Milne, Jack Moody, Jimmy Miller, Bob Black, Sam Magill and Bob Morrow.

Incidentally, Moody jumped 6 feet 4 inches last Saturday night to set a new University high jump mark. He had an inch and a half handicap so his total was 6 feet 5 1-2 inches which earned him a second place tie and in the flip of the coin he won the medal.

Touted Dolphins Open Season; Seek Revenge For '40 Gator Rout

By Bill Kellam

Coach Dick Jamerson will have his fingers crossed this afternoon when his highly touted Blue Dolphins open the 1948 swimming season in Bowman Gray Pool against their old nemeses, the touring University of Florida Gators, at 4:15. Not only the pool, but also the tile banks of bonnie Bowman Gray have the "New Look" today for several hundred bleacher seats have been set up at the poolside to take care of the expected large turnout.



Today's scrap is the first meeting since 1940 between the two teams and it was a dark day for the local tankers that previous afternoon for the Gators handed the Tar Heel mermen a, 51-24, walloping. That ignominious defeat was the first Bowman Gray setback received by a Jamerson mentored team and the Blue and White natators will be out to avenge that ancient defeat. Last season another Southeastern Conference team, Georgia Tech, outsplashed the locals in their own waters to break a 26 meet Carolina winning streak.

Gators Experienced

The visitors will launch a 10 man team that sports six monogrammers from last year's Florida chlorine kickers. The Gators copped two out of six decisions against the top teams of the Southeast last winter.

Late yesterday afternoon Coach Jamerson released his tentative starting lineup for this afternoon' big splash. Co-captains Jesse Greenbaum and Mike Morrow will lead 14 other stalwart Dolphins into foaming waters of Bowman Gray to battle the orange growers. Besides the captains, there will probably be eight more lettermen performing for the Blue and White in today's water fight.

Jim Thomas, prewar monogrammer Bob Ousley, and the versatile free-styler Dick Twining will compose the Carolina medley relay trio while Mike Morrow and Bob Hutton (no, girls, not the emaciated dream boy of the flickers) will perform in the 220 yard free style event. Jesse Greenbaum and Floyd Drew will go in the 50 yard sprint and Dick Twining and Steve Osborne will take care of the 100 yard speed run. Amateur champ Norm Sper and Irvin Erle are the divers while newcomers Jack Bippart and Jim Thomas, in his second appearance of the meet, will make their debuts in the 150 yard backstroke.

MIKE MORROW

JESSE GREENBAUM

The veteran Bob Ousley and either Jerry Cook or Dan Breeden were named as the 200 yard breast strokers while Ike Norwood and Ronnie Basescu will grind out the grueling 440 yard event. In the 400 yard free style relay. Floyd Drew, Allison Pell, and Norm Sper and Steve Osborne, two more double duty men, will make up the Carolina entry.

Runaway Contests Mark Action In Heavy Mural Cage Schedule

By Larry Fox

All but six of yesterday's 14 mural basketball games could be classified in the not-so-close category, while five of those rate the title of rout.

The Field House five led the runaway parade by snowing under Aycock 2, 51-8. The issue was never in doubt as victors amassed a 27-2 count at the half. Skeets Baldwin dropped in 12 points to pace the victors. PiKA 1 won the second most convincing victory of the afternoon, blasting Sigma Chi 3 by 32 points, 39-7. Chan Pegram was nigh man with nine markers.

One point behind the two top contests was the Chi Phi 2, Beta 2 fracas which the former won handily by 31 points, 40-9. Bill Crosswell and Jim White were chiefly responsible for the rout, sinking 16 and 12 points, respectively. The count was 15-4 at the half. SAE 1 and Phi Delt 2 rounded out the big five with 22 and 19-point triumphs. SAE 1 defeated Phi Delt 3, 41-19 after leading at the half, 19-10. Bill Alston of the winners was top scorer with 14 markers; followed by teammates Doug Smith and Bob Cox with 11 each. Phi Delt 2 made up for the degradation of their brothers by outscoring Chi Phi 1, 26-7.

Phi Kaps Take Tight Scrap

In the tightest contest of the afternoon, Phi Kap 1 edged ATO 2, 21-20. Dick Allsbrook of the victors was high man with nine notches followed by Frank English, Phi Kap, with eight. Two contests won by two point margins were recorded yesterday. Everett 2 beat BVP 1, 20-18 after both teams were deadlocked at the halfway mark, 8-8. Kemper Kiger from Everett was top man with 10 markers. In another thriller, Oakwood Drive topped the Coons, 25-23.

Mural Program Expands Again

At a meeting in Woollen gym Tuesday night, the intramural department managers decided to add rifle shooting and five-man soccer to their winter quarter program as minor sports, but voted against including debating on the yearly point system basis on their list of activities.

This is the first year rifle shooting has been on the mural schedule and keen competition is expected to develop. Play will be on the regular point basis and each group will go to orientation firing before they fire in matches. Capt. D. W. Loomis and Comdr. A. G. Schnable of the NROTC have consented to lend the mural department its facilities and have agreed to permit personnel to help supervise the rifle matches. A single elimination tournament will be run off.

Today is the deadline for mural managers to enter teams in the rifle shooting program, according to an announcement made last night by mural director, Walter Rabb. Approximately 20 teams have signed up for competition so far.

According to Rabb, soccer play will not begin until the latter part of February. Although the sport was played here last year, this is the first time the point system will concern the five-man game.

Coed Cagers Resume Action in Woollen

More action is slated for tonight in the coed basketball league which, according to campus beauty experts, features the most beautiful lassies ever seen on a Southern basketball court. Archer House and McIver Dorm will tangle in the 7:30 curtain raiser in the Woman's Gym.

Pi Phi, last year's champs, and Spencer Dorm meet at 7:45 in the second tilt while the Town girls and the Alpha Gams wind up the night's festivities in a contest slated to be reeled off at 8:30.

Louisburg Falls Before Jayvees Easily, 54-31

By Morty Schaap

Louisburg, Jan. 14—Not even a glass-like court could stop Carolina's red hot jayvee cagers tonight as they rolled over Louisburg Junior College's impotent quintet on the City Armory court, 54-31.

John "The New Hook" Tsantes once more was the big gun in the Blue and White attack as he tossed in 20 points, 16 of which came in the first half, to pace the locals to their eighth triumph in nine games. Hal Ferraro's one hander was hitting tonight and he split the hoop for 14 counters.

The Tar Heel juniors jumped to an early lead and they were never in danger as they sped to a game-clinching 31-18 lead at the intermission. Coach Jim Hamilton let his reserves take over late in the first half and soon after the mid-game break and they battled the hosts more than evenly during their tour of duty.

Harrington Returns

Tonight's victory also marked the return to action of sophmore guard Bill Harrington who had been sidelined since the holidays by a strategically located boil. However, Harrington saw quite a bit of action tonight and should help the juniors considerably for the rest of the season.

Tonight's victory was the second of the season for the Carolina juniors over the down staters for they swamped the jayvees early in December on the Woollen hardwood, 45-30. The Phantomettes are idle until Friday night when they journey to Durham to meet the Duke jayvees in a preliminary to the Duke-Clemson conference clash.

Swartzberg Picked as Probable Starter; Both Teams to Risk Undefeated Records

By Bob Goldwater

New York, Jan. 14—If determination pays off in field goals, North Carolina's White Phantoms may show up pretty well against the powerful New York University cage outfit in the feature clash of a double-header in Madison Square Garden tomorrow evening.

Struck by the ineligibility of a key player, forward Bill Miller, only five hours before departing for this city, the Carolina club went through a lengthy drill in the 69th Regiment armory this afternoon, during which time Coach Tom Scott worked various other players into the starting vacancy. At the end of the practice, both coach and players felt that their chances of pulling the unforseen were good.

JOHN DILLON

Tonight the "Hook" returns to the scene of his former triumphs where he will again see much action.

The Daily Tar Heel sports staff requests that all basketball fans refrain from calling the printshop for the score of tonight's game until after midnight. This will allow the long distance call from New York to be cleared through the night office.

The bookmakers, however, don't agree with them. The men supposedly in-the-know have been spotting the Southerners 8-10 points and the odds will probably swing even more toward NYU when the loss of Miller is learned. Both teams are among the nation's few undefeated teams, the Phantoms having won 12 in a row and the Violets sporting 10 successive victories.

Expected to take over at the forward position left empty by the ruling against Miller is Fred Swartzberg, 6 foot, 3 inch junior from High Point. The first-string forward replacement during the season, Swartzberg will be starting his initial game as a Phantom.

His companion at the other forward berth will be big Bob Paxton, team captain and high scorer on the team with 170 points in 12 games. At center will be gangling Nemo Nearman, second high in scoring with 102. Filling the guard slots are Norm Kohler and King Cole.

Henry Wallace Club Being Reorganized

The Wallace-for-President club reorganized during a meeting held last Friday night in Gerrard Hall, has announced an ambitious program for the coming campaign period. Bill Richardson, the newly-elected chairman, has stated that the committees of the organization have already gone to work.

Information will be provided about electoral laws and the practical problems to be tackled by progressive college students in the course of the coming presidential campaign.

The next meeting of the Wallace-for-President club will be held in Roland Parker Lounge No. 3 from 7 to 8:30 on Friday evening. All those who are interested—students, faculty members, and townspeople—are cordially invited to attend.

Massachsetts raises approximately 75 per cent of the world's supply of cranberries.

Fifty Coeds Meet Tonight

About 50 outstanding coeds from the junior class will meet tonight at 7 o'clock in the Grail room for the first meeting of the YWCA's Junior council, a program designed to train next year's Y leaders.

Chosen by personal interview from recommendations submitted by present Y cabinet members, the girls will meet weekly through January and February. Emily Von Borries, vice-president of the Y, is in charge of the program, which will be climaxed by the joint YM-YW retreat at Natural Bridge, Virginia, the weekend of February 20 to 22.

Present cabinet members will speak to the group, attempting to present a sound orientation in the Y program, both as to theory and practical problems met on the Carolina campus. A unique feature of the Y, this program is necessary, according to President Ruth Evans, because of the large yearly turnover, since coeds are at the University for only two years. Similar training programs are being considered by other coed organizations, prompted by the success of the Junior councils of past years.

From the members of the Junior council will be selected about 35 officers of next year's Y—cabinet members, committee chairmen, and others, who will take office following general campus elections in the spring.

Mag Referendum Proposed In First Legislature

Chancellor House Speaks Before Di For Inauguration

By Charlie Gibson

Chancellor Robert B. House challenged the members of the Dialectic Senate to take thorough advantage of their opportunity in the "laboratory of speech" when the Di met last night to install its new officers before an informal reception in the Senate hall, third floor, New West.

Chancellor House said that even after the campus had developed various discussion groups for consideration specifically o such subjects as international relations, world federation, and United Nations, the Dialectic Senate along with the Philantropic assembly still offered the University student his best chance to learn to express himself well in public.

Service to University

Subjects on the Di floor for argument have changed through the years from the once timely issue of whether Latin and Greek constituted a better education than mathematics and sciences However, according to the chancellor, furnishing good, confident orators remains the basic University service of this, the second oldest forensic society in the nation.

Prior to Chancellor House's talk, Charlie Long gave a brief inaugural address, thanking the Senators for re-electing him to their presidency for the second consecutive quarter. Long, a junior from Thomasville, is also an active member of the Student Legislature and ex-chairman of the Student party.

Other Officers

Additional officers who assumed their Senate posts last night were as follows: John Zucker from Riverdale, Md., president-pro-tempore; Gran Childress, Chapel Hill, critic; Joanne McNutt, Greensboro, clerk; Noah Edwards, Dodson, sergeant at arms; John Gaskin, Albemarle, treasurer; and Anne Wells, Milledgeville, Ga., chaplain.

Before cookies and punch were served to the Senators and several prospective new members, the Di passed a bill appropriating as much as $25 towards intramural debating awards to be made jointly with the Phi.

Josephus Daniels, N. C. Editor, Dies Of Pneumonia At Age Of 85

Raleigh, Jan. 15—(UP)—Josephus Daniels, veteran North Carolina journalist and statesman, died at his home here at 1:20 this afternoon following 12 days of bronchial illness, followed by pneumonia. He was 85 years of age.

A former Secretary of the Navy and Ambassador to Mexico, Mr. Daniels was unofficially known as the dean of North Carolina journalists. Until his final sickness which resulted from a severe cold, the Tar Heel newspaperman served as edifor of the state capital's morning daily, the News and Observer. He was at his office busy with daily editions until a week before his death.

JOSEPHUS DANIELS

Mr. Daniels studied law at the University of North Carolina in 1884 and 1885. A member of the University Board of Trustees since 1901, he was presented an honorary degree in law from the University in 1914.

A newspaperman always, Mr. Daniels never called himself Secretary of the Navy, but its managing editor. He wrote in his five volumes of memoirs that he could never remember when he did not have printer's ink on his hands and want to be an editor.

As Secretary he served for eight years in the cabinet of President Woodrow Wilson. His assistant secretary was Franklin Delano Roosevelt who later appointed Mr. Daniels Ambassador to Mexico, a post he held for nearly nine years. Even when Roosevelt became President, he still called Mr. Daniels "Chief".

Born in 1862 in the Carolina coast town of Washington, Mr. Daniels moved soon with his mother to Wilson where he, at 18, became editor of a weekly paper. He came to the state capital later to work for a paper which merged with the News and Observer. After buying the newspaper in 1894, he increased its circulation until it is at present the second largest paper in the two Carolinas.

Only last month the aged journalist attended a Presidential press conference and in a brief talk denounced "war mongers." He said, "If you talk about war, the people will think war. If you talk peace, they will think peace."

Mr. Daniels is survived by his four sons and nine grandchildren. One son—Jonathan Daniels—served as wartime special assistant to President Roosevelt. Jonathan is now executive editor of his late father's paper.

Truman Telegram

President Truman telegraphed sympathy to the family of Josephus Daniels after his death today.

President Truman said: "A great and beloved figure passes from our national life. The profession of journalism loses a long prominent member whose trenchant pen was active to the end in defense of every cause in which he believed—one of the last of the personal journalists who formerly wielded such potent influence in molding public opinion.

"Fortunately for posterity, he has left in vivid pages the history of the era in which, as wartime cabinet member, diplomatist and journalist, he bore so large a part.

"And so he goes to his account, rich in years and honors. I personally mourn the loss of a trusted friend and counselor."

Intramural Debate Schedule Announced to Begin Feb. 2

In spite of the Intramural council's recent veto of point awards for competition in debating, Debate council president Earl Fitzgerald yesterday outlined a plan for an intramural tournament with cups and medals still to be presented.

First round of the three-week tournament will begin during the week of February 2, Fitzgerald said. Teams from each dormitory and fraternity may apply for the tournament by submission of an entry card to their intramural managers. Deadline for entrants has been called for Thursday, January 22.

Question for debate will be, "Resolved: that the Congress should establish a Universal Military Training Program."

The meeting places and time schedules for the various teams will be announced later by the Debate council, Fitzgerald continued. Constructive speeches will be limited to eight minutes, and rebuttals will close after four minutes.

The number of teams which any organization may enter is unlimited, the debating head added. A team consists of two persons. If two teams are entered, one must be affirmative, the other negative. If one or three teams be entered there will be a meeting at which the side to be taken will be determined.

In three rounds, of three debates each, the tournament's higher teams of each round will be determined on the basis of points. One-half of the teams entered (half of the affirmative and half of the negative teams) with the higher total of points will continue in the second round. Round three will be conducted from one-half of the teams in round two, selected in similar manner. From the teams competing in the third round the one accumulating the highest total of points will be declared tournament winner.

There will be an award, Fitzgerald said, for the winning team's sponsor. This award will be given in addition to the intramural medals.

Decision to disapprove a proposal that the Intramural council offer points as well as awards was made at a meeting of managers in Woollen gymnasium Tuesday night.

Lambda Chis Select Fraternity Officers

Lambda Chi Alpha Fraternity had its annual election of new officers Wednesday night, January 14. The new officers elected are:

President, Richard Anderson; Vice-President, Fred Page; Advisor, Earle Tyndall; Secretary, William Prince; Treasurer, Phillip Hogan; Social Chairman, Eugene Blake; Ritualist, Jack McDuffie; Rush Chairman, John Dale Ebbs; Correspondent, John Dale Ebbs.

Taft Attacks Domestic Policy, Marshall Plan in Presidential Bid

Providence, R. I., Jan. 15 —(UP)— Republican Senator Taft last night made a strong bid for the G O P presidential nomination.

In a speech prepared for the Rhode Island Democratic club in Providence, the Ohio Senator attacked the president's domestic program and criticized Secretary of State Marshall for the way the European aid program is being presented to Congress.

Taft called on Congress to give the nation what he called "a more substantial income tax cut," and to help pay for it by dropping $3,000,000,000 from the president's 1949 budget. He claimed that his proposed budget cut would also reduce the national debt.

The G.O.P presidential aspirant estimates that America can stop on helping Europe by giving as much aid as can really be effective in restoring Europe's economy. He also thinks that the budget for the armed services can be altered and still make the military budget effective for national security.

Taft figures that a three-billion dollar budget cut will allow the public debt to be cut by $2,000,000,000 and still leave room for a big tax cut.

State Employees Seek Wage Boost

Raleigh, Jan. 15 —(UP)— The executive committee of the North Carolina State Employees' association has joined other groups in urging Governor Cherry to call a special session of the legislature. The committee says they are urging legislation to increase salaries of state employees to meet the rising cost of living.

The state employes group says in a resolution sent to the governor, that their services and the training needed to render the services compare favorably with those of employes in private industry. Therefore they claim they are entitled to more money.

The group maintains that low pay in state work is causing a large turnover in personnel as workers leave to seek private employment. This, the group says, is costing the tax payers the money which should be put into salaries.

Phi Inaugerates Officers, Makes Appointments

By Gordon Huffines

With the inauguration of officers, appointments to committees for the coming quarter, and the initiation of new members, the Phi assembly launched its activities for the winter quarter at the opening session Tuesday night at 7:30.

Delivering the inaugural address, after being sworn into office, Speaker Chester D. zum Brunnen told members of an organization which has furnished half of North Carolina's governors, that public discussion and exchange of ideas was the only salvation for a rapidly changing world. "We provide the setting for thought presentation and thinking ideas." he said.

Stresses Need

Speaker zum Brunnen stressed the "need for men and women trained in the processes of successful government to lead the state and nation in progress which must follow though, debate, and exchange of ideas—the skills which give the Phi assembly a purpose."

Install Officers

The following members, elected at the last session of the fall quarter, were also sworn into office: John Giles, speaker-pro-tem; Jim McNider, critic; Peter Gerns, parlimentarian; Charles Cowell, treasurer; Page Harris, sergeant-at-arms; and David Sharpe, clerk.

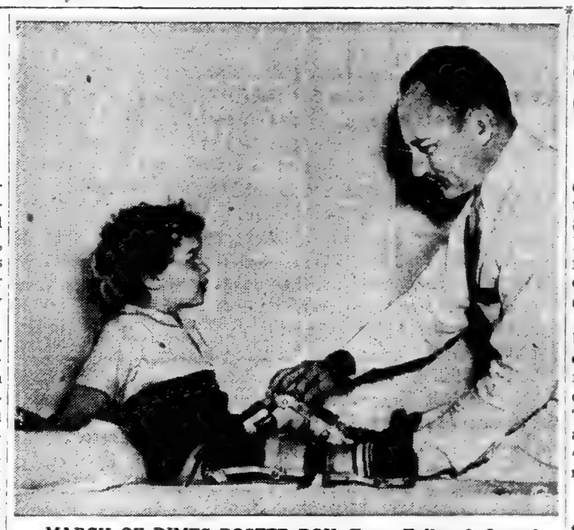
In the organization of assembly committees for the present term Speaker Zum Brunnen appointed the following representatives as committeemen:

Ways and Means: John Giles, chairman, Charles Dixon, George Rodman, Jack Lashley, Bill Duncan, Lester Sneed, and Jim McNider.

Alumni: George Rodman, chairman, Ernest House, Charles Dixon, Emily Clarie Baker, Frank Giraffe, and Ruth Bradley.

Constitutional: Chairman Peter Gerns, Winifred Ervin, Charles Cowell, and Ernest House.

Membership: Bill Duncan, chairman, Jack Lashley, Ernest House, Mintie Cantrell, Herman Sieber, and James Stanley.



Finance: Charles Cowell and Charles Britt.

Publicity: Elaine Patton, Bob Coulter, Lester Sneed, and James Brown.

Properties: Page Harris and Bryan Griswold.

WALLACE CLUB

The Wallace-for-President club has its first regular meeting at 7:30 o'clock this evening in Roland Parker Lounge no. 3. Bill Richardson, the new president, invites all interested students and townspeople to attend.

MARCH OF DIMES POSTER BOY, Terry Tullos, 3, Laurel, Mississippi, has his braces checked at the Warm Springs, Georgia, brace shop, before leaving for New York, where he will officially open the city's March of Dimes drive. Chapel Hill's infantile paralysis drive opened yesterday, and on the campus the campaign will begin next week, under the leadership of Barron Mills, Daily Tar Heel editor.

Graham Memorial Open House Tonight To Feature All-New Amateur Program

A lively five-act show, staged entirely by students who are doing it "just for the love of it" is the feature of the Graham Memorial Rendezvous open house tonight. Director of the show, Clarence Barbour said everything in the show is being presented for the first time this evening, and the performers are all amateurs. "It's something informal and light, but we think all of the students will like it," he added.

The show will begin about 9:15 and run for a little over 20 minutes. As a special treat hundreds of delicacies are to be furnished, compliments of Danziger's Candy Kitchen.

Dusty Dances

Sure to be one of the favorite acts of the show is Dusty Moore's interpretative barefoot "Slave Dance." Dusty, who dances "just for the fun of it," is a third-year student from Gastonia, majoring in psychology. Though she prefers Spanish-Latin dances of all types, she is also proficient in acrobatic and ballet routines.

Impersonator Fred Fussel, with a total of over 45 imitations of animals, singers, and movie stars, will present nearly half of his repertoire during his part of the show. Last summer Fussell performed while master of ceremonies at The Carolinians summer school dance in Woollen gymnasium.

Two Singers

Two singers, Robert Barbour, and Forrest Covington are on the bill. Covington, who specializes in art songs, will be accompanied by Mary Lib Burroughs, while pianist Herbert Reichert will play for Barbour.

Closing out the show will be Clarence Barbour and Nita Sanders in an adagio dance, listed as a "special climax" to the program.

WILMINGTON CLUB

The first meeting of the year of the Wilmington-Carolina club will be held in Gerrard hall at 8 o'clock tonight. There will be a discussion of preliminary plans for winter quarter activities.

Miles Smith Voted Speaker Pro Tem Of Student Solons

By Chuck Hauser

Legislator Basil Sherrill dropped a quiet bombshell into the middle of 1948's first Student Legislature meeting last night with his bill calling for a February 3 campus referendum on the magazine question.

The bill provides for a ballot bearing five choices in the referendum, reading: "I would prefer student fees to be appropriated for: 1. Carolina Magazine; 2. Tarnation; 3. Carolina Magazine and Tarnation, as they now exist; 4. A combined magazine; 5. No magazine at all.

Next Week Maybe

According to Sherrill, unless the fifth choice receives a majority of the votes, the top poller of the other four will be abided by when the Legislature draws up next year's budget, pending, of course, passage of the bill when and if it comes up in next week's session.

Even though the mag bill grabbed the limelight last night, elections of Legislature officers took the most of the suspence and excitement. Miles Smith, erstwhile Elections committee chairman and chairman of the University party was elected speaker pro tem for the law-making body, defeating SP opponent Jack DeVore in a close (22-19) party-line vote.

By a Hair

Steve Millikin and Pete Gerns were each retained by acclamation as clerk and parliamentarian, respectively, while UP-man Dan Logue nosed out SP-er Cam West by one vote—21 to 20.

Tag Montague (UP) beat out Basil Sherrill (SP) for the chairmanship of the important Ways and Means committee by the safe margin of 23-17. During discussion of the candidates before the voting, the classical comment of the evening was evoked from last session's speaker pro tem and former chairman of the Student party Charlie Long. Speaking of Montague, Long hissed, "I can think of no one less qualified!"

Bill Jernigan, Iris Best Are Elected Vice-President, Secretary of SP Group

Bill Jernigan, of Louisburg, and Iris Bost, of Concord, were elected Student party vice-president and secretary, respectively, at an elections meeting Wednesday night. The announcement was made yesterday by Chairman Gran Childress.

The meeting, which began at 7 o'clock in Alumni hall, also included the elections of a publicity manager and a five-member Elections board.

Jernigan, a senior, is a student in pre-law. The new secretary, Miss Bost, is a history major who transferred from Woman's college last fall.

Fred Thompson, freshman of Rocky Mount, was elected publicity manager.

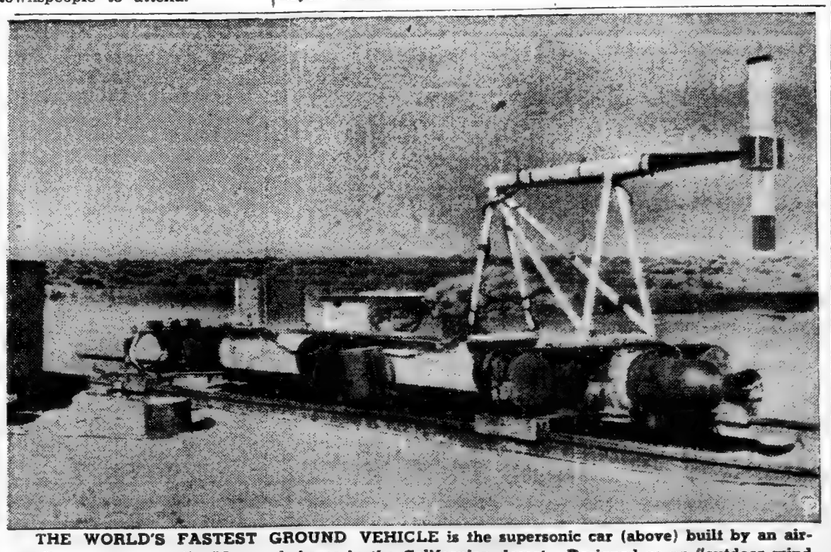
The five members of the Elections board are Basil Sherrill, Gastonia; Bob Hennessee, Burnsville; Bill Mackie, Chapel Hill; Patsy McNutt, Greensboro; and Wilbur McFarland, Brevard.

Chairman Childress also announced a meeting of the party for Monday night at 9 o'clock, Roland Parker lounge N. 3.

DEBATE PRACTICE

First varsity practice debate of the new year will be held in the Dialectic hall, New West, Monday night at 7 o'clock.

Earl Fitzgerald, Debate council president, urges all persons interested in varsity debating team membership to attend.



Teacher Classes Close Tomorrow

The last registration for Saturday classes for principals and teachers within commuting distance will be held at the University tomorrow morning, January 17, it was announced here today by Prof. Guy B. Phillips of the Education Department.

Regular classwork has gotten under way with approximately 40 registered in four courses under the direction of Professors Phillips, James Tippett, W. D. Perry and W. E. Rosentengel.

Students reporting in time for work tomorrow morning will be registered and allowed to secure credit upon completion of the work. New students should report by 8:30 at 127 Peabody building where all classes are being held.

The courses which are designed to suit the needs of teachers and administrators, will bring four semester hours' credit upon completion, Professor Phillips said, and additional work will be given in the spring quarter if the demand justifies it.

THE WORLD'S FASTEST GROUND VEHICLE is the supersonic car (above) built by an aircraft company near the Muroc air bases in the Californian desert. Designed as an "outdoor wind tunnel" on which to test experimental foils, the car is said to have attained a speed of 1,019 miles an hour, far surpassing the speed of sound. The vehicle slides on slippers which grip the rails and is propelled by five rockets, one of which can be seen at rear, center, of the machine. The boom atop the rig holds the model to be tested. The Lure of the Underground

About the nation—in Washington, New York—the legal gentlemen say that it would be a very bad thing to make Communism illegal. Such men as J. Edgar Hoover contend that by trying to legislate Marxism out of existence, you only drive it underground. It would be better, they say, to have Communists out in the open where they can be watched.

To this add our check and double-check. Outlawing of Communism would do no good. Even if we don't consider the conspiratorial lure to America's youth of an underground movement, legislation against Communism is bad. It is bad for these reasons:

(1) As an economic philosophy Communism is quite respectable. It has been espoused by more than one good man. Most of us object to Communism as a selling point for Russian expansion.

(2) By allowing our government to outlaw those who believe in Communism as an economic philosophy, we open the broad highway to a total police state. How does it sound: "You are sentenced to five years in prison because you believe in Communism." How long would it be until you heard: "You are sentenced to five years in prison because you are not a Christian."

(3) A man can be a Communist without insisting upon a revolution. Many are content to wait until "evolution" makes the world completely Communistic. They are sure it will happen. But you cannot jail a man because he hopes and believes that something will come to pass, even though it would mean the end of the government in power.

No, we cannot believe that it is consistent with our democratic theories to outlaw Communism. It is time, however, for Communists in this country (I mean specifically those in Chapel Hill) to put their cards on the table.

It is time that we, like the prospective father-in-law, ask about "intentions." If a Communist will not admit his views, can we then assume that his allegiance is to another country? (Not necessarily, but more than one person will conclude just that).

I would like to believe that the underground Communists here will object to being dominated through this country's party chief by Russia. But since Moscow is apparently making good use of Communist parties in other countries, it is not completely illogical to be suspicious.

If local Communists stay underground it will only serve to discredit Communism. Many of us believe, with Ignazio Silone (in his book "Ed Egli Si Nascose") that "the underground character of the movement offers to the weak man the important and deceptive advantage of secrecy. He lives in sacrilege and shudders at it, but this is all concealed from the world. He is outside the hateful and terrifying law, but the guardians of the law do not know it. His denial of the established order remans an intimate and secret thing, as if it took place in a dream, and precisely on that account is likely to run to ideas that are drastic, catastrophic and bloody; but his external behavior remains unchanged. In his habitual relations, this kind of weak man remains as timid, silly and nervous as before. He conspires against the government in the same way that he may be in the habit of dreaming that he is strangling his father, with whom he will sit down to breakfast in the morning." —B. S.

Daniels: Managing Editor in Heaven

By R. Foo Giduz

The death of Josephus Daniels really hurts. Many called him the South's greatest old man. . .They were almost right.—But Josephus Daniels wasn't an old man. He was 85 years YOUNG, and a more youthful, modern, and expressive mind has seldom graced the press. . .No, he wasn't old. Old folks don't have sparkling bright blue eyes and a warm wide open smile that fills the room. . .It's not easy to put into writing!

"The Rhamkatte Roaster" of the Raleigh News and Observer called himself "The Old Codger" but he never missed a new trick. The one thing everyone noticed about him was the way he kept energetically working right through to the last. The press was his life-blood, and it doesn't seem right that God should have taken him away while still in the prime of his life.

Josephus Daniels had some concrete fighting ideals for the newspaper which few men one-fourth his four-score-plus years would dare express, much less carry out as he did. . .We were particularly impressed by a few apt comments he made at the last session of the North Carolina Collegiate Press Association, which so well typified him. . .such as: "We newspapermen . . . have got to have the elbow touch with all people. . . .We must always know what is about. . ."—Sound trite? "Young Joe Dannuls" really meant it, and he's one of the few who really had the "elbow touch!"

Particulary applicable to the present-day conservative and STRICTLY DOCUMENTARY TREND in newspapers were these sincere and so-much-needed comments: "No newspaper is any good unless it does SOMETHING THAT WILL GO ACROSS THE GRAIN to fight for what it believes in. . .And something that needs betterment!". . .and more, and even truer: "THE REAL CRIME IS TO BE DULL AND AFRAID OF BEING CRITICIZED. . .A newspaper needs the attributes of a crusader!" —There'll be a few sorehead knowitalls everywhere who'll call this dream-boy malarky, but they can't prove Josephus Daniels didn't practice what he preached!

—A fighting liberal to the end, and a man who has done more for North Carolina, the South, and the nation, through his simple hard-hitting speaking and writing than dozens of present-day self-styled leaders —the blowhard "benevolent benefactor" big businessmen!

Yes, the University of North Carolina and the people of America have lost a great "young" fighting leader of liberalism at a time when reaction-rigor mortis is creeping over the world.

God bless him.—He'll be Managing Editor of Heaven.

Majority Against Wallace

By Pete Gerns

During the last two days we questioned an even 200 students to find their reaction to Wallace as would-be President. One hundred and eighty-eight students said "No!". That's 94 per cent.

This column also received a great number of written opinions. Unfortunately, most of these cannot be re-printed, since they were left unsigned by their writers.

Bill Crosby states: "I most certainly feel that Wallace in the Presidency at this time would ue the greatest victory for Soviet foreign policy in the post-war period."

Bill Richardson (a member of the Wallace for President club) feels that the question (Wallace —A National Mistake?) is an assumption rather than a fact. "I have complete faith in Mr. Wallace's abilities," writes he.

"No man," Richarson continues, "in public life today has the qualifications of Henry Wallace. President Roosevelt appointed him Sec'y of Agriculture, requested him as Vice-Presidential nominee, and when Rosevelt was elected for a fourth term, he offered Mr. Wallace any position in his administration. Mr. Wallace ultimately selecting the position of Secretary of Commerce. I am sure that the American people want to return to the kind of government that Roosevelt offered them. No man is better qualified to give it to them than Wallace."

Adding to this is Doris Friedland with "Wallace is the only honest man in American politics today."

On the other hand, Don Latta is opposed to Wallace on the theory that "the American people do not change their mind as easily as one might think." He is joined by Dan Lipman with "he is too radical."

We are closing this meager summary with E. Friedland's remarks: "Wallace is not a mistake; nor do the American people think so. It is my considered belief that he is the last best hope in America to avert fascism and war; I furthermore predict ten million voters will agree with this estimate at the polls."

This is your column. It is written twice weekly to find out and tell to the campus of your reaction to the many things that touch us daily in life. We also wish to reprint as many opinions as possible. To insure complete impartiality, we obviously cannot use unsigned statements.

Question for Tuesday: "What do you feel could be added to Graham Memorial to make it more useful as the student center?"

This Changing World

Tweedle-Dum, Tweedle-Dee

By Bill Robertson

Although there has been a great deal of talk lately about the new Third Party movement there has been a tendency to forget the circumstances which produced it. We refer to the well-known battle between Tweedle-Dum and Tweedle-Dee, between the let-them-eat-less Republicans and the let-them-eat-chicken-on-every-day-but- Thursday Democrats. Perhaps it would be well to consider some of the "differences" between Tweedle-Dum and Tweedle-Dee in order to understand why Third Party supporters consider them so much alike.

If one were to consider which party is more representative of Wall street at the present time, the laurels would undoubtedly go to the Republicans. It is merely necessary to mention leaders like Taft, Vandenberg, and Hoover. However, the Democrats are not far behind the slow-moving elephant-worshippers. At the present time Forrestal, Lovett, and Harriman, all of whom have close connections in Wall street, are members of the Truman cabinet.

But the similarities (or shadowy differences) between the Democratic and Republican Parties are really shown by their position on important foreign and domestic issues. Both parties support the Truman Doctrine and the Marshall Plan. Both support intervention in France and Italy against the labor and other democratic forces. Both parties are carrying through a program of militarizing the nation. In the field of anti-labor legislation the majority of the Democrats voted for the Taft-Hartley bill. Although Truman vetoed the bill in eloquent language last June (really eloquent language, you should read it!) he didn't even mention it in his latest message to congress.

Both the Truman administration and the Republicans must share the responsibility for scrapping OPA, rationing and price control. And, oh yes, that little matter of civil liberties! It appears that while the bi-partisan House un-American Activities Committee was in session the Negro people found it necessary to appeal directly to the United Nations!

Just Here

Shall We Bolt Against Exams?

By Larry Berry

We tend to think about the diploma as an inside road to success, which it is not. It is the outer symbol of the student's changed and broadened view toward life and his place in this life. I realize this is boring, but I wanted to use it as an example of our acceptance of the superficial without any though of the basic meaning of things. Last week I wrote a column in which I posed the question of changing our finals from compulsory to elective. Since then a number of persons have asked me how was I going to do it. If I had the ability to change this system I would have done it long ago myself and basked in the glory with some rotten vegetables mixed in. No one student can make a change in the system; only by acting as a unit can a group accomplish its goal. We accept the final and look for a change to come about through the work of some other fellow, but it just does not happen that way. I have talked with some members of the faculty and they just don't see how we can survive without the final. People just don't see things—you have to show them. The decision could be left, in desperate circumstances before the "Supreme Court" of the general student body; that is, all the students could refuse en masse to take finals. I hope we do not have to be that radical concerning the problem.

In the past I have tried to bring out some of the problems needing attention on the campus. Results have been nil. We just go on and accept. Student Government still plods on in its weary manner, waiting for more interest to be given it, the spirit of "Gentilesse" still rest in peace, and no one seems to care about a good Publicity committee. Forever we wait around for "George" to do it and continue our acceptance of all prevailing conditions without question; that is, unless we wish to be regarded as crackpots. Speaking of crackpots I guess Columbus was one on the most cracked; he refused to accept the dogmatic assumption of the majority that the earth and all therein was flat, including many heads!

What does all this mean? It means that support for either of the old parties will lead to defeat for the people. Under such circumstances, it is obvious that support given to Henry A. Wallace—an honest and forthright liberal and an open enemy of Wall street—will speed up the movement of the American people toward democratic political power and, with it, lasting peace and prosperity.

Carolina Merry-Go-Round

Long Begins Political Review

By Charlie Long

Once again the heading Carolina Merry-Go-Round comes out of the editors' waste besket, and will probably return there very soon. As another in the long line of writers of this column I will try to give an edit review of the campus politicial and governmental picture. It is past time that the student body get a detailed picture of what goes on behind the scenes, in the caucus rooms and at committee meetings. For what does happen and how it effects you as a student at Carolina follow the Merry-Go-Round.

Quietly fought, but important nonetheless was the battle during the past week over the Intramural Debate program. Earl Fitzgerald, heading the Council, proposed a complete program in debating to give the campus a chance to participate in activities other than sports and also to build interest in debating, looking to future varsity activity.

The program called for a schedule with awards and intramural credit points. This plan went to the intramural managers and there met a stone wall on the issue of credit points from a very important faction on the campus namely the fraternity bloc. The main argument seemed to be that debating wasn't a valid intramural activity that could receive points.

This, to most people, is a pretty thin argument used to cloud the more important motive that they just don't want debating, period.

Personally I think that the fraternities do want debating and are not afraid to risk their chances of winning the Intramural Trophy but, their representatives have certainly given them a black eye in the view of a lot of campus people. Maybe they will try to pick more all around managers hereafter. At any rate, Fitzgerald says that the program will go ahead as scheduled, though it is badly handicapped. Credit should go to Coach Rabb and his staff who did everything they could to make intramurals more complete.

Legislature

Grist for the legislature mill this session will be the long-fought magazine issue. The two editors, Hodgson and Jackobson, after wasting student money in childish arguments over personalities seem to have reached an agreement in the face of an impending legislative purge of one or maybe both of their pet babies. Weather signs point in the direction of either a merger or the cutting out of one or the other. Either one will be painful to our budding literatti but, the budget can't stand up under two magazines, especially when you realize that they could be combined. The legislature Ways and Means Committee, acting on a steady rumble which threatens to become a roar, is considering a bill which will call for a campus-wide referendum on the question so that the students can say which they prefer.

Personally I'm for a referendum. It's student money and they have the right to say how it will be spent. Also, judging from the past, the legislature doesn't seem to be able to do their picking for them. The bill as written, will call for a vote as to which magazine the students want—hope it will also include the question of merging the two.

Redistricting

Another sure fight in the legislature will come over the districting bill. As originally ed, the bill called for the br down of the campus into sm legislature districts with no than five representatives to a di trict. Under the old syste town and dorm legislators, stud ents have had to pick eight ten men from a field of thirt or forty candidates. This has prov en to be a hopeless task as no on could be expected to know third of them well enough to vot for or against them.

The results that you do get a shown every time that augu body meets. Some of the cand dates elected haven't the vague idea of what the legislature let alone what it does. Typical this was the explanation of newly-elected legislator to freshman, as to what the positi of legislator means, "Its just honorary position kinda like class office and I doubt if it even meet this quarter."

Playing It to the Chapel Hilt

Off to Planet 89, Sigsbee

By Morty Seif

The first artificial sky was produced in Munich in the year 1925. Six other German cities soon followed suit, and erected their own planetaria. How many of these planetaria still exist perpendicular to the earth it would be hard to say. We Americans, with our mania for dissecting, and the Russians, with their craze for collecting, both on a very large scale, may have reduced the number of these spurious universes.

The Adler Planetarium in Chicago was the first of its kind in America. Three others have been built in the United States. The one in Franklin Institute at Philadelphia was donated by Samuel S. Fels. The former Governor Griffith of California provided the wherewithal for the one in Los Angeles, and Charles Hayden was the star-lover responsible fo rthe planetarium opened in 1935 in New York, next to the Museum of Natural History.

When the heavens are securely included within Mr. Morehead's earthly edifice, this seat of learning and yearning will cease to be the University of North Carolina. A trend observable for the last 30 years or so in Chapel Hill will culminate, appropriately enough, in a starry blaze of glory. This institution will have finally evolved into the University of North Carolina. Its ever-widening boundaries will be limited only by the current concepts of infinite space.

Carolina is taking another step forward—and upward.

Its importance as a regional center of culture in the nation will be superseded by a more exalted position among the universities of the world. Scholars will have still another reason to flock here in numbers. Fathers will no longer be able to base their choice of a university on "political expediency," as old man Gant did in "Look Homeward, Angel".

"He's ready to go, and he's going to the State University, and nowhere else. He'll be given as good an education there as he can get anywhere. Furthermore, he will make friends there who will stand by him the rest of h life."

I wonder if the old stonecutter would have been satisfied if he knew his son Eugene (alias Tom Wolfe) had turned out to be a writer instead of a great statesman.

The University, in assumi new proportions, will also fi itself vexed by problems arisi from its enlarged significanc I'm warning all you bright young astranomers to get on the band-wagon early. Personally, I don care for the dry climate of Ma and am making application th very minute to head Universit Extension on Planet 89 of t Centaurus III System, where m dear friend Sigsbee would n doubt love to see me!

The Feminine Touch

FOR THOSE WHO dread the thought of long winter nights at home, and strive for a stimulating night of chills and thrills, the current coed basketball tournament which cavorts its way up and down the Woman's gym each Tuesday and Thursday night is strongly advised. Though it may not be basketball at its best, the girls play with the fervor and vigor of their male cage colleagues, and if nothing else, achieve an evening of healthful exercise.

The girl's game is played in a slightly different manner than the lads do, as each team has six members instead of five, three of each team confirmed to playing on each half of the court. This prevents the coeds from advancing to the tongue-hanging-out stage by allowing half the team to rest while the other half is doing battle with the enemy and thereby keeps maim at a minimum. Of course, this means that only the three forwards get a chance to score for the old school, but the team spirit and sisterly do-or-die keeps the chastised guards from losing all interest in the game.

The current coed tourney is being run, according to Miss Frances Burnes, the tournament head, on a modified robin-round basis, which boils down to the fact that nobody, except Miss Burnes, knows who plays who next, but it's all in funny anyhow and an eventual winner has been promised.

Ruling the Roost

THE GIRLS HAVE a few other rules that are not in male competition. It seems that once a girl has the ball in her hands, her opponent can do nothing but extend hands and arms and violently wave them at the ball handler, and accompany this action with a silent prayer she doesn't score. This prevents the knocking of the ball from anyone's hands or tying up it in similar fashion. The danger of long finger nails makes its rule a necessity. Thus, a big girl standing under the basket is in a world of her own, and can only missing scoring by throwing the ball over the backboard, for once she lifts the ball high into the ozone, her defendents are powerful to stop her.

Still the girls get their rough work in when the ball rolls free of a pair of guiding hands, and there constantly occurs lovely pile-ups of limbs and forms, or better said, pile-ups of lovely limbs and forms. The ladies seem to enjoy their game with a little spice and vim, and acrobatic achievements as rarely seen elsewhere are a common occurence.

Cream of the Crop

SOME OF THE COED performers are of top-notch quality though Miss Burnes states she doesn't think the majority of the girls have reached their peak because of the earliest of the season. Among the better players on the circuit is Scotty Dellinger of the CICA who has more shots than Spanish 3 has sections. She, along with other big point getters like Bill Lloyd of the Pi Phis and K. D. Durham of Chi Omega, can throw that ball up from any place, any time, the fascinating attraction being the number of shots that reach the proverbial mark.

Not that all of the better players in the tournament are offensive players, for there are defensive stars to be found who will rivalling even the hawking of Norman Kohler of the Scott organization. One young lady who exhibits among other talents an outstanding defensive ability is Peppy Lucas who the Tri Delts are plugging for All-Something honors this season. Rumor has it that autographed pictures of these and other tourney stars may be obtained through the Woman's Gym.

One can not very well discuss basketball of any kind these days without touching on officiating, and the coeds have the closest calling that has been seen this year. You can't get away with a thing, which improves the game from both player and spectator point of view. The girls do their own calling, which means they call them close in order to profit by "doing unto others as you would have, etc."

All of which goes to prove that the Woman's intramural department like its brother organization, is conducting a full and well-rounded intramural program for the health and enjoyment of coeds at the University.

And with the apparent success of the coed basketball tournament thus far, it seems that indoor sports are here to stay.

Kaufman, Schayes Star For Victors; Scholbe Nets 10

By Bob Goldwater

Madison Square Garden, New York, Jan. 15—I was at Texas, too.

The Violets of New York University gave the visiting Tar Heels of the University of North Carolina a 63-34 lesson in the art of plain and fancy basketball here tonight to break the Southerners' winning streak at twelve before 18,479 cheering fans.

The Tar Heels threw an extreme case of stage fright in the open half and after enjoying a short 2-0 lead at the start of the game, fell before an avalanche of Violet baskets that ran the tally to 15-2 at the 10-minute mark from which deficit the Carolina lads never were able to recover.

Miss Miller

It was obvious that the North Carolina team missed its big forward, Bill Miller, but it would have taken more than Miller to have kept the Tar Heels in the ball game.

It was definitely just "one of those nights" when everything went wrong for the Chapel Hill entry. They missed long shots, short shots, and were especially erratic on the foul line. The Scottmen missed 7 or 8 foul tosses in the opening half alone.

In other departmnets the Tar Heels were equally hapless, as their defense which had rated as one of the toughest in the nation, failed to baffle the New Yorkers.

Scholbe Star

There was one bright spot in the first half and at one point, all but put the Scottmen back into the ball game. Scholbe lead the Southern offensive with 10 ponits.

For the winners, Schayes and Kaufman set the pace, tallying 15 and 14 points respectively. But the NYU victory was a team one with all hands joining in in the closing minutes of the game to put the Tar Heels to further rout.

As stated, the Carolinians took a brief lead after 10 seconds of play when Norm Kohler hit with a set shot from the outside. After this the losers didn't get another point until 11 minutes later when Paxton dropped a foul shot to bring the score to 15-3. The Violets meanwhile, with Lumpp leading the way, had gathered six field goals and three charity tosses to gain their vantage point.

John Dillon was the next Tar Heel to break the NYU defense when he dropped a hook at 15:10 while the Violets had pushed the tally to 25-5. Kaufman added a combination of four points after this, which Thorne and Scholbe matched with a pair of field goals, but Kaufman came back for two more goals in the last 50 seconds and the New Yorkers went out enjoying a 29-9 lead.

Second Half Spurt

At the start of the second half the Tar Heels rallied and almost regained themselves. Paxton hit a layup and Kohler added a set while the best NYU could do was tally a foul toss. Scholbe droped a one-hand at this point and the Tar Heels drew to 30-16. Lumps scored a foul therafter, but Nearman, Kohler, and Paxton dropped successive free throws and the Scottmen drew to within 12 points after three minutes had passed.

Danny Forman tallied a field goal for the Violets a minute later, but Scholbe discounted this bucket with a similar effort and the Tar Heels trailed 34-22.

Eligibility Pins Grappler Captain

Irv Zirpel, Southern conference wrestling champion in the 155 pound class and co-captain of the '48 Carolina wrestling crew, was declared ineligible to compete in Southern conference competition yesterday by the faculty eligibility committee.

Zirpel's eligibility ran out as a result of his government and war service. The conference ruling is that participants are allowed to compete in conference events for five years from the day they enter the University. Extra time is allowed to make up for time spent in the service.

However, Zirpel served in the government during the war after he was turned down by the army. Later he was accepted by the army and his eligibility time was extended. He was not given an extension of time for his government work.

The announcement of Zirpel's ineligibility was a hard blow to the mat squad which was already suffering from lack of men.

Despite the setbacks suffered, Coach Chuck Quinlan's squad continued preparations for their first meet of the season against VPI Monday night.

Slated to get the starting positions in the opener are Doug Thompson, Tom Urquhardt, Bill Kemp, and Oscar Gupton. Phil Kemp or Carroll Fisher will open in the 145-pound division. In the 128 class it will either be Gollier Cobb or Bill Wilson. Carl Simpson or John Stoff will start in the heavyweight class.

Mermen Swamp Gators, 53-22; Sper, Twining Spark Locals

Carolina's highly publicized Dolphins proved to several hundred spirited aquactic enthusiasts yesterday afternoon that they didn't take their profuse pre-season press notices too seriously for, much to the onlookers approval, they easily swamped Florida's band of scrappy Gators, 53-22.

Graceful Norm Sper of the Dolphins and orangeman Billy Pepper crawled and jumped off with the individual scoring honors, as each emerged with a pair of first place laurels which were good for ten points apiece. Dick Twining, the stellar free-styler, also showed that a two-year stint in the army hadn't rubbed any of the shine off his flashy wartime form for he turned in two speedy sprints in his portions of the medley and free-style relays.

The locals' performance in the first event, the 300-yard medley relay, indicated the general trend of the afternoon's latter events. Twining, Bob Ousley, and Jim Thomas composed the Tar Heel trio that splashed away with the relay's honors. Billy Pepper, a hot Gator natator, came right back to bring the visitors to within striking distance of the Carolina mermen by nosing out co-captain Mike Morrow for first place in the 220-yard minor marathon.

Ice the Meet

It remained for Floyd Drew and co-captain Jesse Greenbaum to put the meet on ice for the Dolphins by copping the 50-yard sprint. The speedy duo finished first and second, respectively ,as they nosed out their Floridan foes in the meet's most hotly contested race.

"Smiley" Sper lengthened the Carolina lead by turning in a capable performance on the diving board. Irvin Erle had tough luck with several of his jumps but he still managed to take the runner-up spot.

Bill Pritchard proved that he was the hustlingest member of the Dolphin squad when he was disqualified from the 100-yard free-style for making three false starts.

Jerry Cook paced himself nicely to run off with first place in the breast stroke. Dan Breeden burned himself out with a fast early place but he still managed to finish second place.

Jamerson Dunked

Coach Jamerson, who had been baptised by his jubilant charges at the meet's conclusion, damply thought that "they did well for an opening meet. However," the soggy Dolphin mentor continued,

Jayvees Face Duke Tonight In Bull City

Carolina's jayvee cagers will journey to Durham tonight to try and avenge the only blot on their season's record. The Duke juniors pulled the trick about two weeks ago in Chapel Hill by a 41-39 count.

Otherwise, the men of Jim Hamilton have won eight contests. The Tar Heel team will have the services of Bill Harrington again and his aggressive style of play was missed in the last Blue Devil encounter. The game at Duke's Indoor gym will be a preliminary to the Duke-Clemson Southern conference tilt.

John Tsantes will again lead the Chapel Hillians into action and this lad from Wilmington has been devastating from the pivot position with his shooting and his passing. He will receive offensive aid from Thorne Gregory and Hal Ferraro, Bill White and Charlie Thorne will open at the guard positions and each of them is a deadly set-shot. Pete Peters will round out the starting five and he is the keyman under the boards.

A third game is scheduled for the juniors as they travel to Charlotte Saturday to take on the Queen City extension of the University.

AP Picks John Lujack Male Athlete of Year

New York, Jan. 15 — It was announced by the Associated Press today that Johnny Lujack, All-American quarterback from Notre Dame, as the outstanding male athlete of the year in their annual poll.

Tennis star Jack Kramer, who will appear in Chapel Hill Tuesday night, and Joe DiMaggio were runners-up.

With only three days remaining in which students and other tennis fans may purchase tickets to the Jack Kramer-Bobby Riggs match here on Tuesday, approximately 2600 tickets are still available.

Tickets are on sale at the YM CA, the athletic office ticket window at Woollen gym, and Lenoir Hall during lunch and dinner hours. The sale will be continued through Tuesday. Tickets are $1.00 apiece for students.

The feature match between Kramer and Riggs for the professional tennis title will be preceded by a match between Pancho Segura, the colorful South American, and Dinny Pails, Australian amateur champion before he turned professional.

Town Girls Tally In Cage Tourney

The Town Girls defeated Alpha Gams, 29-16, in the only game played last night in the Coed basketball tournament as two other teams advanced by virtue of forfiets.

The defending champions, Pi Phi, won in this manner from Spencer, while McIver was taking a similar victory from Archer.

In the game that was played, Carolyn Guthrie led the way for the winning Town team, scoring 17 points, while Becky Holton got all 16 tallies for the Alpha Gams. The victors led 17 to 10 at halftime.

The evening's play left 11 teams still in the tourney as the result of three forfeits thus far.

The Woman's gym announced that the Basketball Club meets every Monday and Wednesday at 4 o'clock in the gym. All girls who are interested in joining the club are invited to attend.

Lewis, Phi Delts, Betas Pace Mural Basketball Play

The intramural basketball program whipped into high gear yesterday with a total of 27 games being reeled off in both afternoon and evening sessions.

Lewis No. 3 rolled up the largest tally of the day in defeating Alexander No. 1, 57-37, in the highest scoring game of the season, but Phi Delt No. 1 took their contest from SAE No. 3 by the biggest margin, winning 53-8.

Gridder Ken Powell was the individual leader for the entire spread as he rolled up 28 counters to pace Beta No. 1 to a 46-17 win over Lambda Chi.

Other Games

In other games, Hillers took Mangum, 41-39; Ruffin No. 1 dropped Hut No. 26; the Fire Balls downed the Sky Scrapers, 37-25; Kap Sig No. 3 took the measure of Beta No. 3, 30-10; and Zeta No. 2 outclassed Sigma Nu No. 2, 37-13.

Elsewhere, Pi Lam scored but 12 points, but nipped ATO No. 1 who got but 11; AVC tripped BVP No. 2, 32-11; the Geology Department outlasted the Wesley Rockets, 28-14; powerful Grads overwhelmed Graham No. 1, 40-12; and Stacey had too much for Alexander No. 2, 39-28.

Evening Contests

In several other games, Kap Psi No. 1 nosed out Sigma Chi No. 2, 16-15; Chi Psi No. 2 showed Phi Gam No. 1 under, 43-7; the Med School proved too much for Emerson, 28-18; Sigma Nu No. 1 beat Zeta No. 3, 25-18; and KA No. 2 routed DKE No. 2, 22-6

The evening sessions saw Chi Phi No. 3 ride over AEPi, 17-11; Sigma Ep No. 2 felled ZBT, 32-22; the Underdogs romped through the Law School, 29-13; the Mud Dobbers sneaked by

SMOKE ENGULFS DOOMED ARMY FUNERAL SHIP. THIS AIR VIEW shows the U. S. Army funeral shop, Joseph V. Connelly, almost entirely hidden in smoke clouds after it had been abandoned by its crew of 46. Fire broke out in the engine room during a heavy gale, as the ship was some 900 miles off New York headed for Antwerp with 5,000 caskets for American war dead. Two Army transports, which sped to the rescue, saved the crew members, who had for nine hours been buffeted about in lifeboats. (USAAF Photo)

CG Rescuers Hunt Missing Steamship

Norfolk, Va., Jan. 15 —(UP)— A Coast Guard cutter from Norfolk, Virginia, and two merchant vessels are plowing their way through heavy seas to answer distress calls from a steamship about 345 miles southeast of Cape Henry.

The American-Hawaiian steamship S-S Adrian radioed an urgent call for help about noon today. It reported that shifting cargo had caused a 15 degree list and the ship was being battered by churning seas of the Carolina coast.

Truman Says New Balcony Needed Like White House's First Bathtub

Washington, D. C., Jan. 15 —(UP)— President Truman is going right ahead with the job of having a second floor balcony put on the White House.

During his news conference today, the chief executive was asked if he was going to complete the 15,000 dollar project in spite of some G O P critics. Republican Congressman Frederick Muhlenberg of Pennsylvania had told the House that the President is only a temporary White House tenant and has no right to make alterations.

Mr. Truman admitted that he is only a tenant but that he was just as much right to tack a balcony on the second floor as President Millard Fillmore's wife did to install a bathtub in the mansion many years ago.

He added that persons who feel he has no right to make changes are the same type who wanted to lynch Mrs. Fillmore for putting in the bathtub.

Other Business

At his news conference, Mr. Truman also announced that T. P. Wright wants to quit as chairman of the Civil Aeronautics administration, a resignation he has not accepted.

The president would not say whether he is against the adoption of community property tax laws in the 1948 tax bill. He told the newsmen that administration position will be explained tomorrow before Congressional committee by Treasury Secretary Snyder.

Nebraska law permits the governor to offer a reward of up to $200 for the arrest of a murderer.

-LEGISLATURE-

Long again spoke movingly when he recommended that Ernie House, veteran UP legislator, be re-elected chairman of the Finance committee by acclamation. The motion was carried.

Jess Dedmond, one of the two CP men in the Legislature, took an easy victory over Bill Jernigan (SP) for the chairmanship of the important Elections committee by a vote of 23 to 12, while Jim Fort was picked chairman of the Rules committee over Edie Knight.

The first item of business last night, after the roll-call and minutes were dispensed with, was the general campus elections.

After uneventful committee reports, Pete Gerns gave his report of the National Students association regional convention.

Speaker Jack Folger read a letter from student body President Tom Eller requesting permission of the floor during next Thursday's session to present his "State of the Campus" message to the body.

-BASKETBALL-

Here the roof fell once more on the visitors as the New Yorkers raced to a 43-26 lead at the minute mark. Then Scott inserted Dillon and Nearman into the lineup together for the first time, but the result was nil. Dillon did succeed faking Schayes and driving under for a basket a few minutes later, but by this time the Tar Heel cause was completely lost and both coaches cleared their benches of reserves in the closing minutes.

It was Scott's worse loss since taking over the coaching reins at the University last season.

The Tar Heels will journey to Philadelphia tomorrow where Saturday night they will face the Temple Owls in the opening game of a doubleheader at Convention Hall.

A crude glass furnace, constructed to make beads for trading with the Indians, was America's first industrial enterprise.

Scientists Reward Is Late but Timely

Berlin, Jan. 15 —(UP)— The German scientist who unearthed the jawbone of the prehistoric "Heidelberg man" finally has been rewarded 40 years after he made his momentous discovery.

Daniel Hartzmann was made an honorary citizen of the village in which he found the 500,000-year-old relic. However, the people of the little town did not give him a medal for putting their village on the map. They handed the scientist tokens far more valued in present-day Germany—a box of cigars, a sausage and a bottle of wine.

-MERMEN-

"We still have a lot of work to do if we're going to win the Navy meet." The Tar Heel tutor commented that Ike Norwood turned in the best 440 of his career. Jamerson named Bob Elliott and Dave Whichard as other Carolina standout.

Earth Is Perhaps 3,500,000,000 Years Old
Distinguished British Scientist Estimates

London —(UP)— The earth is about 3,350,000,000 years old, one eminent British scientists believes.

The estimate is in startling contrast to Archbishop John Ussher's 17th century guess of 5,951 years but far below the Jukes theory in 1859 that the chalk erosion in England's county of Kent took 30,000,000,000 years alone.

Prof. Arthur Holmes, regius professor of geology and mineralogy in the University of Edinburgh and a specialist in application of radioactivity to geology, made the "probable estimate" of 3,350,000,000 years in a resume of theories on the age of the earth in the scientific monthly, Endeavour.

He based it on study of radioactivity in lead, taking as a common denominator the estimates of 25,000,000 years for lead isotopes found in ores of the Tertiary period.

From Uranium 235

"We may assume," he wrote, that all of it "now present in the tree from the lead isotope" and that all of it "now present in the common granite rocks of the continental crust has been generated from Uranium 235."

By comparing Tertiary isotopes with those in the granite rocks of today, Prof. Holmes arrives at an estimate of from 2,000,000,000 to 5,400,000,000 years as the age of the earth—presumably the time at which it began to harden from the gaseous state.

But he then aims for a closer estimate by using some "better established" dates of radioactive minerals compiled by Prof. A. O. Nie and other specialists in the field. Some of the dates, for example, set the age of uraninite found in Manitoba at 1,985,000,000 years, which Prof. Holmes, said, "includes still recognizable conglomerates containing pebbles of pre-existing quartzites which must therefore be well over 2,000,000,000 years old.

"Since the earth must be older still, this figure can be regarded as a conservative minimum for its age."

Gets 200 Solutions

Prof. Holmes admits that his equations have given him over 200 solutions to the age of the earth but that there is a "marked concentration" of solutions at about 3,300,000,000 to 3,400,000,000 years.

His equations therefore, he said, "favor the hope that an estimate of 3,350,000,000 years for the age of the earth is unlikely to be seriously wrong."

Women's Clothes are
THEIR OWN
TESTIMONIALS

Fashion and wearability—the qualities that win or lose customers—are carefully regarded by women when they choose their clothes.

Because of the importance of fashion in the economic and social scheme, a knowledge of style, quality and value is an inherent part of the average woman's shopping equipment.

Manufacturers in the women's fashion industries must therefore stand or fall on the consumer reaction to their merchandise. Testimonials have no value in selling fashions. The goods must be delivered.

State Chapters Of AVC to Meet In Union Today

LOCAL PRESIDENT VAN DE VELDE

Delegates from ten North Carolina chapters of the American Veterans Committee are expected to be on hand at 11 o'clock this morning in the Grail room of Graham Memorial for a state-wide conference of the chapter officers of this ex-service organization.

The Chapel Hill chapter, under the leadership of Jehan Van De Velde, is sponsoring the all-day session, and has announced that James Crawford, of Atlanta, Ga., recently-appointed Southeastern regional AVC organizer, will be on hand to represent the national headquarters.

Local officers say the meet is to discuss methods of building the groups' memberships and mapping out goals for the organization's work in the state.

"We welcome this opportunity to get the chapter heads together," one officer said, "and we think AVC will gain a great deal form the meeting."

Chapters who received invitations from the local group to send delegates include Charlotte, Southern Pines, Black Mountain, Oteen, Raleigh, Greensboro, Winston-Salem, Davidson, Bladenboro, and Durham.

All local chapter members have been invited to attend the sessions.

SEC Offers Refund On Season Tickets

By Helen Highwater

With dance satirist Iva Kitchell and the Philharmonic Piano Quartet definitely not heading for Chapel Hill this year, the Student Entertainment committee or what remains of it at present has announced that a proportionate amount of the purchase price for season tickets will be refunded to those who bought them expecting a full complemment of five programs for the season.

All season-ticket holders have to do, according to Dr. J. P. Harland of the committee, is to send their ticket books to him in care of Box 48, Chapel Hill postoffice, and he will "cheerfully" make a refund.

No Immediate Payment

Names and addresses should be enclosed with the tickets, and the senders should note their ticket number before they release it. Payment cannot be made immediately, due to the amount of work involved in making the refunds.

The whole refund situation comes as a result of the financial difficulties of the Student Entertainment committee, which lost heavily on its fall presentation, the opera "Madame Butterfly."

The refund proceedure will put the committee even deeper into the red, but a committee appointed by Tom Eller is seeking to clear the situation, while plans are being made to handle Franz Polgar's hypno-magic program which was originally scheduled on the entertainment series. Graham Memorial will probably take over the program.

Railroad Strike Is Closer To Reality

Washington, Jan. 16 —(UP)— Possibility of a railroad strike was a lot closer tonight following a government failure to settle the wage dispute between the nation's railroads and three key unions of workers who run the trains.

Chairman Frank P. Douglas said efforts of his national railway mediation board bogges down.

Plans Completed For Press Session Here Next Week

Plans have been completed for the annual sessions of the North Carolina Press institute to be held here and at Duke University next Thursday, Friday and Saturday.

J. M. Roberts, Jr., of New York, foreign news analyst for the Associated Press and former foreign editor of the AP, will give the opening address in Gerrard hall Thursday night at 8 o'clock. Chancellor Robert B. House will give the welcome for the University.

E. A. Resch, Siler City, president of the North Carolina Press association, will preside and give his address.

At a luncheon session at 1 o'clock at the Carolina Inn Friday Controller W. D. Carmichael, Jr., will preside. The University will be host. A program of entertainment will include folk songs by Dr. I. G. Greer, Executive Secretary of the Business Foundation, accompanied by Mrs. Greer; selections by Carolina Playmakers from hte operetta, "The Mikado", to be presented here January 30-31; and a tap dance by Mary Jo Cain, member of the Playmakers.

A native of Asheville, Mr. Roberts attended Davidson College and the University of North Carolina and worked on several North Carolina newspapers and with the Carolinas bureau of the Associated Press in Charlotte before joining the AP staff in New York where he has been for the last 11 years.

Tentative Approval Given Plan to Place Double Stoplight at Postoffice Corner

By Herb Nachman

A plan providing for the installation of two stop-lights at the Franklin-Henderson street intersection has been drawn up by Frank Dieter, Durham city government's street traffic specialist.

The plan, presented by Dieter free of charge in the form of a map, was drawn up following a study undertaken at the request of the town aldermen.

Plan Prepared

At their meeting this week, the aldermen gave tentative approval to the plan. After observing traffic at different hours on several days, Keiter prepared his plan which would call for two stop-lights.

The first will be overhanging above the intersection and the second will be placed on a pedestal just to the east of the overhanging light.

Safety Island

The pedestrian lane will be placed just to the west of the pedestal light. The proposed safety island, 15 feet long and 4 feet wide would be just to the east of the pedestrian lane.

In other words, the proposed plan would add four objects in quick succession to the corner. They are from left to right (1) the overhanging light at the intersection (2) the safety zone (3) the pedestrian zone (4) the pedestal light.

Synchronization of the two signals will not be necessary under the system. The overhanging light will stay on longer than the pedestal light to allow pedestrians could cross between campus and post office before the east-west traffic begins moving.

In his statement concerning the action of the board, Mayor Robert Madrey said that a committee composed of Town Manager Ray and Alderman Lanier and Davis has been appointed by the board to study details of the plan.

Thousand Dollar Cost

It is believed that this committee might make certain recommendations for modification since the installation work would cost the town a thousand dollars.

Madry said, "We don't want to go ahead without being sure what we do is going to give some real relief."

Meantime, Town Manager Gilbert W. Ray said, "I think this

Bingo Session Will Have Extra Prizes

Extra prizes will be thrown in with the usual cash awards at this evening's Saturday night Graham Memorial Bingo session in the main lounge of the student union. Some twenty-odd games will be called by John Van Hecke, beinning at 8 o'clock.

A fee of $.02 per card will be charged, and the cash receipts pooled to go to the winner of each game. In addition, one pack of Chesterfield cigarettes each, will be given as an added prize to every person scoring a Bingo on the first number called after the game is finished.

Students Present Problems To Visiting Trustee Group

By Raney Stanford

A visiting committee of the University's Board of Trustees, investigating University conditions preparatory to submitting a report to the full board, met last night in the Carolina Inn with student body President Tom Eller and eleven other student representatives, to hear student views on current campus problems.

The Trustee committee, of which Victor Bryant of Durham is the chairman, has been meeting here during the past several weeks with administration heads and faculty members, and will make their report to the next meeting of the board in Raleigh, February 16.

Last night's student opinions on the housing problem, the crowded classrooms and the overtaxed faculty, and the University-run eating establishments, will be included in the committee's overall report.

Students Meet

Meeting with the committee, beside Eller, were Jack Folger, student body vice-president; Barbara Cashion, representing the Coed Senate; Betsy Anne Barbee, Carolina Independent Coeds association; Len Szafaryn, Monogram club; Ernest House, Traffic committee; Bill Tate, Men's council; June Braswell, Victory Village; Herb Mitchell, freshman class; Fred Jacobson, publications; Leon Todd, Interfraternity council; David Page Harris, student body; Winston Broadfoot, married students; and Earl Fitzgerald, forensics.

The trustee's group is making this survey of the campus through four sub-divisions of the main committee; and sub-committee on faculty need, one on the physical needs of the University plant and he medical school, one on planning and student problems headed by W. Frank Taylor. Taylor's group has already met with four student representatives, Jack Boraem, Ernest House, Donleen McDonald, and Eller, earlier during the school year, in a preliminary discussion of student problems.

The full committee held an executive session yesterday afternoon to receive these sub-committee reports, then conferred with the faculty advisory committee before building and grounds, the graduate school, medical school plans, and studer activities.

Mr At This Morning

The committee is scheduled to close its work on the campus with a meeting this morning to receive any matters for consideration from any faculty members.

Subjects which were studied during the group's stay here included the library, salary schedules, retirement allowances, convening with the student delegates.

Serving on Bryant's committee beside Taylor are Wade Barber, Charles A. Cannon, John W. Clark, James H. Clark, Collier Cobb, Jr., H. B. Morrow, Mrs. E. L. McKee, J. A. Pritchett, T. Clarence Stone, Kenneth Tanner, and F. W. Wallace.

Daniels' Services Will Be At 2:30 In State Capital

By Bill Sexton

Raleigh, Jan. 17—Funeral services will be held today for Josphus Daniels, 85-year-old editor, author and diplomat whose 12-day fight against pneumonia ended Thursday afternoon.

The services are scheduled for 2:30 in Edenton street Methodist church, which Daniels attended for years when he was at home in Raleigh. Buriel will be at Oakwood cemetary beside Daniels' wife, who died in 1943.

Secretaries Present

The widows of the two presidents under whom Daniels held his two highest offices—Mrs. Woodrow Wilson and Mrs. Eleanor Roosevelt—are in Raleigh to attend the services. Secretary of the Navy John L. Sullivan and Army secretary Kenneth Royall arrived yesterday.

On board United States naval vessels throughout the world and over the Navy's continental bases, flags are flying at half-mast in the World War I navy secretary's honor.

In Washington, the Navy department offered to send a guard of honor, but the family yesterday asked that only one enlisted man be sent from the Navy and Marine corps, plus a bugler for the graveside service.

Grew to Come

Secretary of State George C Marshall announced that Joseph C. Grew, former ambassador to Japan, would attend the funeral as his special representative.

Gov. Gregg Cherry ordered flags on Capital Square flown at half-mast shortly after Daniels died at 1:20 Thursday afternoon. He will lead a delegation of state officials at the funeral.

North Carolina's Congressional delegation of two senators and twelve representatives will attend the services for Daniels, who served a long term as North Carolina member of the Democratic national committee.

After the funeral today, mourning employees at his News and Observer will remove the wreath of white carnations which marked the entrance to the newspapers offices.

Cherry Asks Concerted Action In Infantile Paralysis Drive

An urgent plea by Governor R. Gregg Cherry for all North Carolinians "to join forces in concerted action to wage war aginst infantile paralysis" was before the state today.

Launching the 1948 March of Dimes, Governor Cherry, broadcasting to the state, emphasized that "in recent years the infantile paralysis menace has become more serious than ever before.

"We cannot predict what the coming summer will bring, but we must be prepared for whatever happens," he said. "We must have sufficient funds on hand to be able to guarantee swift and efficient handling every case that requires help—regardless of the patient's age, race or religion."

329 Cases In State

In the five years since 1943 more than 80,000 Americans have been stricken with infantile paralysis, and "in North Carolina last year we had 329 known cases, the largest number since the terrible epidemic of 1944," the Governor said.

"This is an increase for the nation of 150 percent over the previous five-year period and more than double the figure of any similar period in the history of the disease in the country," he said.

Children's Chairman

Appearing on the program with the Governor was 12-year-old Eleanor Butler of Morganton, a victim of the disease and

Former State Solon Stricken in Raleigh

Raleigh, N. C., Jan 16—(UP)— James T. Bailey, 69, former state legislator died this afternoon, a few minutes after he was stricken with a heart attack while showing his nephew the seat he had occupied as a member of the lower house.

Bailey, a resident of Canton, was rushed to Rex Hospital as soon as it was evident that he was seriously ill, but he died soon after his arrival.

He had visited Gov. Gregg Cherry and signed the register in the governor's office just before he went upstairs to the legislative chambers in the capitol.

Bailey was accompanied by his brother-in-law, James Elwood of Waynesville, and a nephew, James Elwood III, student at the University of North Carolina.

Bailey served in the House in 1935 and in the State Senate in 1943.

Late Permission

Coeds attending the Kramer-Riggs tennis match in Woollen gymnasium Tuesday night will receive late permission, according to Bootsie McWilliams, president of the Women's Inter-dormitory council. Passed by Dean Carmichael and the council, the ruling gives coeds 30 minutes to reach their dormitories after the end of the match.

Boom Town Campus Balkans Bloom Nightly; Poker Games? --Surely, And It's All In Fun

By Sam Whitehall

Studying goes from sun to sun but quonset hut poker is never done.

That paraphrase of the old rhyme best describes the situation in the Balkans of the campus down below the lower quad. The scene of the frequently night-long games often as not is one of the heads, although occasionally one of the sleeping rooms is used.

Of course, there is no money changing hands, probably because state law and trustees regulations specifically prohibit such proceedings. For that reason, supposedly verified stories of small fortunes won and lost in friendly" games are probably untrue.

However, anyone doubting that the games exist has only to journey to the huts any night between midnight and 3 o'clock in the morning to satisfy himself.

Study Pasteboards

There he would find groups of four to seven boys nd men studiously watching the fall of the pasteboards. Improvisation is evident as tables are placed in front of wash basins and anything from upturned bureau drawers to the real McCoy is used as chairs.

Ordinarily, the group is a conglomerate one; the individual ones change from night to night, but familiar ones crop up again and again. Although ruptured ducks are not in evidence, it is apparent from the conversation between deals that many of the avid players are veterans who paid to learn the game while working for Uncle Sam.

But there is an occasional hardless face to be seen—notifying the casual observer that one of the hut's complement of 18-year-old high school graduate freshman is trying his luck.

At times, more private games are to be found on bunk tops with only one light burning to illuminate the "spots' on the cards. This type of game is rare, however, because the other residents of the group dwellings usually object to the incessant conversation, loud laughing, and arguments that are inevitable accompaniment.

Most of the games break up by 10 o'clock in the morning and afternoon sessions are rare. The reason for this seems to be that the players must attend classes and use the afternoons to get their sleep.

Since the affairs are friendly get-togethers rather than gambling enterprises, it is difficult to understand the monthly cycle of

Death Of Loyal Alumnus Daniels Great Loss To UNC

By R. W. Madry

Josephus Daniels, noted editor and former Navy secretary and ambassador, who died at his home in Raleigh Thursday, had long been closely identified with the University of North Carolina since he studied law here in the class of 1885 and was regarded as one of the institution's most famous sons and strongest supporters. He was also one of the strongest advocates of the Consolidated University.

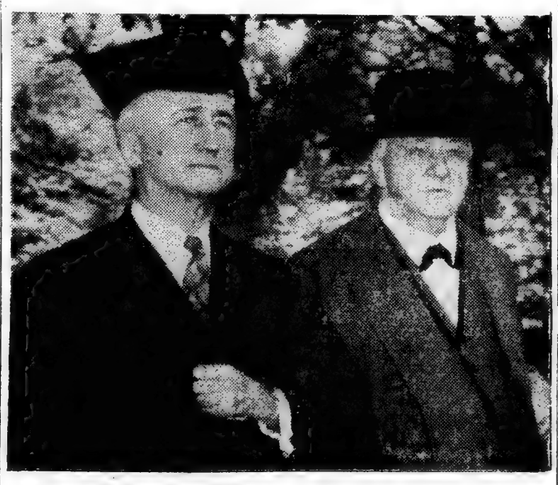
Greatly Beloved

He was greatly beloved in Chapel Hill, and will be widely mourned by students, faculty, townspeople and alumni. Controller W. D. Carmichael, Jr., and Chancellor Robert B. House have paid high tributes to Mr. Daniels and his achievements.

President Frank P. Graham, now in the Dutch East Indies, who is one of Mr. Daniels' closest friends. once characterized him as "the friend of all people of all colors and a l races."

Mr. Daniels is believed to have been the oldest member of the Board of Trustees in point of service as well as age. He was elected to the Board in 1901 and had been a member of the Executive committee for many years. On a number of occasions he had presided over the meetings of this committee.

Never Missed Commencement



He was in Chapel Hill often, being in great demand as a speaker here, and often remarked with pride that he had never missed a University Commencement except when he was out of the country.

He studied law here under the late Dean John Manning, for whom the Law School is named.

In 1914 the University conferred on Mr. Daniels the honorary LL.D degree.

Three Sons Graduates

Three of Mr. Daniels' four sons, Worth Bagley, Jonathan Worth, and Frank, graduated from the University. Two of them, Frank and Jonathan, are now General Manager and Executive Editor, respectively, of the Raleigh News and Observer. Dr. Worth Daniels is a prominent physician in Washington, D. C., and has a son, Derick J., now attending the University.

The late Josephus Daniels is shown above, right when he attended a program at the University on April 13, 1946, when James Byrnes, left, received an honorary Doctor of Law degree from the University. Mr. Daniels received the same honorary degree in 1914.

Mr. Daniels had often referred to the University as a great unifying force in the life of the state representatives of different creeds, politics, and religions stood upon the same platform, forgetting their differences and serving the whole community. He said recently that President Graham's administration had "contributed enlightenment to every fireside in the "Old North State."

Five Books Published

The University Press had published five of Mr. Daniels' books: "Tar Heel Editor", "Editor in Politics", The Wilson Era: Years of Peace", which won the Mayflower Cup for the best North Carolina book of the year; "The Wilson Era: Years of War and After", and "Shirtsleeve Diplomat".

Controller Carmichael said, "The consolidated University of North Carolina; State college, Woman's college and the University at Chapel Hill, has lost a fighting champion and an irreplaceable friend."

"The oldest trustee in the point of service, Mr. Daniels was one of the youngest in activity, in interest and in steadfast devotion to the task of building in North Carolina a great threefold and unified University serving all the people of our commonwealth. Mr. Daniels was interested equally in State college, the Wonan's college and the University in Chapel Hill, and his lasting contributions to each institution are living monuments to his memory."

Chancellor House said: "It has been my privilege and pleasure to know Mr. Daniels since I worked in Raleigh in 1919. I was devoted to him. I shall always think of him as one of the staunchest friends of the University and as one of the most constructive forces in the state and nation. I regarded him as the most thorough democrat (with a small d) we've had in modern times, and I don't know of any finer Christian.

"We in Chapel Hill called upon him often, and he never let us down.

Personal Student-Instructor Relationship

From South building comes word that 230 students were dropped from the rolls of the University at the close of last quarter because of acedemic reasons. Of this number, 142 were registered in the General College. A further break-down of this figure will indicate that the largest percentage of these students were in their first year of college work.

To the queston 'Why is this number so large?" many answers have been expressed. Many believe that the academic failures are a direct result of inferior teaching and instructors in the high schools during the war years. Others share the belief that the University still has a waiting list and what's the use of keeping students here who only slow down the rest of the class. Of those who express the latter viewpoint, few make a distinction between the playboy and the student who finds it difficult to retain facts.

But the why question is overshadowed by a more important one—"What can the Administration do to help these students?"

It would be foolish to assume that the academic failures could be attributed to one factor. Each student has his own problems and virtually a different reason why he could not make the grade. For this reason it seems that there should be a revision. A revision in the student-advisor system conferences and in the re-admission system .

We do not believe in letting a student slide along in his work until the quarter comes to a close and then yank him before a re-admission board to ask him to relate his troubles and promise to do better work in the future. This results only in a waste of time—time he spent failing courses and six months if the re-admission board declares him ineligible for a quarter. It appears to us that this method is only a punishment devise and that there should be some revisions before this procedure would be fair for all concerned.

Under the present set-up, the names of students who are not making satisfactory grades at mid-term are turned in to the faculty advisors for future pep talks. In times such as these, large classes and overtaxed facilities, there is need to build up a more personal relationship between the instructor and the student. It is true that in many classes the instructor takes the time and interest to talk with the students who are not doing satisfactory work, but this practice is by no means a practice of all departments.

It is the instructor and not the advisor who is familiar with the course and the instructor who is qualified to assist a student. We sincerely believe that the number of academic failures could be greatly reduced through a more personal instructor-student relationship.

The Proper Study -- Is Man

Have you ever felt that your education was unbalanced? Have you ever wished for time to learn something of humanity and mandkind?

Many students, especially veterans, are finding to their surprise that their education is not complete. A technical curriculum provides you with the theory of aerodynamics, or the technique of artificial insemination, but does not prepare you to discuss, understand or appreciate political science, ethics, economics, philosophy, art or drama.

A technical education provides us with a means to earn a living, but makes no provision for enjoying life or understanding our fellow man. (Or our more widely-educated wives, for that matter).

Technically trained men are taking over more and more of the important jobs in commerce and government today. Possibly this is a reason for the hectic, dollar worshiping, do-the-other-fellow-before-he-does-you pace of American living today, and for the high death rate of big businessmen.

Because of an unbalanced education, leaders of today are short on ethics and an understanding of humanity. They know nothing except their jobs and are not able to slow down enough to enjoy life. The dollar has become over-important because the modern American does not understand and appreciate the subtler things of life. He cannot take time out for the enjoyment of art, literature, and drama, because he does not understand them. Neither can he apply ethics, economics, philosophy, or sociology, to his dealing with his fellow workers.

A study of Foreign Policy, Economics of Foreign Trade, Russian versus US Economy, Latin America, would provide an understanding of many of the world's problems. It would tend to promote understanding of the interrelationships of men and society. Such liberal courses would prepare graduates for better performance of their duties when they become executives.

Post Graduation studies, recently inaugurated by A&M, are tailored to the needs of the men with the technical degree who needs to broaden his education. They may be taken by correspondence or as extension courses. This is one of the main differences between Post Graduate and Post Graduation Studies.

Some educators have favored meeting the need of a broader education by increasing the standard college course to six years to make room for a more liberal education. This method does not seem to be the answer for several reasons. In the past the need for more technical courses has gradually crowded out the liberal arts courses. Considering the rapid development of the various technical fields today it is not unreasonable to assume that the process would repeat itself in the case of the six year course. The average young college student is not only uncertain as to his future job and the needs of that job, he also is, in most cases, unable to see the need for many of the liberal courses. He considers them a waste of his very valuable time. He is probably right, because a course in which he has no interest will do him very little good. The only courses he puts anything into and from which he gets any return are those in which he is interested.

Many veteran students, especially those who had some college experience before the war, have awakened to the fact that their education is inadequate. They found there is a great need for many of the courses they thought were a waste of time. Some of these men are trying to make up this deficit by adding such courses to their course of study. The man who has already graduated and begun working does not have this opportunity. Post graduation studies have been especially designed for him. He can pick courses which will fill his needs.

"So what if she didn't show up last night! You don't think I care, do you?"

The First Week——

There's Always Next Time

By Doris Weaver

When wise old father Time handed over Baby 1948 to the care of UNC students on the stroke of midnight, January 1st, he wasn't fooled by any of their resolutions. This year, as every quarter, they placed their right hands on the nearest bottle of beer and solemnly swore to study this quarter. Sincerity glowed from each scholarly face so that for a moment they lit up like the new bow-ties.

A few days later the converted souls gathered at various geographical points to push, shove and fight their way into anything that imagination might construe to be a bus in hopes of bribing the driver to turn the wheel toward Chapel Hill.

A day passed and not one went astray from his resolution. Perhaps it was because nobody could get past the crowd to buy a book so there was a valid excuse for not studying that day.

Bright 'n early Tuesday morning Carolina's six thousand and determined young men polished their fraternity pins and turned the "Sigma Chi" side up for the first class with the ex-Sigma Chi professor. Night came and everyone of the six thousand were accounted for in the intellectual fold. We won't mention the one thousand coeds. The food lines were too long and the hungry wolves wandered across the Hill to the "Y" court and swallowed them with one whistle. One was later seen in Ferocious Finigan's swiling a coed on the stuff she never touches and giving her some grandmotherly advice in the evils of studying.

Wednesday morning gave a tip to the four thousand alarm clocks on the campus and at the chime, their owners ran to their books. The other two thousand who habitually awaken by the feel of rain dripping through the roof rather than the sound of a clock, unconsciously received a noonday suntan that day. Sorry, Mr. Socrates, your children aren't very diligent.

Little 1948 was growing up by Thursday but its guardians were growing scarce. With the coeds and two thousand sleepy men off the "faithful" list, there were only four thousand to carry the lamp of learning. The lamp was growing rather dim later in the day, however, for half of those collasped from the strain and went out for a "work out." Thus, the most promising young men in school made another promise: "Ain't gonna study no more.".

There's always hope and that's what Friday brought to 1948. Now the weeds were out and the sturdy two thousand would carry on. That was Friday morning, but nothing was seen of that last two thousand until early Monday morning. At that time, one last bedraggled student was heard to say as he took a drink to ease his hangover, "you know, I've decided to study next quarter."

When young 1948 complained Father Time merely smiled and winked at his best friend, the clock on the wall. In reply, it waved a hand a bit farther in the direction of the eleventh hour.

Carolina Carousel

Never Lost 'Common Touch'

By R. Foo Giduz

Among the hundreds of tributes paid to Josephus Daniels in the national press yesterday, we read none more aptly expressed than in the Durham Morning Heradd and beg leave to reprint part of it:

"Josephus Daniels brought to life the injunctions of Kipling. He walked with kings and never lost the common touch. . .He was the confidant of the great and near great. . .He never denied his feet of clay, but his friends thought of him as their superior in so many ways. He died North Carolina's best known and perhaps its best loved citizen. In such approbation he lives on."

—All was not beauty to bandleader Ned (the Grim) Reap, at the Yack beauty contest last week ... Handicapped through having only three of his eight musicians to play for the affair, the Dream Serenader apologized for sending in a bill for services.. He write YY Business Manager Lil Hotard:"....whatever you wish to do about the enclosed statement will certainly not enhance our future relationship..." —To which Happy Lil replied, in effece, "Why shore, Ned....No enhancement at all!" And like some 2,000 other we know, she confided she didn't even notice the music; Mme's Betty Brown & company were just too thoroughly distracting. (—but from the music, that is!)

Blood was thicker than qualifications, as displayed in the usual one-two-three-Bingo voting by the Stude Legislature Thursday....New solons caught on quickly on the roll calls and reeled off their own party's candidate with precision... All same like Congress....About the only free and uncontrolled voter in the house was UP's Steve Milliken who cast votes as he thought they ought to be .... Almost had a touch of comedy in one instance: UP put up inexperienced Tag Montague for Ways and Means committee chairman; SP put up hard-working incumbent Basil Sherrill for re-election... Forseeing a victory for Montague Charlie Long nominated two more UP men for the post in quick succession, in an attempt to split the opposition vote; however, both withdrew; nominations were closed, and Montague swept in....

And if you'll excuse the contradiction, we're still saying Charlie Long will resign from the Legislature in the near future... Could be wrong, but....

The latest presidential candidate will speak at UNC on February 17, under AVC sponsorship —Brig. Gen. Herbert Holdridge who yesterday announced he would seek the democratic nomination from Truman, on a platform proposing cooperation with Russia and opposing peacetime conscription.

Who? Me?

Students;

In the column "Just Here" of Thursday the last paragraph seemed very disjointed from the preceeding portion of the column This has led to much conjecture as to the position of Henry A. Wallace concerning finals. I would like to say at this point that my sympathies concerning Mr. Wallace have nothing to do with the writing of "Just Here". A mistake was made and a portion, the final paragraph, of "This Changing World" was tacked on. This gives me two separate endings and Bill Robertson none. I am trying to start "Ze Revolution" in party politics, merely trying to aid in a solution to the final exam problem.

Write Away

Protection At All Costs!

Dear Editor,

Yes, Mr. Editor, by all means, "it could happen here." It will be a great blow to us here at Carolina when it comes.

The Supreme Court has handed down a decision in the case of Oklahoma vs Miss Ada Lois Sipuel, and decided that Miss Sipuel is a citizen of this country and that the rights granted every citizen of this country by the constitution apply to a Negro student as well as to white students. It looks as if the Supreme Court thinks that a Negro is a human being and capable of getting a college degree and moreover (heaven forbid) capable of even studying for a law degree. There is no chance of our mistaking the implication. To use the words in the January 15 editorial, "It Could Happen Here," "The Supreme Court decision pointedly shows that pigeon-holing a Negro's application to a school which doesn't exist for him will not be tolerated by law." It seems that Oklahoma will have to admit Miss Sipuel to the white law school.

We can learn a lesson from poor Oklahoma. We don't want to get caught in the same fix. It is our southern duty to keep Carolina PURE and WHITE. I shudder to think what would eventually take place if Negroes attended our school. Let's not even think about it. But what shall we do?

It is simple. All we have to do is build a law school for Negroes. Of course it will entail a bit of expense, but that is not the problem. We must be protected at all costs! I suppose we will have to hire a few law teachers and I am afraid that good ones cost a great deal, but never mind. We cand buy some land and—I almost forgot—I guess the school will have to have an administration building, library, recreational facilities, dormitories, etc. But looking ahead at what will happen if we don't, we are getting out cheap. We will be all set then unless some other Negro gets "uppity" and wants to go into medicine, or commerce or something else.

The thought of such a trend starting gives me an idea. Why not set up a Negro school in the basement of the post office? It would cut down expenses considerably and the worse it is the fewer Negroes will get this idea about wanting an education. I think a few other states have used that technique with great success. Let's not worry, we'll think of something.

Black-Market, Total War Incompatible

Dear Sirs:

I don't want to take more than my shares of your free press which I appreciate. However, the nature of Mr. Frederick Mills reply forces me to do so. It would seem that in defending the monopolies one can't help becoming vicious. I think Mr. Mills implication that I had anything to do with black-marketing a scurrilous statement. During the war I served overseas for thirty-one months both in North Africa and Italy. There was plenty of opportunity to grow rich, I must own; but I thought such practice incompatible with waging a total war against fascism.

As for Mr. Mills "argument" in defense of the monopolies—most of whom are members of NAM—I notice he brings out no figures to supplement his statement. The profits of Ford, Chrysler and GM for example are 100 per cent above pre-war levels. How much higher can they go? The so-called demand, Mr. Mills mentions, is rapidly being met. True, General Electric cut their prices but why? When before in the past has GE acted in the interests of the public? Their profits too are well above 100 per cent more than 1946. The plan behind the calculated cut is part of the NAM strategy to rationalize the $19,000,000,000 PROFITS made in 1947—the greatest in history. Mr. Mills demonstrated that the price-cut is paying off: he has fallen for the line. And how can we be sure that it isn't a means of boosting business?

Mr. Mills obviously didn't attend the meeting last quarter to discuss high prices. It was brought out for instance that less than 29 per cent of our butter is exported, yet the price of butter is almost $1 a pound. A very small fraction of our meat is shipped abroad; yet meats are well above 100 per cent of pre-war levels. The answer: in 1947 the profits of the Big 5 packers were $10,000,000 more than the previous year.

There is very tangible connection between NAM, I might add, and the destruction of price control, Mr. Mills. In the latter part of 1946 the NAM sent out a form letter soliciting funds and in this letter they openly boasted that they, THE NAM, had wiped out OPA! And who put full-page ads in the papers saying that without OPA prices would come down, Mr. Mills?

Students, Sit Up And Take Part

By Bill Buchan

The advent of Charlie Long, campus bigwig, as a columnist on the Daily Tar Heel yesterday, will give students a better opportunity to get a clear picture of the political question on this campus, especially if Long carries out his stated intentions to "give an edit review of the campus political and government picture" and to present "a detailed picture of what goes on behind the scenes, in the caucus rooms and at committee meetings."

It is to be acknowledged beforehand, that little interest will be shown in campus politics by the majority, however, there are suckers for punishment like this writer who believe in the theory that if you keep pounding something into people's brains they will eventually wake up and see the handwriting on the wall.

The political picture on this campus today is not a pretty one. Decisions on who will run the student government, who will be legislators and hold other important positions are left up to a few individuals who meet in private and compete only among themselves for the honors. True, there are three political parties on the campus. A visit to anyone of their meetings, however, will show that they seldom have as many as 40 members in attendance and most of those are fly-by-nights. As a result, five or six men from each of the three parties dictate what is to happen and by doing so, can easily control and win elections they desire.

Many students (but not near enough follow party line and vote for their party candidates in elections. In doing so, they are merely putting their votes behind the few because they do not attend party meetings to discuss the most able candidates. That they do not is their fault. Campus politicians are to be complimented on their "school spirit" whereby they give freely of their time and energy to promote more interest among students. It is to be regretted, though, that the few are allowed to have complete power.

Only through renewed interest and active participation in party meetings and elections can the Carolina student body be assured of electing the best qualified to office. Elections for the office of student body president, editorship of the DTH and other vitally important positions will be held in April. Campaign policies are already being mapped out in party meeting and various other conferences. The only way for the little man on the campus to have any sayso is to get out and let himself be heard.

It is immaterial which party a student joins, just so long as he supports one of the three. It is immaterial which candidate he votes for, just so long as he votes for the man that he thinks—through his own personal observation and decision—is the best qualified.

If the Carolina student government is to be truly representative of the entire student body, then the student body has to sit up and take part—an active part. Or else, we can go on in our usual train of thought and be dictated to by the famous "campus twenty."

University of Southern California officials still are trying to locate the prankster who switched display cards used in the Trojan rooting section at the Rose Bowl game.

ANSWER TO LAST WEEK'S PUZZLE

The Sporting Picture

By Billy Carmichael III

Talk About Talk

THE TRUMPETING VOICES of several campus leaders have blared out of late over the refusal of the Intramural managers to adopt debating into the mural program with awards and credit points toward the mural cups being for the so-called "sport" these tooters blame the Fraternity members of the manager group for the action against the adoption, and repute that the social organizations have gained considerable disfavor through their refusal.

Now, debating is a fine activity without a doubt, but to classify it as a mural activity is somewhat a stretch of even the finest of imaginations. Mural activities are principaly sports, and debating though the exercising of throat and vocal muscles, is not quite a sport. In fact, just how to cover a big debate match might almost confuse a sports writer, who would probably though, rally to the situation with copy like:

The loose-lipped lads of Lewis Dormitory gained the finals of the Mural debate tourney yesterday afternoon by chatting out a 2-1 decision over a talkative, but outspoken Aycock elocutionists.

The Lewis team, audibly led by their star, Charlie "Chit Chat" Chapopolus, will run against serious conversion today in the finals when they battle the Gamma Gamma Gabsters for the campus title. Gamma Gamma is the slight favorite by virtue of the showing its forensic find, Mumbles Molane in the other semi-finals match.

Lewis' No. 2 man, Triple Tongue Thompson is reportedly out with a bady sprained tonsil, and is listed as a doubtful starter.

Equally bad news comes from the Gamma Gamma camp, where coach Whispers Wilson is moaning the blues. Says he "Affirmatively we've looked good in practice of late but our negative attack just isn't up to par."

Whatever the outcome of the big match will be held tonight at the gym. The opening remarks are set for 8 o'clock.

Needless to say, the action of the mural managers was not to kill the debate active between dormitory and fraternity teams, but rather a feeling by the group that debating did not fall into the category of sports covered in the current program. Maybe what the mural department needs is a Charleston contest for variety's sake.

Violet Vengeance

Carolina's disheartening loss to NYU in New York Thursday night was a crushing blow to a previously delightful basketball season. The Tar Heels developed a case of jitters in the course of the game coupled with a totally off-night to absorb the most stunning cage defeat the University has ever suffered in the limited memory of this sport department. One hopes that if this is a record, it will stand for years to come.

The crushing defeat of a good basketball team is not as uncommon an occurrence as one might think. The cage sport is probably as flucuating a game as is played today, with the possibility of a variance of up to 30 points in performance for a team from one night to the next.

The striking example of this is the Utah team of 1944 which was invited to play in the National Invitational tourney in New York, and was soundly trounced in the opening round. The Utes returned home with tails between legs, but when the Arkansas cagers who had been invited to represent their region in the NCAA national tournament met with an automobile accident, the Utah team was the only acceptable substitute. Realizing that opportunity had knocked twice, the Utes decided to take advantage of their new lease on life. They won the western division of the NCAA T-party and then returned east to topple the eastern bracket winner for the NCAA crown.

It seemed the winners of NCAA and the Invitation affairs used to tangle for the National championships in those days under the guiding influence of the Red Cross, so the Utes got a crack at the team which had beaten the team that originally annilated them. Of course, the happy ending to the story is that the Utah lads—by this time termed everything from Miracle Makers to the Komeback Kids—won the benefit board pounding and became national champions.

Where There's Life

NOW THIS LITTLE STORY proves nothing except that one basketball game or two doesn't wreck a good cage team, and that Carolina's Tar Heels have a good chance to bounce back to a successful season. The loss of Bill Miller on the eve of the New York departure broke up the locals' winning combination and it will take Scott a week or ten days to settle upon a new quintet. After playing Temple tonight the Tar Heels have a week off while the majority of Carolina opponents who operate on the semester system take an official time out for examinations. The Scottmen return to Philly next Saturday night to encount against Pennsylvania, a fairly potent opponent. After that it's back to the Hill and the opening contests of the series with State, a proven powerhouse, and Duke, an up-and-coming powerhouse. On these four games will probably rest the decision of whether or not the season is to be considered a bountiful or fruitful one.

Miller's successor at the up front spot for the Tar Heels is the other big cage question. Coy Carson took the first shot at the assignment in the Garden, but didn't quite set the place on fire. Roger Scholbe had the next crack at it and proved to be the fair-haired boy and the man-of-the-hour. He may have earned the berth for himself. Still other possibilities are big Freddy Swartzberg, a cool and hard-working operative and, then of course, there is Johnny Dillon.

Dillon and Nearman played together for the first time this season in the late second half of the Violet's vengeance, but to calculate the effectiveness of the move is somewhat difficult because of the conditions that existed at the time and the short period they performed together. This might be the solution, though.

So, it looks as if the prediction of what will happen to the Tar Heel cagers throughout the remainder of the campaign is a question capable of stumping the best crystal ball and star gazers. It is hard to come back off the floor once one has assumed this horizontal position, but still such is the stuff that makes champions etc. The whole thing bears watching.

Jayvees Defeat Duke 37-31; Phants Battle Owls Tonight

Lead All Game Avenging Early Loss; Tsantes Again High Man for Juniors

By Morty Schaap

Carolina's jayvees made up for the only blot on their record this season by defeating the Duke Blue Imps 37-31 last night in a return game played on the Dukesters' home court.

Once again John "New Hook" Tsantes paced Carolina's scoring efforts dropping in nine points to lead both squads. In addition, Tsantes passed to his teammates from his pivot position for several more buckets.

Take Early Lead

Carolina took the lead in the opening minutes of play and was never headed thereafter. It took the Imps 13 minutes to penetrate Carolina's tight man-to-man defense for their first field goal of the evening. The home team's zone defense plus Carolina's unlucky shooting held the score down throughout the contest and Carolina was only ahead at the half by a 19-13 score. This six-point margin stood for the remainder of the contest.

Midway in the second stanza the Dukesters began to threaten, but Coach Jim Hamilton quickly inserted Floyd Gilmore into the lineup and Gilmore hit for three fast baskets and a free throw to safeguard the Carolina margin.

Pete Peters, big Carolina forward, tied for second place scoring honors with Duke's Chuck Lauffer with eight markers. Lauffer counted on four long set shots—two in the first period and two in the second.

Have Won 9 of 10

The last time the two teams met, the Blue Imps won a thriller from the local jayvees, 41-39. Strangely, both teams won while playing on foreign courts. Carolina's record for the season now stands at nine victories in ten starts.

Tonight the jayvees journey to Charlotte where they are slated to play the University extension school team in the Queen City.

Jim Howard, who captained the 1941 edition of the White Phantoms, was one of the officials in the game that was played as curtain raiser for the Duke, Clemson Southern conference tilt

New Ducat Plan For Cagers Set

Several thousand campus basketball fans are going to be disappointed next month when the White Phantoms tangle with Duke's and State's cagers in Woollen Gym on February 7 and February 21, respectively. The local coliseum unfortunately seats only some 6,000 people but there are 9,000 passbooks held by students, student wives, and University employees.

So approximately 3,000 people are going to be left out in the cold, if they stay outdoors, each evening. This ducat distribution plan was formulated by the University Athletic Council at its meeting on January 13.

The plan, in its entireity, follows:

The Duke Game

1. Holders of the following books are guaranteed admission to this game provided passbooks are exchanged at the Ticket Office in Woollen Gymnasium during the period Jan. 26 through Jan. 31:

Student Books 500 through 4,500.

Faculty and Employee Books 8,001 through 8,500.

2. Any student or University employee whose passbook number is included above, but whose wife's passbook number is not included maysecure a ticket for his wife if husband's and wife's books are presented at the ticket office together during the period specified.

3. Approximately 1,000 tickets will be available after the above guaranteed admissions are taken care of. These will be issued on a first-come first-served basis to holders of passbooks not included in the above listings. The period of this distribution is February 2 through 6.

4. If any tickets remain in the office on the morning of February 7, they will be sold at $1.00 each to anyone who wishes to purchase them.

The State Game

1. Holders of the following books are guaranteed admission to the Carolina-State game on February 21 provided passbooks are exchanged at the Ticket Office in Woollen Gymnasium during the period Feb. 9 through 14:

Student Books 4,501 through 9,000.

Faculty and Employee Books 8,501 through 9,000.

2. Any tickets remaining after February 14 will be issued the following week, February 16 through 20, on a first-come first-served basis to holders of passbooks not in the above listings.

3. Any tickets remaining on Saturday morning, February 21, will be sold to anyone who wishes to purchase them at $1.00 each.

4. Any student or University employee whose passbook number is included under item one, but whose wife's passbook number is not included may secure a ticket for his wife if husband's and wife's books are presented at the ticket office together during the period specified—February 9-14.

TRACK TIME TRIALS

Coach Dale Ranson announced that time trials for all track candidates in all events will be held this morning at 11 o'clock in the Tin Can.

Ranson hopes that all men who have been working out will be on hand. The indoor season has arrived and less than six weeks remain before the Indoor games.

Quinlan Announces Starters

Bill Kemp, Captain of the Wrestling team

Coach Chuck Quinlan announced yesterday the starting lineup for the first wrestling match of the season against VPI Monday night on the main floor of Woollen gym.

Doug Thompson and Collier Cobb will start in the 121 and 128 pound classes. Tom Urquhardt will wrestle in the 136 pound division. Phil Kemp and Carroll Fisher are slated to open in the 145 and 155 pound classes. Oscar Gupton, Bill Kemp, and John Stoioff have been listed as starters in the 165, 175, and heavyweight classes, respectively.

Entering the season with the smallest squad in 22 years, Quinlan's charges will be hard pressed to live up to their past reputation. Last year, with a definitely stronger team, the Carolina grapplers pinned the Gobblers by a 12 point margin.

In the meantime Coach Quinlan investigating the possibility of having the ineligigility ruling against co-captain Irv Zirpel changed. Zirpel was ruled ineligible earlier in the week when the Eligibility committee declared that his time had run out.

Lujack Hasn't Signed

New York, Jan. 16, (UP)—Owner George Halas of the Chicaog Bears has joined all-America Johnny Lujack, of Notre Dame, in denying reports that the Irish quarterback star has signed with the Bears.

Halas says that he would ilke to sign Lujack, if he could, but adds, "I heard only today that the Chicago Rockets of the All-American Conference offered him a fabulous salary to play with them instead of us."

Earlier, Lujack, at South Bend, Indiana, denied that he had signed with the National League Bears, or anyone else. Lujack said that he has an apointment to talk with Halas in Chicago next Wendesday.

The Irish Star says his plans are uncertain, except that he does want to play pro football. Lujack says he would like to play in Chicago, but that is not absolutely necessary. Draft rights on the Irish star are held by the Chicago Bears in the National League and the rival Rockets of the AAC.

Seek to Rebound From NYU Deluge

By Bob Goldwater

Philadelphia, Jan. 16 — Coach Tom Scott's Carolina White Phantoms, disappointed by their poor showing in losing to NYU, 63-34, moved into Philadelphia to battle Temple in the first game of a Convention Hall doubleheader tonight.

The loss last night to the Violets was not only a heartbreaker because it was the first defeat in 13 games, but also because it was sustained in Madison Square Garden before 18,479 fans. This crushing defeat, like the football loss to Texas, probably will eliminate Carolina from the post-season tourneys in New York.

In fairness to Coach Scott and his invading Southerners, it should be considered that the team was playing under extremely difficult conditions. Bill Miller, regular forward, was declared ineligible just before the game, and this vacancy disrupted Scott's starting lineup. Carolina fell behind early in the game and never really did get its offense clicking.

Were Jittery

A bad case of jitters also had a great deal to do with the defeat.

Coach Scott and the Carolina supporters are hoping that with the pressure of the 12-game winning streak off, the boys will rally and once more play the steady brand of ball that characterized the team during the early season wins. Also the Phantoms will be more used to Miller's absence.

Temple will be a formidable foe for Coach Scott's charges but should not prove quite as good as New York. The Owls are led by little Nelson Bobb, rated as one of the nation's leading prospects for All-American honors. Bobb scored 26 points in Temple's 58-54 victory over Duke on this same court last week.

The Owls have been beaten several times this season, but they still rank high. Among their wins is included a 60-59 triumph over Kentucky, last year's champion in the Madison Square Garden Invitational tourney.

Entries Due Soon For Mural Handball

Handball enthusiasts who wish to participate in the Intramural tournament beginning January 26 will have to get their entries in by Thursday, the Intramural department announced yesterday. Entries may be filed by contacting the Mural office or by telephoning F-3321.

Competition will be conducted on a team basis and a single elimination type tournament will be used. Organizations may enter as many five-man teams as they wish. Team matches will consist of one doubles and two singles contests which will be of the two games out of three, 21 point variety.

The Intramural office also advised all men who intend to participate in the boxing tourney to begin working out now. Boxing coach Mike Ronman will be in the boxing room between 2 and 4 o'clock Tuesday, Thursday, and Friday to assist the mural leather slingers.

Students have showed an unexpected amount of interest in the rifle tourney with 36 teams entered already.

Mermen Work For Navy Meet In Heavy Drill

There was no post-victory celebration in Bowman Gray Pool yesterday afternoon for Coach Dick Jamerson had his charges back at work as he sent them through another grueling workout in preparation for the crucial meet with Navy on January 24.

Two of the 19 Dolphins who participated in the Florida meet were sidelined with minor hurts yesterday. Mac Erle was incapacitated by a crick in his neck while Floyd Drew was out with an injured hand. Drew banged up his several of his digits finishing his race against the Gators and he may possibly be unable to participate in the splash with the Middies.

Fourteen mermen will make the trip to Annapolis where they hope to end the Swabbies' two year victory string over the local tankers. Since 19 Carolinians performed in the Gator scrap, there'll probably be a lot of spirited competition among the team members for the berths.

Jamerson took time out from sending his charges through their paces long enough to comment that they still needed all the work that they could get. "W looked good during the fin three-quarters of each event Thursday but toward the last we'd falter and slow up. We can't do that up at Navy if we hope to win."

Thursday's win was the fifth straight for the Dolphins since they were sunk by the Navy in Annapolis last winter.

Tom Dewey Flips Fedora Into Ring

By Joan Marble

United Press Correspondent

Tom Dewey is going to try it again.

The New York governor ha flipped his fedora into the Repub lican presidential ring.

The announcement — which surprised practically no one— comes from Dewey's executive assistant, James Hagerty in Albany. Hagerty says the governo will accept the presidential nomination if it comes to him. But for the time being, at least, he won't do any active campaigning. According to Hagerty, Dewey will allow his name to be entered in the Republican primary in the tate of Oregon.

The Albany announcement explains Dewey's candidacy in nese words:

"As the governor has frequently said, he is fully engaged vith the work of the legislative ession, and cannot actively seek he nomination of his party for president, but if nominated he vould accept."

Fourth in Ring

Dewey's hat is the fourth to and in the magic circle known s the Republican presidential ing.

Other Republicans who have nnounced their candidacy are Harold Stassen of Minnesota, Governor Earl Warren of California and Senator Robert Taft of Ohio.

Taft, incidentally, has congratulated Governor Dewey for his nnouncement. As the senator puts it:

"I think Governor Dewey's announcement is to be commended. The more candidates whose names are before the convention the better it is for the party."

Other Possibilities

There are, of course, several other Republican possibilities who are still straddling the fence. Chief among these is General Dwight Eisenhower—the man who hasn't said yes, and hasn't said no.

Eisenhower got a campaign song indirectly today from a Democrat — Senator Edwin Johnson of Colorado. Johnson sent the ditty over to Republican Senator Charles Tobey of New Hampshire— an Eisenhower supporter. It starts off like this:

"Ol man Eisenhower, dat ol' man Eisenhower.
He mus' know sumpin', but don't say nothin'
He jes keep rollin', he keep rollin' along.
He don't buy futures, he don't sell cotton
For dem dat duz'll, soon be forgotten.
But ol' man Eisenhower, he jes' keep rollin' along".

American communists have opened a bitter fight to kill a measure which would throw communist party members off the election ballot.

A communist party representative — Benjamin Davis of New York—told a House subcommittee the bill is a fascist measure contrary to the Constitution of the United States. The husky Negro communist said the bill is so broad, it would permit congress to outlaw any new political parties with liberal views. In fact, he implied it would enable the government to squelch Henry Wallace's new third party.

Insults Hurled

A chill silence fell over the musty little hearing room while Davis testified. Time and again, the committee chairman asked him to stick to the subject. At one point Democratic Representative Burleson of Texas asked the witness a question. Davis puffed angrily on a cigarette, then looked squarely at Burleson and replied:

"I doubt very much whether you're legally in congress because you come from a poll tax state which disenfranchises Negroes and poor whites." The chairman asked Davis not to make attacks on committee members.

Meanwhile—another communist party leader, Alexander Bittelman—has come a cropper in Miami. He was arrested in his hotel room last night on charges of advocating overthrow of the government. Now he faces deportation as an alien. Bittelman was released today under bond of five thousand dollars.

Secretary of the Treasury John Snyder has strongly hinted that President Truman will veto the Republican income tax reduction bill.

The cabinet officer told the House Ways and Means committee that the pending Republican bill would give the country a two billion dollar deficit in the next fiscal year. He called this unthinkable."

Angry Republican committee members retorted that the President's 40 dollar a person tax cutting proposal was just as "unthinkable" to them.

Heated Words

Snyder and Committee Chairman Knutson exchanged some heated words. Knutson called the President's tax plan a political gesture, hatched in Hollywood. The treasury boss immediately snapped:

"Is the Knutson Bill non-political?"

He was referring to Knutson's own bill to reduce income taxes.

Congress got some advice from a banker today on how to run the Marshall Plan.

John McCloy, president of the World Bank, told the Senate Foreign Relations Committee that the plan should be put in a hard-headed banking basis.

"When you make a loan," he said, "make a real loan and not a fuzzy loan," he said. He added that when the World Bank hands out money, it insists on looking at the books of the borrowing countries first. He said the Marshall Plan might well be handled the same way.

Committee Chairman Vandenberg agreed with McCloy. He said half the criticism of the recovery program would vanish, if Americans could be sure their dollars were being put to good use.

However, one top congressional leader is sticking firmly to his demand that the aid sum should be cut. Senator Taft told newsmen he favors cutting two and a half billion dollars from the aid program.

Now for a glance at other news from Washington:

Republican Senator McCarthy of Wisconsin has called for the resignation of Rent Director Tighe Woods. McCarthy says Woods has failed to grant rent boosts when they're recommended by local boards.

Chairman Chan Gurney has promised President Truman that his Senate Forces Committee will reconsider its decision which blocked the appointment of Major General Laurence Kuter as chairman of the Civil Aeronautics Board. Gurney made this promise after President Truman wrote him a letter expressing disappointment.

Democratic Senator Johnson of Colorado has introduced a bill to give the Air Forces four million dollars to prepare for atomic war.

And one final item—the new medical director of the Veterans Administration—Dr. Paul Magnuson—says the American Medical Association has promised to clean out any chiselers who are taking advantage of former G I patients.

Wallace Backers Formulate Plans At GM Meeting

"Stand up and be counted," the slogan reads.

Last night a number of well-known Tar Heels stood up. Among the crowd of approximately 55 persons who attended a spirited Wallace for President club meeting held in Graham Memorial were CPU member Bill Robertson; Junius Scales, chairman of the local Communist party; John Van de Velde, president of the Chapel Hill AVC chapter; Aubrey Williams, Jr., chairman of the Southern Conference for Human Welfare in Chapel Hill, and Martha Aiken, prominent Student party member.

Former New Dealer

Projects and plans for a campus Wallace campaign dominated the discussion. Committee after committee checked in with reports of what has been and what will be accomplished to elect the controversial former New Deal cabinet member President of the United States.

Arrangements were made to distribute the Wallace Weekly, the newly founded club organ, and to sell Wallace-for-President buttons to members of the student body who wish to be identified with the movement.

The group decided, in accordance with a committee recommendation, to notify and attempt to obtain support of the NAACP, the CIO, the Presbyterian church group, the League of Women Voters, the campus chapter of the AAUW, the Negro PTA, the Carolina Dames, and the local Negro churches.

Leaders asked the numbers to write letters to the News of Orange County "in hopes that they will be printed"; contact Carolina proffessors, secure speakers for the Carrboro local of Textile Workers Union of America, and start a rural campaign to arouse interest among sympathetic farmers.

A big benefit variety show with Lena Horne and other third party movie stars are being planned. The group plans to erect bulletin boards at campus gathering places on which will appear Wallace speeches and other campaign literature.

Dirty Looks

Members were told by the publicity chairman, "The best publicity for Wallace is from members of the Wallace club. Wear your button on the campus. Pull out your copy of the bulletin in class and pass it to the man next to you. Don't be afraid to wear your buttons. The first time I wore mine I got dirty looks, but I got used to it."

They were told to post the Wallace literature even though it may be torn down by people who are not so "democratically minded."

The president of the orga' ization reported on the progress made in the attempt to get a legally airtight petition for the purpose of placing a third party on the North Carolina ballot.

On Agenda

Preliminary plans for the giant membership campus drive which will be made through the medium of personal solicitation. Also on the future agenda is the selection of a permannent meeting time and place.

It was announced that the next conclave will feature speeches by three club members on "Why I support Wallace." It will be aired from the foreign, the domestic, and the purely political aspects.

Members of the organization were also asked to attend Sunday night CPU discussion on the third party in American life for the announced purpose of seeing that the Wallace cause would not be undefended

Yeah, We Know!

Rumors which surround the games are impossible to escape in any coverage of them. It is said that one boy bought a car from the "proceed" of the practice and several of the younger players have finally quit when their debts mounted to astounding proportions.

Of course, they are not true, because the trustees rulings specifically prohibit gambling in any form.

a patient in hospitals for 24 months before regaining her health, who in a recorded interview unred the children of North Carolina to lead the nation this year in contribution to the March of Dimes. Eleanor is chairman of the children's division of the campaign.

"I will never forget what such contributions did to help save my life in 1944 when I was among 600 boys and girls, afflicted with polio, who were provided hospital care and nurses, doctors and equipment. I would be very unhappy if I thought that even one child afflicted with polio would be denied the opportunity that was given me to walk and play and go to school again."

Governor Cherry said that, while in 1944 only one hospital in North Carolina would knowingly admit an accute case of infantile paralysis, today 20 hospitals will admit victims of the diesease. He said that by spring it is hoped that each of these hospitals will be permanently and adequately equipped to take care of any type of case.

"With your help the fight will go on," he said. "We look to the future with optimism."

Electric eyes contol subway escalators in France. The lifts operate only when someone has boarded them.

is probably the best plan that has been suggested so far. It will undoubtedly do much to safeguard the pedestrians. Because of the wideness of the street, it is amazing to me that there have been no fatalities or severe injuries there."

No U-Turn

Under the plan there would be no U-turns whatsoever. Two lanes will be used for eastbound traffic. The middle lane will be used for traffic that wishes to turn into Henderson street and the left lane for traffic that wishes to continue east down Franklin. The lane nearest the campus will be used exclusively for westbound traffic.

Elimination of the U-turn at the post-office for east-bound cars would mean that cars would have to turn left into Henderson and come back along Rosemary or else they would have to go on along Franklin and make a U-turn further east at Pickard lane or the Raleigh-Hillsboro street intersection.

Madrey said that signs will be placed at the intersections directing drivers about this change. The mayor also conveyed the thanks of the board for the services rendered by Dieter.

AVC Heads Meet; Plan New Groups Throughout South

Plans and problems of local chapters of the American Veterans Committee were discussed at an informal gathering held in Graham Memorial yesterday under the sponsorship of the Chapel Hill chapter. Jim Crawford, Southeastern Regional Field Secretary, outlined suggestions for expanding the scope of activities and membership.

"AVC is growing nationally at an unprecedented rate," Crawford told the group. "A goal of 175,000 members has been set for July 1. Membership is the most important drive for AVC today."

Out of town visitors included James Bellamy, of the Bladenboro chapter, and R. A. Cannon, William N. Smith, and George Smith, of Shaw University, where a new chapter is now being established.

An enthusiastic report on AVC activities in Bladenboro was delivered by Bellamy. That chapter has recently doubled its membership, secured terminal leave payments for veterans, informed veterans of their rights, and begun a campaign to correct discriminatory employment practices. All AVC needs to succeed, Belamy said, is "hard work and courage."

Crawford briefly mentioned the plans of other Southern AVC groups. In Tennessee the Nashville chapter is working for a convention to revise the state's antiquated 1870-model constitution. The Atlanta Chapter plans to open a Freedom House where progressive groups can hold meetings regardless of race, creed, and color. In Florida a state council has been set up to assist in organization and expansion of the state's large city chapters. AVC's membership in the South totals 3,800 at present.

Crawford emphasized the fact that AVC is a non-political veterans' organization. It endorses no political parties and no candidates. It seeks only to promote legislation which is in the best interests of the nation and veterans of World War II. It takes a stand on issues, but not on parties or personalities.

Declaring that "the South is unprepared to meet the challenge of new industries moving in", Crawford suggested a plan whereby veterans' groups could deal with the problems of the 5 million people expected to be forced off Southern farms with mechanization, and at the same time atract more industries. He urged that surplus war materials and baracks be used for trade schools to train veterans in industrial arts under the GI bill. Such a plan would cost the states very little. No veterans' group in the South is doing anything about this, he noted.

The meeting closed with proposals for similar conferences in the Spring. Approximately ten members of the local chapter were present.

A luncheon for the gathering was served in the basement of the Presbyterian church.

CPU Will Consider Third Party Tonight

Members of the Carolina Political union and all other interested persons are cordially invited to consider the question "The Future of the Third Party in America," at the Union's meeting this evening at 8 o'clock in the Grail room of Graham Memorial.

Chairman Bill Kemp urged all students interested in joining the Union to be present tonight since membership interviews are to be held Wednesday afternoon. An executive business session of the group will follow the discussion.

TRI-DELT PINUPS

Late Tri-Delt news received last night reveals that two Delta Deltas have been pinned recently. The lucky girls are Evelyn Pettit and Elsie Rhine, and the even luckier gentlemen, in the same order, are Bob Koonts and Vic Seixas.

Jake Wicker Elected to Post By United World Federalists

Jake Wicker, of Sanford, president of the student chapter of United World Federalists, was elected Thursday night to serve as official representative to the Adult Executive committee. Wicker succeeds Russell Baldwin, of Leland, former president of the University chapter, who is not in school this quarter.

The meeting also included the election of Dean Matthews, of Decatur, Georgia, to serve as representative to the State Executive committee.

Meeting at 5 o'clock in the Grail room, Graham Memorial, the group elected Hale Chamberlain, of Brevard, to serve as chapter treasurer. Chamberlain will fill the vacancy caused by the resignation of Herman Sieber, of Hendersonville.

Secretary Betty Shouse announced that members of various standing committees of the organization were selected as follows:

Radio committee: Joy Blumenthal, of Greensboro; Margaret Healy, of Langly Field, Virginia; Matthews, and Chamberlain. Writing committee: Peggy Garrison, of Clarkesville, Georgia: Carlyle Markham, of Chapel Hill; and Margaret Goodman, of Concord. Publicity committee: Martha Aiken, of Columbia, South Carolina; and Wicker. Speaking committee: Martha Aiken, Joy Blumenthal, Matthews, Wicker; and Nat Williams, of Thomasville, Georgia. Constitution committee: Margaret Goodman and Gran Childress, of Chapel Hill.

Streamliner Wrecked For The Second Time Near Gulfport, Miss.

Gulfport, Miss, Jan. 17—(UP)—The Louisville and Nashville Hummingbird, was derailed at White Harbor, Mississippi while enroute for New Orleans from Cincinatti today.

Further disaster which could have been serious was averted when passenger Louis Goetes of Gulfport stopped an oncoming freight from colliding with the passenger train. Goetes had left the train and was continuing to Gulfport when he spotted the freight approaching on the same track. He left the car, raced to the tracks, and flagged it down by waving his hat.

One person, a porter, was injured seriously in the wreck. Several of the passengers were dazed and suffered from shock but their injuries were minor.

This was the eighth train wreck in the south in seven days, and the second for the Hummingbird during the same period. It was derailed last Thursday near Wales, Tennessee. Cause of the accident was not known.

Ghandi Seeks to Avert Civil War In Last Fast, as Violence Rules

New Delhi, Jan. 17—(UP)—Tonight, a little man who is a prophet and a god to the people of one of the earth's most densely populated regions lies in a coma on a huge ornate bed in a sprawling Indian palace.

Mohandas K. Ghandi, for more than a quarter of a century the spiritual and political leader of the hundreds of milions of human beings in India was believed near death as he continued the 15th fast of his 79 year career.

But there was deceptive strength in the frail body that on 14 previous occasions had used this method to protest the wrongs of the world. Often, the cause had appeared ridiculous; many times the goal was to force a powerful government official to see things his way.

But Ghandi's lifelong cause had been the winning of independence for India and when in the twilight of his life, his country won its freedom, few men disputed that Mohandas Ghandi had done more than any other single man to bring it about.

But the victory had been a Phyrric one for the little man whom John Gunther once described as "an incredible combination of Jesus Christ, Tammany hall, and your father". With freedom had come violent riots and Civil war all over India as Hindu and Moslem fought a violent religious conflict to a horribly impasse.

With an iron determination incredible in such a body, the 'rag doll' of a man was holding his fast to preserve his country from the further carnage of Civil war.

This 15th fast may well be the final one for Ghandi, and the rage that fills the hearts of the Indian people is almost certain to explode into greater terror, if the mahatma fails to live.

Even Ghandi had to judge the temper of the people in a new light. As the streams of Hindu refugees flowed down from the north, there were heard screams of "Let Ghandi die."

As the week ended, the little man rose to dictate what may well be his last plea for peace in India. "Now that I am on my deathbed," he whispered, "I do not want to hurt anyone." Then, he called on all factional leaders to unite the country as one state and to afford reciprocal safety to all other groups.

And last night, the doctors that hovered over him, the sorrowful, shabby men and women who shuffled past his bedroom window, and—to a lesser degree—the world around him waited to see whether the flame in Ghandi's soul would unite India or, by going out, plunge his country in the fires of an even more bitter conflict.

Year's Best Books To Be Exhibited For Three Weeks

The 25th annual exhibition of the "Fifty Books of the Year," sponsored by the American Institute of Graphic Arts and circulated by the American Federation of Arts, opened at the library this week.

A volume published by the University Press "Christopher Marlowe" by Paul H. Kocher, is included in the exhibit.

The exhibition is open to the public from 8:45 to 10 o'clock week days and from 2 to 5 o'clock on Sundays and holidays, through February 8.

This important exhibition represents a jury selection of outstanding work in American book design and production during 1946 and was selected from 800 titles submitted by publishers throughout the United States, in response to the Institute's "Call for Books."

Before making its selections, the jury was instructed to put entries into their appropriate categories: juvenile, trade, illustrated, text and press (five limited editions) and to make its choice from the most outstanding examples of good bookmaking from each.

The three jurymen included George Grady of the George Grady Press, New York City; Milton Glick, Viking Press, and Philip Hofer Curator of the Department of Printing and Graphic Arts of Harvard College Library.

TRIBUTE TO DANIELS

Governors To Discuss Segregation

Nashville, Tennesse, Jan. 17—(UP)—Five southern governors will meet in Nashville today to chart a possible middle course between southern segregation traditions and the mandates of the Supreme Court.

The governors are going to discuss the possibility of establishing regional schools for Negroes in the south. These schools would offer education in the professions of law, medicine, etc.

Overlooked in the publicity surrounding the Negro aspect is the fact that the governors are discussing regional schools for whites. These schools would be in professions in which not enough students are interested to warrant individual state schools.

The governor of Tennessee, Jim McCord, says that he believes the southern states can set up the regional Negro schools, and still maintain their segregation. He points out that the Supreme Court has upheld the right of a state to segregate whites and Negroes providing equal facilities are provided.

That is the committee's general picture. Specifically, the governors will consider a proposed bill to permit regional schools. And they will consider Governor McCord's proposal to take over Meharry college in Nashville as a regional Negro medical school.

The committee members are Governors Caldwell, of Florida; Thompson of Georgia; Tuck of Virginia; and Lane of Maryland. Governor Ben Laney of Arkansas will not be able to attend.

Pro Arte Quartet From Wisconsin To Appear In Hill Hall Tonight

Tonight in Hill hall auditorium the Pro Arte Quartet of the University of Wisconsin will appear in the second program of the chamber music series. The first program of the season was presented by Yves Tinayre, baritone, who was received here most enthusiastically.

The popular Pro Arte Quartet is composed of the nationally and internationally known artists Rudolph Kollsch, first violinist, Albert Rahier, second violinist, Bernard Milofsky, violist, and Ernest Friedlander, cellist. Each of these men has studied and toured extensively before becoming a member of the Pro Arte Quartet and all have helped to establish the excellent reputation of the Quartet during their participation in it.

Guest tickets will be honored at the door from 8:00 until 8:20. From 8:20 until 8:30 the general public will be admitted without tickets.

The program tonight will include these three selections: Quartet in C major, K. 465 by Mozart; Lyric Suite for String Quartet by Alban Berg; and Quartet in G major by Schubert.

IRC Topic for Monday To Be Talk on Greece

Greece will be the topic for discussion when the Carolina chapter of the International Relations club meets at 7:30 Monday night in Roland Parker no. 1.

Visitors and all those interested in membership in the IRC are cordially invited to attend. Francis Winslow will be in charge of the program.

President Graham Figures In Truce Halting Warfare In Dutch East Indies

AFTER BEING ACQUITTED by [illegible] of violating the Lea Act, James C. Petrillo, president of the American Federation of Musicians, is congratulated by Daniel Carmel (left). Petrillo said the [illegible] against the act cleared the way for [illegible] expiring on January 31, 1948, with [illegible] radio networks.

By United Press

Frank Porter Graham, president of the Greater University of North Carolina, was a key figure in the signing of the Dutch-Indonesian Republic truce which was endorsed yesterday in Batavia, Java.

The agreement, ending the warfare which broke out last summer in Java, Sumatra and Madura, was signed at 2:55 in the afternoon, Java time, and 2:25 in the morning, E. S. T., aboard the U. S. Navy transport Renville anchored off Batavia.

Graham Instrumental

Endorsement of the truce climaxed 11 weeks of negotiations by a good offices committee of the United Nations Security council sent to try to bring peace in the Dutch East Indies. Dr. Graham was a member of the committee which was instrumental in securing the peace treaty decided upon yesterday.

Dr Graham was appointed U. S. representative on the good offices committee by President Truman last October 1, and was sworn in here on October 4. Henry P. Brandis, University law professor, was appointed his special assistant, and the two left Chapel Hill for Lake Success, New York, site of the United Nations, on October 5.

Informed Sources Say

Terms of the agreement which Dr. Graham aided in bringing to a conclusion have not been released yet, but informed sources say that it provides for both the Dutch and Indonesian troops issuing an immediate cease-firing order and for the establishment of a demilitarized zone between the forward positions of the two forces.

Recent rumors received here from Washington, D. C., have suggested that Washington received rumors from here to the effect that the Board of Trustees and other influential persons in the state are working toward President Graham's removal as head of the Greater University.

False Rumor

The rumors were reported by Cecil Hamilton, of the Washington bureau of the Durham Morning Herald, but nothing has been brought to light so far which would add any confirmation. Hamilton is the same reporter who first released the news which proved false, that the University would be investigated for Communism by the House Un-American Affairs committee.

The most recent news in which Dr. Graham has figured here in North Carolina was when author James Street made the statement last week that the Democratic party might be considering the dynamic little educator for vice-president of the United States.

It is not known whether the University president will return to the states immediately or whether his work will keep him in Indonesia for a while longer.

Navy Overseas Force Revealed By Admiral

Washington, Jan. 17—(UP)—The Chief of the U. S. Mediterranean fleet, Admiral Richard Connolly, revealed that the United States now has a naval task force of wartime strength in the Mediterranean area.

Connolly made his revelation this evening on arriving at New York on his way to Washington to report to the new chief of Naval operations. He said the Mediterranean fleet consists of one carrier, the "Midway", three cruisers and 10 destroyers. Said the admiral, "This is the same size task fleet as during the war."

The Negro and Education

A young mother and her three-year-old son were attending the 9:15 movie in a small North Carolna town. The theatre's air-conditioning plant needed cleaning, the place was hot and the young man was irritable because it was past his bedtime and the technicolor comedy was over. He began to whimper at first and pull at his mother's dress to get her to take him home. "New Orleans" did not interest the youngster and he persisted in his begging to leave the theatre. Finally his mother spoke in a loud, husky whisper, "Stop your fuss, that big black nigger wil get you." And she noded her head toward the screen where Louis Armstrong was singing a Blues number.

We passed two school boys, probably sixth graders, washing a car. The one handling the hose asked the other to turn on the faucet so that he could finish the wash job. The other boy obliged and received a polite "thanks" from the boy with the hose. The other youngster replied, "That's okay Tom; I'd do it for a nigger."

These are two conversations which we overheard during one day of the Christmas holidays in our own small, typically southern hometown in this State. They, better than any material we remember having read, convinced us even more why the South, and this State in particular, is not ready for an un-segregated school system. Until the southerner is made to realize that a Negro is something more than a day laborer, an individual rather than someone who buys his cast-off clothing at the rummage sale sponsored by the Ladie's Aid Society every second Saturday in the month, or stops portraying him as the bogey man for the younger generation, the South is not prepared to take him into the school system, sit down beside him in classes, share a table with him in the schol cafeteria, or make him the left tackle on his football team.

To assemble in the same classroom a group of white and Negro students, who do not accept the aforementioned as a necessity, would cause only turmoil which would be remembered down through the years and virtually kill all future attempts of making the South unsegregated.

One of the quickest methods of making a southerner reason is through his pocketbook. An equal but separate school system must be supplied directly from the white man's pocketbook. There will have to be many buildings erected, additional teachers and full equipment must be in the school buildings. This money must come from the southern whites. Let's take our own State—North Carolina—for example. A goodly portion of the revenue used for running our school system is obtained from the sales taxes. And it is the southern whites who pay the greatest percentage of these because he buys more goods from the retail stores than the Negro. And it is the southern whites who pay the greatest percentage of the personal and land taxes.

Then, when the Negro schools are up to a par with the whites' and the Negro college graduates take their place in the communities of the South rather than drifting to the North and Middle West, and when the southern communities are supplied with Negro doctors, nurses, dentists and businessmen, there will be a different outlook among both races. The Negro, in his new position, and the whites, out of respect, will be able to deal with each other on a sensible basis.

The southern taxpayer's money will not be put to a waste. His tax dollars which go into the construction of schools and into educating the Negro will eventually be put to use for all. With the specialization of all activities, industry and otherwise, there will also be a universal trend in the school systems. The high schools will no longer try to pound Latin and mathematics into the reluctant high schooler. Instead they will teach him automobile mechanics or a craft in which he is interested and talented enough to make a decent livlihood. The tax dollars which the southerner uses now to build a reputable Negro school system will be the buildings which will house the specialized, unsegregated schools of the future.

Symbolism In Pictures Of Daniel

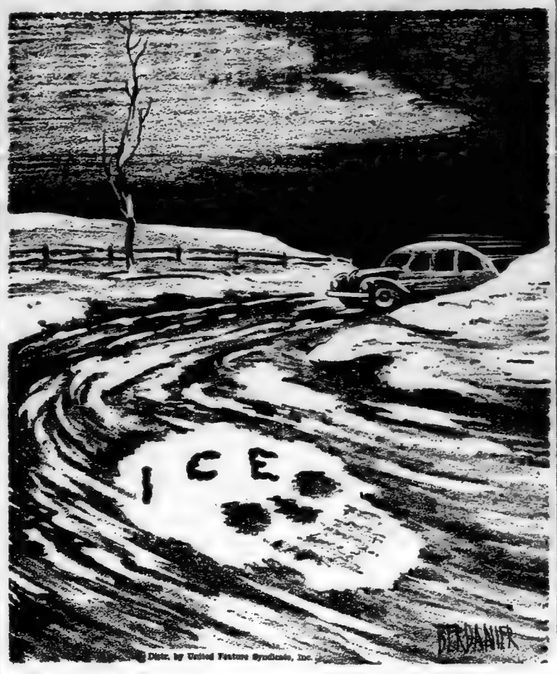
The more intently we look at our troubles, the larger they become. If we gaze at them long enough, nurse them carefully enough, they will destroy us. The proper way to treat trouble is that prescribed in the old hymn, "Take It To The Lord In Prayer." On one wall of my study is a matched pair of pictures of Daniel in the Den of Lions. They are by Briton Rivere, and in striking symbolism show man how to meet and overcome it.

The first picture portrays Daniel with his hands bound, facing a pack of snarling lions. He faces them thoughtfully, but without registering fear. There are seven of these lions, the complete number, indicating the greatness of his trouble and difficulty.

In the second picture Daniel has turned his back upon the lions, and faces a small barred window with head upturned in prayer. His hands are still tied, but the attitude of the lions has changed completely. Instead of ferocity, there is now docility. Instead of indicating their desire to tear him apart, they gaze at him in wonder and amazement.

Daniel is a type of every man in trouble.

The first picture teaches him that he is to face his trouble squarely, thoughtfully, appraisingly, but without fear.



The second picture contains a double lesson. The psychological lesson is that he must turn his back on his troubles, if he would learn to escape them. The spiritual lesson is that, in addition to turning his back on his troubles, he must turn to his Lord with them in prayer.

Daniel escaped from the den of lions unharmed. Man will escape from the den of his troubles if he follows the same pattern.

These pictures are the gift of a woman who came to me one time in deep trouble. I had seen these pictures, understood their lesson, but did not have them. However, I described them to her in detail, explaining their lesson. She grasped it, and was helped. Sometime later, she brought me these two pictures as a gift, saying that she hoped that I might use them to help others, as she had been helped.

This story of Daniel is much more than a children's narrative, It has been preserved in the Bible as a striking picture of how men, cast into the den of trouble and adversity, can survive instead of being destroyed, can emerge victorious over his enemies through the protection, strength, wisdom and guidance God will give to those who put their lives fully in His care.

Concerning String Pullers

(Ed's note: This article was submitted by Howe as a letter, but considering its pertinence at this time, we print it as a column.)

By Charles Howe

The text for this sermon comes from Mr. Buchan's piece in yesterday's DTH: "Five or six men from each of the three parties dictate what is to happen" in an election.

Let me first grant the essential truth of what Mr. Buchan says. A very few men, operating under an absolutely democratic system of procedure, can do precisely that. If one politician's plans for party action are thwarted, it will, ninety-nine per cent of the time, be through the efforts of another politician of equal standing—not through protests of a large body of students.

To call myself one of these devils, to say that I am a politician of that rank, would be presumptuous. However, this writer has stood close enough to the devils to recognize them when he sees them. It is not an enviable position.

The plain truth of the matter is, these men assume power because no one else will. There is scarcely a single person in student government today who can do his most effective work because he has insufficient time because a job is pushed on him. No one will help him where half a dozen should.

Do you suppose a party chairman enjoys the feeling that if worst comes to worst, the party will fall back on him to name that last Men's Council candidate, those last two Legislature candidates? He often does. He does because no one else comes up with a name, not because he likes to be the puppeteer controlling the strings.

Don't you think he gets just a little nauseated at one or two of the candidates his party has put up? And why? The campus leaders are busy elsewhere. He doesn't know them. They refuse to assert their leadership.

Let me enumerate the responsibilities of student government. Foremost is the budget. In its hands lie the spending of one hundred thousand dollars. And allow this writer, a former legislature member, to assure the readers that the intentions of the people who come to the legislature to ask for money are not necessarily as pure as the driven snow. Secondly, there is the maintenance of the Honor System. Yet the scalpers sold their tickets on Franklin Street Saturday mornings last fall, and not a hand was raised against them. The third duty might be called student welfare. Yet today, months after publicity was given in the DTH about the situation there has been no protest to the Trustees about such a ridiculous situation as married students in trailers paying more rent than single students living in dormitory rooms.

Go ahead. Kick.

We Should Be Ready For War

Gentlemen:

I have just read the DTH editorial of 15 January re military training. It is a very interesting editorial. But I should like to point out a few facts that Mr. Sain might have gleaned either from the war or from Social Science II, if he had bothered to listen.

Mr. Sain views with dewey-eyed concern the "big gap in a young, developing life". Did Mr. Sain view with such concern the 3 ½ year "gap" suddenly removed from many others? I am inclined to think that that "gap" would have been smaller had adequately trained personnel and up-to-date material been present on Oahu one bright Sunday morning.

However, I prefer not to call it a gap. Some of us got valuable experience in getting along with men of all strata of society (Democracy, I think it's called), and in learning a basic discipline we all sooner or later must learn, whether in the Army or in society. Perhaps a year of this "fraternization" would sully the pampered scions of our upper classes. I couldn't say.

If Mr. Sain would take the rouble to reread the Nicomachean ethics an dsome of the basic writing s of Plato (a writer well-known by that early war-monger, George "Eternal Vigilance" Washing ton, of whom Mr. Sain may have heard), he would find that self-respect is something that only the individual can develop or lose, and no one can make him lose it if his actions and outlok are basically sound. He would also rid himself of the common fallacy that Democracy guarantees complete individual freedom. It does no. It merely is an attempt to gain for the individual the most complete fredom that is compatible with the world around him.

Please, Mr. Sain: we did NOT win the war because of superior science and technology! It was only our immensely greater resources that did it. Have you ever heard of the V-2 with which our scientists are still experimenting in lieu of a better rocket of their own? Or the English G-box? Or the unholy beauty of the ME-109, or the .88 artillery piece?

If our technology had been developed and our men trained, the war would have been shortened appreciably, or might not have taken place. Have you forgotten the Shineland occupation because France was not ready, Bataan and Corregidor because we were not ready?

"Hello, UMT! Godbye, UN! It's as simple as that." Now, really, Mr. Sain! Do you know that of all Western nations, the US alone does not have UMT? Have Poland, Yugoslavia, Roumania or Russia exhibited any such delicacy?

I would hate to waste my efforts, time and-or life again fighting for a nation that "muddles through" into a war and glories in the fact. But to fight for a country that has done its intelligent (not "idealistic") best to prevent it is another thing. In that event, I hope we will be ready. Otherwise, move over in your hermitage, Mr. Sain! I'm coming to live with you, my head bowed down and my idealistic eyes as radio-active as Hell!

C. D. McIntyre

Favors UMT

Dear Sir:

We wish to take exception to an editorial appearing in the DTH on January 15, concerning UMT.

First of all, we do not agree as to the reason given there for our victory in the late unpleasantness. We won the war because we were three thousand miles away; because our resources were great; because our industry was capable; because the RAF fought a gallant fight; because the Russians held grimly at Moscow and Stalingrad; because the underground resisted; because the men of this country did NOT become hermits to avoid a fight; but mostly because we were damned lucky.

Our technological superiority over Germany dates from June, 1945, when we began bringing to the US every capable scientist we could find. Your editorialist might ask Dr. Vannevar Bush, or Dr. Compton, or Dr. Conant where most of the original work on nuclear fission was done, or where the new weapons were developed, such as rockets, jet planes, etc.

After all, machines cannot fight alone. Someone still has to push buttons. Wars are won because orders are obeyed properly (sometimes disobeyed wisely), and a year of training is going to facilitate matters in this respect if and when another war comes.

If the fate of the United Nations depends on the adoption of UMT, then every other major nation in the world has already acted to destroy UN, and we might as well be prepared. Actually the fate of UN depends on two more profound considerations: the Russian use of the veto power, and the United States' habit of bypassing UN channels when convenient.

Washington Merry-Go-Round

What Is Counter Intelligence?

By Drew Pearson

Washington—If penny-pinching Congressman John Taber of Auburn, N. Y., really wants to save some money he might cast an eye at the so-called Counter Intelligence Corps.

Just what these mysterious gentlemen do is not exactly known, but the Congressman from New York's big prison city might well investigate. Among other things he might query Herbert Hoover.

The ex-President of the United States was in Germany some time ago on official economic survey for President Truman and had a conference with the U. S. Commander, Gen. Lucius Clay. Supposedly it was a confidential meeting. But at the other end of the table he noticed a stranger in plain clothes intently listening.

Curious, Frank Mason, former vice-president of National Broadcasting and now aide to Herbert Hoover, inquired who the stranger was.

"Oh, he's the Counter Intelligence Corps man," was the reply.

Later Hoover and Mason noticed that this Counter Intelligence Corps man kept an eye on them wherever they went. Finally Mason went to General Clay.

"General," he said, "it so happens that Mr. Hoover is here on a mission from the Commander-In-Chief of the U. S. Army. Furthermore, he himself once served as Comander-In-Chief. Whatever his politic, his loyalty is not open to question. Therefore it seems very queer that his conversations and actions should be constantly spied upon by your Counter Intelligence Corps."

Gen Clay laughed.

"Oh. I can't control thes fellows," he replied. "They even spy on me."

Being a somewhat skeptical newsman I wondered at first whether Herbert Hoover and his friend might have exaggerated. But the other day in Trieste I knew they hadn't.

Accompanying Maj. Gen. Bryant Moore, Commander of U. S. Forces in Trieste, to a U. S. guard post near the Yugoslav border. I noticed that we were accompanied by a handsome civilian who stood to one side watching us carefully. Upon inquiry he turned out to be a Counter Intelligence Corps man.

And as the general took me through various parts of his efficiently run military establishment, the CIC man stayed with us. Even when we sat in a conference with Gen. Ridgely Gaither, the U. S. Military Governor, and several British and American colonels the CIC man stayed with us. Only this time there were two men. Apparently one was not enough to watch us.

Finally I asked General Moore what these men were supposed to do. He replied that they were supposed to detect any subversive operations among the civilian population of Trieste.

I did not press the point, but I could not help feeling that in this roomful of generals and colonels not much could be found out about the civilian population of Trieste. Furthermore, if they were interested in me they were

The Role Of The Third Party

By Bill Robertson

The present Third Party Movement in America is not something completely new. There have been similar movements in the past. However, this does not mean that the present situation, both on a world scale and within our own country, does not differ in important respects from those which gave birth to previous Third Party Movements. But if we bear this general and rather self-evident fact in mind we may learn a great deal by studying the programs of past movements and especially by noting the similarities between these programs.

These similarities indicate that important political, economic, and social problems with which we are faced today have a rather long and unpleasant history. For, contrary to general opinion, our two-party system has served to cover up the effective control of the political life of our country by powerful economic interests, well-trained in the art of deceiving the people with fine phrases about the glories of our brand of democracy.

When the Republican party started life as a third party shortly before the Civil War, Representative Branch of North Carolina said that it was dangerous to slave-holders because it was supported by the labor movement and was therefore "the first step . . . toward introducing communism and socialism." The Republican Party which was founded on a platform of an end to the spread of slavery, federal aid for internal improvements, and a democratic land policy for setlers in the West reveloped into a first-rate political force. It did so because its program and political corresponded with the needs and interests of the overwhelming majority of the American people. However, its subsequent history, including its adoption of the slow-moving elephant as its symbol, is now well-known to us.

In 1877 the leadership of the Republican Party double-crossed its rank and file supporters and joined hands with its former enemies, the Southern Bourbons, against the poor Whites and the Negro people in the South, and against the workers and farmers in the North and West. The people, of course, began to organize new means of political expression. They formed many separate movements at first. There was the Grange Movement of farmers against the powerful railroads which carried their crops to market at monopoly prices. There was the Greenback Party (money always gets into politics somehow) There was an forth! Toward the end of the eighties these various groups of discontented people (some of whom were no doubt radicals!) began to get together, the farmers of the South and West, the poor Whites and Negro people in the South (North Carolina has a history in this respect for which we should feel proud) the small business-men all over, and, to a lesser extent, the industrial workers of the North.

In 1892 a third party was organized on a nationwide basis for the presidential campaign. The preamble to the platform drawn up in Omaha, Nebraska included the following statement: "THE NEWSPAPERS ARE LARGELY SUBSIDIZED AND MUZZLED."

Space does not permit us to give details concerning the success and failure of the Populist Party and its decendent the Progressive Party of 1912. However, we should like to point out that the latter party, definitely organized a few months before the election, and operating without aid of any established party machinery, drew more than one-fourth of the popular votes, a tremendous increase over the Populist Party of 1892 with its 9 per cent of the total. The trusts and monopolies had grown a great deal and had more ene-

Mag Battle Simmers While Referendum Looms

NOTE TO THE READER

In view of the proposal of the mag referendum bill in Thursday night's Student Legislature meeting, the Daily Tar Heel is presenting an unbiased and circumspect inspection of magazine facts by Reporter John Stump in order to help the campus decide just what kind of mag and or how many mags it wants, so an intelligent vote may be cast in the February 3 referendum, if it is approved by the Student Legislature.

THE EDITORS SUMMARIZE

Jacobson:

"If we are to separate the magazines, the humor mag should be the entertaining one while the literary magazine should serve only its single purpose with only incidental illustrations to break the printed matter. But on this campus, the purely literary type could never succeed for lack of interest. The Carolina Magazine, and all publications on this campus, must go on the business basis which Ben Perlmutter so eloquently advocated.

"Appropriations have, unfortunately, due to the Legislature's control over publications money, become a political football. This money should be appropriated by those most familiar with the needs of the publications. I feel that some of the fault is mine, because my poor speaking ability has not helped the Legislature to understand this situation.

"But for a mag, money coupled with a good editor could achieve a CM with a good reputation and one for which students would want to work.

"This must be our goal."

Hodgson:

"The Carolina Mag staff, with the exception of its art and photography staffs may be criticised quite justifiably. The editors of the Mag rationalize the situation by complaining loudly and at length that the deathless prose they publish is 'top-flight' stuff and that the students are either unintelligent or too lazy to appreciate it. This is an expert rationalization, but some other defense of these fantastic crimes against the English language and what is known as common decency is necessary. It is doubtful that Will Shakespeare with his predilection for a beginning, a middle, and an end could ever get his stuff published in the Mag unless he submitted an article on bug-racing."

Fred And Tookie Give Views On Mags; Campus Poll Shows Verbal Skirmishes

"A large monthly Tarnation and the Carolina Mag as a literary quarterly" is Hodgson's aim. Jacobson says, "The make-up of the humor mag offers no promise whatsoever, its humor has shown no originality whatsoever, and some of it is just plain bad."—Plain-spoken Words from plain-spoken men- the editors of men—the editors of YOUR magazines.

By John Stump

Is Fred Jacobson guilty of fantastic crimes against the English language? Has Tookie Hodgson's Tarnation made it impossible to bring first class magazine journalism to the campus? How much money is being wasted and how much spent on magazine work here?

It's your money and they're your magazines. In the long run, what to do about the magazine "problem" at Carolina is a question that only you can answer.

Herewith the Daily Tar Heel presents a spot check of what you are thinking about these problems and exclusive statements of conditions as they are thought to exist by the two Carolina men most qualified to speak on the subject, Editor Fred Jacobson of the Carolina Magazine and Editor Matthew (Tookie) Hodgson of Tarnation.

THE EDITORS

The leading characters about whom the current controversy has swirled with mounting vigor since the idea of the resurrection of a humor mag at Carolina first became an issue early last winter are the two men who currently fill the positions of editors of the magazines.

Fred Jacobson, then as now, was serving in the top spot on the Carolina Mag staff. Considered by his associates to be a mild-mannered, perservering gentleman, his appearance and personality are as opposed to Hodgson's as are his ideas of campus mag content. He is soft-spoken and carries with him an air of quiet dignity.

One of the few men ever to be re-elected editor of a campus publication, Jacobson's success as a mag man is considered by many of those who know him best to be primarily due to his perserverance and to his ability to command the loyalty and the respect of his friends.

Storm Center

Hodgson, by contrast, is known as a storm center of biting wit and sarcastic humor neither of which he ever quite erases. The humor magazine, as it exists today, was his idea and whatever good may come of it must be considered to be his accomplishment.

He fought for his idea over strong and at times bitter opposition throughout the last school year until in the spring the Student Legislature made the appropriation which yielded its first return in the issue of this past fall.

After the first handshake, he is "Tookie" to everyone. The air surrounding him and his projects is never quiet; it is agitated by one of the most agile minds and one of the most compelling personalities to be found on this campus today.

It is these two men who symbolize magazine journalism here, and it was for the purpose of getting their opinions and plans concerning what has been done and what will be done that this column was written.

Below in question and answer form are the answers which they gave to this reporter to help solve the mag problem.

What purpose is the Carolina Magazine supposed to serve on this campus?

FRED: "The mag is intended primarily to entertain the campus and secondarily to serve as an outlet for the creative art of the mag men and women here. As a magazine when sent home or to other schools, it serves as a representative of Carolina and as a barometer for the creative ability of the students here."

TOOKIE: "The mag is apparently intended to provide suitable afternoon occupation for 25 student writers of esoteric prose (I use esoteric for its onomatopoeia—one of my staffers defines it as something you don't like the first time you read it and think is worse the second time).

What purpose is Tarnation supposed to serve on this campus?

TOOKIE: "It is intended to entertain the students; it has no other function."

FRED: "Tarnation has no function. There is no need for it as the Mag fills the need for which Tarnation was created. It is a waste of money."

Which magazine do you feel is more valuable to the campus?

FRED: "The Carolina Mag—it serves a variety of purposes, because it is intended as a variety mag not solely as a purveyor of stale humor. It carries a name that has been built up over almost a century of creditable publication, while humor mags have only enjoyed short bursts of publication."

TOOKIE: "I would hesitate to say; the most valuable is the one the student body likes and reads."

What are your views regarding the rumored consolidation of the magazines?

TOOKIE: "Consolidation will bring not humor, but a larger Carolina Mag—just more of the same old stuff, in other words. To understand my meaning consider the case of the Carolina Mag for the two years prior to this. Whether the average student realizes it or not, until the advent of Tarnation, the CM was supposed to be a combine of itself and the defunct Tar and Feathers.

FRED: "Consolidation would save the students money and produce a bigger and better Mag than is now possible."

What do you think of the rumored abolition of Tarnation?

FRED: "It is a step which unquestionably should be taken, because there is no point in having two mags striving to fill the same purpose. It is also advisable, because the make-up of the humor mag offers no promise whatsoever, its humor has shown no originality whatsoever, and some of it is just plain bad."

TOOKIE: "I do not believe that any undercover move to abolish our magazine can succeed without the staffers of Tarnation."

It has been sugested that a referendum of the student body be held on the magazine issue. Do you have anything to say on that issue?

TOOKIE: "I am in favor of holding one with three alternatives presented to the students—Carolina Mag and Tarnation to remain as they are; a larger CM or a large monthly T. My conception of the ideal solution to the whole question is to have a large monthly T and to continue the Mag as a literary quarterly. Thus, we could have a lab for aspiring young writers and a sweatshop for perspiring young same."

FRED: "I am willing that one be held. It should result in a vote for the financial stability and reader-interest best provided through CM. I feel that in such a referendum that the result would be support for a large monthly mag having the material and staff now available to each separately.

THE CAMPUS

With the reappearance on the Carolina campus of a humor magazine, a series of questions as old as journalism itself have burst upon the Tar Heel scene like an atom bomb in technicolor to engulf BMOC and Joe College alike.

A random poll conducted last week on a campus-wide scale revealed that at present the magazine situation runs women and the fortunes of the White Phantoms a close third as subject matter for Carolina bull sessions.

Between classes, in fraternity houses, over the tables in Harry's, from the Bell tower to Graham Memorial, the same questions and the same rumors could be heard over and over again.

Section at the Back

"Carolina Mag and Tarnation are going to be combined as a great big variety magazine—like Pic. I got it straight from Tom Eller."

"But what are they thinking about in the Legislature making us pay for two magazines; I don't read either one." —And I heard from a Publications board member that Hodgson and Jacobson will get together and put out a humor mag with a section at the back for this modern art."

And so it goes while the campus waits to see what the effect on the spring elections will be, who the nominees for mag editorships are, and what they will stand for, and where the money is coming from and what it is going for.

Both magazines have their adherents and all shades of opinion are represented from the half a dozen or more radical viewpoints—"I believe that the magazines should be combined and run as a supplement to the Daily Tar Heel"—to the neutrals who "don't read either of 'em and don't give a damn one way or the other."

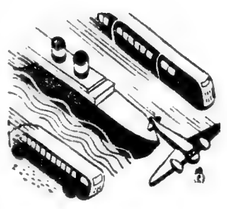
But most of the students contacted by the newsmen-pollsters were just plain confused. They have definite ideas, but no idea of how to put them into operation. Many gave the impression that while they were waiting for steps to be taken by student leaders they will take an active part in discussing and supporting or opposing whatever is suggested.

Following are a few of the average comments delivered by anonymous students interviewed at random on the campus.

Campus Opinion

STUDENT L. M.: "I figured we were going to have a college humor magazine when I first read about Tarnation coming out, but I don't think it's much better than the Carolina Mag. There weren't any pages of jokes in the whole magazine, much less dirty jokes."

STUDENT R. W.: "I'm trying to get through here on $85 a month, I got to watch where my money goes. It's a small matter to me financially, but I say if we're going to have two magazines, let's have two good ones."



STUDENT B. C.: "What the hell's Tarnation."

STUDENT C.N.: "I think the Mag's better this year than it has been in the past, but it's still a little too highbrow for me. We do need a humor mag, but Tarnation has not yet quite lived up to my expectations."

What kind of competition do you now feel from the other magazine?

FRED: "We have no appreciable trouble. The advertising in Tarnation is better than its editorial content leaving the impression that it is published primarily for business purposes. Our staff relations could not be better. Our art and photography standards speak for themselves. In some cases, we have exceeded the highest college standards. I have no comment to make on the Tarnation staff except that it has not interfered with us. However, their art and photography staffs are excellent. I was particularly impressed with Tom Wharton's Tarnation work.

TOOKIE: "In advertising, I feel sure that there is competition somewhere, but we have not felt it. As for talent, the mag has its idea of what that is and we have ours; there is no conflict. Their art and photography is excellent. In appropriations, competition does not bother us just so we get our share of the gravy.

Male Smith Resident Enjoys Late Petting After Hours In Dorm

By Donald MacDonald

There's a male living in Smith dormitory who enjoys plenty of attention from the coeds. He gets his share of petting, even after hours.

The lucky fellow's name is "Ace". And in spite of what you may think of the above sentence, Ace leads a dog's life. For that's exactly what he is—a male German boxer.

His owner, Miss Daisy Smith, is blind. She began her senior year at the University this quarter and plans to complete her degree in sociology by August. Ace, one of three guide dogs on the campus—but nevertheless an individual among them—will see to it that Daisy makes all her classes on time.

Prefers Discussing Ace

Daisy is 22 years old, a native of Sylva, and a transfer student from Western Carolina Teacher's college in Cullowhee. But that's about all she cares to say about herself. She prefers to talk more about Ace.

Just how is Ace different from the other guide dogs of Chapel Hill? First of all, Ace is a leader-dog. Leader-dogs differ from seeing-eye dogs mainly in the training which they receive. Ace was trained at the Leader-Dog League for the blind, a school located at Detroit. The league was begun in 1939 by Fred Maynard, who once was connected with the Seeing-Eye league in Marshtown, New Jersey.

Female More Gentle?

Secondly, Ace is a male. Most dogs chosen to direct the blind are females. The female is usually more gentle and is less likely to lead her mistress astray.

"Each instructor at the school knows the personality of the dog he undertakes to train," said Daisy. "The Leader-Dog trainers say there is a fifty-fifty chance that your dog may lead you safely." The motto of the league is "A Guide, Not a Guard."

Not Nervous

When assignments of dogs to persons are made, she explained, the selection is based entirely on personality and speed of walk. "For example," she laughed, "they would never have given Ace to a girl who is nervous, high-strung and afraid."

Finally Daisy said that Ace just loves to be petted. He responds more to bragging than to verbal punishment. The Seeing-Eye league does not encourage petting.

Food, aside from his regular meals of horse meat and dog meal, does not usually detract Ace from his duties. "Once recently," Daisy recalled, "I did have to pay for a loaf of bread which Ace decided he wanted while we were shopping at a self-service grocery. He took the self-service quite literally and proceeded to help himself."

Choker and Pfui!

In regards to punishment, Daisy said it is necessary only when the dog refuses to follow instructions. "To make the dog walk slightly to the right, you have to roll your r's when you say 'r-r-right', very slowly. For a sharp right, the command is an exclamation, quick and to the point. The same is true when you wish to go forward or to the left. When Ace refuses to obey I scold him by saying 'Pfui'. In some cases I have to pull the choker chain, which works like a bit around his neck."

Ace also has a companion in Smith dormitory with whom he can associate when he tires of humans. There is a female German shepherd seeing-eye dog that lives in the dormitory. "Bearzy" is the female's name, and she is the guide dog for Miss Beatrice Metcalf, also a University student.

Ace, the male of the species, should be happy about the whole thing.

KA's Will Celebrate R. E. Lee's Birthdate

The Upsilon chapter of the Kappa Alpha Order here at the University will highlight its annual convivium celebration next weekend with a banquet and a housedance.

A banquet in the Carolina Inn Friday evening will begin the commemoration of the birthday of Robert E. Lee for the prominent part he played in supervising the founding of this fraternity. The K. A.'s will hear speeches by Frank H. Meyers and Howard P. Locke, outstanding Washington lawyers and national executive councilmen of the Order. A dance will be held Saturday night in the K. A. house with an orchestra which is yet to be selected.

Weddings along with new and old faces have made recent news around the fraternity. While Jack Jackson of Hig Point was married to Betty Benzene in Utis, Fla., during the Christmas holidays and honeymooned instead of returning to school this term, pledge John Daughtridge from Charlotte married Marsha Bryon of Greensboro in a private ceremony recently. The couple is now living in Chapel Hill.

Jim Lewis has returned to the fraternity here after a year of service with the Naval Air Forces at Pensacola. Fla. Al McIver, a former K. A. at the University of South Carolina, has transferred to the campus chapter since he enroled in the University for graduate work towards an M. A. in political science.

Recent K. A. alumni visitors have ben Tom Abel, C. C. McLean, Adrian Carroll, and Fletcher and Quinton Gregory.

Pi Beta Phi Has Black Magic Fete

"Black Magic" was the theme of the dance given last Saturday in the Carolina Inn ball room for the pledge class of Pi Beta Phi. Johnny Satterfield and his orchestra provided the music for dancing from 8:30 till midnight.

Louise Dodson, president of the pledge class, and her escort, John Mead, led 23 pledges in the figure. Appearing from a large top hat amidst a cloud of mystifying smoke the pledges were introduced by Jack Folger, vice president of the student body, after which they formed the Pi Phi arrow, and the actives, gathered on the balcony, sang, "My Pi Phi Girl."

Among the alumnae back for the dance were Snookie Phipps, Mary Bright Jernigan, Ann Cutts, and Jo Lawler.

Hank Hopkins, social chairman, was in charge of arrangements.

Smith Dormitory Has Coke Party

Smith dormitory entertained with a "coke" party on Thursday evening at 11 o'clock in the parlor, honoring the three new girls who have moved to Smith. Guests of honor were Anne Osborne of Waynesville, Daisy Smith of Sylva, and Lucy Knox Jordan, new associate hostess of the dormitory from Lumber City, Georgia.

Miriam Evans, house president and Merrily Brooks, social chairman, were hostesses for the party. Organ music was provided by Frances Cardwell.

Law prohibits a candidate from being elected to more than two consecutive terms as state treasurer of Nebraska.

Chi Phis Give Orphans Autographed Football

Before leaving for the Christmas holidays the Chi Phi fraternity gave a party for the children from the Christian Orphanage of Elon College, N. C. Thirty-six youngsters, from 4 to 10 years old were given the 'run-of-the-house' for an afternoon.

Carols were sung, ice cream and cookies were served, and stockings for each child were taken from the mantlepiece. A Chrstmas story was read by Kit Sledge, and Chancellor House entertained with several numbers on his harmonica.

Tri Delts Hold Pledge Dance

Last Friday evening the members of Delta Delta Delta entertained their pledges at a formal dance given in the ball room of the Carolina Inn. The dance was started by the presentation of the thirty-two pledges who were announced and presented by "Bum" McCormick. Each girl caried a large boquet of American Beauty roses as she walked through the ivy-covered arch which led in to the ball room. After the presentation there was dancing to the tunes of Johnny Satterfield's orchestra.

The pledges, in honor of whom the dance was given, are as follows: Frances Bickett, Marilyn Blackwell, Ann Clark, Cynthia Cannon, Babs De Witt, Mary Dillard, Dolly Ann Dunaway, Pat Ellis, Betsy Emory, Margaret Gaston, Marion Hammock, Heath Hartsell, Dudly Hill, Lillian Hotard, Candy Jonas, Dutch Jones, Babs Kerr, Lib Kiser, Joan Lucas, Peppy Lucas, Tenn Mason, Betty McDonald, Emily Ogburn, Danny Payne, Marjorie Pless, B. A. Pope, Martha Rainsford, Jotty Rhyne, Hilda Sharkey, Mary Ross Sherrin, Grace Winslow, and Elinor Woltz.

Last Sunday night Tri Delta opened its Winter Quarter of social activities with open house from 7 until 8. The Sunday night coffee hour is a weekly event on their social calendar, and all are welcome to attend.

Influenza Vaccine

All students desiring to do so can still obtain the influenza vaccine from the University infirmary, Dr. E. M. Hedgepeth, said yesterday. Dr. Hedgepeth pointed out the desirability of having the protection offered by this vaccine especially at this time of the year.

A high-light of the afternoon was the presentation of a football, autographed by all the varsity squad, by Walt Pupa. The youngster receiveing the ball on behalf of all lthe boys present remarked, "Now I can practice; I'm going to play when I go to college." When asked where he was going to college he pointed his pistol at the All-Southern, fired, and said, "Texas." Pupa was astounded; the rest of the group around them chuckled.

The main event of the afternoon was the presentation of individual gifts to each of the orphans from under the beautifully decorated Christmas tree by none other than Santa Claus.

Too late for publication in Daily Tar Heel before the holidays, the party received statewide publicity, incluring pictures and articles in many newspapers an the State magazine. During the holidays congratulatory letters have been received by the fraternity from University and people throughout the state.

Odell Coaches Huskies

Former Yale Coach Howie Odell has signed to coach the University of Washington football team, succeeding Ralph Welch, Odell signed a one-year contract and will assume his duties immediately.

Odell has been coaching for 12 years now, the last six at ale where his teams won 35 games, lost 15, and tied two. He was the first non-graduate to coach a Yale team.

He came to the Elis after spending time at Pitt, Harvard, Penn, and Wisconsin. The new Huskie coach says, "I have felt my football future was at Washington since the first time I was approacher about the position".

Odell takes over at Washington following the school's worst season since 1930. The 1947 Huskies lost six while winning only three contests.

Why I'm an Air Force Pilot

"I guess it began when I was just a kid, making non-stop flights around the dining-room table. Later on, the town got an airport. I got to know every plane, right down to the smallest bolts and screws.

"During the war I took off with the Aviation Cadets. The folks were all for it. They figured—correctly—that it was the best way to get me into the air where I belonged.

"I made it all right. Trained in the best planes the Air Force has, and now I'm heading for transition work in jets. The [illegible] that I'm a pilot, $336 a month, [illegible] for each year of active duty. And there's [illegible] room for promotions.

"But that's not the real point. Some men belong in the air. They were born wanting wings—with the action, the pride, the freedom that go with them. There's no better way to have all that, along with the world's finest flying training, than to join the Aviation Cadets. And the future—in civilian aviation or in the Air Force—is as wide open as the horizon. If you want the fast-moving life, why not drop around to the Recruiting Station in your community or the nearest Air Force installation."

The Sardine Situation

THE UNIVERSITY ATHLETIC council announced Friday its plan to be followed for the distribution of tickets for the Duke and State basketball games. Their problem was a simple one—there are 9,000 passbooks issued for a mere 6,000 seats. The solution to the whole shebang is not to be as easily discovered.

But the Council has reached a solution which seems to be a very acceptible and plausible one. Half of the passbook holders will be guarenteed of seeing one game and the other half will receive a similiar honor for the other contest. The rest of the ducats for each game will be distributed to the remainder of the students on a first-come first-served basis.

There is a possibility that all passbook holders who wish to see both games will get to do so. This, of course, will depend on the cooperation of both the students who would go and those who have no desire to see the attractions. The latter group may do their fellow students a proverbial favor by retaining their own passbooks even if they do not use them and not loaning them to others, especially outsiders—a practice in violation of the conditions underwhich the books were issued. In this way, some or maybe most of the 3,000 book deficit may be overcome, and all student fans will get to witness their Tar Heels in the traditional encounters. Woollen gym has not been completely filled on any occasion this season, but no games causing the interest and stimulation of the Duke and State affairs have been displayed. You won't have to drag them there with wild horses.

S. R. O.

THE COUNCIL HOPES that as many students as physically and safely possible will get to see the games. Scarcity of anything causes a natural reaction in the majority of people—the reaction of getting something never before desired, purely for the reason that it is scarce. It is hoped that this can be avoided in this instance and that only those who intend to use the tickets personally will draw them under the plan. The cooperation of all will aid in the remeding of a very unfortunate situation that has arisen from the sudden, abnormal growth of the University. Such are the times that try men's souls!

There has been talk on the campus by some students that they will see the games whether they legally receive tickets or not. Let one remind such thinkers that a similiar incident occurred at State College last year and the result was that no game at all was played. That it couldn't happen here can't safely be said, but it is strongly doubted that Tar Heel students would sink to that level of action. A game for 6,000 seems better than no game at all.

Academanics

THE RECENT DECLARATIONS of ineligibility rendered against several of Carolina's most preformanceproof athletes and the inability of several more athletic stars to compete this year because of heavy scholastic loads, certainly goes to prove that above all, Carolina is still primarily an institution of academic learning.

There seems to be a popular misconception that college athletic performers are abstained from the pitfalls of the academic trail by virtue of their actions on the gridiron or other fields of friendly strife. The recent news has proved otherwise, and shown to all non-believers that Carolina shows no favoritism to its athletes for their achievements out side of the classroom.

Few realize that until the past year when the academic average requirements of the University were raised, an athlete was required to make superior grades to play his particular sport than the average student was to remain from beneath the wrath of the deans and its eventual consequences. The athlete's task is at times further complicated by his absence from class because of the length of travel distance to points of current intersectional activities. All this missed time must be made up upon his return to school thus further burdening his work load.

Doctors, Lawyers, Indian Chiefs

ANOTHER POPULAR MISCONCEPTION is that most athletes merely major in Physical Education during their tour in the University. This is not true since Carolina sports performers and ex-performers can be found in every school of the University from Commerce to Law and back. The big laugh about this fallacy is that the Physical Education department is one of the roughest scholastic hurdles in the school, and flunks its share with the best of them.

Yet, the biggest misconception of the all is the one about sports being all brawn and no brains. No falser words were ever spoken. Modern athletics are sciences in the truest sense of the word, and in a sport such as football, it takes a good mental workingpiece to remember all the plays, let alone have a conception of what you are doing. There hasn't been an All-American team in years that wasn't dotted with Phi Beta Kappas. Tar Heel Andy Bershak, now deceased, was among those who were All-American in classroom and on gridiron at the same time.

Thus, the opponents of big time college athletics will find it a little tough to attack the sports boys from their academic flank. They seem well fortified when it comes to knowledge.

Pinning One Down

CAROLINA'S SOUTHERN CONFERENCE wrestling champions open the defense of their 1947 crown here tomorrow night against VPI, and the match has all the makings of a fine grunt fest. It is a funny thing, but college wrestling has never been excessively popular on the Tar Heels campus. The reason is not too obvious, and it is thought that if more students got to know and understand the sport, they would come to enjoy it immensely.

College wrestling today has a rather simple scoring system that aids in deciding a match's eventual winner, and also enables the fan to keep constant tabs on the conditions that are existant.

So, for a pleasant evening of enjoyable entertainment, drop down to the Gym tomorrow night and join in with the grunts and groans. Students, especially coeds, might learn something of decided interest.

Kohler, Dillon Pace Phantoms; Temple Controls Backboard

By Bob Goldwater

Philadelphia, Jan. 17—Carolina's White Phantoms, who had won 12 straight games before they headed northward, met with disaster for the second straight game here tonight as Temple's off-and-on Owls came through with a 61-51 victory over the invading Southerners.

Coach Tom Scott's boys looked better than they did in losing to NYU, 63-34 on Thursday, but their play was far from that which they displayed in marching to 12 straight victories at the season's outset.

John Dillon, who didn't start the game, and Norm Kohler were about the only Phantoms who had much success in hitting the basket tonight. Dillon had 11 and Kohler 12.

Two Foul Out

Still feeling the loss of Bill Miller, the Phantoms were simply too tired out in the final period to play good ball. Fred Swartzberg and Kohler went out on fouls and consequently the reserve strength was weakened.

Tonight the Phantoms did not show the signs of nervousness that they displayed against NYU, but the team's shooting was off noticeably.

Carolina led for most of the first half. With the whole team sharing in the scoring the visitors ran up a 10-4 margin before Temple found itself. But the Owl's Fox got hot with 7 points in a row and Hatkevich batted in a follow to give Temple a 14-13 lead at the 14:15 mark. All night long, Temple's superior rebound play was a deciding factor in the game.

Enter Dillon

John Dillon came in for Carolina and hit a hook to tie the score at 16-16 and from there in it was nip-and-tuck to the half, which saw Temple sporting a 24-20 lead.

The second half saw Carolina off guard and Temple ran to a 30-22 lead before the Phantoms could get started. At 8:15 Scott's players made a great surge. Trailing 37-30, Schoibe hit a one-hander and Kohler got a free throw and follow to cut the lead to 37-35 at 9:30

Nelson Bobb, Temple's All-American prospect, was equal to the occasion, however. He dumped in four quick points and the Owles led at 43-38. Dillon hit two Carolina goals to one Temple goal to slice the score to 45-41 but that was as close as the Phantoms could come from there on out. Paxton hit two long shots and Dillon made another hook for the Carolina scoring highlights for the final minutes. Temple employed a fast-break against the tiring Carolinians to run up its margin.

The Best in Professional Tennis

Kramer vs Riggs Tennis Match Scheduled Here Tuesday Night

Tennis fans in North Carolina, who don't often get an opportunity to witness first-rate competition, will be seeing the nation's best on display when Jack Kramer and Bobby Riggs perform in Woollen gymnasium on Tuesday night at 7:30. The match will be one of a series which the two are playing for the World's Professional tennis championship.

Pancho Segura, the colorful Ecuadorean with the two-handed swing, will meet Dinny Pails, Austrailian champion, in an added feature. Carolina students may purchase tickets for only $1.00 and the regular admission is $2.00.

Still More Tickets

Accomodations have been provided for some 4,800 fans to attend and there are still tickets on sale at the ticket window at Woollen gym. Fans who plan to witness the program should buy their tickets tomorrow in order to avoid the last minute rush and to get a good seat They will be on sale on Tuesday, however.

Kramer, who dominated the nation's amateur tennis circles for several years before he turned professional recently, is rated slightly better than Riggs, who holds the pro crown now. Riggs himself declares that Kramer is even better than Don Budge, but he is also confident that he can handle Kramer.

Riggs figures that he will be able to take on Kramer because of superior conditioning and a good defensive game that has always been able to handle a power game like Kramer's.

The touring pair are just about even in the number of matches won in this series, and many of the sets have been real thrillers For example, Riggs topped Kramer by 6-2, 10-8, 4-6, and 6-4 recently and most of the other sets have been just as close.

Another Good Match

Although the Kramer-Riggs match probably will be a battle in which more skill is displayed, Segura and Pails have demonstrated that they can put on a match that will contain more than its share of excitement.

He Gets Around

New York, JaJn. 17 —(UP)— For a boy who hasn't even been graduated from college, Notre Dame's All-America tackle George Connor is certainly making the rounds of professional football.

The New York Giants, who gained draft rights on him first, traded their claim to Boston last season for Paul Governali. Now Boston has traded her draft rights on Connor to the Chicago Bears for tackle Mike Jarmolak. The collegian really gets tossed around.

Tracksters Run Well In Tin Can Practice

In preparation for the Philadelphia Inquirer track meet next Friday night Coach Dale Ranson sent the Carolina tracksters through fast time trials in the Tin Can yesterday morning.

In the mile and a half Sam Magill, Jimmy Miller, and Jack Milne all finished bunched up in the excellent time of 6:43. This time makes an equivalent of 9:10 two-mile run. Magill, incidentally, was clocked in 4:30 for the first mile which is the fastest time he has ever covered together in good time.

The most pleasant surprise for the coaching staff was the time turned in by Julian Mackenzie who was close up to the front in the mile and a half and is beginning to reach the peak that he attained in 1943. It was in that year that Mackenzie was at his best and was picked by many as one of the best up-and-coming distance men in the country. He is being counted on heavily by the coaches to make this year's track team the best that has ever represented the University.

Wrestlers to Meet VPI Squad Monday

Carolina's grapplers got a day off yesterday from the steady workouts which began early in the fall quarter and which will reach their climax tomorrow night when they take the floor against the Virginia Tech Gobblers in a Southern conference tilt in Woollen gymnasium.

The Tar Heels open this season with several handicaps. Not one of the three men who won Southern conference titles as Carolina captured the conference championship last year are back with the squad. Already faced with one of his smallest rosters, Coach Chuck Quinlan lost some of the groaners on whom he was counting to carry the burden.

Quinlan's Losses

T. A. Hearn, conference leader in the 128-pound class, ran out of eligibility after last season. Laurie Hooper, champion in the unlimited class, was forced to quit the squad due to a heavy scholastic schedule, and Irv Zirpel, 155, has just been declared ineligibile for further intercollegiate competition.

However, Coach Quinlan still has some lettermen and ex-jayvees to start in the opening contest. Tar Baby end, John Stoioff will represent Carolina in the unlimited class Monday. Captain Bill Kemp and Oscar Gupton will round out the local heavyweight entries at 175 and 165 pounds, respectively. Carroll Fischer, 155, and Phil Kemp, 145, both intramural champs, will also start. Tom Urquhart, 136, Collier Cobb, 128, and Doug Thompson, 121, round out the starting eight.

The last time the two squads met, the Carolina matmen took the decision by 12 points, but with their immeasurably weakened squad they will have a hard time repeating against the Gobblers.

Hamilton's Jayvees Score Another Win; Top UNC Extension

By Morty Schaap

Charlotte, Jan. 18—Coach Jim Hamilton's fast-stepping Carolina jayvees marked up their tenth win in 11 starts here tonight by defeating the Charlotte Extension of the University of North Carolina, 55-23.

The Chapel Hill outfit apparently had difficulty in accustoming itself to the Central High School gymnasium, for it was not until nine minutes of playing time had elapsed before the visitors scored.

The Carolina Jayvees, who held the upper hand for most of the evening, then proceeded to march to a 25-10 margin at half-time

John Tsantes, high-scoring Carolina center, once again led his team, this time with 10 points. Hal Ferraro, who did not start the game, shared scoring honors also with 10, nine of which came in the second holf. Ferraro had his jump shot working with effectiveness to account for his total.

Peters, who tallied nine, followed the two in the scoring column. Proctor, who had eight, paced the Extension outfit.

Ten Games Scheduled For Monday's Murals

The Intramural Department's athletic program gets back into full swing tomorrow, and basketball still holds the spotlight. Ten contests in the fraternity division are scheduled.

Two more sports will be added to the program in the near future. Entries of handball teams must be turned in by Thursday of this week and play will begin next Monday. Boxing is also slated to begin soon; and Coach Mike Ronman will give instructions between 2 and 4 o'clock on Tuesday, Thursday, and Friday in Woollen gym's boxing room to those who destre to pick up a few pointers.

CAGE SCHEDULE

4:00—Court 3: Kap Sig 1 vs. KA 3; Court 4: Zeta 4 vs. Phi Kap 1; Court 5: ATO 3 vs. Phi Kap 2; Court 6: PiKA 2 vs. Sig Nu 3; Court 7: TEP 2 vs. Zeta 1.

5:00—Court 3: Chi Phi 1 vs. ATO 2; Court 4: Chi Psi 1 vs. Pi Lambda 1; Court 5: Phi Gam 3 vs. Phi Delt 2; Court 6: Sig Chi 1 vs. Sig Nu 2; Court 7: Kap Sig 2 vs. Zeta 3.

Let's Be There

Carolina's basketball team, like the football team after the loss to Texas, will be returning to Chapel Hill today in rather low spirits. Bob Goldwater, Daily Tar Heel sports editor who is travelling with the team, suggested by long distance last night that a mass pep rally to greet the team back would help matters.

So all loyal Tar Heel students should try and be in front of Woollen gym at 8:45 tonight when the boys arrive. They deserve an ovation for those 12 wins even if they did fall down on the trip.

Cancelled

Raleigh, Jan. 17 —(UP— Officials at North Carolina State College have cancelled tonight's basketball game with Duke University.

The action came after Raleigh city officials nailed condemned signs on the doors of Frank Thompson gymnasium.

Acting Fire Chief A. B. Lloyd says he was warnes by State insurance oficials that the gym is not safe for occupancy by more than 12,000 spectators. Some 4,000 tickets had been sold for tonight's game with Duke.

Lloyd says North Carolina Insurance Commissioner William P. Hodges warned that the gym had to few emergency exits. And city officials, for the second time, put a stop to the game.

Last year, former Fire Chief W. R. Butts ordered he North Carolina-N. C. State game cancelled ater nearly 5,000 spectators had jammed the building.

College officials say the State-Duke contest will be played later. And they hope to provide suitable emergency acilities in time for a game with High Point College next week.

Motion Pictures Depicting Church Work to Be Shown

"This Road We Walk," a motion picture illustrating in graphic detail the work of Church World Service in 1947, will be the feature of the Baptist Student Union supper forum to be held tonight in the lower auditorium at 6 o'clock. The general public is invited to attend the showing of the picture at 7:15, whether or not they are able to be present for the supper itself.

Twenty denominations in this country are cooperating in the Service, pooling their appeals for clothing and funds and maintaining a staff which coordinates and directs the distribution of these necessities throughout the world. In 1947 the amount handled was approximately fourteen million dollars. The film to be shown this evening describes the ways in which these funds were used.

As a result of a discussion period following the first supper forum of the quarter, held last week, the BSU is inaugurating a program of increased student participation in its Sunday evening programs, which are under the direction of Charles Cunningham and a newly-appointed program committee. Frnaces Greene will have the devotional program this evening.

Anti-Monopoly Party. And so

At the discussion tonight we shall reveal how this tendency far from being reversed in the last 30 years, has produced the Roosevelt tradition and, finally the present Third Party Movement, which shows every indication of carrying the long and bitter struggle against entrenched greed to a victorious conclusion.

Hungry?

Washington —(UP)— "Whaleburgers" may not be on tomorrow's menu but they are getting the same frozen treatment that the hamburger receives.

The new factory whaling ships which roam Antarctic waters now have refrigerator compartments to freeze the catch and preserve its flavor, the National Geographic Society reported.

The flavor it preserves is "mild and beef-like," a welcome food in many old world lands, the statement said. The secret in coking the whale meat, whether it's "whaleburgers," steak or stew, is to add onions and peppers.

Food isn't the only result of a good catch of whale. Whale oil is used in soaps, in making glycerine, for munitions and in processing leather.

The oil is used also in preparing face creams and ointments. The rarest and most valuable of whale products is ambergris, used in fine perfumes.

End To Civil War Asked By Council

Lake Success, New York, Jan. 17—(UP)—In a special resolution this afternoon at Lake Success, New York, the U-N Security council called on India and Pakistan to end their war in the princely state of Mashmir.

The resolution demanded that governments of the two dominions at once take "all measures to end the strife brought on by Moslem invasions of Pakistan. The resolution urged the two governments to issue appeals to their peoples to avoid further bloodshed.

Observers agree that the U-N action is only a stop-gap measure, and that more positive intervention would take some time. The decision came after Pakistan indicated it was in favor of creating a U-N Police force for Kashmir, made up of British troops. Russia refrained from voting on the U-N resolution on the grounds that it would do no good.

102 Year Old Veteran Celebrates Birthday

Bristol, Tennessee, Jan. 17 —(UP)—A corporal in the Army of Northern Virginia reached his 102nd birthday today, and in the Tennessee-Virginia border city of Bristol they brought the old south back to life for a day in honor of Julius P. Howell.

It's "General" Howell these days. The title and three stars came when he became commander of confederate veterans, and he got as much attention today as if his side had won the Civil war.

Movie actress Mary Pickford and other notables from near and far came to celebrate with the spry old gentleman.

Five governors planned to attend, but all but Virginia's William Tuck got snowed in at distant airports.

Tonight there will be a banquet and a ball in the southern tradition. The General says he'll lead the grand march and then sit back, relax and watch the young folks.

TB Heads Fatality List, According To Health Report

Dr. David O. Garvin, district health officer, has released the figures on birth and deaths in Orange county for the first ten months of 1947.

In the ten month period 671 babies were born to Orange county residents.

During the same period 173 deaths were recorded.

Heart disease lead the causes of death with 36 Orange county citizens dying from this cause. Intracranial vascular lesions was second, taking the lives of 25 persons. Cancer was third with 19 victims. Nephritis ranked fourth with 16 deaths and pneumonia was the cause of death in 8 cases.

Other causes included: accidents (non-auto), 5; auto accidents, 4; tuberculosis (pulmonary), pregnancy, 1. Thirty additional deaths were listed under the miscellaneous classification.

Tuberculosis Still a Problem

Dr. Garvin pointed out that the four deaths reported from pulmonary tuberculosis did not include those people with tuberculosis who died from some other complication (such as pneumonia, heart disease, etc.). These deaths were listed under the immediate cause.

The Health department is holding an X-ray clinic at the Hillsboro office the second Monday afternoon in every month and at Chapel Hill office every Friday afternoon. Orange county residents are urged to come to these clinics for an X-ray.

"If the people of Orange county will take advantage of the x-ray clinics, many deaths from tuberculosis can be prevented", said Dr. Garvin.

The Army spends several million dolars on the Counter intelligence Corps. Congressman Tabor might investigate.

The Senate Labor Committee, summoned behind locked doors the other day to discuss the nation's pressing labor problems, spent most of the time taking potshots at the President's State Of The Union message. Business was dropped after half the members failed to show up.

Republican Irving Ives of New York touched off the political banter with a quip aimed at Democrat Jim Murray of Montana.

"Tell me, Jim," purred the New Yorker, "did Henry Wallace write that speech for the President?"

Murray flushed, grinned, but said nothing.

"I won't tell on you," pressed Ives, "if you confess."

"Speaking of Wallace," broke in Alabama's Lister Hill, "how many votes do you think he will be able to poll in New York?"

Ives replied that a Communist candidate had scraped the barrel for 147,000 votes, so he predicted Wallace ought to chalk up more than 200,000.

This time it was Murray's turn to wisecrack.

"Do the Communists still vote in New York?" he asked.

"We keep them on the ballot," admitted Ives, "because we think they are less dangerous out in the open where we can see them."

The New Yorker also kidded the Democrats about Truman's taking a political slap at the Taft-Hartley Law.

"I thought that was a high form of statesmanship," defended Alabama's Senator Hill.

MAG BUSINESS STAFF

Secret Agreement of Big Four Revealed As Russians Given Reparation Vessels

Washington, Jan. 17—(UP)—A secret Big Four agreement made public today revealed that Russia is in line to get seven combat vessels, including a 23-thousand-ton battleship, and 30 miscellaneous ships of the former Italian fleet when and if she returns British and American warships loaned to her. The provision is contained in a Big Four agreement reached at the Paris Peace conference in February, 1947.

History Faculty Charged With Discrimination

Reece, Head Of GOP National Committee, To Speak Tuesday

Engagement Period To Be Topic of Talk By Groves Tonight

In the second of a series of talks sponsored by Coed senate for the entire student body, Mrs. Ernest R. Groves, eminent authority on marriage and the family, will speak tonight in Hill hall on the engagement period leading to marriage.

Time of the lecture has been changed since last week, from 7:30 to 7 o'clock.

Originally planned as a series of three related talks, the series has been cut to two because of a conference in New York which Mrs. Groves must attend.

Reasons For Dating

Tonight's talk will be a continuation of last week's, at which Mrs. Groves analysed reasons for dating and the values received from it, as well as the problems arising, with particular emphasis on the campus situation.

Question to be put to Mrs. Groves may be placed in a box provided for them in the information office of the Y. She will also be available for personal counseling after her return from New York.

Wide Experience

Vice president of the American Association of Marriage counselors, Mrs. Groves has gained wide experience in her field through work on college campuses throughout the country. She has, since 1941, carried on the work of her late husband, who first introduced marriage courses to the University.

She is among the small percentage of women represented in Who's Who, and has recently been elected vice president of the National Council on Family Relations.

First Visit in Chapel Hill Will Be Sponsored by CPU

By Mary Ann Taber

Carroll Reece, chairman of the Republican National committee, will speak next Tuesday evening at eight o'clock in Gerrard hall under the auspices of the Carolina Political union.

Reece stated in a letter to Bill Kemp, chairman of CPU, that he would prefer for the union to name the topic on which he is to speak. The union voted on several topics, and the one chosen will be released later.

Other Republicans

Although this is Reece's first appearance in Chapel Hill he is not the first Republican leader to be sponsored by the Carolina Political union. Senator Robert Taft has spoken on two occasions, and Senator Wayne Morse, liberal Republican leader, spoke here last spring.

Reese was elected chairman of the Republican National committee in April, 1946, when the GOP, after four setbacks in presidential campaigns, was striving to capture control of Congress in the '46 elections, with the White House in mind for 1948.

Reece's Background

Born on a farm in the Great Smoky mountain region of east Tennessee, Caroll Reese was educated in the schools of his native state. As a soldier in the First World War, he distinguished himself on the batlefields of France, winning six decorations.

Reece's first political fight was for Congress from Tennessee, and his election in 1920 made him the youngest member of Congress. He served from that time until his election to the chairmanship of the National committee, when he announced his resignation as congressman to devote full time to his new work.

CARROLL REECE

As newly elected chairman, Reece was target for much adverse criticism from Senator Wayne Morse of Oregon and Harold Stassen. At that time the Republican party was split into two fractions, with Reece only supporting Dewy against Taft. After election he stated that he was "nobody's man"

Carroll Reece is the first of three speakers which the CPU plans to bring to the campus, and his speech promises to be one of the most important of the year. Explaining the nature of his group, Chairman Bill Kemp said, "The Carolina Political union is by its constitution solely a roundtable discussion group which takes no stand on any issue which it discusses." Its function is bringing laboratory material in the form of prominent national peaders for the enlightenment of the general campus.

Morehead Building Should Be Finished By Early 1949 Date

By Raney Stanford

"We're a little behind schedule," said H. E. Thompson, building site representative of Eggers and Higgins, engineers of the new Morehead Planetarium and Art Gallery, "but we think the tentative completion date of early 1949 should be met."

Hard, Mean Rock

In reviewing the progress of the construction of the new structure, Thompson noted that it has been slowed up lately due to workers striking "hard and mean" rock in the current basement excavations.

"But we ought to be fininshing the digging in another week," Thompson estimated. "The Foundation walls should be completed son also."

Steel Beam Framework

And then the building outhorities think the steel beam framework, new piled about the foundation site, should rise quickly and the angular skeleton will "begin to look like a building."

"We haven't had too much trouble with our steel supply," Thompson commented. "The structure has been planned for such a long time, in such detail, that all the procurrement of materials has gone fairly smoothly."

Classrooms Installed

The engineer pointed out the complicated basement layout that is being dug for the planetarium, with the service equipment, in the back of the building, at a lower level than the classrooms that will be installed under the main retunda.

A Strong 'Recommendation'

January 19, 1948

Editor, Daily Tar Heel
Dear Sir:

I have been asked to withdraw from graduate work in the History Department because of my religion and my political views.

On Wednesday, January 14, I received a letter from the head of the Department conveying a "strong recommendation" that I should not "continue the pursuit of a graduate degree in history beyond the M.A." I received my M.A. last August and am in the midst of the second quarter of work toward the doctorate.

Since I had no previous intimation from my professors that they were dissatisfied with my work, this letter took me completely by surprise. I went at once to the head of the Department for an explanation. He stated to me that it was the feeling of the Department that I should be better off leaving now since, if I received a Ph. D., I would be unable to get a job because of my political views and because I am Jewish. For these reasons, also, the Department would not at that time be able to give me their heartiest recommendation.

At his suggestion, I also talked to some of the other members of the Department. I found that, on the whole, they concurred with his position. Only two of them seemed to feel that unsatisfactory work was the reason for the action and these were two profesors under whom I had done no work. The professor on whose motion the action was taken stated that it was because of personality and religion. Two other members of the Department went so far as to say that they approved the action because they felt that any person with my views on historical materialism was unsuited to study history at the University of North Carolna.

I have asked the Department to reconsider its recommendation, a summary action taken against an individual because his views and his religion together do not meet the approval of some of his professors.

I am making these facts public because I feel that, for their own protection, the students of U.N.C. and the public are entitled to know that atacks on our traditional American liberties have now reached the point where academic freedom is insecure in an institution which has enjoyed an enviable reputation for its liberalism.

Sincerely,
Leonard Bernstein

Grad Student Says Religion, Politics Held Against Him

By Chuck Hauser

Leonard Bernstein, 27-year-old graduate student in the history department, has claimed that he was asked to discontinue his course of study at the University because of his religious and political affiliations.

The student received a letter from the history department last Wednesday with a "strong recommendation" that he not continue the pursuit of a graduate degree in history beyond the M. A., which he received last August.

Not Continue

The letter, signed by Dr. A. R. Newsome, department head, said the following: "The History department in a full meeting of the staff has concluded that your graduate record as a whole, though officially of passing grade, is such as to warrant a strong recommendation that you not continue the pursuit of a graduate degree in history beyond the M. A."

When he went to ask Dr. Newsome for an explanation of the letter, Bernstein said, "Dr. Newsome stated to me that the main reasons were that it would be ter graduation because of my difficult for me to get a job afpolitical views and because I am Jewish, and that the members of the department would not be able to give me their wholehearted recommendation for employment for these same reasons."

Caldwell Agrees

The above statement was made in a sworn affidavit by Bernstein received in the Daily Tar Heel office yesterday afternoon. The document went on to say, "I also talked to Professor James L. Godfrey of the history department. Professor Godfrey stated to me that he voted for the action taken by the department in regard to me because he felt that acceptance of the ideas of historical materialism was incompatible with graduate study in history at the University of North Carolina. Professor Caldwell expressed a viewpoint similar to that of Professor Godfrey."

Dr. Newsome, head of the history department, was questioned yesterday afternoon about Bernstein's status, and stated, "I cannot deny that Bernstein's religion and his political viewpoints may have influenced some members of the department, but certainly that isn't the whole reason."

Wasting Time, Money

Dr. Newsome went on to state that Bernstein's work was passing, that he had done a very well-written thesis for his master's degree, but that he thought he was wasting his time and money working for his doctorate.

Dr. Newsome also said that there were one or two more students who would probably receive similar "recommendations" after they obtain their master's degrees.

As to Bernstein's political viewpoints, on which much of the situation is allegedly based, the 27-year-old student says, "I would like very much to make a statement on the question of whether I am or am not a mem-

Dancing Classes Initiated By GM

Remedying the absence of any dance instruction on the campus this quarter, Graham Memorial will tomorrow initiate a series of weekly sesions in advanced and special ballroom dances. Teaching the classes will be Bill Corley former dance teacher, and well-known performer in campus productions.

The first session will be held in Roland Parker Lounge No. 3 of Graham Memorial tomorrow afternoon at 4 o'clock. Corley explained the classes will be "advanced" only in the sense that dances such as the tango, Viennese waltz, Polka, and swing waltz will be taught, but these will be taken up from their beginning points. If demand is great enough, simpler dance forms wkill be taught later.

As is the policy with all student union functions the classes are open to everyone, and no charge is to be made for instruction.

Eller To Advocate Compulsory Basis To Suport Entertainment Program

By Margaret Gaston

Student body president Tom Eller will advocate putting student entertainment on an involuntary payment basis in his state of the campus speech to the Legislature Thursday night. Eller insists that a "classical entertainment program can not be supplied on this campus on a voluntary basis because price is, of necessity, too high. Eller says that the only way student entertainment of a classical nature can be given to students is through some form of involuntary payment on tax basis.

In an article written for the January, 1947, Carolina magazine, Eller stated:

Eller's Stand

"As long as the student entertainment program is on an entirely voluntary basis, the committee must have some organization underwrite it for its entertainers, and the veteran must pay out of a diminishing pocketbook a higher price than formerly was paid by the veterans administration," when the entertainment program was on an involuntary payment basis.

Eller has appointed B. J. Strong chairman of a committee to form plans to liquidate the $2,000 debt sustained by the Student Enterainment committee. Other members of the recently-formed committee are Ruth Evans, Billy Carmichael, and Blanton Miller.

Financial Troubles

The Student Entertainment committee, headed by Dr. J. P. Harlan, first ran into financial difficulties when it lost heavily on its fall presentation, the opera "Madame Butterfly." The committee has on hand $400 cash and on the red side of the ledger stands a $900 debt owed to season-ticket holders, and a $1,500 debt owed to the Playmakers.

Reimbursement Plans

Plans have already been put into effect to reimburse season-ticket holders, according to Dr Harlan. After noting the ticket number, these persons are requested to send their ticket books, with names and addresses enclosed, to 206 South building or to mail them to the president of the Student body at Box 608. However payment cannot be made immediately, because of the amount of work involved.

According to Eller, plans are being formulated to salvage Franz Polgar's hypo-magic program, the last program scheduled on the entertainment series. Graham Memorial will probably be asked to sponsor the program.

Carolina Folk Festival to Be Held In Chapel Hill in June Next Summer

The Folklore council of the University has decided to sponsor a two-day Carolina Folk festival here June 18-19, under the direction of Bascom Lamar Lunsford, known as "The Minstrel of the Appalachians," who lives at South Turkey Creek, Leicester, N. C. The festival is planned as an annual event.

Mr. Lunsford has for more 20 years successfully directed the annual Mountain Dance and Folk festival at Asheville, widely known as an institution of his own creation.

It is hoped that the festival here may be the means of drawing to Chapel Hill much of the state's best in traditional cultures.

Such a program, the sponsors believe, will afford a great opportunity, not only for the performers to gather in a sort of annual reunion, but also for teachers, music lovers and writers to meet upon common ground, "those who have been responsible for keeping alive the richest and best of our racial traditions, and the cultural benefits of age-old folk songs and dances.

Meyers' Lawyers Say Case Invalid

Washinton, Jan. 19 —(UP)— Attorneys for retired Major General Bennett Meyers were disclosed tonight to have asked the Federal District Court in Washington to throw his six-count perjury indictment out of court.

In a formal motion, Defense Attorney Smith W. Brookhart, Jr., said the indictment was invalid because its "so-called facts were not sufficient to constitute a criminal offense against the United States."

Brookhart also asked the court to order U. S. Attorney George Morris Fay to show defense attorneys the documentary evidence he has against the former Air Corps purchasing officer. Meyers' lawyer said that an examination of the prosecution's evidence was essential to the preparation of a defense.

UVA Open House Set for Thursday

To avoid a conflict with the tennis matches tonight, the weekly open house of the University Veterans association will be postponed until Thursday night. UVA President Johnny Clampitt announced yesterday.

The Chi O's have been announced tentatively as guests for the entertainment, which will begin at 8 o'clock Thursday. A "lion hunt" will be a feature on the program.

UVA membership cards will be available at the door to all veterans who are not yet members of the a sociation.

Bill Sessions Is Appointed Literary Editor of Magazine

Bill Sesions, a senior of Conway, South Carolina, has been appointed to serve as literary editor of the Carolina magazine.

Sessions, whose appointment was announced yesterday by editor Fred Jacobson of the magazine, has assumed his new duties. He has been associated with the mag throughout this year and wrote for it in '45-'46.

According to Jacobson, his appointment is expected to inaugurate a series of new mag policies. "We will aim", Sessions stated yesterday, "at an acceptable mixture of stories of high literary quality and feature material of interest to the student body."

Variety In Material

"This policy should provide a variety of material suited to the diversity of tastes to be found on the campus", Jacobson declared in commenting on the new move.

Two new members have been added to the literary staff for the announced purpose of "implementing this policy and adding to the high caliber of the existing staff". They are Clark Stallworth and Julia Ross. Bob Sain, McNeer Dillon, and Harry Snowden, present members of the staff are expected to continue in their present posts.

Previous Experience

The new editor, Sessions, is a 20 year old ex-merchant marine member. During his first year here, he was chairman of the freshman class council and served on the staffs of all of the publications. He is a member of the Kappa Alpha fraternity the company of Paul Green's "Lost Colony".

He replaces John McDowell who resigned because of his impending graduation.

NO MONOGRAM MEETING

Bill Pritchard, president of the Monogram club, has announced that there will not be a meeting of the organization this evening because of the tennis matches. The next meeting will be next Tuesday.

Many Parts Open In S & F Musical

"There will be lotsa parts; lotsa male and female parts; LOTSA female parts," available at the "Roll Them Over" tryouts, according to writer-actor Pete Strader. Anyone interested in grabbing a part in this quarter's musical comedy may show their stuff at the Sound and Fury meeting in Gerard hall at 7:30 tonight.

Left over from last week's election-filled agenda, committee appointments will also take place onight. Social and production committees are to be appointed, and publicity, ticket and sales sub-committees are to be formed under the production committtee. Both old and new members will be able to serve on committees in which they are most interested.

Sound and Fury writers are sticking to their guns when questioned about "Roll Them Over." They still call the show, which is to take place about the end of next month, "an intimate re-

School Rulings

Oklahoma City, Jan. 19—(UP)—The Oklahoma state regents have announced plans for a separate law school which will be set up immediately for the benefit of a Negro woman denied admission to the Oklahoma law school because of her race.

The action was brought about by a recent Supreme Court decision directing the state to supply equal education opportunities for Negroes.

Nashville, Jan. 19 —(UP)— Six southern governors met here today to approve plans to set up regional colleges throughout the South.

The schools would be financed through a joint fund with contributions by the separate states. Governor Millard Caldwell of Florida who announced the plan said, it is apparent that no single state in the South is financially able to supply the best in education.

He denied that the plan is designed solely to keep colored students from entering the professional schools in existing Southern universities. The Supreme Court recently ruled that a Negro woman seeking a legal education in Oklahoma is entitled to get it in a state school.

IFC Solves Touchy Campus Problem With Verdict On Leap Year Pinning

By Helen Highwater

The Interfraternity council last night, in less than an hour of spirited debate, solved a vital problem to the satisfaction of all present.

President Leon Todd released a statement after the meeting in which he claimed that Carolina men, dismayed since January 1 by the terrible scepter of Leap Year, have been searching for a way to make the thing pay off, and that the IFC finally done the job.

As the solution was announced, in the coming year, instead of the men pinning the coeds, under the new plan, the coeds wil pin the men. It is simple as that, or is it?

Those reactions which could be gathered last night were immediate and vehement. A prominent coed journalist stated that to the best of her information, "Although the sale of men's sweaters may be booming, the feeling will never be the same."

Although another reliable source was positive in her reaction, no explanation could be elicited for her statement that 'it will never work; the pins won't look as good that way."

The male viewpoint was injected by Tarnation editor "Tookie" Hodgson who said that, "I'm just waiting. I've got money, personality, and a car, and I'm hand—; Oh well, three out of four isn't so bad."

LATE PERMISSION

Coeds atending the Kramer-Riggs tennis match in Woollen gymnasium tonight will receive late permission, according to Bootsie McWilliams, president of the Women's Interdormitory council. Passed by Dean Carmichael and the council, the ruling gives coeds 30 minutes to reach their dormitories after the end of the match.

Pedestrians Risk Life And Limb

By Barron Mills

Chapel Hill, for many years, has had a race track it didn't need. It is the Franklin street business speedway formed by a U-turn at both ends—the traffice light at the west end and just a plain old U-turn at the post office corner. The race track is portrayed by Cartoonist Chuck Hauser as having cranes standing on one leg in the center, taking life easy. Maybe I just don't have the necessary imagination, but every time I see it there are pedestrians in the middle of the road, standing first on one foot and then the other as new and antequated vehicles skirt around them. These people I see are not playing hop-scotch, if they were they would be disqualified for changing legs in the middle of the game.

Everyone is getting fed up with the race track. Last week the Board of Aldermen considered a new traffic device which they believe will do the trick. The new system will be a lifesaver to pedestrians and drivers alike.

I selected the past seven days to observe the post office U-turn. From the Daily Tar Heel office in Graham Memorial I witnessed two accidents, one on Thursday and another Sunday. There may have been more, but I can vouch for at least two occidents caused by drivers making U-turns without giving the slightest indication of what they were preparing to do. Also there were countless pedestrians who took their lives in their own hands by risking a crossing.

But at the present time, there is a strong argument for being able to make a U-turn at the post office corner. East Cameron, which cuts through the center of the campus should not have heavy traffic on it. The administration has recognized this fact by request that students do not drive to ciasses unless it is absolutely necessary and only those students who live outside of the walking zone. Stone pillars are already constructed at the ends so that chains may readily be placed to barricade the road if necessary. Rosemary street, the other road for routing traffic, is too narrow to accomodate any heavier load than it already has.

It could, however, take care of heavier traffic if the Police Department would prohibit drivers from any parking whatsoever in Rosemary street. If the Board of Aldermen accepts the new traffic proposals for the post office corner, then, out of necessity, no parking should be allowed on Rosemary street.

The thousand dollars that the Town of Chapel Hill spends to install a traffic light for pedestrians, another for vehicles and a pedestrian safety island in the center would be well spent.

Anything that would help remedy the present situation should be considered by the Aldermen.

A Peaceful Story from the Holy Land

By Eliav Simon

Jerusalem, —(UP)— The Arabs call the town of Tel-Aviv "Bab el Gazoz" which means the Gate of Soda. The reason for this is that you cannot walk a hundred yards in any of the streets without finding a gazoz seller. The only two things you can buy in Palestine for a piaster (4 cents) are a shoe-shine and a glass of gazoz.

Gazoz varies according to the seller. One man sells a delicious concoction. Others sell a drink that tastes like soapy water.

But whatever the drink, the salesman is always resourceful. If you tell him that the stuff is undrinkable he will advise you to throw it away and drink another glass. "What is a piaster to a gentleman these days?"

A man who sells gazoz also sells gelida (ice cream). But in you take a lump out of the retruth a gazoz seller never feels quite at home selling ice cream. white fluid, the red fluid, the There is more art in mixing the yellow fluid, and the "gaz" which go into the miking of a glass of frigerator, stick it on a biscuit and there you are. And you have not got your teeth well into it before your face is a dripping mass of slush.

Rises to Occasion

Pious Jews do not drink milk or touch dairy food for a period of six hours after they have eaten meat. A certain pious lady in Jerusalem gave an at-home party to which the high commissioner and all the important officers of state were invited. She wanted to serve ice cream, after dinner but this posed a delicate problem. She consulted a gazoz seller who said it was not necessary to use cream. Milk of almonds would serve the purpose. She tried it and the ice cream was a wonderful success. Other hostesses in Jerusalem attempted to make ices like hers—in vain.

GM Grill Lost Money

By Pete Gerns

We have selected what seems to be the most constructive suggestions for improvement of Graham Memorial and submitted them to Bill Shuford, director of GM, who we felt could be of help in answering these comments satisfactorily.

Sholar Powell: "I suggest that the grill be put back into operation in the basement of GM."

Bill Shuford: "One of the reasons the grill is not operated is because it operated at a deficit over a long period of time. Another factor was that during the war it was not needed. This is all that I can personally voice an opinion on at this time, but I am sure that further investigation would reveal other sound reasons, even though the financial one is sufficient."

Al Williams: "I'd like to see the Rendezvous room open up at 9 or 10 in the morning."

Shuford: "We have not attempted to open the Rendezvous earlier in the day such as 9 or 10 because 1) difficulty in securing help, since all-student labor is used, and 2) not enough business at present to warrant the expense involved.

Nelson Warner: "Records are not in good shape. The Music room is frequently inaccessible."

Shuford: "Replacement orders have been sent for those records missing out of albums. Recording companies have refused to fill orders except for complete albums. This is very expensive and is being done, but at a slow rate. Music room is frequently inaccessible because it also doubles as a meeting room. Space is at a premium these days."

John Apostal: "Walls in basement need repairs, light bulbs are not regularly replaced."

Shuford: "Walls in basement do need repairing. University officials who have been contacted claim that there is nothing they an do in way of regular maintenance, and that GM would have to build a large retaining wall outside the basement. Very, very expensive proposition.—Light bulbs,—that's my red face you see glowing in the dark."

Joe Sargent: "A game room with pool tables."

Shuford: "Fine, but where? We are extremely short of space. In an effort to have some kind of game room, we are working on the old kitchen, which will eventually have two ping pong tables in it. Perhaps later a pool table."

Charles Hexagon: "GM probably has the poorest record room in South. How about a decent music lounge with accessible records?"

Shuford: "True. Want to do something about this? Again space has been the problem. Unusually heavy demand for meeting space has been the main factor; otherwise we could convert any one of several rooms to this purpose. We are attempting to solve this problem."

Dean Howard: "We need a better supply of magazines."

Shuford: "Believe me, we subscribe to many good magazines, but unfortunately, our fellow men are not too cooperative. The average life of "Life" for example is about three or four hours before it finds its way to someone's dormitory room.

McNeer Dillon: "Let's reinstate the good old-fashioned barefoot dance with nothing barred but guns and knivse."

Shuford: "Thanks for the idea. It will be considered." Thank you, Bill Shuford.

New Witch-Hunt On!

By R. Foo Giduz

The current to-do over the Bernstein affair may not be any isolated case at UNC, and is quite in keeping with the current undercover reactionary trend of those behind-the-powers-that-be in the University. . . It's no startling statement to say that once Lenny Bernstein is forced out of school, if such comes to pass, the wedge will be opened to start a more general purge of free-thinking students AND FACULTY. . .

Now the latter seems to be the current phobia of our reaction-studded trustees. . . In all supposed sincerity on their part they really got down to racial, religious, and political brass (at) tacks at their meetings in the Carolina Inn last Friday and Saturday. . . From here it looks like the biggest witch hunt since Lena-the-Hyena days. . . Among others, the visiting committee of the University trusees called sociology Prof. Guy Johnson and Communist Junius Scales on their closed-door quizzing carpet late last Friday afternoon.

But here's the significant item. . .The committee seemed not as much interested in Communism "nigger-lover" students, and "radical" campus organizations, as it was in what the faculty is teaching and WHO is teaching it. . .Legally the only doctrine teachers are prohibited from spreading is Communism (passed in General Assembly last spring). . . But John Clark and his cohort committeemen, the strong rightist arms of the trustees, persistently asked students if they knew any faculty members who expounded non-Aryan pure views on race questions in their classes. . . Other radical views were lumped in this question also...

Significantly they steered clear of discussion on Dr. Frank Graham. . .It was Tom Eller's student committee on suggestions to the trustees which had to take the initiative in telling the trustees in effect that just in case they were interested the students whom they represented were solidly behind Dr. Frank . . .Thus it would seem that any "Get-Graham" movement by the trustees is being kept under heavy wraps. . .Here's trusting it will smother there!

—So sorry there isn't space here to go into more thorough and clear explanation of this new gawdamighty witch hunt on the part of the self-styled Un-North Carolinian Activities committee—'er we mean the Visiting Committee of the Trustees of the Greater University. . .Among other things they subpoenaed Scales to appear before them on a false pretenses. . .And were thoroughly rude to Prof. Guy Johnson . . .(What they actually grilled him on is not public.)

. . .This whole works is set to burst any day now. . .Let's hope it doesn't, but still let's keep a plenty level head about the whole messy affair WHEN and IF. . .After all, Chapel Hill is nationally known to be the liberal center of the South, (tongue in cheek) a national seat of progress, and still holds rights under the Constitution of the United States. . .

COLUMBUS, O. (UP)—A college education can prove increasingly expensive if College Joe drives an automobile.

The Ohio State University traffic department announced it had collected $5,385 for student violations of parking regulations during the autumn quarter. The traffic deparment said 13,750 tickets were issued.

Fines for tickets lost or not presented within three days after receipt are doubled. Fines for parking operate on a sliding scale—$1 for the first offense and $25 each after the eighth offense.

What's Up in Graham Memorial

GM GRIND:

—It's duplicate bridge night again this evening in the main lounge. . .And they're especially anxious to get new blood playing in the tournament (7 o'clock, lounge). . .Novices are welcome as experts, and partners are not necessary in advance. . .Studies have forced Howell Peacock to give bridge a back seat this quarter, so Harold Cheek has taken over temporarily as student union bridge director. . .

Hepsters may be interested in the latest GM record purchases: —Just got in yesterday afternoon Buddy Clark's brand new Columbia album of sweet dance tunes . . .Also Vaughn Monroe's Dreamland Special album, six sweet popular dance tunes. All records may be checked out to the music room, Parker Lounge No. 3.

This evening's recorded dinner concert will be the fifth movement of Beethoven's Ninth (Choral) symphony.

CP MEETING

There will be a meeting of the Campus party this evening at 7 o'clock in Roland Parker lounge No. 3 of Graham Memorial. It will be limited to one hour and was described by chairman Jess Dedmond as "important".

Gilbert, of the Gilbert and Sullivan team, made models of the Savoy stage and rehearsed every action of their comic operas with tiny blocks of wood as actors.

The most humerous of the Gilbert and Sullivan operas is "The Mikado."

Let The Faculty Stand In Line

Dear Sir:

It was our opinion that athletics at UNC were of, by, and for the students. Consequently, it pains us to learn that unless we're willing to cut our classes and stand in line for a few hours on February 16th, we'll probably find ourselves out in the cold on the night of the State game, due to the fact that faculty members and school employees have as much right to see the game as we do. We find that we can attend the Duke game by merely hiking down to the gym and exchanging our student passes—Thanks.

We might be able to get a look at Los Diablos, Azules over in Methodist Flats on February 27, but our home game with the Wolfpack will be our only chance to see the Phants in action against what is considered to be one of the finer teams. The boys are going to need support and we think that we can yell louder than our respective professors.

Why are pass-books issued to the faculty and employees when the student body can't be taken care of???? We wouldn't mind sitting in the aisles or standing to see that game. The student body could be accomodated for the Duke and State games, the two biggest home games of the season. Since things are already Snafu, why not let the students exchange their pass-book tickets and let the faculty and others stand in line for what's left???

Busy Noses

Editor:

This student wonders if it ever occurs to the so-called politicians on the campus that there are those of us who do not have time to play "ring around the roses with ther busy little noses." The game of campus politics here reminds me of the enlightened guardian who, to ease his pain, gives the blabbering and adolescent protegee a rattler with which to amuse himself. But the protegee soon gets tired of his silly self and seeks the nearest and handiest weapon with which he can goad some innocent passer-by.

This passer-by (innocent or not) has been goaded into the foolishness of writing this letter.

No, I am not interested in the political games of the campus. I cannot and do not wish to take part in political activities. Furthermore, I think that two thirds of the student government organizations of this campus were originally permitted by a very busy and harangued faculty who sought only to quell the boisterous upheavals of an immature student body. I also think that the reason for the wholesale disinterest in campus politics now is due to the fact that the average mental age of the student body has increased by a couple of years since the war: that the game of student government is now for the most part unnecessary and resented by many as petty and childishly carried out. It is my opinion that the big majority of the present student body has too little idle time left from their academic pursuits to warrant a great deal of extra-faculty government.

Recently, Dr. Norman DeWitt elegantly pointed out the evolution of an idea, which down through the ages of history has been a natural enemy of all politicians—the idea that the least government is the best government. This precept applies to any government whether it be student or national. It could certainly be utilized on this campus where some potential Senator Ashton lurks at every public assembly for a chance to foment unrest in hopes of heading the special student committee that might result. The party cry of every politician is: "If you can't find an office you can get elected o, go out and create one!" Students! Here's the way to slash the budget! Get rid of all the unnecessary student committees that are draining on it!

In concluding I would like to add a complaint. All the noise from so many buzzing politicians on the campus is keeping me awake at night. Of course I submit to the fact that there are a few student government activities which are worthy of continuance; but only by those who have the time and interest to carry them out. Those who desire the honor and experience of such extracurricular work should by all means take part in it—quietly.

Protest

In the DTH article (Saturday, January 17) on the meeting of the Wallace for President Club, I was reported present and identified as head of the local AVC chapter. Granting that both my attendance and my chairmanship are facts, I wish, nevertheless, to object to their being linked together.

Membership in AVC does not restrict anyone from political activity. However, it is the policy of the organization not to take any stand on either a political party or candidate.

Therefore let it not be interpreted by members or non members of AVC as an expression of AVC sympathies.

If UN Dies . . . No More Peace

Sirs:

I think it is fair to assume that if the UN dies, the last hope for world peace will die with it.

Unless the UN quickly puts teeth into its actions, it stands to lose whatever prestige and power it has.

Passing a decision is one thing. Carrying it out is another. When the UN voted 33-13 to partition Palestine, no means of enforcement was devised. If Arab ballyhoo about a holy war actually materializes, the UN will cease to exist if the Arabs of Syria, Transjordan, Saudia Arabia, Egypt, etc. are allowed to get away with their blood-thirsty plans of attempting to crush the legally-secured Jewish state in Palestine.

A London A. P. dispatch of January 14 tells us that, "Great Britain will continue to fulfill her contracts to sell arms and military equipment to Arab states despite their threat to march against Palestine after the British mandate ends."

Meanwhile, Haganah (which fought with the British in North Africa and Italy), the Jewish defense force, cannot maintain a single rifle, say the British.

The paradox becomes more exasperating when we consider that on December 5 the United States State Department banned the shipment of arms and munitions to the Middle East.

Thus, it is now "illegal" for an underdog to defend himself. A voice from afar rings out. "What does the world want us to do? Stand by and see our people slaughtered?"

Moshe Shertok, expected to be the first foreign minister of the Jewish State, is asking the U. S. for surplus war material on a lend-lease basis so that the Jews can enforce the UN partition decision. "If there is to be an international force, we'd co-operate," said Shertok. "But if we have to do it alone, then we will be ready for it," he said.

If the UN follows a meek course with the Arab states, the UN is doomed to be a second League. On the other hand, a firm policy of backing up its historic decision will enable the UN to become the potent instrument for peace for which it was designed.

Chamber Music

Pro Arte Well-Received Here

By John K. B. McDowell

The Pro Arte Quartet appeared in recital at Hill Hall this past Sunday night through the courtesy of the Elizabeth Sprague Coolidge Foundation.

The recital opened with the Quartet in C major, K. 465 of Mozart. From the standpoint of musical interest the playing of this quartet was the poorest of the evening. It was played austerely and with too dry a tone.

As a boy of eleven or twelve I was taken to Philadelphia to hear the premiere performance in this country of the opera Wozzeck by Alban Berg. It would be difficult to conceive of more lust, rapine, incest and bloodletting in a year's time than occurred on the stage that night. In addition it was necessary to hear Mr. Berg's music. I sincerely believe my father's black spats worn with his dinner jacket created a more favorable and lasting impression upon Philadelphia than did Wozzeck.

In last evening's concert the quartet turned in a very well played performance of Berg's Luric Suite. Familiarity with the twelve tone construction will make a listener more aware if not more sympathetic with Berg's intentions. Some of the music is interesting, much of it inexcusably dull and the third movement, sensationally meretricious. The quartet concluded their recital with the playing of Schubert's Quartet in G major. This, one of Schubert's greatest works, was played with fine spirit. However, in their musical espousal of nuances ad absurdum the quartet gave into a way of playing which can become a very bad habit.

The audience received the concert enthusiastically.

The Lost Weekend

IT WOULD BE an understatement to say that the White Phantoms didn't do so well on their two-game jaunt over the past weekend. Not only did they suffer defeats one and two, but they looked rather poor in doing so.

No one realizes that fact more than the coach and players themselves. Moreover, they're at a loss to explain why. But, as in all things, there's bound to be a reason and here are the three put forth by Coach Tom Scott:

1. Schedulitis—six games in the 10 days prior to the trip were just too many.

2. Jitters—as bad as Shaky during the Garden first half and only slightly better the rest of the time.

3. Miller—his height was missed especially in the Temple contest, where he appeared on the floor as a towel-toter.

Despite the double drubbing, the Phantoms didn't look completely hopeless. They passed well, dribbled well, looked right smart in their blue travelling uniforms. But when it came right down to putting the ball in the basket, which naturally enough, is where they got the name of basketball, that's where the locals fell way off.

Against NYU they hit with an accuracy rating of 20 per cent, which wouldn't be high enough to win many Southern conference games much less cause the high-flying Violets to fade. The average was increased somewhat against Temple, with the Phantoms actually outshooting the Owls by a 31-26 per cent. But here another shooting error—that of not taking enough shots—was demonstrated, and the result was a 10-point margin in the scoring column.

ANYWAY, NOW THE strain of keeping intact an unbeaten string is gone and the Carolina cagers can center their worries on the chances of pinning Penn, stopping State, and downing Duke. The five-day layoff from cage play will allow them to rest up and recover from the case of jitters. Which leaves only the loss of Miller to worry about come the Quaker clash.

Plenty of Excitement

HOWEVER DULL THE one-sided Garden feature may have been for the 18,479 fans, they nevertheless did get to see one really exciting game. And that was the first struggle of the evening, in which DePaul nipped St. John's in two overtimes, 69-66. Leading by 19 points with 13 minutes remaining, the Redmen began to fall apart and had their lead sliced to two tallies with 90 seconds left. Two quick St. J. buckets made the margin six with 50 seconds showing on the clock. With eight seconds left, the gap had been cut to three, but St. John's had possession and were apparently "in." They weren't, though.

Caught travelling, Tom Tolan of the Redmen bounced the ball into the stands and DePaul was allowed a technical foul shot, which was good. The Demons thereupon completed their sensational comback with a successful layup toss, and the game moved into overtime.

After another 4:55 of play, the game appeared once more at its end, with Dick McGuire of St. John's toeing the foul line for two free tosses. But the game's high scorer—he tallied 24— missed them both and it took another extra session to settle the contest. This time DePaul led all the way and that was the ball game.

THE SECOND GAME of the Philadelphia twin bill was also a thriller. This one featured two of the nation's offensive-minded quintets, Rhode Island State and St. Joseph's. The Rams led by 41-37 at the intermission but had to recover from a 72-69 deficit to gain their victory, by a 82-78 score. The 82 points lowered their average of recent games, the Rhodies having run up counts of 104 and 94 in recent games.

The Good Points

EXCEPT FOR THE time spent in taking it on the chin twice, the trip definitely rated as an enjoyable one. During the stay in New York, the Carolina contingent sat in on two broadcasts, Perry Como's Supper Club and Fred Waring's morning show. They also saw the Janiro-Roach fight at the Garden Friday night. And after the game itself, the whole team, with a DTH reporter tagging along, adjourned to the Carnival club for a steak dinner and entertainment by Ed Wynn and friends.

AMONG THE FAMILIAR faces that popped up during the trip: Former DTH sports editor and editor-in-chief Bill Woestendiek and wife, tennis and swimming letterman Dick Swigart, and ex-net manager Don Paley were on hand for the New York rout. Seen at the Philly defeat were ex-baseballer Bob Fahey, Jack Shaw, former Blue and White wrestler, and Bob Kerdasha, tennis squad member.

Kramer vs. Riggs Match Features Big Net Program Here Tonight

By Dick Jenrette

Jack Kramer and Bobby Riggs, the Big Two of professional tennis, carry their battle for the pro tennis championship to Chapel Hill tonight at 7:30 in the feature of a program of matches that will be hard to equal for fast-action and skilled peformance.

Pancho Segura and Dinny Pails, two of the better performers in tennis today, will meet in the opening encounter. Kramer and Riggs take the floor immediately following, and the closing match will see Kramer and Pails teaming up against Riggs and Segura in doubles. Winners will be determined by the best two of three sets.

Ticket sales have been brisk for the past few days, and Coach John Kenfield said it was necessary to erect another section of bleachers to accomodate the fans. There may be as many as 4,800 present, but Kenfield said yesterday that tickets were still available.

Arrive At 4 O'clock

The troupe of professionals will arrive in town this afternoon at 4 o'clock and will set up headquarters at the Carolina Inn.

Interest in the matches has mounted rapidly over the campus this week as the school will get its first taste of professional tennis since May of last year, when Riggs met Don Budge here. It will be Kramer's first appearance in Chapel Hill.

Riggs holds the title of world's professional champion, but Kramer did not turn professional until recently and is making his first claim for the crown. Kramer was ranked the Number One amateur in the country before turning to the pros. Nevertheless, Riggs has been holding his own against his new rival, and their series stands almost even-up. The two met in Richmond last night.

Segura vs. Pails

Segura and Pails, the other members of the troupe, ranked sixth and seventh respectively in last year's amateur ratings.. Hailing from Ecuador, Segura employs an unorthodox two-handed swing that has proved a big drawing attraction in the exhibitions thus far. Pails, who plays in the traditional style, is the former Austrailian singles champion.

Pails has been enjoying slightly better success than Segura in their series, and in doubles play Kramer and Pails hold the lead to date.

A large canvas will be stretched over the floor to provide a playing surface.

From Chapel Hill the company moves on to Washington for an exhibition on January 23. Other appearances will be in Philadelphia, Madison, Wis., Chicago, and St. Petersburg, Fla.

Coach John Kenfield requested that all tennis managers and linemen report to Woollen gym this afternoon at 3 o'clock. Kenfield would also like to have some additional linemen report.

Cagers Receive Day of Rest After Disastrous Road Trip

Nine games and well over a thousand miles of travel in 18 days caught up with the White Phantoms last week when it hurt, so Tom Scott wisely gave his weary cagers the day off yesterday afternoon before he and his depleted squad begin their drills today for the Saturday night clash with Penn's Quakers.

The biggest problem facing Scott this week is filling the big hole left by rough and ready Bill Miller's departure from the ranks of the Tar Heels. Scott will probably spend the rest of this week deciding who'll try to fill Miller's ample brogans Roger Scholbe, the hero of the Garden rout, big Fred Swartzberg, and scrappy Coy Carson head the list of aspirants, for the vacant left forward spot. So who'll be the new regular in the Friendly City later this week remains to be seen.

Averages Drop

Both the offense and the defense of the Phantoms were quite ghostly during the two virtually uncontested contests on the Eastern tour and consequently the locals' once sterling marks in both these columns are now rather tarnished. The Blue and White quint has accumulated 778 points for a 55.4 average while holding their 14 foes to 570 counters for a 40.7 clip.

Five Are Chosen For Track Meet In Philadelphia

By Morty Schaap

Carolina will have five definite starters in the Philadelphia Inquirer track meet in that city Friday night.

Jack Milne, Jimmy Miller, Jack Moody, Bob Black and Bob Morrow will be the wearers of the light blue in this fourth renewal of this classic.

Black is one of the five invited to run in the John Borican Memorial 100-yard run. Along with this former national scholastic half-mile champion are Reggie Pearman of NYU, Bill Curan of Bayonne High School, 1946 junior and scholastic champ; Jim Grosholtz, Haverford College's Middle Atlantic AA titlist, and Roscoe Brwn, star of the New York Pioneer Club.

Good Competition

In the Philadelphia Inquirer Invitation mile Milne will be pitted against last year's winner Les McMitchell of the NYAC; Gerry Karver, IC4A mile champion from Penn State; Bill Hulse of the NYAC; Tommy Quinn of the NYAC and Traver Perkins.

Bob Morrow, last year's second place winner in the Southern conference will run into his stiffest opposition from the world's greatest hurdler, Harrison Dillard of Baldwin Wallace; Bill Mitchell of Georgetown AA and Geff Kirk, University of Pennsylvania.

Moody's Opponents

In the high jump Moody will seek revenge from Dave Albritton, who has been National champion in the high jump 11 times. He was the winner of the 1936 Olympic jump. Also in this event is Irv Mondschein, NYU's one man gang. Mondschein is probably the top indoor jumper in the country.

Mural Basketballers Play Close Contests

Trailing by eight points at the half, 14-6, PiKA 2 roared back in a torrid second half to nip Sigma Nu 2, 22-20. Jack Chambers paced the victors with 12 points.

Kappa Sig 1 spread its scoring evenly over the contest, counting 29 times in each stanza, swamping KA 3, 58-12. Jack Folger and Bill Olsen were high for the Kappa Sigs with 17 apiece. The halftime score was 19-8.

In the closest game of the nine played yesterday afternoon ATO 3 edged out Phi Kap 2 by one

Tar Heels Get Poor Start in Defense Of Southern Conference Championship

Despite the efforts of the Kemp brothers, Bill and Phil, Carolina's mat crew, 1947 Southern Conference Champions, was edged by VPI's Gobblers, in the first match of the season in Woollen gym last night by a 16 1-2 to 15 1-2 score.

The Carolina squad, hampered by lack of eligible men and injuries, did very well, according to Coach Quinlan. Irv Zirpel, a potential starter in the 155 pound class the beginning of the year, was ruled ineligible last week. Slated to start in the 128 pound class, Doug Thompson separated a rib, and the starting position was given to Marvin Wilson.

COACH QUINLAN

In the outstanding feature of the evening, Phil Kemp, wrestling in the 145 pound division pinned VPI's Lane in one minute and one second of the second period. Lane was again pinned by Kemp in the third period to win the decision.

Bill Works Fast

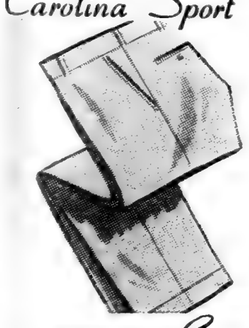
In the 175 pound class, team captain Bill Kemp pinned Chip Collum in two minutes and 22 seconds of the second period and held his own in the final to win his match. The only other match won by Carolina was in the 136 pound division. Tom Urquhart defeated Bill Johnson on points. Urquhart collected two points in each of the first two periods, while Johnson was unable to score.

The complete scoring:

121—Mettleton (VPI) outpointed Cobb (UNC).
128—Williams (VPI) outpointed Wilson (UNC).
136—Urquhart (UNC) outpointed Johnson (VPI).
145—P. Kemp (UNC) pinned Lane (VPI).
155—Culbertson (VPI) pinned Fisher (UNC).
165—Gupton (UNC) vs Rosen (VPI Draw.
175—B Kemp (UNC) pinned Collum (VPI).
Unlimited—Oliver (VPI) outpointed Lewis (UNC).

Jayvees Rest Today, Meet PJC Tomorrow

Although the varsity had the day off yesterday, there was no rest for the Tar Heel jayvee cagers for Coach Jim Hamilton had his weary charges out in battle array to send them through a spirited scrimmage designed to iron out the flaws they revealed in their four game tour of duty last week.



Since the Blue and White juniors have been almost as busy as their brothers during the past two weeks with nine games in 13 days, Pappy decided to give them this afternoon off so that they'll be well rested for their meeting with Presbyterian Junior College in Maxton, N C. tomorrow night.

Local Bird Club Sponsors Drive For Old Clothes

In an effort to aid European rehabilitation, and as a good will token from the ornithologist of America to their fellow bird-lovers in Europe, the Chapel Hill Bird club is currently sponsoring a clothing drive. The announcement was made yesterday by John Trott, member of the local group.

Contributions may be made to any member of the club or, more conveniently, by placing the clothing in a box which will be placed in the lobby of the Pick theatre on Thursday night The beginning of the drive will correspond with the showing of the second in a series of Audubon screen tours, sponsored by the local nature society. Thursday night's lecture will be given by Howard Cleaves, prominent nature photographer, whose movie "Midnight Movies in Animal Land", will be shown at an admission price of $1 or by series ticket. The lecture will begin at 8 o'clock.

Clothing for children, Trott emphasized, is particularly needed. He added that gifts from any contributor, whether or not he attends the lecture, will be "greatly appreciated."

Congress Studies Worries of Housewives But Doesn't See Any Solutions in Sight

By Joan Marble

United Press Correspondent

The news from Washington today is bread and butter news. It centers on problems being discussed around kitchen stoves from Manhattan to Monterey. Problems of meat rationing, high food prices, rent ceilings and tax reductions. Congress didn't find the answers to these problems today. But they're under discussion—and we may know the answers in the months to come.

Meat Rationing

Two leading Republicans have introduced bills to permit meat rationing if it's needed.

The Republicans are Senator Ralph Flanders of Vermont, and Representative Jack Javits of New York. They introduced their bills simultaneously in both the House and Senate.

There's no indication yet that Republican leaders will go along with the measures. Flanders and Javits say they want to set up meat rationing machinery so the President can put it into operation whenever he deems it necessary. Congressmen warn that a meat crisis is in the making if prices go any higher.

No Ceilings

The Flanders-Javits bill does not provide for the return of price ceilings on meat. It's authors don't think ceilings are necessary—because they believe that rationing alone would tend to bring prices down.

Reaction to the bill has been lukewarm at best.

Republican Senator Thye of Minnesota says he's afraid the measure would result in a run on the meat market. And Republican Representative Murray of Wisconsin calls it the most ridiculous idea he's heard in some time.

Prices

Senator Robert Taft of Ohio has appealed to business to put the brake on both prices and profits. And he wants labor to go easy on demands for higher wages.

Taft told a luncheon meeting in Washington that inflation hasn't gotten out of hand yet. But, he added, "if anything else happens, prices are likely to go higher than wages."

Incidentally, New Hampshire's peppery little Senator Tobey says the government's to blame for some high prices.

Tobey claims the government has been letting potatoes rot and has been dumping bananas just to maintain their nigh prices.

"It's an economic sin," says Tobey, "to rig prices by keeping goods off the market.

The Agriculture Department didn't comment on Tobey's charges. But it did announce a new government price support—on grapefruit. Grapefruit prices have dropped more than 50 percent in the past year.

Rents

A Senate subcommittee has resumed public hearings on rent controls—and the chairman—Senator Cain of California—predicts that rent ceilings will be extended for another year.

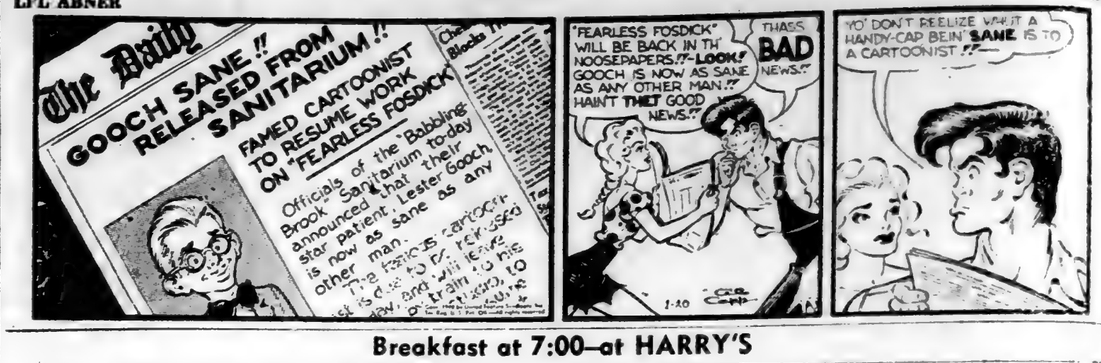
Today's testimony featured two witnesses—one for and one against controls.

Youthful Ray Sawyer—legislative director of Amvets—called for a one-year extension of controls. He warned that the law should be well written, because he charged that landlords are looking for technicalities to throw tenants out.

However, the secretary of the Flordia Apartment House Association—E. E. Branscombe—told the committee controls should be lifted. He called rent control "the police state in the housing industry."

Taxes

Two cabinet members and elder statesman Bernard Baruch—have attacked the Republican tax cutting bill.



Secretary of Commerce Harriman says business doesn't need a general tax cut now. Secretary of the Treasury Snyder argues that general tax reduction should be held up until inflationary pressures have dropped.

And the 77-year-old Baruch tossed in his opinion on taxes while testifying on the Marshall Plan. The genial advisor to presidents told the Senate Foreign Relations committee there shouldn't be any tax cuts for two years. He said excess profits taxes, which were dropped after the war, should be restored. However, he said, these taxes should be only about half as large as they were in wartime.

Meanwhile, Republicans are mustering their strength to push their program through.

The House Republican steering committee will meet tomorrow to decide what kind of a tax program the party will sponsor this year. Leaders already have ber of the Communist party of Chapel Hill, but I believe to do so would compromise the issue by admitting that the history department has a legal or moral right to know my politcial affiliations. Were I to state that I am or am not a Communist, it would endanger the civil liberties of others."

Violated Rights

Bernstein went on to say that even if his politics and religion were not the main reason for the history department's letter, if they had anything to do with the department's decision then his rights had been violated.

On the question of staying on at the University, Bernstein says, "I plan to leave unless the recommendation is withdrawn."

Dr. Newsome and Dr. Godfrey of the history department stated that Bernstein was welcome to continue his course of study, but that he probably would not receive his doctor's degree when the time came for him to take his oral examination.

point, 26-25. Buster Stevenson was top scorer, dumping in 14 markers for the losers. The ATO house had another reason for celebrating last night. Their number two squad swamped Chi Phi 1 by a 30-4 count. The outclassed Chi Phis were able to score only one point in the second period after ATO built up a 16-3 halftime lead. Len Kobert, ATO, led the pack with 14 tallies.

TEP 2 eked out a close win over Zenta 1, 27-25. Heath Alexander netted 11 markers in a losing cause while TEP's Harvey Colchamiro and Ace Galinken scored nine and eight, respectively.

Sigma Chi 1 rolled up the largest amount of points, routing Sigma Nu 2, 59-20. Ernie Martin, Sigma Chi, was top man with 12 points. In the other three games of the afternoon, Phi Gam 3 defeated Phi Delt 2, 23-12; Chi Psi 1 outscored Pi Lamb 1, 27-22; and Kappa Sig 2 used a stronger defense than Zeta 3 to win out

Bob Haire Assumes Chairmanship of CP as Dedmond Resigns

Special Committee Will Look Into Bernstein Case

By Chuck Hauser

The first meeting of a special committee of the administrative board of the graduate school will meet at 9 o'clock this evening to look into the situation of graduate student Leonard Bernstein's recently-received "recommendation" to discontinue his course of study at the University.

The committee, formed by graduate school Dean W. W. Pierson, Jr., at the request of Chancellor R. B. House yesterday, plans to hold "a series of meetings," according to Pierson, to get at the facts of the case.

History Head Informed

Chancellor House stated yesterday morning that he had asked the dean of the graduate school to see that an investigation was made and that, "I have informed the head of the history department of this action."

In the meantime, Bernstein has issued a statement to the effect that he is definitely withdrawing from the University, but at the time he delivered this decision in the Daily Tar Heel office he had not heard of Dean Pierson's action.

Dr. A. R. Newsome, head of the history department and signer of the letter recommending Bernstein's withdrawal, had no comment to make last night.

Substantiated

In his statement yesterday afternoon, Bernstein said, "I feel that my charge that political and religious discrimination were involved. . . is fully substantiated by Dr. Newsome's statements...

LEONARD BERNSTEIN

"Dr. Newsome says religion and politics are not the whole reason. The issue, as I see it, is not what was the whole reason but whether a student's religion and politics may properly be considered at all in arriving at a decision whether to allow him to continue graduate work."

Form of Advice

Bernstein continued, "I could have appreciated the history department's concern for my time and money more if this opinion had been communicated to me in the form of advice, so that I could make my own decision.

"Some of my friends," the graduate student went on, "have urged me to remain at the University, because they feel that

Spurious Fraternity Brother Steals $250 in Valuables as Chapter Sleeps

Two hundred and fifty dollars in watches, rings and cash were missing Saturday morning from an unidentified fraternity house after a visiting "brother"—who announced that he was from a distant chapter and wanted lodging for the night—arose during the early hours and made off with the loot.

The visitor arrived on the scene about 4 o'clock Saturday morning after a Friday night poker game was just breaking up. When the good brother asked for the hospitality, he was also given a pair of clean pajamas and shown to an empty bed on the fraternity's sleeping porch.

During the night no one heard the house guest arise, dress and go through almost every room in the house. It was not until the morning that fraternity men began missing their valuables, amounting to $250 in all.

Only clue to "mystery of the uninvited" was the fact that the visitor had said before retiring that he was heading south.

Entries Being Made Now for Mural Debates

Entries are now being made for the Intramural Debate Tournament, according to Earl Fitzgerald, president of the Debate council. The tournament will begin the first week in February and will be sponsored by the Debate council in cooperation with the intramural department.

A permanent cup award will be given the organization sponsoring the winning team and medals will be presented to the winning individual debaters. Other awards are anticipated from several organizations on the campus.

Fitzgerald said, in announcing the tournament, that anyone wishing to participate should see the intramural manager for their organization immediately. All entries must be submitted this week.

The question for debate will be: Resolved that Congress should establish a Universal Military training program. An information sheet containing a summary and explanation of the UMT bill as presented in Congress will be distributed to entrants.

Organizations are not limited to any number of teams. A team consists of two persons. If two teams are entered, one must be affirmative and the other negative. If one team or three teams to be entered, there will be a meeting at which the side to be taken will be determined.

Dr. Harland Will Speak to Y Group

Dr. J. P. Harland, head of the archeology department, will speak to the "You and Your Religion" committee of the YWCA regular meeting Thursday night at 7 o'clock in the Y library. Topic of the meeting, which is open to the public, will be "Archeology and the Bible."

Jeanne Basnight and Helen Compton are co-chairmen of the committee, which meets weekly to discuss problems of personal religion. Recent speakers have been the Reverend Bernard Munger, of the Congregational church, who discussed the history and beliefs of his denomination, and Dean Katherine K. Carmichael.

Thousand Persons See Flames Destroy Home

By Herb Nachman and McNeer Dillon

Approximately 1,000 spectators witnessed a fire here last night which completely wiped out the home and belongings of a Negro family, hopelessly damaged the home of a second, involved the dramatic rescue of an invalid and the injury of a University student.

Eyewitnesses reported that that the frame home of Sam Perry, on Robertson street, was consumed in a flash fire which began in the roof at about 5:50 and in a matter of minutes reduced the house to rubble. Faulty wiring in the roof was believed to have been the cause of the blaze.

Also damaged beyond repair was the home of Henry Davis, a neighbor of Perry's. When firemen arrived on the scene, the flames had reached an estimated 70 feet in height and any attempt to save any part of the house or belongins of the Perry family failed.

A University student, William M. Tillman, was taken to the infirmary for treatment of a leg injury incurred while attempting to secure a water source. His condition is not serious although doctors reported last night that his ankle might possible be broken.

Low water pressure was a contributing factor in the loss of the Davis' house, spectators reported. Occupants of Perry's home included his 33 year old invalid wife, Lula Mae, and her parents Joe and Lucy Austin.

When Perry arrived at the scene a few minutes after the fire began, the large frame house was filled with flames.

Third Conference Planned by CCUN

Plans for the third state-wide United Nations conference, sponsored by the Collegiate Council For United Nations, were outlined in the second edition of that organization's CCUN News-letter, published yesterday. The conference is to be held in Statesville on February 19, 20, and 21 and invitations have been extended to Ambassador Henri Bonnet, of France, Warren Austin, US representative on the UN Security Council, Ben Cohen, assistant Secretary-General of the UN, John S. Reid, counselor from New Zealand, Don Oscar Ivanissevich, Ambassador from Argentina, and North Carolina Senators Clyde Hoey and William Umstead. Bonnet, Ivanissevich, Reid and Cohen have accepted invitations at this date.

Also included in the semi-monthly publication are articles on UN activities at Flora MacDonald, High Point, Warren, Wilson, Greensboro, and Wake Forest.

Staff members of CCUN who prepared the News-Letter are George Drew, Mae Belle Enman and Bill Cromwell.

Tickets to Mikado Go on Sale Today

Reserved seat tickets for the two nights of "The Mikado," Gilbert and Sullivan's comic opera which is being presented by the Carolina Playmakers and the music department, will go on sale today at Ledbetter-Pickard's on Franklin street, and at the Playmaker business office in Swain hall, according to an announcement last night by John W. Parker, business manager.

"Holders of season ticket books are urged to exchange their ticket stubs as soon as possible, or to notify us to hold reservations," Parker said. He added, "We are already getting requests for tickets from several towns nearby, and that is the reason we are starting the ticket sale a few days earlier than usual."

He went on to explain that tickets may be reserved in advance and picked up at the box office on nights of production.

"Curtain time is at 8:30", he said, "but we can't hold reservations later than 8:15."

"The Mikado" is being staged in Memorial hall on January 30 and 31, under the joint direction of Lynn Gault, of the Playmakers, and Paul Young, of the music department. The production will boast a cast of 50 and a full orchestra.

Leaders Ask News On Graham Status

Student representatives at their meeting last Friday night with the trustees' visiting committee asked that the student body be kept abreast of any trustee moves in regards to Dr. Frank Graham, Tom Eller, leader of the student delegation at the session, said yesterday. Eller said the trustees assured them that this would be done. The student body president also said the student group went on record as favoring the retaining of Dr. Graham in his presidential capacity.

Discussion in the group centered around the problems of housing, overtaxed faculty, crowded classrooms, and eating conditions. The student group pointed out the sore spots in the housing problem, specifically the conditions in the quonset huts and Miller and Nash dormitories. Service in the Lenoir hall cafeterias could be improved, they noted, and a policy of better manangement be instituted.

Eller said the trustee committee seemed to favor plans to set up dormitory stores and social rooms.

"They didn't seem to think that the Umstead act was a prohibitive factor here," he concluded.

Di Senate to Discuss Issue Of Magazines

Tonight at 9 o'clock on the third floor of New West building, the Dialectic Senate will hold an open forum on a newly proposed addition to the currently disputed magazine issue.

John Zucker, chairman of the Di ways and means committee, has formulated a bill which he for one would like to see added as an amendment to the forthcoming campuswide referendum to be held on February 3. Zucker's measure is as follows:

" (1) That all student publications, except the Daily Tar Heel and the Yackety Yack, be put on a voluntary subscription basis, and that no charge be billed by the University specifically for those publications.

"(2) That with these two exMaintain Responsibility ceptions the said publications, and others, be permitted to solicit contributions and to sell subscriptions as they may desire, provided that they maintain financial responsibility.

"(3) That in cases where it can be shown that such appropriation would make publication of the magazine possible in sufficient number and for a sufficient period to cover subscriptions already sold, and provided that these subscriptions cover at least ten percent of the undergraduate enrollment of the University, the Student Legislature shall appropriate to the publication in question a sum of money exactly equal to the amount already collected by the publication from individual student subscriptions.

Fur May Fly

Verbal fur may fly this evening since Fred Jacobson editor of the Carolina Mag, Bill Carmichael, member of the Publications Board, and Tookie Hodgson, editor of Tarnation have all been invited to be present to present their views on the possibilities of a magazine's subsistence on subscription basis. All interested students are invited to attend.

All Senators are urged to be present, too, so that such Di business might be transacted as the completion of committee appointments. These appointments to date are as follows:

Ways and Means committee: John Zucker, chairman: Edie Knight; D. Dortch Warriner; Gran Childress; and James Southerland.

Constitution committee: Gran Childress, chairman;; Hal Darden; and John Van Hecke.

Finance committee: John Gaskin; Hurshull Keener; and Herbert Phillips.

Archives committee: Joanne McNutt and Patsy McNutt.

Properties committee: Noah Edwards, chairman; Charles Wilder; and Edwin Robins.

Debate committee: Randall McLeod, chairman; Richard Bowen; Frank Huffman; John Dameron; and Sam Manning.

Former Leader Says Resignation Allows Complete Effort for Student Government

By John Stump

Jess Dedmond, chairman of the Campus party since last May, announced yesterday that he has resigned his post. He will be replaced by Bob Haire of Winston-Salem who assumed the position at a meeting of the party held last night.

In announcing his resignation, Dedmond explained that he felt that "a party chairman should not also be the chairman of a student government committee." He said, "My resignation will enable me to put all of my efforts into the promotion of the aims of student government."

He added that, "I have full confidence in Haire's ability to carry on the work of the party in a creditable manner, and I pledge my full support to him."

Haire, in a statement made yesterday said, "I expect to continue Dedmond's policies, and further the program developed under his leadership. We shall continue to attempt to nominate the most able candidates for office."

Meetings Announced

One of the first policies initiated under Haire's leadership is a new schedule of meeting. Henceforth, they will be held regularly every Tuesday evening at 7 o'clock and every Thursday afternoon at 4. Each will be limited in length to one hour.

Retiring chairman Dedmond, who also announced the re-election of Ralph Sherrill to the post of party treasurer, is president of the Phi Eta Sigma honorary scholastic fraternity and serves as chairman of the student Orientation committee. He is the newly elected chairman of the Elections committee of the legislature, dormitory advisor of Aycock, and a member of the Graham memorial staff.

JESS DEDMOND

Haire is a member of the University Dance committee and is president of the Winston-Salem Carolina club.

SP Holds Nominating Session, Draws up New Set of By-laws

In a nominating convention for the coming elections the Student party met Monday night to consider possible candidates for campus offices. No names are available for publication, however, according to Chairman Gran Childress, who presided.

Childress, himself elected only recently, announced that the Student party will continue the policy of alowing any and all students who are interested in good student government to attend the party meeting to voice their opinions.

Included in the business of the meeting, which was held in Roland Parker lounge no. 1, was the adoption of a new set of by-laws. Members of the committee that drew up the by-laws are listed as: Pete Gerns, John Van Hecke, and Hurshell Keener.

Next regularly-scheduled meeting of the party is set for Tuesday night, January 27, in Roland Parker no. 1 at 9 o'clock, according to Childress.

PUBLIC LAW 16

Approximately 130 Public Law 16 veterans have failed to leave their registration schedules with their training officers at 11 Peabody.

Training officer Elliott G. Bourne announced that it is absolutely necessary that these schedules be handed in this week.

AVC Will Sponsor Anti-UMT Essays

The newly-formed anti-universal military training committee of the Chapel Hill American Veterans committee announced yesterday that it is sponsoring a campus-wide essay contest in order to "stimulate interest" in the subject.

Harrison Tenney, publicity chairman of the AVC committee, said the winning essay on the topic of "Why I Don't Believe in UMT" will receive a prize of $10 and will be printed in the Daily Tar Heel. Judges of the contest are to be Howard K. Beale of the History department. Warren Ashby of the Philosophy department, and Fred Ruark.

February 14 Deadline

Tenney said the essays should be mailed to "AVC, Chapel Hill" by February 14, and the winners will be announced at Brigadier General Holdridge's anti-UMT speech which the veterans' organization is presenting here the night of February 17.

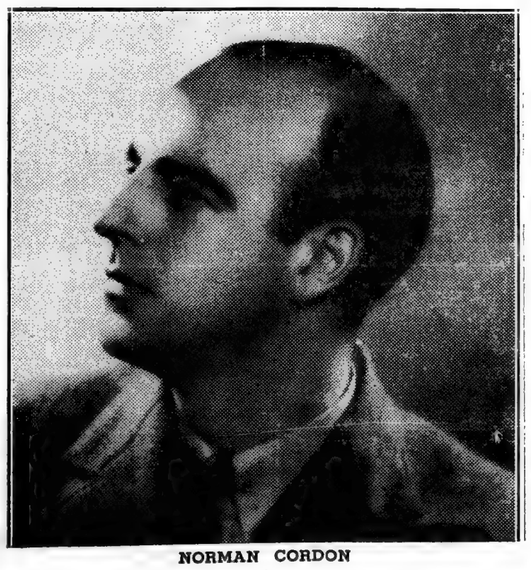
"Our committee has also sent letters to many other campus organizations," Tenney continued, "asking them to send representatives, if interested, to a meeting in Graham Memorial at [illegible] January 30, for the purpose of organizing opposition to the military training proposals which should come before Congress in February."

Ely Friedland is chairman of this anti-UMT group of the local AVC, and other members of the committee beside Tenney are Martha Aiken, Vince Cassidy, Luella Nan Every, and Ben Rouzie.

Norman Cordon, First North Carolina Met Star, Remembers Days When Gin Was Distilled on Third Floor South Building

By Raney Stanford

Just passing through on a concert tour," the big, bass voice boomed out in the narrow confines of a South building corridor, "and dropped by to bat a little breeze with Old Friend Chancellor House."



Norman Cordon, first North Carolinian ever to sing with the Metropolitan Opera company reminisced cheerily about his student experiences during the 1920's as he surveyed the grey, damp campus from the steps of South yesterday morning.

I think I roomed in Steele the first year it was open for students," he mused. "And South; that was a dormitory, too, when I was here. There was a fellow living on the third floor then who made the most peculiar gin—"

Leaving this tender memory the towering bass-baritone turned to the weather and implied that even the rain was a pleasant change after the recent antics of Mother Nature in New York City where he now resides. He dwelled a bit on the wonder of the immense snowfall and the hardships it brought, though it was a bit hard for anyone seeing the six-foot-plus singing native of Washington, N. C., to imagine him put to any trouble by a light 28-inch snowfall.

Cordon left the University in 1924 to start in immediately winning the fame he now holds in the music world. He had sung over 105 different roles at the Metropolitan in over 700 performances before he resigned to take a leading role in last year's Broadway operetta "Street Scene," a production which also featured Anne Jeffreys of Goldsboro and Hollywood and was immensely popular with the New York critics.

The noted singer said that since the show's closing he has been concentrating on concert appearances, like his current tour. He remarked that he seems to have come South with the Carolina basketball team; seeing them play in Madison Square Garden before he left, and catching the UNC-Temple game as he passed through Philadelphia. But on thinking of the basketball techniques and the final appearance of the scoreboard he witnessed on these occasions, he quickly passed on to the more pleasing subject of this season's football team.

NORMAN CORDON

"The last time I was on the campus was with the Morehead Plantarium cornerstone-laying party the day of the Virginia game," he said. "And what a game that was."

"If only Coach Snavely had left the "22" team, which is what I call the first team, in there a little longer, though," he mused sadly.

Tangoes, Polkas, Waltzes Hold Sway As GM Begins Dancing Classes Today

The first of weekly dance instruction sessions, under the direction of Bill Corley, will be held this afternoon at 4 o'clock in Roland Parker lounges two and three of Graham Memorial. "The lessons are open to everyone, regardless of previous experience," said Corley, "And the larger turnout we have, the more successful the classes will be."

Though primarily a course in advanced and special ballroom dances, each of these steps will be taken from its most elementary stages, thus making the classes equally adaptable to novices as well as experts. Examples of the types to be taught are the Tango, Viennese Waltz, Polka, and swing waltz, as well as some work later in musical comedy dancing.

Before coming to Carolina Corley taught dancing in Atlanta. He has also studied special courses in the Tango and waltz in England and directed and danced in several shows on the campus.

In the event that an especially large group is interested in other steps, and elementary ballroom classes of this type are to be organized.

No Rose Bushes In Graham Memorial

In a letter to the Daily Tar Heel, published in yesterday's edition, a student stated that he and others did not have time to play "ring around the roses with their busy little noses" as he assumed campus politicians do.

Stated in that fashion, the letter unfortunately shows the attitude of a great many other students on the campus. A quick visit to the second floor of Graham Memorial any afternoon in the week (including Sunday) will prove to the questioners that campus politicians and those who perform the daily tasks of seeing that the student gets a square deal do not run around rose bushes. Such a letter as this one is a direct insult to every student who takes his seat in the legislature. It's a slap in the face to every staff member on every campus publication on the campus and to anyone else who attends or takes part in an extra-curricular activity.

The student legislators handle a yearly budget of nearly $110,000. It is their extremely important duty to decide how the money shall be used and by whom. Men who are capable and who are sincerely interested in their school compete in a campus election for the duties. They are required to attend every meeting with only two absences being accepted during a term. Among other things, studying for quizzes the following day is not accepted as an excuse.

An overworked night editor on the Daily Tar Heel staff made a suggestion that the author of the letter be invited to spend one night at the DTH printshop putting out the student daily. At the time, the speaker had returned from the shop at two o'clock in the morning, after working continously for six hours. For his work, besides an eight o'clock class, he gets $1 per night, regardless of the number of hours. In addition, he usually puts in three to four hours every afternoon chasing over the campus hunting for news articles.

The above illustration is used only because it is an excellent example of extra-curricular activities on this campus, though the majority of the men who put in the time are not lucky enough to get $1 per day or night. These taking part in student government are required to attend numerous committee meetings, their political party meetings and the legislature. All this they must do, and still keep up their studies.

If students on the campus are dissatisfied with the present trend of student government or if they think that it is run by a group of individuals, all they have to do is come out and do something about it. It is their privilege to nominate, support and then vote for any man they deem capable of holding student government positions. It is common knowledge, however, that the majority of the student body does not take the time to vote, much less attend political party meetings and determine who really is the best man qualified for the job.

Campus politicians, legislators, and publication men are fulfilling important positions on this campus and are doing a good job of it. They are constantly urging that there be more campus participation in student government and other activities. Until there is such an indication, they have no other choice but to carry on their duties. Up to this date they have set an enviable record. Students who would be quick to criticize should consider first on which side of the street they themselves are standing. They might be biting the hand that feeds them.

No Dough, No Dates--Coeds Can Help

This isn't the first editorial published in a college newspaper on the subject, but we feel that it applies at PSTC and Champlain College, so we might as well break the sad news.

Queries and general snooping reveal the fact Joe College is on the verge of bankruptcy. Room and board, necessary incidentals, corsages, gas, and tickets all cost more. Everything is higher except the amount of government checks.

Those who have accounts at the banks are tearfully watching the sum total relentlessly dwindle—the barrel is running dry.

However, the average fellow is doing all in his power to hide this fact from Betty Coed. A lot of men out on a date are crossing their fingers and counting pennies, hoping there'll be enough left for a cheese sandwich and a cup of coffee the next day's lunch.

Betty Coed can help and we think she will, without any grumbling either, especially, if she realizes the problem. We know of a few who would be willing to settle for a movie and a bag of pop corn, or even a short walk and some good conversation.

However, there are many more who don't realize the predicament that both the GIs and non-GIs are in, and think he just doesn't care if he doesn't ask them to go to a formal or out on a date.

Sure, we may be quite forward, and may-be you girls won't like it, but back in the days of our Moms and Pops, they used to have a whale of a time with practically no cash. Or would you rather have a "twirp season" for both PSTC and Champlain Colleges?

From THE NORTHERN LIGHT
Pittsburgh State Teachers College

Poking about in an uptown branch of the Public Library last Tuesday, a young lady ran across a book that aroused her immediate interest when, on the title page, she encountered this encouraging assurance:

How: To Reach Men
To Hold Men
To Teach Men
To Win Men
It Has Been Done

Unfortunately, she was considerably let down by a clump of type at the bottom of the page: "Tells How To Run Your Bible Class. Published by the "Sunday School Times, 1907."

According to one journalism instructor, perfume is the cheapest thing you can get for a scent. After a flutter in the class, he said the remark smells.

Scraps and Doodles

Chicago, (UP)—Seven of the original manuscripts of the late Joyce Kilmer, author of the poem 'Trees," are written on the backs of scrap paper and are decorated with side notes or "doodles."

The seven autographed manuscripts are part of a collection at the University of Notre Dame.

The most recent addition to the collection was the poem "Main Street." On the back of the poem are the family notes, "copy paper for Alenie, three yards of white batiste," and the notation, "35 or 40 a yard."

One poem, "The Thorn" is written in pencil on the stationery of a hotel, and another poem, 'Grace Before Drinking" is written on a memo pad.

The manuscripts were donated to the university collection after they were purchased from Henry Watts, New York.

Watts, a co-worker of Kilmer's on the now defunct Literary Digest, asked Kilmer for the manuscripts as souvenirs after Kilmer threatened to throw them away.

Kilmer was shot and killed by a German sniper while serving in the Army during World War I.

Washington Merry-Go-Round

The President Gets a Lecture

Washington, — James Patton, rugged boss of the National Farmers' union, urged President Truman to walk up to Congress some day just like any other American citizen and lay his views before a Congressional committee.

"What you ought to do sometime," snorted the Colorado farm leaders, "is take your hat in hand, walk up Pennsylvania Avenue, go before a Congressional committee and say, 'Gentlemen, I am here to testify in the people's interest.'"

The President smiled and shook his head.

"My most effective weapon," he disagreed, "is to stand before a mike and talk to the people."

"If you want to win the next election," persisted Patton, "you have to do more than talk. You have to dramatize your views. Instead of strolling on the White House awn, stroll up Pennsylvania Avenue with a purpose. It would be the first time since Jefferson that a President appeared personally before a Congressional committee."

"Well," admitted Truman, "that would be rather dramatic."

Note—Patton also invited the President to address the National Farmers' convention in Denver March 8, where the chief subject discussed will be reclamation. "I hope," said Patton, "That you don't turn all the Colorado Valley Development projects over to the Army engineers."

Washington's best friend of the real-estate interests, gruff-talking Sen. Harry Cain, has been given the paradoxical chore of drafting a new rent-control law. An outspoken foe of rent control, a Senate subcommittee gave him the assignment of drafting the new bill. Immediately he hustled to see Senate boss Robert Taft.

"Let me get this clear," rasped Cain, "Do you want legislation continuing rent controls?"

"Yes," said Taft.

"What kind of bill do you want?" Cain asked, bewildered.

"I can't say, Harry," replied Taft. "That is up to you."

So the Senator who doesn't believe in rent control has been given the job—without guidance from the party bosses—to draft a bill continuing rent control. He will have to work fast. The present weakened rent-control bill expires February 29. Meanwhile, Senators Sparkman of Alabama and Myers of Pennsylvania, Democrats, have introduced rent-control bills with teeth.

For years Jesse Jones' Reconstruction Finance corporation was the one and only government agency not subject to scrutiny by the Government accounting office. Lindsay Warren, eagle-eyed Comptroller General and boss of the General Accounting office did his best to have his auditors examine Jesse's books, but Jesse's pull on Capitol Hill was so strong that he remained exempt.

Now, however, Comptroller General Warren finally has been able to probe certain operations by RFC subsidiaries. Simultaneously, indefatigable Congressman George Bender of Cleveland, Ohio, is planning to air certain deals that the General Accounting office has unearthed. Here is the first:

The Andrews Steel Plant of Newport, Ky., is located along the Ohio River where it needs costly repairs every time the river is flooded. In 1942 it was owned by Lehman Brothers, the New York Banking firm, which sold it in 1943 to Paul Angell and Charles Stamm of Chicago, who had scarcely moved in before they threatened to close down unless the government took the plant over.

The Defense Plan Corporation, a subsidiary of Jesse Jones' RFC, sent its assistant vice president, T. W. Atkins, to inspect the plant. He reported that it was run down, needed repairs and that no more than $472,890.68 of the total inventory was worth purchasing.

"It seems rather like economic suicide to carry on operations at Andrews Steel," Atkins reported.

However, Atkins was overruled. Someone up above took over the plant at terms virtually dictated by the company—namely $395,976 in management fees, $320,087 for repairs and $97,500 for office rental.

Atkins protested that the management fee was excessive and most of the repairs superfluous. But again he was overruled.

Later the Ohio River flooded the plant for nine days, just as Atkins predicted, costing the government $230,601 in damages. On top of this Defense Plan Corporation purchased the inventory of the plant for $808,028.

As a result of all this, the plant did not reach capacity production until after V-E Day. And shortly thereafter, the owners, Stamm and Angell wanted the plant and inventory back again. In fact they became so insistent that they threatened to assess storage charges if the government did not turn things back.

So alert Congressman Bender wants to see who at the top was responsible.

Audit Board Report

In this and following issues of the Daily Tar Heel the Audit Board is publishing the statements of income and expense of some of the student-supported organizations. We shall continue to publish these statements until the financial reports of all student-supported organizations are presented to the students. It is emphasized that these reports cove the fiscal year July 1, 1946, June 30, 1947.

It would be well for each student to know and understand just how these organizations receive their income and how much each of you contribute to their support. Below is a schedule of charges which are collected as you pay your tuition and other University charges. We know that these charges are listed on your registration forms but not the breakdown which we are giving below.

Matriculation:
Phys. Ed	$ 6.50
Library Fee	1.50
Infirmary Fee	5.00
Regirstration Fee	4.67
Athletic Association Fee	3.33	$
Student Publications	$ 3.33
Graham Memorial	1.00
Other Student Government Activities	.67	$
		$

These fees are based on a period of one quarter and naturally vary for summer sessions and for semester periods. These fees apply to all undergraduates.

All the finances of the campus organizations, operated wholly or partially through the use of student fees, are handled by the Student Activities Fund office. The office, located in Graham Memorial, employs a full-time accountant in its operation, and is under the supervision of a University-employed auditor.

As the fees are collected for the various charges listed in the article, they are credited to that particular organizational account in the Activities Office by the University business office.

The Student Activities Fund office operates on the voucher system and before an invoice may be paid, all vouchers must be passed and signed by the president and treasurer of the particular organization and Mr. Kear of the Activities Office. Regular yearly reports are prepared and these reports are the ones which shall be published from time to time.

A Red Herring for Russia

To the Editor:

If the History Department has discriminated against Mr. Bernstein because of his religion, I think they should be severely criticized, and acted against if possible. But I seriously doubt that the facts of the case are exactly as intimated by Mr. Bernstein.

I have never yet known a "prosecuted historical materialist" to fail to drag out a red herring to obscure the real issue, which involves intellectual attachment to the U. S. S. R., along with its somewhat odd interpretation of History.

If Mr. Bernstein feels that his political views make him unwanted here, maybe he would be happier if he went somewhere else. I am practically certain that the members of the faculty of our History Department would be "discriminated against" in the Jefferson School of Political Science, or the University of Moscow.

Wallace Club

Dear Editor:

Thanks so much for the honorable mention re the Wallace-for-President club. There were some real campus leaders present who were not mentioned, but I realize that you could not call everyone's name. Actually, there was more democratic representation at the meeting last Friday—(from all three college political parties, for instance)—than was indicated in your "news-story". However, as far as I know, no individual there represented anyone officially but himself!

MORE IMPORTANT THAN WHERE ANY MEMBERS OR VISITORS ARE FROM—anyway—IS "WHERE ARE THEY HEADED?"

Adequate support for Wallace and his program comes from many varied individuals and groups rather than from the few singled out by your reporter. Yes—I am proud to stand up and be counted among those supporters because I believe in his positive, progressive, and global outlook. He sees a (better) American Way of life (for all)—and has a rare faith in "democracy-in-action."

Henry Wallace advocates, and works for; good housing, price control, much-needed federal aid to education, civil rights, U. N.—controlled aid to Europe, and eventual World Government. Where does the Daily Tar Heel tand?

Bobby Riggs Smashes Out 7-5, 6-2, Win Over Kramer

The Sporting Picture

By Billy Carmichael III

After the Women and Children

THE FIRST COMPLAINT on the recent Athletic Council's discussion on the Duke and State basketball ticket question has reared its questioning head on the editorial page of this illustrative newspaper, as several very honest and very sincere students raised a sound question on why they might not get to see the N. C. State Wolfpack's attempt to do further damage to the recently mutilated Tar Heels of Coach Tom Scott.

Now, one easily recognizes the students' complaint about the whole matter, but the entire situation presents no solution that can better serve the student body than was handed down by the Council. Take the basic problem: 6,000 squatting places for 9,000 ticket holders. Now, apply the solution as put forth by ohr writers-in. First, eliminate the faculty-employee books from the eligible amid a roar of disapproval to be shouted down by the cry of 'Students first."

At this point the Council has the students on their side and the faculty-employee bunch as the stick-wielding opposition. Still there are but 6,000 seats for 8,000 eligiblists. The next to be purged must be the studentwives—about 750 strong. Then see if you can stand the uproar. One thinks twice before offending the Victory Village group who always seem to get the way. Still a purge is a purge, so they must go.

Now one is down and the student body at large and there are still at large 1,250 extra places needed to handle the demand. Who gets the next axe? And who wants to listen to the uproar of those who do? No, gentlemen, the problem is not as easily solved by the student first stand as it would seem.

Chickens and Eggs

All of which talk brings one to the point that whatever we students may think, the faculty does have its case as well. They purchased the passbooks in good faith and should have some chance to be able to use them. It all boils down to the old—which came first, the chicken or the egg?—adage, which in this case reads—where would the faculty be without the students and vice versa. The students, actually, are geting a higher percentage of seats than the faculty-employee group, and the talk around is that many of the faculty are going to stay away in order to avoid all the argument. Which shows that at least some have the spirit of the thing.

Of course, none of this talk is any consolation to the poor fellow who wants to go and doesn't get to attend because the numerical gods are shining in other directions on that particular day. The fact remains, though, that if the students will cooperate with the Athletic office in the matter by not trading or loaning passbooks to others if they do not intend to use them, the majority of people who are interested will get to see the traditional clash.

One other question has arisen and that is—Could not more students be accomodated by perhaps sitting them in the aisles? The answer to this query seems rather obvious. Fire laws, local, state or otherwise prohibit such a pracitce and a violation of said laws will bring down the wrath of local hook and ladder outfit resulting in an action such as has caused the postponement of two major cage contest in two years at neighboring Cow College Academoo.

That is the background of the whole seating problem. The Athletic officials of the University realized the situation would arise earlier this year, but held off on any decision in order to see what were the possibilities of not having to close the doors in any eligible ticket holder's face. The officials called in student body president Tom Eller and members of this staff in an effort to settle the issue to the advantage of all, especially the students themselves, and seem to have reached the answer that can best fill the needs of the student body and the campus.

Pinch Hitter Needed

Eligibility, which is being used so often these days that most sports writers are learning to spell it, again has come into view in the sporting picture. The current topic on th subject deals with the status of wrestler Irving Zirpel, who was declared ineligible a short while ago, crippling the-then-rather-lame grappling crew. Zirpel, it seems, entered the University in 1941. After the outbreak of the war, he was drafted, but was declared 4F and rejected. After periods of two to three months at a time, he would be called up again, and turned down. Finally he left school and entered the United States Coast and Geodetic Service where he served for three years as a civilian before being accepted by the Naval Seabees with whom he stood a 11-month hitch.

Now the twist to the story is that an athlete may compete in college athletics only for four years over a five year period. Time in the Army, Navy, or Marine Corps is deductible, though, and a three-year hitch in the service can allow a man to compete over a eight year streach.

Zirpel, says the Conference rules, is out of luck, to put it mildly, because his time in the Geodetic service doesn't quite make the grade as service time. Why it shouldn't is something that bears explaining by the Conference fathers if someone will put the $64 question to the loop lads. Rules are made to protect athletes and colleges and not to penalize them for something which they are not directly responsible.

One hopes one of the local athletic sluggers who reputedly have a lot of punch when they get in there and swing, will go to bat for deserving Irv Zirpel, gentleman, scholar, and athlete to boot.

Phantoms Drill In Former Gym

By Bill Kellam

Any grads of the pre-Woollen Gym era who chanced to drop in the Tin Can yesterday afternoon must have thought for a moment that they were carefree undergrads once again for there on the main court of the chilly Can the White Phantoms were working out for the first time in almost a decade.

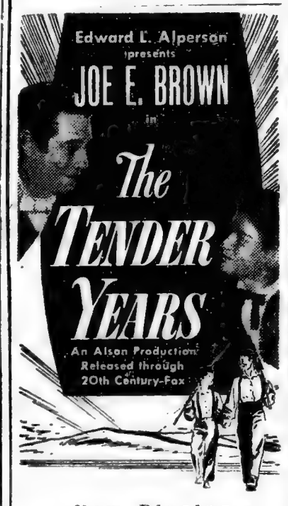
Routed out of their usual stamping grounds by last night's net "classic", the Tar Heel hoopsters were forced to return to the now rusty Tin Can for their initial pre-Penn drill. The big news of yesterday's practice was the absence of Nemo Nearman because of complications which set in after the removal of a wisdom tooth on Monday. However, penicillin and all, Nearman will be ready to go against the Quakers on Saturday night.

Kohler on Mend

Norm Kohler also took it fairly easy yesterday afternoon in order to rest the knee which he twisted in the Temple tilt. Kohler was in sweat clothes during the workout but he passed up the heavy work to avoid reinjuring the leg. Daily whirlpool treatments are expected to cause the leg to mend quickly.

The Phantoms collected their first dividend from the potent jayvees in the form of John "The New Hook" Tsantes who was working out with the varsity yesterday afternoon. If the dead-eyed scrapper shows up well in the rest of the week's session, it's very likely that he'll get his first taste of varsity action against the strong Eastern Leaguers.

The rest of the week's workouts will also see the successor of Bill Miller determined. A lengthy full dress scrimmage is on the books for tomorrow so the three leading candidates - Fred Swartzberg, Coy Carson, and Roger Scholbe - will probably put on quite a show. John Tsantes is also slated to see plenty of action in this session.



Scott Shows Errors

Scott spent the major part of yesterday's frigid practice pointing out to the Tar Heels the numerous mistakes that they committed on the eastern debacle The locals also spent a good part of the drill polishing their inactive shooting eyes.

The Tar Heel mentor disclosed that eleven Phantoms will depart from Raleigh on Friday night and they'll return immediately after the game. The probable traveling squad will include Bob Paxton, Fred Swartzberg, Coy Carson, Roger Scholbe, Nemo Nearman, John Dillon, King Cole, Norm Kohler, Rip Ryan, Dan Nyimicz, Teapot Thorne, and possibly John Tsantes.

Paxton Leads

Although he was held to 20 points during the Northern swing, Bob Paxton still held a tremendous lead in the individual scoring race with 190 counters good for a 13.7 average. Norm Kohler is a distant second with 116 markers while Nemo Nearman's 197 tallies make him the only other Phantom to top the century point making mark. Hook Dillon has 82 points in the 14 contests and was formerly trailed by Bill Muller's dozen game 70 counter total.

Riggs Too Slick For Slugging Foe

By Billy Carmichael III

The old master gave his newest pupil a two-lesson demonstration in the game of tennis last night at Woollen gym as masterful Bobby Riggs played challenger Jack Kramer all over the court to annex a 7-5, 6-2 triumph before a crowd of 4,500 engrossed patrons.

Litle Bobby had all of his stuff throughout the match and beat Kramer at his own game. Countless times the victor drove the ball deep to the backcourt and then roared to the net, handling the best Kramer could return in true championship style.

Jake Off Form

Big Jake, the advocate of the Big Game, must have left his famed attack somewhere along the line, for the tall, lanky Californian who had surpassed the best of the ametuers during the past two years and came to Chapel Hill with the current tour tied at eight matches each, showed the fans nothing. Only late in the opening set after Riggs had run easily through the first four games did Kramer spout any of his famed tactics.

Riggs was at the top of his game from the start, moving to a 4-0 lead with a galaxy of cutting volleys, smashing drives, and battering overheads that either baffled his opponent completely or forced him into scoring errors.

Kramer found himself at this point and with the help of his Big Serve and a couple of close calls by the line judges, fought off Riggs' bid for the opening set and finally tied the score at 5-5. Here, the little one regained the touch to break Kramer's serve in the 11th game and hold his own in the following game to take the first set, 7-5.

Kramer Rallies

Kramer rallied again at the start of the second set and he and Riggs held their own services through the first four games to run the count to 2-2. At this point though, Riggs again showed his clear superiority for the evening by breaking the big one's serve. Riggs held his own serve in the critical sixth game to make the score 4-2 and then added the clincher by breaking through Kramer and again capturing the eighth game, the set and the match.

Riggs played one of his best matches of the tour, according to reports, while Kramer had his worse night since his disasterous showing in the New York opening.

In the opening singles match, the lad from down under, Dinny Pails, took a hard-fought 9-7 opening set from little Pancho Segura, the fourth member of the troupe. Pails went on to run through the second set in 6-2 fashion, showing just a little too much stuff for the eager Ecuadorian. The Australian outsteadied and outstroked his opponent and produced a brand of net game that Segura was unable to cope with.

Doubles Deadlocked

In the last match of the evening, Pails teamed with Riggs to face Segura nad Kramer in two sets of doubles. Both teams won one set, the former duo capturing the first set, 6-2, while the Pan-American teaming took the last stanza, 6-3.

The doubles, though played definitely for the laughs, found both teams turning in some sparkling volley play that kept the crowd on the seat edges. Segura was the star of the night cap with his sharp net play coupled with a retrieving game in the old Bitsy Grant style. He carried Kramer throughout most of the match.

Action In Cage Loop Slackens; New Sports' Entry Dates Near

Although basketball play slackened a bit yesterday, preparations for forthcoming intramural events began swinging into high gear.

Zeta 2 paced the cagers in the basketball competition that was limited to four contests. They quintupled the score of an unfortunate Beta 3 squad, 50-10. Bud Wilkins was high scorer with 18 points. He was closely pursued by Gurney Boren with 14.

Sigma Nus Win

Sigma Nu 1 triumphed in another bout, defeating Pi Lamb 2, 26-9. The halftime score was 11-3, Sigma Nu. Whitehead 1, led by Bill Adams who dropped in 16 points defeated Everett 1, 31-16. Kappa Sig 3 edged out a close win over PiKa 3 in the final contest of the day, 26-23. Bill Claybrook, Kappa Sig, notched 12 margers, while Zack Harris, PiKa, was runnerup with 11.

All entries for the handball tourney, must be in by Thursday, the Intramural department announced. Entries may be filled by either presenting them at the Intramural office or by phoning F-3321. Scoring will be on a team basis and a single type elimination will be used. A team match will consist of two singles and a doubles encounter. Organizations may enter as many five-man teams as they wish.

Badminton Starts

Entries for the Badminton tourney are also due Thursday. Play will take place during the Open houses sponsored by the Intramural department at Woollen gymnasium.

The Lewis Dormitory marksmen were the first to fire their orientation rounds at the NROTC armory. Herman Coleman was high man with 148 points. Roy Jones was second with 142 and Bill Arey third with 139. 200 is the maximum score. All teams are required to engage in a practice shoot and competition will begin as soon as this firing is completed.

Jayvees Go On Road; To Start All Sophs

There may be no place like a home court to win basketball games but you can't prove it by Jim Hamilton's jayvee basketeers for tomorrow night the itinerant Phantomettes hit the road again. This time they journey to Maxton, N. C., where they'll face Presbyterian Junior College's cagers for the second time this season.

The locals will be seeking their sixth straight victory, four of which have come on the road, and their 11th win out of 12 starts. An all sophmore lineup will start for the Carolina tonight since Pappy Jim has decided to leave his first five freshmen at home The frosh have two tough home tilts carded for this weekend and Hamilton wants his first-year regulars to have plenty of rest.

On Friday night the undefeated yearlings meet Newport News Virginia, High School and on Saturday night they face High Point High's cagers. Both quint boast starting lineups averaging well over six feet tall. The locals will

Question Of Eligibility Hits Two More Matmen

The eligibility of two more Tar Heel grapplers was being investigated last night as the faculty committee questioned the records of heavyweight "Alabama" Lewis and Collier Cobb, a 121 pounder.

Although no ruling has come from the committee concerning Lewis and Cobb, they have reported to Coach Chuck Quinlan that there seems to be some question about their scholastic records.

In the meantime, Coach Quinlan, who was well pleased with the grappler's initial match with VPI Monday night, put his crew through a good workout yesterday in preparation for their next match with State College Friday night.

The State-Carolina match will be a 15 bout affair. In addition to the regular matches, seven exibition performances are on the card. Last year the local lads downed State, 17-13, in a match that featured four decisions and one pin for Carolina.

The Kemp brothers, Bill and Phil, who sparked the Tar Heel attack against VPI, are slated to open against the Wolfpack in the 145 and 175 pound classes respectively. Oscar Gupton, who earned a draw in Monday's tilt, will again start in the 165 division.

In the exibition matches all men, eligible or otherwise for Southern Conference competition, will have a chance to test their skill against the invaders.

Friday's match is slated to get under way at 6:45 on the main floor of Woollen gym.

Dolphins to Hold Time Tests Today

Swimming coaches Dick Jamerson and Ralph Casey will send their charges through time trials this afternoon starting at 4:30 o'clock as part of the system for picking the 14 mermen who will travel to Annapolis this weekend for the crucial meet against Navy.

Sprinter Floyd Drew is the team's lone member who may not be in shape for today's test. Drew injured his hand against the side of the pool during last Thursday's meet with Florida and may not be able to see action this week.

The Middies definitely rank as the toughest outfit the local swimmers will face all year. Unbeaten to date, their most recent triumph was a close 38 1|2-36 1|2 win over a strong Cornell team. The Dolphins scored a 53-22 victory over Florida last week in their only outing this year.

Spectators are invited to attend the trials this afternoon.

Giants Draft Conerly

New York, Jan. 20 —(UP)— The New York football Giants secured the draft rights today of triple threat halfback Charlie Conerly of Mississippi from the Washington Redskins after giving the capitol city club halfback Howie Livingston and another player to be selected at a later date.

The signing by the Redskins yesterday of Harry Gilmer of Alabama paved the way for the deal. The Giants also hold the draft rights to Ole Miss's Barney Poole of the deadly 1947 Conerly to Poole passing combination.

Business Stability Subject of Study By Clarence Heer

Clarence Heer, a member of the University faculty since 1927, has been selected to conduct a study as to what local and state governments can do to contribute to business stability. His appointment was announced Sunday by Raymond Rubican, chairman of the Research and Policy Committee of the Committee for Economic Development. He and other distinguished economists will work in fields which will form a background for statements on national policy.

Heer is a director of the National Bureau of Economic Research and of the Tax Research foundation. He has also served as consultant to tax departments and legislative commissions in New York, Virginia, New Jersey and North Carolina.

Commenting on the appointments, Rubican said, "The CED Research and Policy Committee of business men assigns questions for study to qualified scholars, drawn largely from leading universities. Under the CED by-laws all research is to be thoroughly objective in character and the approach in each instance is to be from the standpoint of general welfare and not from that of any special political or economic group'.

CHAMPAIGN, Ill. (UP)—When Richard Brown told his son he could take his pets home on a return trip from Springfield, Ill., he got more than he bargained for.

While they were preparing to return to Champaign the pet dog had five pups, a pet rabbit had seven offspring, and 14 chicks which Brown's parents had been keeping had become grown chickens.

Brown said it was the largest number of "passengers" he ever had in the car.

He rushed in and fought the blaze while Lucy Austin pulled her invalid daughter out in a chair. The house burned so quickly the occupants had no time to remove their pocketbooks or any personal belongings.

Other loss includes a year's supply of food which was stored in Perry's house. 700 pounds of beef, and vast stores of fruit and canned vegetables were destroyed.

Hysterical neighbors fought flames from their rooftops after they discovered their homes were threatened. The flames were visible as far as Columbia street.

The four occupants of the house will be cared for by Dave Austin, brother of Perry's invalid wife.

Says Colds Cost U. S. $1 Billion Yearly

NEW YORK (UP)—The common cold costs the American people more than $1,000,000,000 a year, Dr. Louis I Dublin of the Metropolitan Life Insurance Co. announced.

The average person suffers two colds a year, the physician told a press conference. Each lasts five days, meaning 1,500,000,000 days of misery, he said. He estimated loss of wages at $420,000,000 and costs of tratment at $400,000,000 a year.

As Dr. Dublin talked he reached for a hankerchief. He had a cold.

Eller Will Present 'State Of The Campus' Message Tonight

Magazine Referendum Bill Is Scheduled to Hit Floor

By Chuck Hauser

Student body president Tom Eller will deliver his State of the Campus message to the Student Legislature when it meets in Di hall at 7:30 this evening.

In addition to presenting several bills for the student lawmaker's consideration, Eller will discuss many phases of campus life, including publications, coed affairs, the student union, student entertainment, debating, student government, the House Privileges board, student fees and various others.

The next important item of business scheduled tonight is the pending magazine referendum bill, which is supposed to come out of Tag Montague's Ways and Means committee and onto the floor for discussion.

Committee Appointments

Speaker of the Legislature Jack Folger will make appointments to legislative committees, the chairmen of which were elected last week.

Another bill coming under the old business heading will be the appropriation proposal for the delegates to the regional conference of the National Students association. Pete Gerns and Charles represented the Legislature at the session, while Herman Baker and Johnny Clampitt went as chairman and treasurer of the region, the states of Virginia, West Virginia and the Carolinas.

Another bill will be up to provide for a committee of two persons to see that the constitution of the student body is written in such form to run 800 words per day in the Daily Tar Heel published in full.

GM Jam Session To Be Held Today

Members of Johnny Satterfield's orchestra will compose the first weekly Graham Memorial Jam Session, to be held this afternoon from 2 to 4 o'clock in the campus cluft on the ground floor of the student union. Satterfield himself hopes to play with the six-piece combo as pianist.

Now directed by trombonist Norman DeLancy, the jam sessions have been somewhat revived from last quarter's plan. Each week, instead of throwing the program open to any number of student musicians, a small previously arranged combo will take over the two-hour unrehearsed jive program.

"In this way," explained DeLancy, "Each combo will be able to perfect their own selections more, through having more practice time together." The whole purpose of the jam session, he added, is as much for the enjoyment of the musicians as for students' listening pleasure.

Those slated to participate in today's program are as follows: Sam Andrews, tenor saxman, and seat vocalist from Chapel Hill; Jerry McDuffey, second trumpet with Satterfield, Skippy Etheridge, drums, from Chapel Hill; Gene Stryker, dead-pan bass player, and University music department voice instructor; and Delancy and Satterfield.

A sophmore from Chapel Hill, Delancy formerly directed his own combo and played with Freddy Johnson's old orchestra. Satterfield's orchestra was recently classed by Metronome magazine as the best orchestra in the south.

UP MEETING

There will be a meeting of the University party at three o'clock today in Roland Parker No. 1 to consider appointments. All members are requested to attend.

Rendezvous Plans Next Floor Show

A galla six-act slapstick and vaudeville routine is planned for tomorrow evening's second weekby Graham Memorial Rendezvous floor show, under the direction of Clarence Barbour. "The audience was only half of the show last week," said Barbour, "But they are going to be three-fourths of it this time." Features of the varied program are a comedian, acrobat troupe, blackface pianist, dance couple, and two singers.

The show will start at 9:30 sharp and run approximately 30 minutes. All performers are giving their services gratis in return for experience gained. In the future it is planned to present similar short variety shows in the Rendezvous several times weekly.

Playing for dancing during the evening will be the same three-piece piano-b a s s-s a x combo which was so well received by students during their last Friday premiere performance on the campus. Numerous improvements have been made in the set-up of the Rendezvous during the week by manager Arnold Wilson. Students are encouraged by Wilson to take fuller advantage of the room during the afternoon hours from 2 o'clock on.

W. N. C. CLUB SOCIAL

The Western North Carolina club wil sponsor a social hour in the Rendezvous room this evening at 7:30 o'clock, announced John P. Brady, co-social chairman.

The usual business meeting will be dispensed with, Brady said, for dancing and refreshments.

Arnold Receives Campus Party's Confidence Vote

Walt Arnold, a junior of Bristol, Tennessee, was re-elected to the vice-chairmanship of the Campus party in a meeting held Tuesday night.

His re-election and that of party treasurer Ralph Sherill, following the resignation of Jess Dedmond, were described by one party member as a demonstration of endorsement of the present policies of the party.

Bob Haire replaced Dedmond who resigned to devote himself to his other student government duties, and he with Arnold and Sherril will lead the party in the Spring elections.

Arnold, a navy veteran and VPI transfer, is a member of the Orientation committee and an ex-member of the student legislature. In announcing his re-election, party chairman Haire also revealed that the meeting scheduled for this afternoon has been canceled.

"However," he declared, "we will hold a meeting of an important nature next Tuesday evening at 7 o'clock in Roland Parker lounge of Graham Memorial."

March of Dimes Drive Will Start on Monday

The March of Dimes campaign will begin next Monday and run for a five-day period, ending January 30, announced Barron Mills, chairman.

"Everyone knows that the national March of Dimes opened last week," Mills stated, "but we are condensing our campaign into a short five days because we feel that we can cover the campus thoroughly in that length of time, and there is no need to stage a long-drawn-out drive."

Miriam Evans, president of Smith dormitory, has been selected by Mills to take charge of soliciting in coed dormitories and the sorority houses. Miss Evans, a senior from Asheville, is a journalism major.

Mills, the editor of the Daily Tar Heel and the fourth DTH editor to head the March of Dimes campaign in recent years, stated that a campus quota will not be established, "But," he added, "we are out to at least double the $1,629.53 which was solicited last year. You must remember that half of the money you give is kept here to fight any possible outbreaks of infantile paralysis. With all the married veterans here who have small children, it would be a wise measure to build up a large surplus of money as a precautionary device.

Individual letters have been written to representatives in each of the dormitoris, fraternities and sororities as well as Victory Village asking them to serve as chairmen in their respective group and urging them to attend a meeting Thursday night at 8 o'clock in Roland Parker lounge No. 2 of Graham Memorial. At that time the March of Dimes campaign will be mapped out in detail and explained to the solicitors.

Press Association Opens Conference With AP Analyst

The 23rd annual meeting of the North Carolina Press association will get underway tonight with an address on international relations by J. M. Roberts, foreign affairs analyst for the Associated Press.

Roberts has informed the University Extension Division, special arrangers for the meeting, that he will speak briefly on certain international topics. Following his talk, a general discussion of the European situation will be held. The meeting will be in Gerrard hall at 8 o'clock and is open to the public.

The official program of the institute, scheduled to continue through Saturday morning, was released locally yesterday by the Extension Division.

Welcome by House

Tonight's program will include welcoming remarks by Chancellor R. B. House with response being given by E. A. Resch, association president. R. W. Madry, director of the University News bureau will introduce Roberts.

A native of Asheville, Roberts attended the University here and Davidson college. He worked on several North Carolina newspapers and with the Carolina bureau of the Associated Press in Charlotte.

He later joined the staff of the Associated Press in New York where he has served for the past eleven years as foreign news analyst. He has also been foreign editor for the New York office.

Tomorrow's agenda includes an executive committee meeting of the NCPA, and a meeting of the associated dailies and weeklies. William D. Carmichael, Jr., Controller of the University, will preside over the afternoon luncheon. P. T. Hines, NCPA vice-president will make the principal address.

Mikado Excerpts

Student entertainment will be featured on the program. Selections include excerpts from the "Mikado" by members of the cast, a tap dance by Miss Mary Joe Cain and a program of folk ballads and music by Dr. and Mrs. I. G. Greer.

Dr. Thomas D. Clark, an alumnus of Duke and head of the department of history at the University of Kentucky, will be the principle speaker at the Press Dinner at Duke tomorrow evening. Press association awards for 1947 will be presented following Dr. Clark's adress.

Members of the association include representatives of both North Carolina dailies and non-dailies.

Managing Editor Receives Staff Backing, Is Present Publications Board Treasurer

By Donald MacDonald

Edward G. Joyner, Jr., rising senior of Wilson, will run on a three-party ticket for editor of the Daily Tar Heel.

Announcement of Joyner's nomination came late yesterday after he received simultaneous endorsement by each of the three campus political parties and by the Daily Tar Heel staff.

Nomination of the 23-year-old present managing editor was made unanimous at a 4 o'clock staff meeting. Immediately, chairmen of the University, Campus and Student parties said that Joyner will receive spirited backing from each of their groups. If no independent candidate is announced, Joyner will run for the office in spring elections unopposed.

Wire Editor

A journalism major with three years of experience on the staff of the University daily, Joyner became managing editor upon the resignation of T. Earl Heffner, Jr., in September. Last year he was associated with the Orange Printshop, of Chapel Hill, where he learned the fundamentals of the printing trade. He worked last summer as Associated Press editor of the Wilson Daily Times.

He is an Army veteran, having first entered the University in 1942. Joining the Army Air Forces in February of 1943, he served for 37 months, part of which time he was stationed in England as radio operator on a B-17. He re-entered the University in March of 1946.

At present Joyner serves as treasurer of th e publications board, and is a brother of Alpha Tau Omega fraternity. If elected, he will succeed Barron Mills, present editor, who graduates in March.

Intramural Debate Entry Deadline Set

With entries for the Intramural Debating tournament scheduled to be submitted by the end of this week, Randall McLeod, Debate council member, urged yesterday that all interested persons contact their organization managers "as soon as possible."

McLeod emphasized that the Debate council is particularly interested in a successful first tournament.

Scheduled for the first tour-February, the tournament will be evidence of student interest in forensic activities. Winners will receive a cup as an award by the Dialectic Senate and the Philanthropic literary society. Other awards are anticipated from several other organizations on the campus.

Forsyth Rejects March of Dimes

Washington, D. C., Jan. 21—(UP)—As the March of Dimes campaign for infantile paralysis victims went swinging through the United States today, a North Carolina county was the one county in the nation which refused to join the drive.

The public solicitation committee of Forsyth county refuses to approve the campaign, charging that the quota set for that particular county is too high for the actual needs of the polio drive. The committee, which is a part of the county chamber of commerce, says the campaign "isn't democratic enough."

The National Infantile Paralysis foundation says the drive will go into Forsyth county anyway. Chairman Harvey Lupton says the committee has no official status to start with although some county schools and some merchants agreed to follow its recommendations.

Ruth Evans to Speak To Y Junior Council

Ruth Evans, president of the YWCA, will speak on "Why the Y?" at tonight's meeting of the Y council at 7 o'clock in the Grail room.

Designed to train leaders for next year's Y, the Junior council is composed of outstanding coeds who meet weekly to learn the purposes and activities of the Y n preparation for the offices they will hold next year.

Campus Clothing Drive Opens Next Week For Relief of War Devastated Populations

By Sally Woodhull

Clothing, bedding, shoes, and other articles needed for relief of war-devastated populations overseas will be collected in a clothing drive opening Sunday and continuing throughout the week. Sponsored by the YWCA, the YMCA, and student church groups, the drive is being headed by Sunny Sunstrom and Gene Turner.

Official send-off for the campaign will occur tomorrow in the Y court, when the YW recreation committee will set up a display to attract student attention to the drive. Working on the display are Emily Ogburn, Anne Carlton Jean Somerville, and Ann Keen.

Only collection in Victory Village and trailer courts will be on Sunday afternoon, in conjunction with the community clothing drive now being sponsored by the Chapel Hill churches. Collections in dormitories and fraternity and sorority houses will be made on the following Wednesday and Friday.

Student Groups

Student church groups will handle the collection and packing of clothing from dormitories and houses. Organizations and their representatives are as follows: Baptist: Vivian Parks, Don Howell, and Armon Hutcherson; Episcopal: Paul Harmon, Edie Knight; Hillel: Joan Schlossberg; Methodist: Sam Langell, Arthur Bridgeman; and Presbyterian: Herbert Thatcher, Glen Mitchell.

Articles collected here will be shipped to the Church World Service center at New Windsor, Maryland, where they are processed to prevent damage in transit, packed in compact bales and shipped overseas. They are distributed through the churches of Europe, on the basis of need without regard for race, creed, color, or politics.

"Scorched Earth"

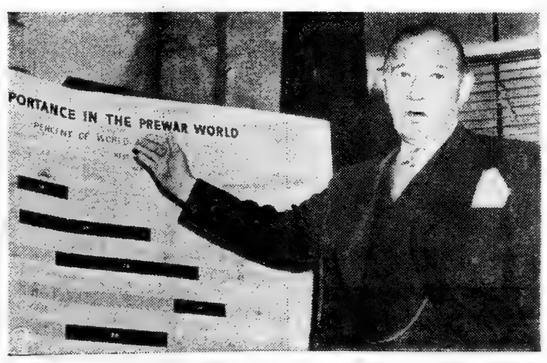
Clothing, bedding, and shoes are most needed, but other household articles such as linens, tools, school supplies, and toys are also essential for European homes having undergone the "scorched earth" policy are completely without equipment.

Claude Shotts, University YM CA secretary who recently returned from working in Europe with the American Friends Service committee, in endorsing the drive, said, "When plains are burned, not only houses but everything is destroyed. These people possess their life and little more."

In adition to this actual destruction, millions of Europeans have been forced to migrate, leaving all their belongings, and are now living the life of animals, Mr. Shotts said.

UN Control of Canal Zone Opposed by Phi As Assembly Votes 12-6 Against Measure

By Gordon Huffines



A bill which would give the United Nations mandatory powers over the Panama Canal Zone was defeated Tuesday night by the Phi assembly. By a vote of 12-6 Phi members downed the proposal that the Panama Canal be placed under United Nations trusteeship.

Introduced by Speaker-protem John Giles, the bill met stiff opposition from the floor, and only persistent efforts of a minority saved the measure from early defeat.

Set Precedent

Supporters of the Phi bill stated that by voluntarily placing the Canal under United Nations administration the United States would set a precedent which would bring about better relotions with South American and also strengthen the United Nations organization. Pro-representatives pointed out that under

Scientist Will Present Animal Movie Tonight

Howard Cleaves, well known New York author and scientist, will present his movie, "Midnight Movies in Animal Land" tonight at 8 o'clock in the Pick theatre under the sponsorship of the Chapel Hill Bird club and the National audobon society.

Admission price is 50 cents or by season ticket, rather than $1, as reported in Tuesday's "Daily Tar Heel". This is the second in a series of five outdoor movies being given by the club.

Mr. Cleaves, who was official photographer for the Pinchot South Sea expedition, is the first man ever to have taken successful movies of night activities of animals and birds in their natural surroundings. His films have been shown throughout the world by Pathe News and other movie companes.

Groves Stresses Acquaintance As Prime Pre-Marital Necessity

Stressing the importance of couples really becoming acquainted with one another previous to marriage, Mrs. Ernest R. Groves, vice president of the American association of Marriage spoke Tuesday night in Hill hall on problems of engagement and marriage.

Sponsored by the Coed Senate for the student body, Tuesday night's lecture was a follow-up of Mrs. Groves' previous lecture on "Campus Problems and Dating."

Engagement Helpful

A period of engagement may prove very helpful in becoming acquainted previous to marriage, Mrs. Groves said, and while she peppered her lecture with incidents from real life when couples in one split second, deciding they were "meant for one another," married immediately, she emphasized the fact that the first few years of married life were difficult ones in which they had to become familiar with their differences and faults.

However, it should be realized, when one is considering their marriage partner as such, that one is apt to project his own lacking or sensitiveness upon another rather than recognize the fault or lack is in himself. It is wise when analyzing one in trying to decide whether one is a suitable marriage partner to also consider whether or not you yourself are suitable to be a partner.

Concealing hidden traits or family characteristics from one another makes for difficult years to follow and during engagement couples should learn to understand one another's religious, political and moral views as well as one another's families and background. While entirely different social, religious or economic backgrounds may make things difficult, other ties may be strong enough if there is sufficient tolerance and understanding to overcome these differences and bring about a successful marriage.

Postponement Advisable

Emphasizing the importance of being ready for marriage before launching into it, Mrs. Groves also pointed out that misgivings and fears are frequently indications that one is not ready for marriage and she suggested that in such cases it is advisable to postpone the wedding.

Following her lecture, Mrs. Groves answered questions from the audience which dealt with such problems as jealousy, childhood sweethearts, parents' approval and former "romances."

We're Willing to Wait on Committee

The decision on the part of Chancellor House to refer the Bernstein case to a committee with Dean W. W. Pierson, Jr. as chairman was a move which is fair to all concerned. The committee has been urged to take its time, review the case thoroughly and arrive at a decision after considering all phases of the case.

We consider that this is the best possible, and most sensible move, because frankly at the present time we are confused—all of the theories which have grown out of the issue have us so befuddled that as yet we have not been able to reach even a personal decision.

We listened to those who believe that the Bernstein case is just a method used by the Communist Party to drag out a little sympathy and to abet their cause. We have heard the remarks of those who say that Dr. Newsome and some of his cohorts in the History Department are bitter opponents of Dr. Frank Graham and they are seizing this chance to try to oust him from his position here at the University. They work under the assumption that Dr. Frank will defend Bernstein in quite strong terms and thus offer the Board of Trustees reason for dismissing him. Then the third theory we have heard circulating is that Bernstein is a "paranoiac." They say that this has been evident since his arrival on campus. Fitting in with this theory is the story that Bernstein has been making himself "obnoxious" in the History Department and together with only fair work when outstanding work is needed for a candidate for PhD.

This is why we are in such a state of confusion. Even after pondering over the situation for two days we still feel that there are too many pieces of the puzzle which must be fitted before a sensible or fairly accurate conclusion can be reached.

So we are placing full confidence in the faculty committee. It will take several sessions for the committee members to bring to the surface all of the details. We are in favor of turning the whole affair over to the group, let them consider the case, and after they have arrived at a decision, publish a formal report. We do not believe that anyone is prepared to accept a decision until everything has been disclosed.

It may be several days before the committee has their report ready for publication, but we are more than willing to wait.

Editorial. Hunh?

Nasty weather outside these past few days, hunh?

Mud. Lots of it. Red, brown, yellow. All colors.

Now and then we think it might be a good idea to write an editorial recommending the abolition of mud but as we pointed out up there about half an inch ago mud is sometimes red and we got to look out for witch hunts.

Oh, well. Maybe it'll stop raining sometime soon.

(I guess you never had to write an editorial when you didn't have any eternal truths to tell, hunh? Well, it isn't easy.)

It may not be important but this is the tenth anniversary of Thomas Wolfe's death and the one hundredth anniversary of the birth of Communism.

We know an English prof who likes Wordsworth. The other day he read us a poem, glowed for a minute and then cooed: "Now isn't that just like bright sunlight on a summer evening?"

We find that sometimes the DTH makes boners, too. For instance, from Tuesday's paper: "A man who sells gazoa also sells gelida (ice cream). But in you take a lump but of the re-truth a gazoz seller never feels quite at home selling ice cream. white fluid, the red fluid, the There is more art in mixing the yellow fluid, and the gaz which go into the miking of a glass of frigerator, stick it on a biscuit and there you are. And you have got your teeth well into it before your face is a dripping mass of slush."

It sure is.

Then on the same day, on the same page, John K. B. McDowell says, in discussing Alban Berg's opera, "I sincerely believe that my father's black spats worn with his dinner jacket created a more favorable and lasting impression . . ."

We wish to point out that anybody's father, wearing only black spats and a dinner jacket, could create, if not a favorable, at least a lasting impression.

Come on up and write an editorial sometime. Hunh?—B.S.

Wanted---A Home For Joe

By Bill Buchan

Wanted—a home for a turtle. Joe was a Christmas present. He's got a fine disposition, says very little, matter of fact, never says a word until his water dries up. He has lots of ambitions and persists in climbing over the side of his bowl, falling to the floor and touring the room floor.

Anyway, Joe (that's his nickname, short for Drop Dead Twice) isn't happy in my company. Seems that he was born and bred in New York and he definitely doesn't appreciate my Confederate attitudes. Anyone with room and love in their heart is welcome to have him. He comes completely supplied with a special box for traveling.

Joe isn't any trouble to take care of. Change his water once a day and he's content until the same time next day. Turtle lovers have told me that he requires food only once every two months. If only my wife (if I had a wife) required feeding every eight weeks!! Besides that, Joe is entertaining. Talk to him sweetly and he'll crawl on your hand, up your wrist and continue the tour if you desire. The directions that came with him say he'll eat out of your hand too, but thus far, I haven't been able to persuade him to eat anything. (Maybe namburgers and mushbagas just don't appeal to him.)

If you're lonely at night, I imagine Joe would be nice company to share your bunk. Especially if his owner would go to Durham and buy him an official can of turtle food.

What Joe really needs is a fatherly owner who will pay him some attention. He needs someone who will pick him up three and four times a day and mutter sweet nothings in his ears—yeah, I know he doesn't have any visible ears, but I believe there are a couple of holes in his head, somewhere.

In addition to his other attractions, Joe has a dog and the letters "DDT" painted on his shell. What more can you ask of a turtle?

Joe's hunting a new home, anyone interested?

'Men of Puritan Honesty!'

Dear Sir:

If the instigator of Tuesday's headline wasn't conceived by Bill Hearst and Cisie Patterson, then he is also due for exposure as an imposter among other things. His bid for a niche in the journalistic hall of fame deserves the most distinguished yellow bust available; for, nowhere in the history of newspapermen has there appeared an article of more palpable and unmitigated bad taste. His superior editors, one of whom was elected by the students in good faith, are as responsible as is he.

This type of news doesn't die here on the campus and it is time that the staff realized this; and also their responsibility to the thousands of graduates and future graduates of this school.

It is an extremely selfish attitude for them not to do so.

It is not unreasonable for me to expect my diploma to be respected by perspective employers anywhere, but such will not be the case if this present, irresponsible method of reporting is allowed to continue into the future. Perhaps I'm a little bitter, but I personally see no reason why it should continue for even one more issue. A complete shake-up of the staff and even a new and immediate election seems to me to be the order of the day.

Irregardless of the validity of the statements, the story should not have been published in this form. There just wasn't that much news value in it. The faculty members, whom I have talked to, admit that there is no case for slander, but the implications and ommissions are such as to make the whole affair, as reported, unsuitable for use among men of Puritan honesty.

The people of the State of Georgia have committed less crimes against their minorities than many other states, but just uch journalistic rape as the Bernstein case represents, has built, for its citizens, a more ordid reputation than that of any other state in the Union. An aroused student body will prevent that happening here.

Southerner Born?

Reply to: Letter signed Daniel S. Martin; Saturday, January 17, 1948.

Dear Sir:

I may be doing you an injustice by failing to recognize a purely satirical article. However, there are those individuals who genuinely hold those viewpoints so well expressed in your letter of Saturday, January 17th.

In the first place I think you should qualify the term southerner before you sign your name (a southerner born and bred). I shudder to think your viewpoint that of a southerner—born, bred, or converted!

Let's get this straight before I continue—I am not necessarily advocating the admission of Negroes to the University of North Carolina (although, if admitted, some few would no doubt outshine some of our Carolina gentlemen and coeds" as far as tudent records are concerned).

I agree with the caption of your article—Protection At All Costs—that is, protection from individuals who ignore such basic rights of humanity and education as (1) the right of all to equal educational opportunities and facilities and (2) the right of protection from stupid solutions of complex problems.

Concerning the question of keeping Carolina PURE and WHITE, the purity of Carolina involves a great deal more than the exclusion of Negroes from our university. I am inclined to believe that it involves all the moral issues of our culture within the radius of several miles. Consequently, I would suggest that you make a representative and objective survey (by simple observation) before drawing so simple a conclusion concerning the method of attaining Carolina's purity.

Such sadistic instincts as your plan for Negro education and your absolute laissez-faire attitude are excellent illustrations, if generalized, of the origin of our present individual and world stati. Complacency will not insure the attainment of local, national, or international harmony.

Elizabeth B. Curry

Brick Thrower

To the Editor:

In reply to Mr. B.'s editorial, "No Rose Bushes in Graham Memorial," I would like to explain the meaning of my letter which he seems to have missed. I referred to "campus politicians." Whether Mr. B knows it or not, this expression conotes a very distinctive odor. The term "campus politicians" does not necessarily refer to a student on the Daily Tar Heel staff or even a student legislator. "Campus politicians" refers only to those in all branches of student government who take part in and carry out the duties for reasons and in a manner becoming to a high school majorette.

As for the necessary part of student government, it is a comparatively large and important task; but think how far its size and importance is overshadowed by the now more difficult and important task of getting what we came to the University after in a minimum of time and with as little expense as possible. These things are first in the average more settled student of today, Mr. B. Extra-curricular activity of any form is to a great extent overshadowed by individual problems more urgent and time-limiting.

In your example of the work involved in taking part in extra-curricular activities and the many obligations attached to student government, are no doubt very accurate. These reasons are exactly why the average student cannot take part in such activity. The reason why this student doesn't wish to take part is because of the large number of "campus politicians" whose buzzing activity makes a very unattractive showcase for the "wares" of student government activity. I am a passer-b who stands on the street opposite that showcase, Mr. B, my impulse is to throw a brick.

Get Santa Claus

Dear Sir:

To my knowledge there are three Unitarians at the University. I am one of them. I suggest that now would be a good time to sandbag the dirty Unitarians before they have a chance to infiltrate the Y and subvert some good Baptists and Methodists. I further suggest that an efficient way of getting rid of them would be the method followed in the case of Leonard Bernstein—merely tell them they will fail all subsequent quizes and point out that unless they pass quizes they will be wasting their time here.

Also I know a student who claims to believe in Santa Claus, especially when he is somewhat beered up. Let's get him too.

Shameful in This Land of Freedom!

To the Editor:

It is shameful when the people of the land of freedom, democracy, and promise have to call upon the nation's highest court to decide whether or not a person of one color will be allowed to have an equal opportunity to have an equal education. Equal but separate schools are old enough; they should be buried along with the idea of womenless colleges.

How can I help my neighbor if I don't ever see him, have his advice, and he mine? A neighbor of mine who happens to have a darker shade of skin than mine was the only Negro member of a school board which had just received their budget for the next year. Upon reading it, they found that the white schools had been given an increase of about one-third over last year's amount to be spent on education, and the Negroes' allowance had been cut about one-third. One of the more sensitive board members started to explain or justify the addition and subtraction, and was interrupted by my neighbor, who said, "I am in perfect agreement with the new budget for if any group needs more education it is the white people."

Universities and colleges are for higher education, but how high must we go before we realize that there is dignity in all men?

Coffee Sales Go Down--Down

By R. Foo Giduz

—Little while back C. C. figured out Book Ex coffee sales had jumped some 40 per cent. . .Well, he just decided they've dropped 42 per cent since the new year. . .It's not so much the Leap Year idea, whereby the men folks don't have to stay doped up for the wimmen (or dope them up due to its being turnabout year). . .It's not even entirely the fact that Bill Morris has decreed his comely coffee-caterer and wife Virginia shall henceforth be only for the decoration and housewifiness of his McCauley street trailer. . . Virginia confided she didn't even particularly like coffee, but it "sort of grew on her."—It certainly hasn't stunted her growth; she looks more thriving than ever on her new domestic life. . .No, the Book Ex mecca mecca should have had a hike in the java till, since they've just doubled coffee counter space. . .

But what makes strong Tar Heels shrink, and what drives pre-8 o'clock class coffee-hounds back to bed is that brand spanking new shiny mirror you have to look into every time you stagger into the BX for the morning adrenalin!. . .People have accused H. R. Ritchie of dastardly crimes (invariably wrongly), but gentlemen, where else in Chapel Hill is it necessary to drink your morning java with some goon just as ugly as yourself staring you square in the face???

Mrs. Groves' Tuesday talk proved the toughness of ratio-ridden UNC. . .Men outnumbered coeds two-to-one to hear and ask for expoundings on the topic "The Engagement Period." —Sounds tough. . .In contrast to the gals, this may indicate, (1) The Carolina gentlemen wanta get spliced; (2) Were looking for women there who might have been interested in the proposition; (3) Knew that was as close as they'd ever get to the topic while at UNC, and so were making the best of it. . . Suggest Mrs. Groves repeat the series comes the springtime!

—An apology to Dr. Guy Johnson. . .No intention to link him with Junius Scales in Tuesday's Carousel. . .Politically conservative Dr. Johnson and Scales are poles apart . . .It's comparatively old news now, but SP offered the presidential nomination to incumbent Tom Eller recently, though Tom long ago decided not to run. . .Today's not-too-outstanding prediction: Erstwhile CP chairman Jess Dedmond will run for student body presidency on the Campus AND University party slate... He'll be hard to beat!

Election For Mayor Coming Up

By Dan Sapp

This week public interest is evenly divided between, the frozen water, burst pipes, shortage of oil situation, and the coming election (village, not national). Since the water and oil situation is pretty old hat by now let's consider the election.

At a recent village council meeting, Chairman Tom Crittenden announced that he will resign as soon as he can be replaced. Tom has served on the council as chairman for two quarters which is the official term of office. He has done a good job and they're losing a very capable man. Charlotte Hayes, Jackson Circle representative, made a motion that an official mayor be elected by direct vote of the village residents. The motion was carried and William Goulding, Perry Payne, and Hugh Welles were nominated as candidates.

The council has been considering for some time the election of a mayor. According to Mrs. Hayes, the council members feel that a mayor elected directly by the people themselves will be more representative and will carry possibly more weight.

An information sheet will be circulated this week with ballots and names of the nominees attached. Two blank spaces will be left on each sheet for the addition of the names of anyone who the voters think should be included.

The term of office for the new mayor will be from the time of election until June, and it will be his duty to appoint someone to act as mayor during the summer session.

The three nominees are all well known in the village as they have all been very active since they have been out here. William Goulding has been serving as a representative from Polk street since the beginning of the fall and has been active on several committees. He is also Village night maintenance man. Perry Payne of Daniels Road has been chairman of the Southern Conference for Human Welfare and has been working for quite some time at the Co-op, first as a volunteer and later as a regular employee. Hugh Welles has been president of the UVA and has also shown much interest and activity in the Village.

So, they're off! And may the best man win. Remember the ballots will be around soon, so be sure to vote for your man and if his name isn't on the list then put it on, in any event don't forget to vote.

Big Show Coming

Now that the tennis extravaganza has moved out of Woollen gym the decks are clear for the next big attraction which will be on February 28 when Chapel Hill plays host to the Sixth Annual Southern Invitation games. The meet itself will be going into its 24th year and Coach Bob Fetzer is the man that has been responsible for bringing the largest meet South of the Mason-Dixon line.

This year's program for the college division calls for 12 events and representation will probably come from some 25 colleges. Last year Carolina's potent team made the meet a run away with the Yellow Jackets from Georgia Tech running second. This year the meet is expected to be wide open with both teams from Navy, Tennessee, Maryland, Georgia Tech, Duke and State challenging Carolina for top honors. There are also five scholastic events and four freshman events to complete the program.

There are two events in particular that are early season eye-catchers. They are the high jump and the two-mile run. In the high jump, a new record was set last year by Henry Gardner of University of Florida when he went over the bar at 6 feet 2 one-half inches. This year he will be challenged by Jack Moody, who has cleared 6 feet 7, George Pickett of State college, who has done 6 feet 4 inches, and Dave Rowe of Mercer who has done 6 feet 5 inches. Moody, the lad from Plainfield, N. J. and who hold's the Madison Square Garden scholastic record and the Southern conference outdoor mark, has enough ability to jump 6 feet, 10 inches, and the coaches are looking forward to this lad making a mark for himself in the coming indoor meets around the Eastern seaboard.

The two-mile event will have such standouts as Jack Milne, current titleholder, Jimmy Miller, Sam Magill, Dave Dubow of State, Red Smith of Georgia Tech, Forrest Ross of Tennessee, George Troxel of Virginia, Johnny Corridan of Georgia Tech and many other crack two-milers. It seems almost impossible that the meet mark of 9:45.5 will stand this year. In fact it is altogether possible that the record time will not even place in this year's meet.

All in all with over 500 competitors probably in the running Carolina track fans will be treated to one of the finest in the country

Racquet Hangover

From all of the talk that was heard on the campus yesterday morning following the Riggs-Kramer tennis show it seems that the promoters have missed their boat. With the doubles events offering more thrills than any other part of the program we would think that it woul be given a better spot. Doubles in tennis is a very fast game and is bound to be pleasing to the spectators. But we are not the man behind the strings but we can suggest that the next time maybe we will be offered a better look at the tandem part of the game.

The average spectator had more fun watching these great players in team than they did banging heads in singles. It is only natural that with two men on each side of the net the game will move faster and longer volleys will ensue... so for us let's have more doubles

Hats Off

We would at this time like to doff our topper to Bill Miller, the basketball star that was sidelined by a Conference ruling. Bill is still smiling and doing all he can to make the team get a little stronger. It was a tough break for you, the team, and the University but such is life.

To the scrappy crew of Carolina wrestlers who have been hit with everything in the book to break up their team but still keep plugging. Some of the boys are not the world's best but they will do, as their fine spirit is more than exemplary of the average North Carolina student.

Dis and Data

Carolina's Blue Dolphins will try and avenge one of their two defeats last season when they tackle Navy at Annapolis Saturday....Could it be that the Carolina basketball game with the University of Pennsylvania Saturday is a prelude to resuming gridiron festivities with the Quakers?...Jim Tatum crushed all rumors of going to Navy by getting a juicy five-year contract at Maryland, maybe the old squeeze play...Jim Mallory, former Carolina football and baseball star, now coaching at Burlington HS is supposedly first in line for the head football coaches job at Elon college....Bob Cox, Mr. Extra Point of the football squad, is getting his knee treated in order to get in shape for the coming golf season....Claude Crocker had his arm operated on and hopes to be ready to pitch for the Brooklyn Dodgers come spring.

The Sporting Beauties...

Two Terrific Tilts on Tap Tonight As Coeds Continue Cage Competition

Two more games will mark the continuation of play in the coed basketball tournament being held in the women's gym.

Tonight's schedule pits Kenan against CICA in a 7 o'clock tilt, and defending champs Pi Phi versus Alpha Gam in a 7:15 tussle. Two games originally on the card for tonight will not be played since Archer, who was to oppose Town, and Alderman, slated to meet McIver, have been disqualified because of first-round forfeits. Town and McIver will both receive automatic victories.

Six teams are currently deadlocked for first place in the tourney, all with wins in their lone outings. Those sporting the clean slates are Chi Omega, Tri Delt, Town, Pi Phi, and McIver. By virtue of their forfeit victories, Town and McIver are asured 2-0 records as competition in the second week of play is concluded.

The tournament runs until February 10, and playoffs among the teams tied for the lead will be held after that date.

K. D. Durham, student director of the tournament, has announced that teams will be notified of schedule changes in advance of the original date.

First Extra Session Game Features Play In Mural Basketball

By Larry Fox

The cage courts in Woollen gym and the Tin Can resounded yesterday to the activity of the busiest schedule of the young tournament since last Thursday. A total of 20 contests were staged during the afternoon and evening.

In the top game of the afternoon, BVP 1 cagers captured the first overtime contest of the tourney by edging the Coons in a rough-and-tumble contest, 25-24. The squads were deadlocked 24-all at the end of the regulation period. Doug Cooper dropped in 12 points for the losers while Bill Jordan paced the victors with 10.

Sill High Scorer

Although his team lost its game, Joe Sills, sharpshooting forward from Old East, was high man for the afternoon with 20 markers. The Emanons edged out the Old Easters 38-36.

The jayvee gridders who form the majority of the personnel of the Unknowns racked up the largest total of points, doubling up the score on Graham 2, 46-23. Lou Bledsoe with 13 and Dick Bunting with 10 paced the victors.

Miller hall rolled up the biggest margin of the afternoon, trouncing an Aycock 2 quintet, 35-10. The barracks-dwellers led at the half, 19-6. Forward Harold Taylor of Miller was top scorer, with 14 points.

A complete list of yesterday's cage results appears below.

Mural Announcements

Handball entries must be in this evening by six o'clock, the mural department has announced. Very few organizations have entered teams, but the intramural directors are confident that more five-man units will be entered before the deadline.

The all-campus badminton tourney is drawing near with entries still being accepted. The tourney is not part of the mural program and points will not be awarded for victories. Competition will take place during the Open Houses held during the quarter.

The boxing room at Woollen gym has been crowded the last two days as entrants in the forthcoming boxing tournament worked out under the guidance of Coach Mike Ronman. Sigma Chi and Chi Phi were well represented yesterday with their neophyte sluggers turned out en masse.

Hal Allen the former fraternity, and ex-mural heavyweight champion, was among thise present yesterday. On Tuesday, the defending mural heavyweight champ from Tau Epsilon Phi, Norm "Ace" Galinken worked out.

Frank Levy, late of the soccer team, showed great promise, according to Ronman. Joe Neikirk, who played center for Crowell Little's Tar Babies also did some parring.

The complete cage results:

Beta 2	forfeited over	Sig Ep	1
23	Phi Delta Chi	SAE 2	13

Smith Quits School

Carolina's football stock for the 1948 season took a decided drop yesterday when Bill Smith, rated by many observers as the top Tar Heel lineman, unexpectedly quit school.

The hefty tackle, whose rugged defensive play was responsible in great part for Carolina's fine football season in 1947, left the campus yesterday for his home in Lexington, N. C. He was not available for comment.

Coach Carl Snavely, on learning of his departure, stated, "We are very sorry to hear about it for he'll be a big loss in the line."

The general belief over Chapel Hill was that Smith would play professional football next season. He is supposed to go to Chicago today for a conference with officials of the Chicago Cardinals of the National Football League. The Cleveland Browns are also reported as being interested in Smith.

"Earthquake," as he was known to most football followers, first performed for Carolina in 1944, and returned in 1947 after a stint in the Army. He had two years of eligibility remaining.

Cagers Stage Stiff Practice For Penn Tilt Saturday Night

Coach Tom Scott had his Carolina basketball squad back in Woollen gymnasium yesterday afternoon after a temporary shift to the Tin Can on Tuesday, and the Phantoms got in an afternoon of hard work in preparation for their intersectional contest with Pennsylvania in Philadelphia on Saturday.

The Pennsylvania trip will be the second successive northern tour for Carolina, and Scott's boys are hoping to make this one more successful. Last week NYU and Temple soundly defeated the Phantoms in New York and Philadelphia.

Carolina had a 12-game winning streak before the last trip, and the team hopes to get back on the right track on the scene of those first two defeats. The locals also lost much prestige in the NYU and Temple games, and the Pennsylvania trip will afford the team its last opportunity to prove its merit to northern fans.

Should Be Ready

The Phantoms certainly should be better prepared on this trip than on the preceding. Regular forward Bill Miller was lost to the club on the eve of the New York game, and Coach Scott had no opportunity to work his reserves into a starting position.

Roger Scholbe, Fred Swartzberg, and Coy Carson each were tried at the post, and on occasions John Dillon moved in at center and Nemo Nearman tried forward. However, none of these combinations clicked with the precision that Scott wanted. With the practice this week, a replacement for the post should be eady.

In yesterday's drills Carson looked extremely good at the vacant forward position, and indications are that he will fill this spot against Penn. John Tsantes, Jayvee leader, also has looked good when he worked out with the varsity.

Must Stop Lyon

If Carolina is to snap its two-game losing streak on Saturday, Scott will have to find a way to stop big Herb Lyon, 6-4 center for Pennsylvania. Lyon set a new Penn scoring mark this year when he hit 30 points against Gettysburg recently.

Other starters for Coach P. M. Kellett's Quakers are Harvey Wettlaufer and Phil Harman, forwards, and Greed Heindel and Stan Hovak, guards.

The game will not affect Carolina's Southern conference lead. The Phantoms have five loop wins without loss and lead State College, which has three wins in an equal number of games. Scott's outfit will swing back into conference competition next week.

Virginia Tech plays here on Monday and Davidson will perform in Woollen on Saturday.

The big news in the conference this week was State College's acquisition of a court on which to play its games. The Wolfpack officials obtained permission to play the games in Raleigh's Memorial Auditorium, the former site of the Southern conference tourney. Previously city officials in Raleigh had condemned State's Frank Thompson gymnasium.

Mat Squad Preps For State Match Tomorrow Night

The Tar Heel mat squad, depleted in number but not in spirit, went through a lengthy workout yesterday in preparation for their second meet of the season tomorrow night with State college in Woollen gym.

The grapplers, plagued with a string of ineligibility rulings, was less one more number yesterday as Collier Cobb was definitely uled ineligible as a result of his past scholastic record. However, things looked brighter for Irv Zirpel, who was ruled ineligible ome time ago. Coach Chuck Quinlan, team captain Bill Kemp, and Zirpel have been investigating the possibility of having the ruling reversed.

Oscar Gupton, who put on one of the best performances of the night in the VPI contest, is a definite starter in the 165-pound division tomorrow evening. Phil and Bill Kemp, both of whom won their initial tests of the season last week, are scheduled to open in the 145 and 175 pound classes. Tom Urquhart is another sure starter at the 136 post.

The coming match with State will feature 15 bouts, eight regular and seven exhibition bouts. The program will get under way at approximately 6:45.

Jayvees Travel Away From Home For Return Contest Against PJC

Coach Jim "Pappy" Hamilton takes his family of Jayvee cagers back on the road tonight to Maxton where the local lads will do dubious battle with Presbyterian Junior college of that locale.

The Hamiltonians are in search of their eleventh win of the cage campaign on the outing, having suffered but one loss thus far this season.

The Jayvees are favored to drag home the bacon since they defeated the Presbyterian lads on the local floor early in the year by the astronomical figure of 77-22.

Eleven to Go

Hamilton will carry his usual squad with eleven cagers to make the trip. The Jayvee mentor is expected to start Bud Wilkerson and Pete Peters at the forward slots, putting big Sandy Hoft at the center position, with Charlie Thorne and Bill Harrington rounding out the starting five.

Handling the relief work for the Tar Heels will be Lebed, Morrison, Goodman, Terrell, Holmes, and Powers, all of whom have seen plenty of action this year and can be counted on as seasoned replacements.

Not making the trip with their big brothers are five freshman stars who have played a lot of basketball with the Jayvees so far this season. The Freshmen have two tough encounters this weekend and Hamilton is taking no chances on the possibility of a sluggish showing as the result of a tough road trip.

Tough Weekend

The Freshmen tackle formidable Newport News high school here Friday night in what might be their major test of the season. The next evening the frosh again put their unbeaten slate on the line against potent High Point high school of the furniture city. Both of these teams average six feet in height, which means the locals must be at the backboard best to emerge unscratched.

John Tsantes, who got a try-out with the varsity squad early in the week, may be back in his old shooting grounds at least for the weekend encounters. From the looks of things he will probably shuttle back and forth between the two squads for the remainder of the season.

Mermen in Pre-Meet Time Trials, Leave For Navy Tomorrow

With only three days remaining till the long-awaited Battle of Chesapeake Bay with Navy on Saturday, Coach Dick Jamerson staged his usual pre-meet time trials yesterday afternoon in Bowman Gray Pool and, after the last Dolphins had gone through his paces, the Carolina mentor disclosed that he thought that the times turned in were pretty good.

Yesterday's performances were still military secrets at press time, since Jamerson refused to divulge them but he did comment, "If the boys continue to improve, we might have a chance."

14-Man Squad

The 14-man squad that is selected to make the trip will leave for Annapolis tomorrow.

Jamerson and his assistant. Ralph Casey, did, however, single out the work of several of the Blue and White mermen. Norm Sper was again the standout in the field of 100-yard backstrokers while in the sprints Hal Ingram, Steve Osborne, and Floyd Drew crawled away with the honors. Bob Ousley and Dan Breeden were the 100 yard breaststroke luminaries and Bob Hutton paced the 220-yard marathoners.

Staunchly standing in the background but always ready with a towel or drink of water thus this year has been Dolphin manager Jack Sharpe. According to Coach Jamerson, this hard working but unsung hustler is "rapidly approaching his mid-season form."

IT ISN'T often that a Blue Dolphin tank squad coached by DICK JAMERSON, above, is on the short end of the score. He'll be out to avenge one such loss this weekend when his tankmen seek to avenge a Navy win over last year's Carolina swimming team.

NYU Gains 12th In Final Minutes

New York, Jan. 21—(UP)—The all-conquoring New York University cagers, 63-34 winners over North Carolina last week for their 11th straight victory, barely managed to increase their streak to 12 here last night.

The Violets were forced to come from behind in the final three minutes to nip Colgate, 64-59, after the Red Raiders had led for the first 37 minutes of play. NYU made three baskets during the late surge to keep their victory string intact.

Colgate was forced to play most of the second half minus the services of Ernie Vandeweghe, the Raiders' star point-maker. He fouled out with 15 minutes left to play.

Five Track Stars Depart Today For Phuaaelphia Inquirer Meet

Five Carolina trackmen will depart from Chapel Hill this morning for Philadelphia where they will take part in the Inquirer track meet tomorrow evening.

In the group are the distance duo Jimmy Miller and Jack Milne, hurdler Bob Morrow, middle distance star Bob Black, and high-jumper Jack Moody. They will stop over at the University of Maryland in College Park this evening, and continue on to the Quaker City tomorrow.

All five face stiff competition in their respective specialties in this meet, one of the most important on the indoor circuit. Milne and Miller, in different events, will both face some of the top distance competition in the nation. NCAA cross-country king Milne will race in the one-mile affair against such name runners as Bill Hulse, Jerry Karver, Les MacMitchell, and Browning Ross. The two-mile will have Forest Efaw and Curt Stone as well as Miller.

Black's chief opponent in the 100-yard field is Reggie Pearman, from NYU. Harrison Dillard, Baldwin Wallace's timber-topping titleholder, is a heavy favorite to leave Morrow and assorted other hurdlers far behind in a 50-yard test. And in the high jump, Moody is expected to encounter such stars as Columbia's Bill Vessie, NYU's Irv Mondschein, and John Vislocky.

After the Philadelphia meet, Milne will move on to Boston right after the meet to appear in the Leo Larrive two-mile run in that city's Knights of Columbus meet Saturday night.

Marshall Plan, Petrillo, Budget Headline News from Washington

By Joan Marble

United Press Radio Correspondent

Two cabinet officers told Congress today that the Marshall Plan won't seriously hurt America's domestic economy.

The cabinet men who made these statements are the two who are closest to the nation's business, Treasury Secretary Snyder and Commerce Secretary Harriman. Both testified before the House Foreign Affairs committee.

Snyder said he is pretty sure the recovery plan can go through without serious impact on this country's economy.

The plump little cabinet officer admitted the program could have an effect on prices. But he added that the effect need not be serious. As Snyder put it:

"It would be nothing comparable to what will happen if we don't carry out this program."

Secretary Harriman told the committee the United States already has passed its export peak—and that exports probably will drop even if the recovery plan is enacted.

Thus, explained Harriman, inflationary pressures brought on by exports should drop too.

The Commerce Secretary agreed there will continue to be some shortages which may tend to raise prices. But he maintained that these shortages will not be dominant in the months to come.

While the House group studied the economic aspects of the Marshall plan, the Senate Foreign Relations committee pondered on the effect it will have in Europe.

"Red Fascism"

Spokesman for the American Legion and the Veterans of Foreign Wars urged passage of the bill. They said it would block the spread of what they called the "Red Fascism", and would insure America against a Russian atom bomb attack.

But some words of warning came today from Democratic Senator Walter George—a warning that America must not pass the plan simply through "hate" of Russia.

Said George:

"Americans are not so constructed that they can hate any one power for four years without being at war with it."

Petrillo

A little man with a wavy musician's haircut went up to Capital Hill today to ask Congress for a law to protect all musicians.

The little man was James Caesar Petrillo—head of the American Federation of Musicians—the man who imposed a nationwide ban on all musical records because he claimed they were putting his musicians out of work.

Today, the union boss told the House Labor committee he'd be happy to call off the ban so Americans could buy new records for home use. But he said he'd only do this if Congress would pass a law preventing the use of records by juke box companies and disk jockeys.

"We don't want to break anybody," he announced. "But we don't want to go broke either. Why don't you help us?"

Petrillo said he imposed the record ban only so the musicians case could be brought to the attention of the public. He argued that the ban was unsound, but he maintained stoutly that his musicians are behind the ban. And he offered to take a secret poll of all 225-thousand members to prove it. Committee Chairman Hartley offered to cooperate in the poll.

"We'll poll everyone who ever made a record," Hartley said.

Petrillo agreed, but with one reservation.

"The dead ones," he said, "we can't dig up."

Nine Cameras

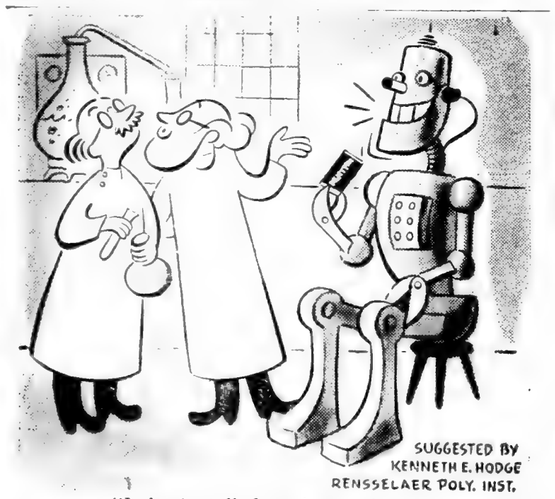
Nine newsreel and television cameras ground away as Petrillo bounced through his testimony. "Bounced" is the right word—he was on his feet almost as much as he was in the witness stand. And he got plenty of laughs from the capacity audience.

One committee member quoted from a speech by President Truman, and asked Petrillo if he wanted to contradict it.

The white-haired little union boss shook his head.

"I won't contradict the President," he snapped. "After all he's a potential member of my union. He's a piano player."

Budget



Republican leaders have ordered the joint congressional budget committee to agree quickly on how much to cut President Truman's budget.

House Speaker Joe Martin won't estimate how much the cut will be. Chairman Knutson of the House Ways and Means committee says three billion.

UNC Will Submit Health Research Aid Nominations

The University has been invited to corporate with the United States Public Health Service in the selection of persons who may be considered for appointment to research fellowships, W. W. Pierson, dean of the graduate school, announced yesterday.

A local committee will examine applications of local students and make recommendations to the Division of Research Grants and Fellowships of the National Institute of Health.

Four Types

Four types of fellowship awards have been establish with funds set up by the Federal government. Four types of fellowships are available.

(1) A predoctorate research fellowship at the bachelor level available to applicants who have a bachelor's degree. It carries a stipend of $1,200 for appointees without dependents and $1,600 per annum for those with dependents.

(2) A predoctorate fellowship at the master's degree level carrying a stipend of $1,600 and $2,000.

(3) A predoctorate fellowship for appointees holding a doctor's degree (M. D. or Ph. D.) and carrying a stipend of $3,000 and $3,600 per annum.

Special Fellowships

(4) Special research fellowships for those who can qualify for the postdoctorate appointments and for those who posses specialized training in certain problems which the Institute may need. The stipend for appointment is determined according to the individual case.

To be a successful appointee a student must show evidence of having been admitted to an acceptable institution. The first two groups may be held by students who are candidates for degrees and these appointments carry tuition charges in addition to the fellowship stipend. The first three are renewable.

Not Limited

These fellowships are open for application to men and women who have a special interest in subjects related to health. They are not limited to the medical sciences.

Persons are eligible for consideration who have had training in such fields as Botany, Zoology, Chemistry, Physics, the Medical Sciences, Public Health, and Psychology.

Appointments are made four times a year at three month intervals. Applicants for the next group of appointments should submit their applications on or before February 24, 1948. Other deadlines are May 25, August 31, and November 30.

Students interested are advised to confer with the local committee as to eligibility. The committee is composed of Dr. R. E. Coker, chairman, Dr. R. W. Bost, Dr. John F. Dashiell, Dr. John H. Ferguson and Dean E. G. McGavran.

Appointees may study at any acceptable institution where-in they can secure admission. Application forms may be obtained at the graduate office or through the chairman of the committee.

the United Nations charter this country could still administer the Canal and secure two additional advantages: (1) the expense of administering the Canal would be shifted to the United Nations, and (2) as trustee of the Canal Zone it would be possible for the United States to convince the Security Council of the UN that the military bases recently evacuated at the request of the Panama government were necessary for the defense of the Canal.

The opposition blc continually stressed the weakness of the UN. Rep. Herman Sieber stated that the United States should not consider surrendering control of the canal until the UN becomes strong enough to administer it effectively.

Never Questioned

Other representatives maintained that United States control of the Canal Zone had never been questioned and as principal users of the waterway, it would not be sensible for the United States to give up a project in which it had so heavily invested. Pointing out that the United States would be force to bear the major expense of administering the canal even under U.N. control and the danger of giving up a waterway which is vital to the American defense system, opposing representatives finally succeeded in defeating the bill.

Speaker Chester D. zum Brunnen announced that members of the assembly will take a test on parlimentary procedure and the history of the Phi. Classes on parlimentary procedure will be conducted this afternoon at 4 o'clock by Pete Gerns and Ernie House for all members.

The next meeting of the assembly has been postponed so that members may hear Carroll Reece who will speak on the campus Tuesday night.

No War With Russia Soon Roberts Tells State Press

By Herb Nachman

One of the Fourth Estate's top foreign affairs analysts, J. M. Roberts, Jr., of the Associated Press, last night told the first session of the annual North Carolina Press association institute that "there is no danger of an immediate war with Russia."

To this statement, Roberts added a foreboding note, "But for the sake of our way of life and even of our personal security, the 'cold' battles now being waged on the world's economic and political fronts may in the long run prove just as vital as were those of Midway and Normandy."

Roberts was principal speaker at last night's opening session in Gerrard Hall of the 23 annual newspaper institute sponsored by the University and Duke in cooperation with the NCPA.

William D. Carmichael, Jr., University controller, welcomed the newsmen and R. W. Madry, director of the University news bureau, introduced Roberts.

Before launching into his talk on power politics of the world and what he "hopes are temporary things," Roberts gave a brief "shop talk" on how international news is collected for publication in this country.

Preliminary to his talk, Roberts told a reporter that he was greatly impressed with the many changes that have been made in the University campus since he was enrolled here in 1923.

He also emphasized that he was impressed by the number of students, mostly those enrolled in graduate work, that have approached him concerning international affairs.

Roberts said, "When I went to school, the group on campus that never got any attention was usually the one that was interested in international affairs. The interest in foreign affairs then was nothing compared to what it is today."

Today's program of the institute will open with a breakfast meeting of the executive committee and will be followed with group meetings of the associated dailies and weeklies.

J. M. ROBERTS

The University will act as host at a luncheon at the Carolina Inn this afternoon, Chancellor R. B. House will preside. P. T. Hines, Greensboro vice-president of the NCPS, will give a short talk, after which a variety program of entertainment will be presented by students.

Wallace Boosters To Meet Tonight

"Why I support Wallace" will be the subject discussed in tonight's meeting of the Wallace-for-President club, Bill Richardson, chairman of the organization announced today.

The meeting will be held at 7 o'clock in Roland Parker Lounge. Speakers will be Sandra Saunders, Doris Friedland and David Martin.

Members of the publicity committee are preparing to distribute Wallace's announcement of candidacy in the near future. Richardson announced that the organization is going ahead with its plan to contact other student groups throughout the state that are supporting Wallace.

All interested students, members of the facutly and townspeople are cordially invited to attend the meeting tonight.

State Natives Show Increase At University

By Raney Stanford

The percentage of North Carolina residents attending the University this quarter has increased 2 per cent over the ratio for the fall session, according to statisctics on student enrollment released by Chancellor House yesterday.

State residents currently comprise 77 per cent of the total enrollment of 7,316, while last quarter the Tar Heels here were only 75 per cent of the larger enrollment of 7,670.

Actual Total

The 7,316 total of winter quarter students on which these figures were computed by Central Records office workers include 200 students who pre-registered and then did not return following Christmas, so that actual enrollment today stands at 7,116.

Breakdown of the enrollment decrease shows that of the 354 less students registering this quarter, who either withdrew from school or graduated, 253 were men and women ex-members of the armed services.

General College Decrease

Most of the decrease is found in the General College, which has a total of 2,230 as compared with last quarter's 3,222. The college of Arts and Sciences dropped only 18, and the school of Commerce lost 50 students.

Graduate school figures this quarter show 886 students here already possess at least one degree, with 43 of them doing post-graduate work in social fields and 72 enrolled in the school of Public Health.

Professional Schools

Other compilation of registration for the professional schools gives the law school 285 students, the Medical school 97, the school of Library Science 30, the school of Pharmacy 219, and the school of Public Health 123, including their graduate students.

And there is one less student at the University this session from foreign shores than there was during the first, but addition of the homelands of the 52 currently present show that there are now three less countries represented.

Senate Vote Defeats Voluntary Mag Basis

By John Stump

A measure to put both of the campus magazines on a subscription basis was defeated Wednesday night in the Dialectic senate by a close 15-12 count.

The Senators' vote followed a spirited discussion of the measure which was put before the body by Di ways and means committee chairman John Zucker. Although it was in agreement with the sentiments of a majority of those present, the verdict of the Senate members was less decisive than the 26-13 vote recorded against the bill by the entire assembly.

Asks Consideration

In introducing the bill, Zucker reminded the Senators of its importance at the present time and asked that in considering it they put its merits above "personal feelings or pre-conceived prejudices."

He explained that, in his opinion, although the magazines were not up to par, it was the fault neither of the staff, or of the student body but of the setup. Thus, supporting the reasons for the bill's introduction, he pointed out that, under it, the magazines would be supported by appropriation only in proportion to the money they could raise on the news-stands.

He claimed that this would result in magazines which would contain what the students want, not what the magazines wanted to give them.

Hodgson Speaks

"Tookie" Hodgson, the editor of Tarnation who was afforded the privilege of the floor, supported Zucker's view by informing the assembly that voluntary subscriptions had been the basis of successful magazines at Minnesota and elsewhere. In answer to a question from the floor, Hodgson stated that the price of Tarnation under such a plan would probably be about 15 cents per copy and that more than four

Bill Sets Referendum For February 17; President Asks Constitutional Changes

By Chuck Hauser

Following President Tom Eller's well-delivered and well-received "State of the Campus" message to the Student Legislature last night, the much-discussed magazine referendum bill passed the body without a word of discussion or a dissenting vote, to the surprise of many legislators and almost all of the number of visitors present at the session.

The bill provides for a general referendum on February 17 with six choises for the student body: 1. Carolina Magazine, 2. Tarnation, 3. Both Carolina Magazine and Tarnation as at present, 4. One combined humor and literary magazine, 5. Alternating issues of Carolina Magazine and Tarnation, 6. No magazine.

48-49 Budget

Article 2 of the bill provides that the election results will be binding on the Student Legislature when the 1948-49 budget is adopted.

In his "State of the Campus" message which was delivered before the Legislature went into its regular routine of business, Tom Eller began by discussing the advances made in the past academic year by Graham Memorial, The Daily Tar Heel, The Yackety Yack, and debating activities on the campus.

Speaking on the executive branch of student government, Eller said "We have conducted a poll on student evaluation of instruction, succeeded in seating students along the fifty-yard line at football games, and had held immeasurable and successful (many were unsuccessful) conferences with the administration on student problems."

TOM ELLER

Stressed Work

Eller continued, stressing the honor and campus codes, orientation program, and the work done by the Student Audit board, the Budget committee and the Finance committee of the Legislature.

Speaking of the Honor and Student councils, Eller stated that the Student council should have appellate cases from the lower council within 48 hours of their decisions "to free its members from the lobbying of persons interested in the case at hand."

The student body president proposed a constitutional amendment "which abolishes the appellate jurisdiction of the Student

South Will Face Negligence Count At Coed Meeting

The South as a region will be put on trial on a charge of negligence at Monday afternoon's coed get-together at 5 o'clock in the main lounge of Graham Memorial. Sponsored by the YWCA for all coeds, these affairs are held monthly and are the only opportunity for women students to meet together as a group.

Presiding Judge

Presiding justice of the court in which the trial is to take place will be Jo Fishel, chairman of the Public Affairs committee of the Y, which is presenting the program. Mary Anne Daniel, secretary of the committee, will act as marshall.

Presenting the case for the state will be Prosecuting Attorney Edie Knight, and Pat Carruthers will act as attorney for the defense. Witnesses will be members of the committee, who during the past quarter have done extensive research on the social, political, and economic issues relating to the South.

Coed Jury

The jury will be composed of coeds attending the meeting, who will be resolved into a committee of the whole, with Ruth Evans, Y president, as foreman.

Members of the committee acting as witnesses will be Pat McNutt on education; Barbara Dalton, political demagogues; Jean McKeithan, housing; Ann Wells, fascist tendencies; and Mary Anne Daniel, economics.

Mag Improvement Program Planned

That changes are imminent in the literary policy of the Carolina magazine was revealed for the first time by mag literary editor, Bill Sessions in the course of the Di senate debate held Wednesday night.

Sessions told the Di that the mag realizes that it is not perfect at the present time. To illustrate what is being done about it, he read to them a five point program which the mag hopes to affect in the near future.

His first point was that the literary staff will be selected from students with a diversity of interests so that such interests may all be represented in the material published by the magazine. Each of the staff members, he told the Di, will be instructed to be continually on the lookout for better writers whose addition to the staff might improve its quality.

He emphasized this point, and added that if necessary a door to door canvass for talent would be carried on. All material handed in, he maintained, will be analyzed and criticised by the literary board of the magazine and by interested members of the faculty.

More poetry "of a high literary calibre and popular appeal" will be used in the future, he stated. And finally, he revealed that the mag has under consideration a plan under which literary reviews would be made by the Chapel Hill "colony" of writers.

Explaining that all of the improvements mentioned cannot be made in a day, he said that some of the policies will not be put into effect immediately, but they represent ideals which the staff and editors of the publication will attempt to achieve.

Some of the senators present questioned the feasibility of having professional writers included in a student publication, but Sessions assured them that such contributions would not be generally used.

The talented trio of entertainers shown in the photos above are but two of the six headline acts scheduled for this evening's Graham Memorial Rendezvous floor show. Under the direction of Clarence Barbour, the program will hit the boards at 9:30 sharp and run for about thirty minutes.

One of the feature attractions this evening will be the dance team duo of director Barbour and petite Nita Sanders, both of whom are shown above, (left), in one of their adagio routines. The pair appeared last Friday night with an act illustrating the teaching and learning of Adagio dancing.

Dick Katzin, (right), is no newcomer either to the Carolina entertainment field, or to the national scene. A fourth-year student from Winston-Salem, Katzin has appeared on national and local radio shows, singing Latin folk and popular tunes, while accompanying himself on the guitar.

Others on the evening's entertainment slate are the three-man acrobat team composed of Bob Hurley, Dallas Byerly, and "Razz" Berry; "Skip" Mann in a piano-blackface routine; and tenor singer Robert Barbour. A three-piece musical combo will play for dancing.

Roberts Gives Facts About Wolfe's Teacher

By Donald MacDonald

The people of Chapel Hill knew Thomas Wolfe as a student and a playwright, but J. M. Roberts, Jr., who spoke last night at the Press Institute opening, first remembers the great American novelist as a boy in grammar school.

Roberts knew him quite well, for Wolfe was a student under Roberts' father and mother, who founded the North State preparatory school in Asheville in 1910. It was Roberts' father who first realized the author's immense capabilities as a student. He had said of Wolfe as a child, "I want to have him over at this school regardless of whether or not his family can pay anything."

His own first impression of the writer was "of a big talker, who always entered into school debating contests as a kid." The North State school included both grammar and high school grades.

"When Tom wrote a rather critical picture of my father," Roberts said, "my father wasn't put out, but my mother was. She had always been interested in Tom's creative talents, and she more or less took him to raise. I had a hard time convincing her, after "Look Homeward, Angel!" was published, that when a man is doing a cross between a real character and some person that is created, he distorts the character for his own use in order to create the picture he wants. Tom used the actual mannerisms of my father, and some fictitious ones.

"Mother didn't see Tom for several years. Finally, Tom came down to Charlotte to see me. He was upset about the book and over the reaction of the people in Asheville. It was then he told me he planned to write a book called "Never Go Home Again". The title, of course, was changed."

Of his mother's influence upon Wolfe's writings, Roberts said that she was quite an authority on Elizabethan literature. She pounded so much of it into Wolfe that he later said it caused him to write nothing briefly, or in any other than an Elizabethan style. Mrs. Roberts died last May, reconciled and pleased with the greatness of her protege.

Roberts was not a classmate of Wolfe's here because he entered the University in 1922, two years after the author's graduation. But he was with Wolfe again in New York.

"One of the best descriptive pieces," he continued, "that Tom ever wrote was of a lynching that occurred about 40 years ago in Asheville. One night in New York he came around to my room and wanted to pick up what I knew about the incident. We went to a restaurant off Times Square, and stayed there all night while Tom wrote the skeleton of the story on paper napkins. It was the only piece of his ever published in a popular magazine. The "Saturday Evening Post" used it, but by that time he had been recognized as a writer. He was tickled to death because he had been criticized for being so abstract, so non-creative."

Charlotte Club Will Discuss Spring Dance

The Charlotte Carolina club will meet Monday night at 7:30 in Gerrard hall to decide if the club is to have a dance in Charlotte during the spring holidays.

At this time a new dance committee chairman will be elected to replace Irwin Belk who graduated in December. Other officers of the club are: president, Monroe Landreth; vice-president, Joe Kumpe; secretary, Lillian DeArmon; treasurer, Lem Whitsett.

At this meeting reports covering the dance which was held in Charlotte, December 30 will be given.

All students from Charlotte who registered this quarter in addition to the old students are requested to be present.

Engine 137 Years Old To Run Again

CHICAGO (UP)—One of the nation's oldest locomotives is going to roll again.

The Pioneer, a 10-ton woodburner built 137 years ago, is undergoing a general overhauling. It will then be a center of interest at the Chicago and Northwestern Railroad's celebration of the 100th anniversary of railroading in Chicago.

The old engine was shipped to Chicago in 1848 by boat after several years' service in the east.

The railroad plans to build replicas of one coach and the pioneer's tender, wooden cow catcher and all, for the celebration.

The Best Man for the Job

One of the more bitterly-contested offices, the editorship of the Daily Tar Heel, will draw little attention when the voters go to the polls in April; and it is all for the best.

All three of the political parties on campus agreed that Ed Joyner is the most capable man for the job next year and so they nominated him at their meeting Tuesday; then on Wednesday the DTH staff members corroborated the stand of the three parties and added their voice of approval by endorsing Joyner without a single dissenting vote.

In past elections, a prospectve candidate for the editorship of this publication has felt that he would have to be endebted to the party during his tenure if he accepted their nomination. Next year, since all three parties endorsed Joyner, he will not have party devotion hanging over his head. All three of the Party Chairman realized the importance of having an impartial daily publication which will be respected by the readers as being free from coercion, prejudices and favoritism.

On several occasions recently there have been movements to deliver the office of editor of the DTH from the hands of the voters since they have been known to elect the politician and not the most capable man. The movement has been squelched each time because it did not muster enough popularity to bring about constitutional revision.

We are a staunch advocate of removing the editorship from a campus election. We would have the editor selected by meeting certain qualifications, winning the staff approval ,and appointment by the Publication Board. This cannot be done under the present constitution. The three political parties did the next best thing. They found out who the staff wanted for the job; they reviewed his qualifications and insured him of the office for 1948-49.

Who's Who Not Worth Time or Expense

Recently the University rejected the offer to poin "Who's Who Among Students in American Universitites and Colleges." We believe that this was a wise decision on the part of those who realized that there is little to be gained for the University in takng part in the annual contest which means nothing more to a student than having his college achievements written down in a yearbook with hundreds of other students, and a key to wear on a chain filled with other keys. We do not believe that it is worth the time or expense to select this handful of students.

One of the objections that Dean Mackie and the committee who considered joining with the other colleges which hold membership in "Who's Who" is that few of the larger universities in the nation are members of the organization. Most of the member of the group are the smaller colleges which have little trouble in narrowing down their field of outstanding student leaders, but when you get down to the task of picking out 30 or more you would be selecting students who are leaders in organizations of equal rank and merit. Since the number is limited you would have to leave out students who are equally outstanding.

The student whose name appears in "Who's Who" at other colleges will purchase a copy of the annual. The persons selected members are not obligated to purchase the quite expensive annuals and keys, but most students would feel that it is their duty to purchase them because it is an honorary position and they are representing the University.

We believe that it is a much greater honor for a student to have his achievements recorded in the Yackety Yack, an annual which will be a keepsake of the students who knew him when, rather than placing his name in a book which will be reviewed by only those persons who do not know him from Hogan's goat. And the "Who's Who" students do not have to pay to get their achievements recorded in the Yack.

Campus Forum

A Freshman Talks Politics

By Pete Gerns

In order to acquaint the student body with campaign promises made and held by the campus' political parties, we had hoped to include in this column a statement from the chairman of UP, SP, and CP and remarks on what had been accomplished since they had put their platforms before the student body last spring. Statements of their respective promises will be printed in next week's column as completion of today's Forum.

Today we offer this comment on the political situation by Fred Thompson.

"In order to answer a question on whether political parties have kept their campaign promises, one must know: what promises have been made by any of the campus political parties? To my knowledge neither of the three has made any promises this school year. I am just a freshman so I do not know what has happened in relation to this question in years past.

"An individual or a party does not have to do a "darn" thing after getting in office if he or it has not promised to do anything. If an individual or party would make campaign promises and have platforms, the students who vote would have something more than personalities to consider when voting. After making promises and being elected one or a group would be compelled by honor (that is if we have any honest politicians on the campus and I believe we do) to try to carry these promises out. Therefore, I think that the political situation at Carolina would be healthier if the individuals running for office would have platforms and would make promises and keep them."

This column is undertaking in cooperation with "Mademoiselle", a campus poll on "What kind of girl the male collegian wants to marry." Mimeographed sheets will be distributed at the YMCA and Graham Memorial in order that a representative poll can be taken over the weekend.

The following specific questions will be asked: Physical features (blond, brunette, height etc.)? Should she be a college or high school graduate? Should she have majored in home economics or family? What extra-curricular activities should she have participated in during her college career? And should she be the strictly home-type or be able to be a companion to her husband in his business? Results of this poll will be made known in this column next Tuesday.

Husband Knows Best

BOSTON (UP)—Mrs. Veronica Dengel, voted one of the nation's 10 best-dressed women, told a Boston audience that a husband's judgement on his wife's clothing is usually best. "He is more objective than women friends," she explained. "They may tell you that your new hat loks terrible then hike off and buy one just like it for themselves."

Political Spotlight

How About Our Court System?

By Charlie Long

One of the fastest political moves to hit the Carolina political scene in a long time was the three way endorsement of Ed Joyner for DTH editor. On Wednesday afternoon the staff met and made its pick for the coming year. Before press time that night all three parties had concurred and the fight was over.

The true story behind the triple endorsement makes very interesting reading. First of all Joyner stood head and shoulders above anyone on the staff, according to most of the same and secondly, the political parties. Looking back at last year, they realized that the staff endorsement means more than they would like for it to mean. About a week ago, when the political moguls finally saw that unless Joyner was nominated they would be condemned to a knock down drag out fight for the editorship with mediocre candidates running, the pressure was thrown on Joyner and he responded nobly to the call of the people. Whatever comes, the president of political parties recognizing the staff choice for editor is set and so far as this column can see, it is about the best thing they have done for the students in a long time.

Political Predictions

Before long Art Melton, defeated Yack editor candidate of last fall's election, will officially declare for the DTH editorship.

Wednesday's Tar Heel carried the story that Jess Dedmond had resigned from the C P chairmanship to do other things. Other things might mean that Dedmond is engaged in a tooth and toe nail fight to the finish against the nomination for Student Body prexy, while keeping one ear out the window listening for the call of the "people". Can't agree with Columnist Giduz that the U P will double endorse Dedmond. The political spotlight's info. says that the U P wouldn't touch Dedmond with a ten-foot pole for the C P courting of the U P in the Legislature.

Prediction number three is that the U P is hanging the presidential star over the DeKE house this year. There will be more on this later.

Judicial Review

Kept strictly quiet but, very important to every student on the campus is the question of our judicial setup. What courts do we have and what do they do is right now the sixty-four dollar question on anyone's program.

For the past six months each court has been busily abdicating their power to someone else 'til the court room looks like King Michael's palace. If anyone has ever heard of the student Constitution they surely don't act like it. The sorest spot was created when the Student Council conferred judicial powers on the Interfraternity council. The statement of the Council was that the I. F. C. had always tried infractions of visiting rules in frat houses and they could go right on trying them. The Constitution states, in no uncertain terms, that the judicial power in honor cases of this type would be under the jurisdiction of the Men's council. Strangely enough coed violators are sent to the Women's council, while the men are responsible to their fraternity which is in turn is responsible to the I F C. Proponents of this system say that it works best. With that we do not quibble but, we do maintain that it is unconstitutional for all the rulings of the Student council and should be stopped until the Constitution is changed.

Number two on our hit parade is the question of the appellate powers of the Student council. Last spring the student body went to the polls and voted to keep the appellate power in the S C and at the same time they elected Tom Eller to the presidency.

Interestingly enough Mr. Eller stood squarely for the appellate power until he got into office and since that time he has bent his many talents to find someway to get rid of the appellate power. Who said that consistancy was a virture? The main reason given against appellate power is that the Men's council doesn't like to have its decisions reversed by a higher court. Tell me what court does like to be reversed. Cut it, or slice it, your columnist thinks that the student body deserves to at least know just where they stand and where its officers stand. I am just fool enough to think that when the students say they want something they mean that they want it.

Just Here

Student Counsellor Needed

By Larry Berry

Everyone knows that in our generation high schools are coming more and more to be preparatory schools for college. Yet I believe I am safe in saying that very few freshmen bring much knowledge of the work expected of them in college when they enter. This situation is due to many misunderstandings in our communities about the respective place of the high school and the college in our culture. The student who enters Carolina from a high school which does not prepare its students for further schooling, but for a job when they are graduated, is at a decided disadvantage when put in classes with a boy from a progressive high school or prep school who has been briefed for college. Much is still left, however, for the individual himself to probe into and reconcile himself with if he is to receive the benefits of his education. Many persons graduate and make an end of their formal schooling without fiinding themselves and their place in the general scheme. A large group flunk out and wonder why. The University seems to be notorious for the dearth of publicity it sends out to its prospective new students. Even with this fault of omission, our enrollment overflows, and the students continue to become discouraged early in their college careers.

I believe that in this time of public relations men in industries, we could do well to have some type counsellor for students in the General College, . . .a psychologist of a sort whose job would be the informal one of helping the student to realize what was being offered him. The deficiences of the faculty advisor system are obvious.

In our collegiate combination of the "Guildhall" and the poor scholar, we have omitted the links of the tradesman that the apprentice worked under, or the teacher that the scholar studied under. The undecided freshman soon becomes the frustrated graduate, wondering what the score is.

After the victim arrives, the school assumes some responsibility for his education, and then our problem manifests itself. Most of our enrollees are in much the same spot as Uncle Sam's draftees; they don't know where they are or where they are going. As to whether their education comes via Ye Olde Beer Mug or The Books depends to some extent on the attitude they feel the University has toward them. At present, this attitude is not convincing as to their concern for his welfare, so what say, South Building? Do you think our freshman could stand a more vivid interpretation of your purpose?

Bernstein Affair

By Bill Robertson

It has been mentioned before that one of the weakest aspects of our struggle against the fascists in World War II lay in the fact that we ourselves fell victims to the ideas of fascism—particularly in connection with the racial question. The main ideological weapon of our enemies was the master-race theory and the pro-political and religious prejudices associated with it.

For some time now it has

On Professors

By Tookie Hodgson

A lot of people will tell you that professors are not human. What a foolish thing to say! Statistics plainly show that the average professor begets more children than the average U. S. senator or the average tree surgeon. To be more specifis, the average professor has 2.7 children. (The .7 child usually grows up to be a professor himself). Now, this is a lot less than the 300,000 odd offspring of the silver perch, but after all, you can't expect anything like that to happen on dry land, and then too, there are a number of marked differences between silver perch and professors.

The duties of a professor are quite simple. All that he has to do is thoroughly confuse evident facts until it takes four years before one knows what one knew when one started school four years before, if you get what I mean and I don't think you do. (If it takes seven years for one to become unconfused about what one already knew, then one receives a PhD degree, and henceforward may do a bit of confusing on one's own.)

Of all the various types of professors, the most famous are the absent-minded ones. Absent-minded professors usually wear mismatched socks without garers. They also lose their umbrellas, and quite often, they wink at pretty coeds, mistaking them for their wives. (Professors' wives are not happy about this. I don't have any data on pretty coeds.)

Professors like to tell dry jokes (There is a subtle difference here between "dry" and "dehydrated"). Students who sit at the front of the class laugh the hardest and receive A's; students who sit on the back row and don't laugh at all, usually flunk the course. I sit mid-way and titter, thus receiving the gentleman's grade of C plus. This is all I have to say about professors.

The Brassy Taste

Politicians and Humorists

By Bob Sain

With the entry of good friend Joyner Triply into the ranks of DTH politics, we heave a sigh of relief. Mr. Tripley had held out 'till the last moment, vowing he would not be a candidate for the editorship of the Daily Tar Heel. Matter-of-fact he wasn't a candidate. His only status in the upcoming election will be that of nominee. No competition, of course, but we mustn't underestimate the perennial candidate Art Melton... Or must we?...

Thanks to the powers that be for organizing the jam sessions in the Rendezvous. Last quarter I heard some fair-to-middlin' jazz there, but it suffered because the musicians were not accustomed to each other and because anyone carrying a horn could get up on the bandstand and ruin the entire thing. Now it has been turned into an effective sort of jazz concert thing with prepicked combos playing the rightous stuff... Clarence Barbour's emceeing in the same joint nighttimes is worth checking...

But try as they may GMasters will never be able to provide a show as entertaining as that I witnessed at the Di Senate Wednesday night. Star performer was "Senator" Gran Childress who was smart enough to realize that all this tradition and dignity business connected with the Di was a lot of bushwah. He gave us the word on his idea of tradition so we know what we're talking about. "Senator" Childress gagged "I've been walking around in this tradition up to my ankles for a long time and I call the Davie Poplar the Davie Poplar even though its actually Jones' Tulip Tree or something. Tradition doesn't make any difference." In addition Childress got off a scintillating boffo about the Playmakers. You know what we mean? (Big lear, big wink!) Anyway, friend, keep up the good work. All that stuffy dignity up in the Di hall doesn't make any difference. Just like you say...

You might keep an eye and an ear open for the big opera and musicomedy star who will probably teach music here one quarter each year... "Old Tawm" is thinking about submitting a short story to the Carolina Mag. Hot stuff... And Johnny Clampitt, very BMOC, is no mean poet. He, too, is on the Mag's contributor list...

Lamar Stringfield, old Carolina man and composer of the "Lost Colony" music, will probably write the music for the projected Mecklenburg County pageant down in Charlotte... Speaking of Stringfield, that Pulitzer prize-winning composer once told me any orchestra over four pieces was just "glorified show business." wtobxkmsia arm arm armrmmm Says he can get all the music he wants out of a string quartet... Another Carolina man, novelist Tom Wolfe, is in mind this year. He died ten years ago. Seems everytime anyone wants to support the Mag they talk about tradition and "after all, Tom Wolfe's early work appeared in it." Yeah, it did. But just take a look at the tripe he turned out in the back issues in the library's North Carolina room.

Apologies to Foo Winchell for invading his four-dash domain. This is much more fun than Wallace and UMT.

What's Up in Graham Memorial

—Nearly half-a-hundred turnout for the first dance session Thursday afternoon... Instructor Bill Corley sent out a call for more coeds for next week's class... Darkroom lessons in enlarging will be given at 10 o'clock this morning in the union darkroom by Bob Coulter.

Rendezvous is becoming more popular in the afternoons lately... That's a good time to go down there... When you see how jammed it will be tonight, you'll agree. . .The dinner music concert this evening will include: Beethoven, Leonore Overture No. 2; Brahms, Symphony No. 2; Stardust.

Write Away

A Little More Deference, Please

Dear Sir:

In reply to the anonymous letter in today's DTH, "Let the Faculty Stand in Line", I should like to correct a few mis-statements.

I'm not only a student here at Carolina, but am also a son of a professor who has been on the faculty here twenty-three years. It has been my observation that neither in athletic events nor in any other aspect of campus life do the faculty receive precedence over the student body—the reverse is more usually the case! The faculty have to pay for their tickets and are seated as any other non-student spectator.

Our anonymous authors state, '. . . .faculty members and school employees have as much right to see the game as we do." Why not?! Is it not right that these people, who spend their lives serving the University of North Carolina (for the remuneration is not commensurate with the work they do), should have the same interest in the University's athletic prowess as the students, who, after all, are here for only four years. Moreover I question if any member of the faculty would have as much time to stand in line as a student, whether he cuts class or not. After all, teaching is only a very small part of a professor's work.

Perhaps it would be better if we students showed a little more deference towards the professors. The publication of Tuesday's letter does not reflect credit on telligence of the writers..... either the manners or the in-

Gibberingly Ours

Dear Sir:

Some morning, after gently floating a weary eyeball across a lukewarm cup of Lenoir Hall coffee in order to better focus on the latest edition of the Tar Heel, I fear that I am going to finally go berserk and garrote, one by one, the Linotype operator, makeready man, pressman and proofreader (Or do you have one?) who attend to the mechanical details of the publishing of said "newspaper".

The reason, though simple enough to remedy, is quite enough to justify such actions. There is a Slug-Juggler in the printshop! A Slug-Juggler, whose mentality must range between that of an earthworm and a cockoach, is one who places in each hand half the Linotype sulgs for a particular article and then shuffles them as a deck of cards. Naturally this results in the reader's gaze leaping up and down from line to line in the column like an express elevator at the noon rush) in order to keep up with an article's continuity.....

Rarely does a complete reading of the Tar Heel pass without one or more hunting trips for missing lines in an article. A Peaceful Story from the Holy Land in Monday's issue is the latest example.

So, having a firm belief that one crossword puzzle is enough game for a four-page newspaper, I am enclosing my part of a campus-wide fund to provide for the engagement of a capable proofreader at a salary of $250.00 per month, ten cents for the winter quarter.

Gibberingly yours,

H. D. Irving

P. S. If you can improve your present proofreader, kindly send this and other contributions for the beforementioned fund to a much more needy one, the March of Dimes.

In Perfect Harmony

BOBBY RIGGS AND Jack Kramer disagree on a lot of things, including who's going to be the ultimate winner of their current professional tennis tour. But they do harmonize perfectly on one fact—namely, in predicting that Carolina's Vic Seixas will rate among the top racquet-wielders in the nation's amateur ranks during the coming season.

"I'd put Vic right up near the top of the list of the up-and-coming stars," Riggs declared in his Carolina Inn room, less than two hours after the ninth decision over his touring rival had been written into the books. "He's certainly the top intercollegiate player I've seen, and that includes Larned. I'd name Gonzales, Seixas, Falkenberg, Brink, and Brown as the best of the younger set and the ones we'll depend on in Davis Cup competition in a few more years."

This sentiment was echoed a few minutes later when Kramer king of the amateur circuit the past two seasons and who saw all the nation's netters in tourney play all summer long, returned to the Inn after a late snack downtown. "Most of the big tournaments are played on grass," Jolting Jake pointed out, and that's where Vic plays his best tennis. He has a fine aggressive game, he's liable to give Schroeder and Parker a good run for the title. He almost did beat Ted down at the Sugar Bowl, you know.

What did Jack think about the current tour? "It's a great life if you don't weaken," he quipped. "I'm gradually getting used to these one-night stands, but it's hard to come through with a top-flight performance at every stop. And especially when it's against as great a competitor as Riggs.

Raising a Racquet

GETTING BACK TO SEIXAS, Kramer agreed with us that Vic received a raw deal in the 1947 amateur rankings. For those who haven't heard, the Tar Heel net captain was rated 11th in the nation, which at first glance doesn't appear bad at all. But a closer look shows that three players seeded behind Seixas up to the nationals at Forest Hills ended up one, two, and three notches ahead of him—and without reaching the round of 16 as Vic did.

Vic isn't the only one I think should be higher in the rankings," Kramer continued. "Tom Brown is better than the 12th rating they gave him. And my old doubles partner, Ted Schroeder, deserved the number two spot ahead of Parker. He didn't play in all the tournaments but in those he did get in, he lasted longer than Frank did."

WHICH BRINGS TO mind another point of disagreement between the racquet rivals. Kramer names Schroeder as his likely successor as national amateur king while Riggs believes Parker will come through to occupy the vacancy left by Kramer's departure.

One thing is for sure, according to both of them: Parker and Schroeder are cinches to handle the singles assignments in the U. S. defense of the Davis Cup. As for the doubles, neither one would venture a guess, although Jack thinks "Seixas with Parker or Talbert would form a good combination."

Series Not 'Fixed'

AND NOW TO answer all those who think that the tour is "fixed" to the extent that neither wants to run up a big lead in the series at the expense of smaller takes at the box office, we have the definite word from Kramer that it isn't so. "In fact," Jack asserted, "I'd like to get way ahead in the series because I think it would increase the crowds. Everyone would want to see the upstart who's beating an established star like Riggs.

"And speaking of crowds," he went on, "that was a wonderful bunch out there tonight. I'm just sorry I couldn't do better and show them a finer match. But Bobby just got me in a hole and I couldn't climb out."

As for the final outcome of the series—a 75-match affair which takes them all over the United States—both Kramer and Riggs are full of confidence in their own ability to end up on top. "I'm playing better as I go along, despite the way I looked tonight, and if I'm able to play my best as the series continues I'll take it for sure," was Jolting Jake's comment. And bouncing Bob, more cocksure than Jack but still as friendly and cordial predicted, "If I lose the tour, I'll sure be surprised."

WHO DO WE want to win??? It doesn't matter—they're both fine fellows. And besides, there's no use casting a jinx over one of them by my prediction that he'll win. Remember Texas and NYU???

Five NC Trackmen Compete in Philly

By Morty Schaap

Philadelphia, Pa., Jan. 22—Five Tar Heel tracksters will run here tomorrow night in the annual Philadelphia Inquirer Invitational indoor track and field meet.

Jack Milne, the NCAA cross country champion, will lead the North Carolina delegation, competing in the one-mile event against the best milers in the country excluding Galloping Gil Dodds. Milne will face such Olympic hopefuls as Jerry Karver, Les MacMitchell, and Browning Ross in the event.

Jimmy Miller, the Southern Conference two-mile co-champion, will strut his stuff in the big two-mile race. He too will face the toughest of competitors.

Yet, probably the Tar Heel who will be confronted with the biggest odds is Bob Morrow, who must match the national title winning form of Harrison Dilliard in the feature hurdle event.

High jumper Jack Moody is the No. 4 Carolina entry and he will have to be at the top of his jumping game to place in a field led by Dave Albritton, NCAA jump champion.

Completing the North Carolina entry is freshman Bob Black. Black will run in the 1,000 yard run and is considered a dark horse possibility by local track officials.

The results of the meet should give Tar Heel track fans an idea of what to expect from their hopefuls come the Southern Indoor games late in February.

Wrestlers Battle State At Local Arena Tonight

By Buddy Vaden

Coach Chuck Quinlan's mat crew went through a final workout yesterday in preparation for their second match of the season against State college in Woollen gym tonight at 6:45.

State, who has a record of one win and one loss in mat competition thus far, is rated a slight edge over the Tar Heels in view of the recent streak of ineligibility rulings slapped on the local crew.

Three members of last year's State squad are back again this year to oppose the Tar Heels. Don Troxler, Southern conference champ in the 165-pound class, was outpointed by Oscar Gupton. Fred Wagoner, heavyweight, was the only one of the three to win a decision over the Tar Heels. He pinned John Stoioff in the first round. Lewis the last member of the trio, was decisioned by Tommy Hearn in the 136-pound class.

Feature Bout

The feature bout on this evening's card will undoubtedly be the contest between Troxler and Gupton. In the Conference tournament last year Troxler downed Gupton, who was at a disadvantage due to a case of food poisoning. However, Gupton garnered 14 points to Troxler's 9 in the dual meet with State.

Ray Swigart, who is wrestling in his first varsity match, is slated to meet Southern conference runner-up Fred Wagoner in the 175-pound class.

John Stoioff, who wrestled heavyweight last year until he pulled a muscle in the State match, will open against State's Musser in the unlimited section.

Marvin Wilson, 121, and Doug Thompson, 128, will start against the Wolfpack's entries in those divisions. Thompson was out of last week's match with VPI due to a separated rib. Wilson lost his match by a decision.

Kemp Can't

Bill Kemp, team captain, is out of this week's lineup due to a bad heart condition. Whether or not he will be out all year is indefinite. Taking his place in the 175-pound class is Ray Swigart.

Bill's brother, Phil, who won his initial bout with a pin, is also listed on the card as a starter in the 145 division.

Tom Urquhart, 136, and Carroll Fisher, 155, round out the starting Carolina crew. Urquhart copped his initial match last week while Fisher was pinned.

In addition to the eight regular matches scheduled, seven exhibitions will be run off.

Phi Delt Rout Paces 20-Game Mural Program

Intramural basketball had another night and day session yesterday with a total of twenty big contests being reeled off as the mural cage program moved into high gear.

Phi Delt No. 1 turned in the most impressive win of the day and of the young season, riding rough shod over a seemingly outclassed DKE No. 2 team by the astromonical score of 73-9. Harry Watkins was the big gun for the winners, tossing in a total of 23 tallies.

Other feature games saw the Underdogs edge out Independent, 33-31; Kap Psi No. 1 sneak by Chi Phi No. 3, 22-19; the Sig Ep No. 2 nose out AEPi, 31-30; and SAE No. 2 slipped past Sigma Chi No. 3, 32-27.

Thriller of Day

The thriller of the day, though, turned out to be the clash between the Law School and the Black Phantoms, the former winning out in the last seconds of an extremely tightly played game. Also falling in the close contest class was the Beta No. 1, 34-29 defeat of Chi Psi No. 2.

In other tilts, Emerson won easily from Hut 26, 48-23; Nash trampled Ruffin No. 2, 38-20; SAE No. 3 took the measure of TEP No. 1, 36-13; Phi Kap No. 3 stopped Kap Psi No. 2, 29-21; and Aycock No. 1 downed Hut No. 8, 35-19.

Elsewhere, Phi Gam No. 1 topped ZBT, 28-13; St. Anthony dropped KA No. 2, 29-19; Lambda Chi toppled Sigma Chi No. 2, 37-24; PiKA No. 1 beat Beta No. 2, 47-14; Phi Gam No. 3 outscored KA No. 3, 23-11; and Phi Delt No. 2 suffered a close 20-17 defeat at the hands of ATO No. 2

Two Forfeits

There were two forfeits in the course of the day. Sig Ep No. 1 forfeited to Phi Delta Chi and the Mud Dobbers emerged victorious when Whitehead No. 2 didn't quite make the opening whistle.

Lebed Paces Jayvees in 66-46 Victory Over Presbyterian J. C.

Maxton, N. C., Jan. 22—Carolina's high-flying jayvee cagers roared to their twelve win of the season here tonight by defeating rather soundly the basketeers of Presbyterian Junior College. The score was 66-45.

The visitors from Chapel Hill took an early lead and maintained control of both ball and score throughout the game. The lads of Coach Jim Hamilton had a little too much power though the locals made a better showing than they did when the Carolinians routed them 77-22 earlier in the season.

Lebed was the big gun for the Tar Heels, tossing in a total of 14 points even though he did not start the game. The point-getting forward was the spark of the winner's attack while he was in the ball game and stared on the floor as he did in the point column.

The box score:

Carolina (66)	Pos.	PJC (45)
Peters (12)	RF	Nichols (13)
Wilkerson (4)	LF	Bowman (6)
Hoft (13)	C	Conner (8)
Thorne (9)	RG	Steed (4)
Harrington (6)	LG	Knox (15)

Subs: Carolina: Powers, Lebed, (14), Holmes, (2), Carroll, Goodman, (2), Morris, (4).
PJC: Bass, Rowe, (2).

Cagers Depart Today For Penn; Mermen Off To Avenge Navy Loss

Sixteen Entrain For Annapolis

Sixteen Blue Dolphins embarked from Raleigh's Union Station at 8:30 this morning for Annapolis, Maryland where they'll splash it out tomorrow afternoon with their old stumbling blocks, the Midshipmen of the United States Naval Academy. Accompanying the team members are coaches Dick Jamerson and Ralph Casey and manager Jack Sharpe.

The Blue and White mermen will be seeking to even the series at four wins each and to break a two game losing streak that stretches back to 1946. Last year the naval natators swamped the locals, 50-25, and the Dolphins are set to avenge that ignominious defeat by upsetting the favored sailors.

Lineup Revised

Jamerson originally had planned to carry only 14 men but earlier this week, in an effort to strengthen the team as much as possible, he added two men to the traveling squad and also revised the starting lineup.

Coach Jamerson was not as pessimistic yesterday afternoon as one would expect the mentor of a team which is going to tangle with a band of swimmers who are

Duke Ducat Swap To Begin Monday

The University athletic department reminded students yesterday that the exchange period for tickets to the Carolina-Duke basketball game to be played in Chapel Hill on the 3rd of February, begins Monday.

Students holding passbooks 1-4500, and faculty and employees holding books 8000-8500 may trade their coupon for a reserved seat ticket to the traditional encounter at this time.

All eligible ticket holders are asked to redeem their coupons early to prevent a last minute rush and give the athletic office an idea of how many of the tickets will not be called for.

Added information for those who do not hold the required numbers for the Duke game will be published at a later date. All students are asked to watch the DTH for further information.

Students are also reminded that it is a violation of University regulations to transfer books and that in doing so, a student deprives a fellow student of an opportunity to see the game.

Distribution will continue throughout the earlier part of the week. Ticket windows at Woollen will be open from 9 until 5.

Frosh Hoopsters Risk Unbeated Record Against Newport News This Afternoon

By Bill Kellam

If the press notices emerging from the Tidewater section of Virginia are anywhere near the truth, it looks as if Carolina's last undefeated basketball team will bite the dust at 5:30 this afternoon in Woollen Gym. Tonight Jim Hamilton's frosh cagers will be risking their perfect record against a potent skyscraping quint from Newport News High School.

The visitors rank as one of the schoolboy hardwood powers of Virginia and doubtlessly they'll be primed to knock the local hoopsters out of the ranks of the undefeated. The Tar Babies will be out to make it four in a row over Southern high school and junior college competition.

The jayvees journeyed to Maxton, yesterday where they faced Presbyterian Junior College, but Coach Jim Hamilton left tonight's starting five at home so that they'd be in tip-top shape for this evening's tilt. Thorne Gregory and Hal Ferraro will open at forward for the yearlings, John Tsantes will be in the pivot slot, and Bill White and Floyd Gilmore in the guard spots.

The Tar Babies, in rolling to three straight victories, have tossed in 160 points while holding their opponents to 94 tallies. Newport (N. C.) High was overwhelmed by the locals in their opener, 60-15, Asheville-Biltmore fell next, 50-37, and the locals edged Greensboro High, 50-42, a couple of weeks ago for their last triumph.

Pi Phis, CICA Tally Cage Wins

Defending champion Pi Beta Phi and CICA turned in victories in the coed round robin basketball tourney last night in the two contests played at the Woman's Gym before a scattering of spectators.

The Independent Coeds won rather handily in a low scoring 11-3 win over Kenan. The winners took an early lead and were never out of control of the game.

In the nightcap, the Pi Phis dropped the Alpha Gams in the most thrilling game of the tourney thus far. The victors led most of the way in the see-saw battle, then staved off a late Alpha Gam rally to emerge victorious.

Next games in the playoffs are set for Tuesday night with the scheduled tilts to be announced later in the week.

Scott & Co. Off To Philadelphia

Coach Tom Scott and his Carolina basketballers head northward tonight in their second invasion of Yankeeland—this time to meet the University of Pennsylvania in Philadelphia on Saturday night.

A squad of 11 men will make the trip, according to Coach Scott. The team will move over to Durham this evening to catch a northbound train which leaves at 7:15.

Players making the trip are Captain Bob Paxton, Norm Kohler, Mervin Cole, Nemo Nearman, Coy Carson, Fred Swartzberg, Roger Scholbe, John Dillon, Taylor Thorne, Fred Ryan, and Dan Nyimicz.

Not in Best Shape

The team won't be in the best of shape for the Penn fray. Center Nearman has missed practice all week because of trouble with his wisdom tooth. He has been taking penicillan treatments and may not be ready to go against the Quakers. Fred Swartzberg, counted on for a lot of duty at forward, sprained his ankle in practice the other day, but Scott expects him in good condition by game time.

The team staged another long scrimmage at Woollen gymnasium yesterday, and there will be another workout this afternoon before the team leaves. Coach Scott described the team's drills this week as being "fair, but nothing extra."

Carson Will Start

Scott stated yesterday that he was planning to start Carson at the forward post vacated by Bill Miller. Carson, who hails from Asheville, has shown up well as a reserve all season and has looked good in this week's practices.

Pennsylvania will provide the Phantoms with stiff competition in their bid to snap a two-game losing streak. Coach P. M. Kellett has a rugged team that will cause all comers plenty of trouble. Big Herb Lyons, the center, is the team's offensive leader.

Scott stated that he had no idea of how his team would stack up against the Quakers. But the Carolina mentor figured that if Nearman isn't able to play because of his tooth infection, the locals would have rough going.

Yanks Play at Night

General Manager George Weiss of the New York Yankees announced yesterday that the World Champs will play 14 night games at home during 1948 and 18 under the arcs while on the road.

WDUK Sponsors March Of Dimes Program Contest

In conjunction with the Orange county March of Dimes campaign, radio station WDUK, branch studio in Chapel Hill will conduct a contest with merchandize contributed by 10 Chapel Hill merchants as prizes, according to an announcement by E. Carrington Smith, county chairman for the drive.

Entries in the contest will consist of completion, in 25 words or less, of the statement, "I support the March of Dimes because...". Contestants may send in as many entries as desired, mailing them, with a contribution to the drive, to March of Dimes, Box 70, Chapel Hill.

The contest closes January 30, final day of the national and state drive, and winners, judged by station WDUK, will be announced on February 2. First prize winner will choose his prize from those contributed, and other prizes will be awarded according to their value.

Prizes, which will be on display in the windows of the stores donating them, are as follows: $90 record player from the Carolina Sport shop; $75 gold pen and pencil set from Wentworth and Sloan Jewelry company; $34 movie camera from Foister's camera store; $45 overcoat or suit of clothes from the Varsity; $40 table model radio from Bennett and Blocksidge.

Fowler's Food store has contributed $25 worth of groceries; a Goodyear tire from Strowd Motor company; $15 blanket from Berman's department store; an orchid from the University florist; and a $5 meal ticket from the College Sandwich shop.

been a common practice on this campus for certain social groups to exclude individuals from their midst on the basis of religious prejudices. The litical and religous prejudices ous it is to allow such practices, and the ideas associated with them, to go unchallenged. For it is certain that if, in the past, the students had taken a more militant stand on this all-important question certain professors would not have felt free to express themselves as they have done.

However, it is still not too late to take action in the present situation. On the contrary, the present situation provides an excellent opportunity for the student body to take a definite stand in opposition to practices so similar to those followed in Hitler Germany.

We should therefore like to put forth the suggestion that resolutions be adopted by all campus organizations to the effect that they are unanimously opposed to discrimination against any student because of religious or political beliefs.

Such resolutions are all the more in order in view of the revelation in Foo Giduz' column, Carolina Carousel, that members of the University's Board of Trustees have openly expressed their prejudices. Also they will serve to cut through the charges and counter-charges and to put the student body of this University on record as being supporters of a liberal and democratic policy of education in our state and in our nation.

as potent as the embryonic admirals are supposed to be. The Carolina coach, judging from the following comments, has his charges primed for an upset. "The boys seem to be ready mentally and if they can physically get the bank faster than the Navy boys, we can win. If we don't win, one thing is sure, we're going up there to win and somebody is going to have to churn up a lot of water to beat the Carolina boys."

Middies Topped

The Middies topped the Dolphins in 1941, 1943, 1946 (triangular meet with Cornell), and 1947. Carolina ended up on top with victories in 1942, 1944, and 1945. Navy nosed out Cornell in its only start this year, 38 and one-half to 36 and one-half.

The most heavily endowed colleges in the nation are Harvard, Yale, Columbia, Chicago and Texas.

Ex Officio Member

Eller also presented amendments to change the machinery and powers of the House Priveleges board and the Women's council, following this with a bill to establish a Coed Affairs committee to handle all bills introduced in the Legislature pertaining to coed affairs and to originate legislation concerned with coed activities. Under this bill the speaker of the Coed Senate would be an ex officio member of the committee.

Charging next into the student entertainment set-up, the president of the student body stated, "No system of voluntary payment for classical entertainment can ever be successful on this campus against the competition of a thousand more economical entertainments... it must be defended on the tax basis."

Diversified Entertainment

Eller's solution to the problem, in the form of a bill, provides for the student fees pro rata appropriation to Graham Memorial to be increased to $1.25 to permit them to handle all entertainment to "be arranged in as diversified a manner as possible so as to appeal to different taste at different times."

Eller stated that he thought the Di and the Phi could take care of themselves financially in the future, and suggested that they be eliminated from the 1948-49 budget. He added the CCUN is still in a period of development and should be given financial aid until it matured enough to care for itself.

Thorne Gregory heads the Frosh scorers with 32 points in three contests while John Tsantes had the best average with 25 counters in two games. Tsantes, who performed the Wilmington Extension of the University last season, has been working out with the varsity all week but varsity mentor Tom Scott still hadn't decided at press time whether Tsantes would make his varsity debut in the near future. Tsantes, whose favorite point producer is a combination push and pivot hook, is also the jayvees' leading scorer.

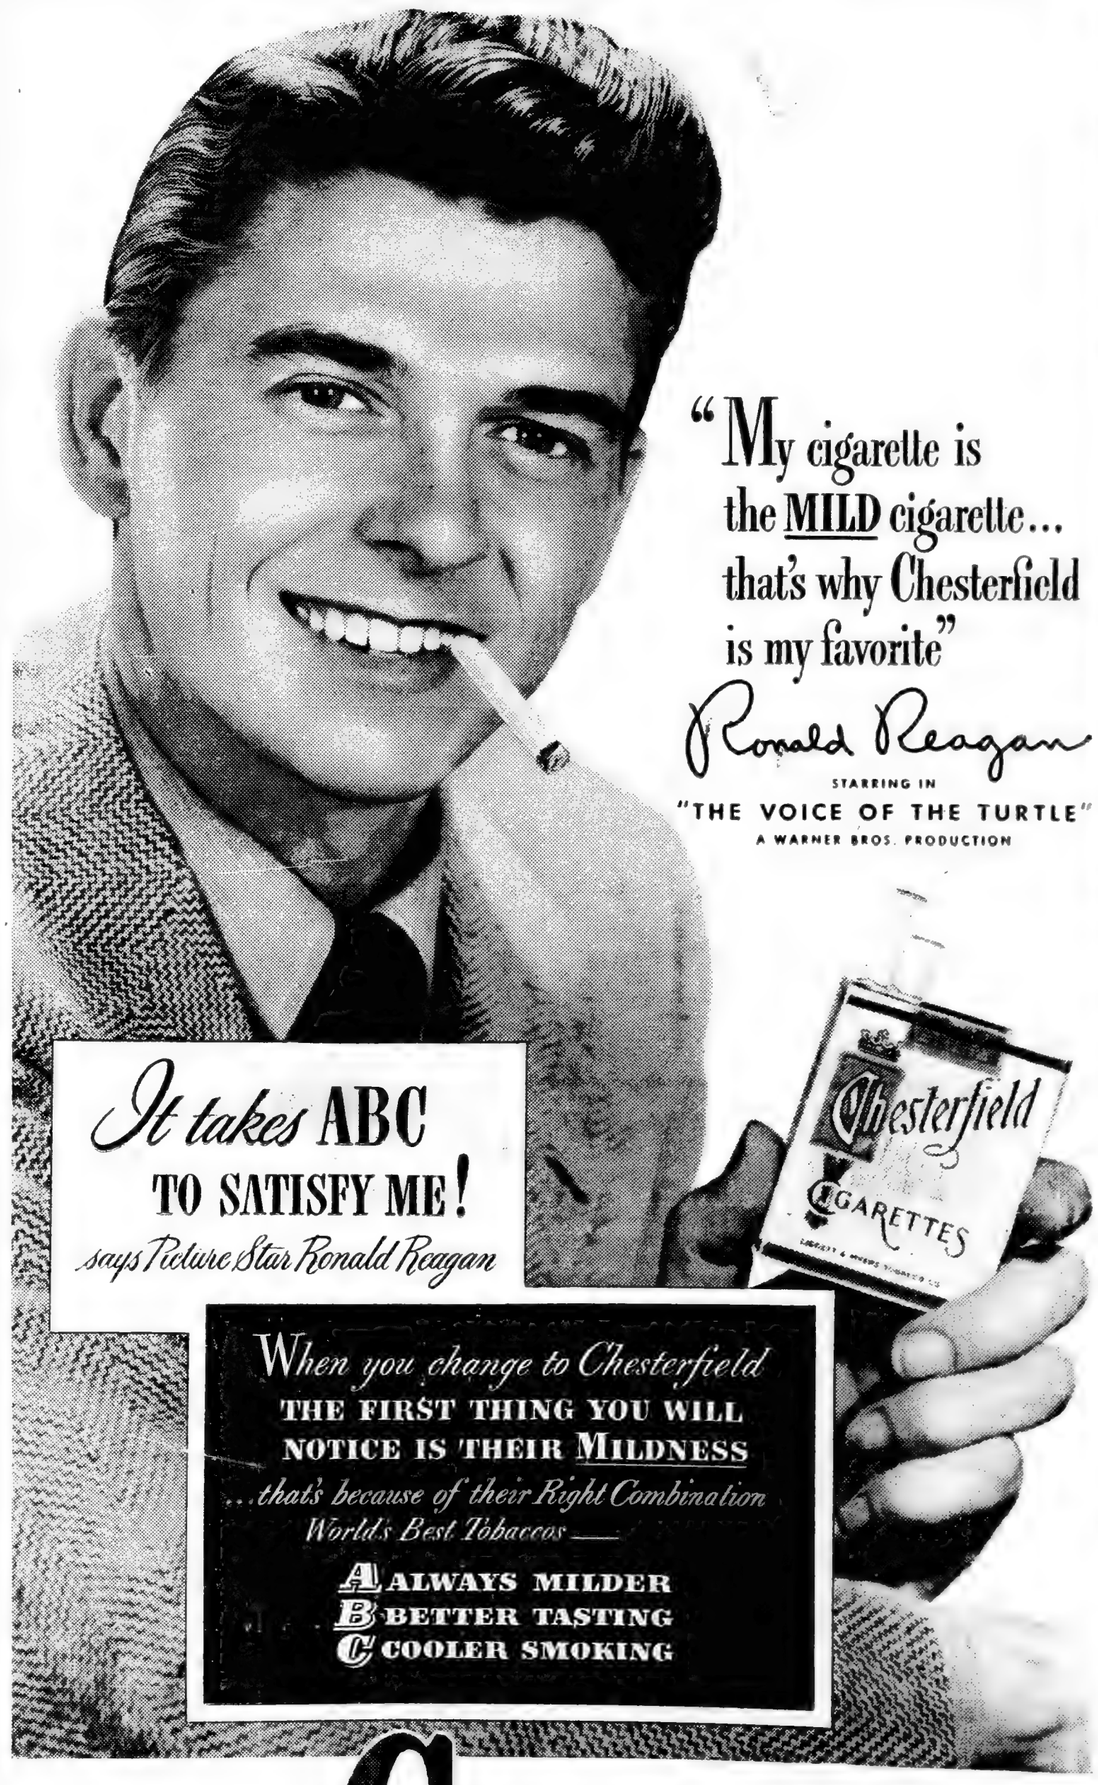
copies per year could be published.

Other Senators, speaking in favor of the bill, recalled the time when magazines were avidly read here and confidently foresaw the return of such a situation if the mags were made voluntary.

Senator Randal McLeod, in a move directed towards obtaining statements from both editors, claimed he felt that both editors would support the bill if each thought he had an acceptable magazine.

Lead Opposition



The opposition to the bill was led by Senators John van Hecke and Gran Childress. They stressed the financial uncertainty accompanying any voluntary basis.

Van Hecke pointed to the example of the SEC which failed when a similar disposition was made of it and to the increased "bitterness" that business competition would cause. Childress claimed that no magazine would ever get to press under a subscription basis and offered a substitute bill.

It would have provided for alternating humor and literary staffs working under the same appropriation putting out four magazines per year each. However, it was not considered by the body.

Mirian Evans Will Lead Coed's Part In Dime Drive

PLACING HER HAND on an electrostatic generator at the Atomic Energy Commission's exhibit in New York City, Miss Jean Klein suddenly finds herself the possessor of an atomic hairdo. The machine, used in atomic research, shot 125,000 volts of electricity through Miss Klein's body, causing her hair to stand on end. (International)

Coed Miriam Evans, president of South dormitory, is chairman of the woman's division of the campuswide March of Dimes campaign which begins in dormitories, fraternity and sorority houses on Monday.

Miss Evans, of Asheville, is a journalism student and a staff member of the Daily Tar Heel which is sponsoring the drive again for the fifth year. She will supervise the soliciting of sorority houses and women's dormitories during the five-day period, ending Friday.

Slogan for the 1948 campaign is "Twice the money in half the time," announced Chairman Barron Mills, editor of the DTH.

At a meeting of all dormitory, fraternity and sorority promotors of the campaign on Thursday night, Mills said, a goal was set for twice the amount collected last year. In 1947 the chairty to combat infantile paralysis received $1,600 from the University drive in two weeks' time.

Money collected was used to purchase an iron lung, now in use in Alamance county. It is hoped that the forthcoming drive will provide enough funds to purchase two more of these iron lungs. At present, Mills said, there are no cases of infantile paralysis in Orange county.

To encourage group participation, Mills announced that special prizes will be awarded individual members of the organization which most actively supports the March of Dimes.

Coin containers will be placed in the Scuttlebutt, the Army store, the "Y" soda fountain, and in Lenoir hall.

UNC Band Clinic Will Meet Today

The first band clinic for the purpose of giving high school and collee band directors an opportunity to hear any of the new contest numbers listed for the State High School Music festival will be held in Hill hall all day today, beginning at 10 this morning.

Earl Slocum of the University Music Department and director of the University Band said here today that it was suggested that perhaps band directors all over the state would be interested in such a clinic and that when the University offered to hold it, "the response was tremendous—all the way from Waynesville to the coast."

It is expected, Professor Slocum said, that a majority of all the band directors, especially of high schools, will be on hand here Saturday. The public is also invited to come and stay for any numbers they wish to hear played.

The Band will play on request any of the 100 numbers listed for the Festival contest, he said. The Festival is scheduled for April in Greensboro. District contests will be held in March.

Graham Editorial Wins Press Award

By Herb Nachman

"Should Frank Graham Resign?", an editorial by Weimer Jones of the Franklin Press, Franklin, N. C., last night took first prize in the non-daily editorial division of the 1947 North Carolina Pess association contest.

The awards were announced following a dinner at Duke Union during which D. Thomas D. Clark, noted author and historian, spoke to the Institute on the ubject, "Names Make News."

A reprint of Welmers' editorial, which opposed recent charges against Dr. Frank Graham published in various state newspapers, will appear on tomorrow's editorial page of the Daily Tar Heel.

Awards were presented in four divisions, editorial-writing, spot-reporting, feature writing and photography. Judges included editors of newspapers throughout the south and officials of various journalism schools and departments.

First place in sport reporting, a $100 cash award, went to Leon S. Dure, Jr., Winston-Salem Journal-Sentinel for his story, 'Communist-Union Collusion is Exposed in City; Appeal is Made to Murray for Labor Leadership."

The story is an expose of methods used by the communist faction in Winston-Salem in gaining control of local 22 R. J. Reynolds of the CIO tobacco workers.

Judges in each division selected a second and third place winner and a story worthy of "honorable mention".

In the best-feature division Chester S. Davis, also of the Winston-Salem paper, took a $100 prize with his, "Community Relations...a New, Frank Approach."

Davis' story was based on a comprehensive report of more than a year's study of the Winston-Salem community relations project. The program was prepared for continuing the advancement of better relations between races in the city.

In the photography division, Jimmy Dumbell of the Charlotte Observer won the $100 first prize for his photograph of a small Negro boy in connection with publicity for a fund-raising drive for Good Samaritan Hospital.

Prize for the best editorial in the daily division went to H. W. Kendall, Greensboro Daily News for his critique entitled "Of Life and Death." The editorial is concerned with the recent execution of five criminals in North Carolina who were convicted of murder.

Kendall wrote, "We would truly get somewhere if the factors and the forces which intervened into the making of those five capital offenders who went to their deaths had been executed along with them." The editorial went on to constructively criticize the defects of capital punishment as a force of prevention.

First place in the best feature division for the non-dailies was won by C. Benedict of the Sanford Herald. Since there were less then twenty entries received in both the spot-reporting and photography classifications of the non-daily division, no contest was held for them. In all classifications, there were 363 entries submitted in the daily division and 52 entries in the non-daily division.

At the dinner last night Duke president Dr. R. L. Flowers welcomed the newsmen. Remarks were by E. A. Resch, president of NCPA, and Dr. Paul Gross, dean of Duke's graduate school introduced the speaker. The Duke University quartet entertained the group with vocal selections.

Dr. Clark, who was the main speaker of the evening, is an alumnus of Duke and is now head of the Department of History at the University of Kentucky at Lexington. A native of Mississippi, he graduated from the University of Mississippi in 1929, has an M. A. from the Uinversity of Kentucky and obtained his Ph. D. from Duke where he graduated with the class of 1932.

GOP National Chairman Reece Forced To Cancel Speech Here

Ike Says "No" In 804 Words

Washington, Jan. 23, —(UP)— General Eisenhower has dealt himself out of the political picture.

The hero of the European war announces once and for all that he won't run for the presidency.

He put his statement in words that cannot be misunderstood when he said flatly, "I am not available." Then he added, "I could not accept nomination even under the remote circumstances that it were tendered to me."

His reason is equally as simple. He does not think professional soldiers hvae any business in politics.

Eisenhower made his withdrawal in a lengthy letter to Leonard Fidner, publisher of the Manchester, New Hampshire, newspaper and an ardent Eisenhower supporter.

The unassuming chief of staff points out that up to now he has refused to make a bald statement that he would not accept the nomination.

He did this, he says, because he did not wish to appear to be unwilling to serve his country. This refusal to make a flat statement, says Eisenhower, has been seriously misinterpreted.

Having repeatedly insisted he is not interested in politics, he felt it necessary today to slam the door shut on a draft. However, a few of the "Ike for President" stalwarts have refused to throw in the towel.

For instance, the man to whom he Eisenhower letter is addressed, publisher Finder, indicates he'll continue the campaign. Finder says the general's 804-word statement left him more convinced than ever that Eisenhower would make a great president.

California supporters have called for a national "Draft Eisenhower" movement along with backers in Portland, Oregon. But others are uncertain. The heads of the New Hampshire Eisenhower-For-President committee have gone into a huddle to decide what to do.

Some backers have taken the general at his word. Ohio supporters, for example, announce that they'll abide by the general's decision.

In Chicago, a leader of the Ike-for-President movement, Bruce Pine, was in the midst of a press conference when he heard the news. Pine slumped down in his chair after the phone call. Then he glanced at his Eisenhower-For-President button, took it off, and announced he had no further plans.

This, General Ike's announcement has split his followers into three camps. Some plan to end the Eisenhower boom — others say it will go on anyway — and

Wordless Creep Merely Stands

The creep just stood there.

"What's your name, Mac?"

The creep just stood there.

"How long have you been here?" likewise brought no answer.

No one knew who he was, where he came from, or how long he had been standing in front of Graham Memorial, but many students wondered, upon leaving the student union building when it closed at 11 o'clock, why the same figure was still there that had been leaning against the same pillar when they entered earlier in the evening.

He wouldn't say anything and he wouldn't move. But every once in a while the corners of his mouth would look like they were trying to curve up into a grin.

He was possibly 20 years old, dark hair, and had on a heavy overcoat as protection against the chilly night air. The only signs of life about him were brought on by the query, "Have you been here since before 6 o'clock?" This occasioned an almost imperceptible shake of the head.

"Since after six?" caused an equally imperceptible nod. At least one fact had been established.

A faint shrug of the shoulders followed the question of how long he intended to stay there. A few more futile probes, and the interview with the creep was terminated.

Graham Return Due February 1

President Frank P. Graham of the Greater University is expected to return to this country by February according to information receiver here by Mrs. Graham.

The State department called Mrs. Graham Thursday to inform her of the date of her husband's return. He has been in the Netherlands East Indies serving as a representative of the United Nations Good Officers committee.

Dr. Henry P. Brandeis, a member of the law school faculty who accompanied Graham is expected to return about tow or three days in advance of the president.

It is generally believed that Gilbert, of the Gilbert and Sullivan team, was completely tone deaf.

The Carolina Political union was notified late yesterday afternoon that Carroll Reece, chairman of the Republican national committee, would be unable to fulfill his commitment to speak in Gerrard hall next Tuesday evening. In a telegram to CPU chairman Bill Kemp, Reece's secretary, Ben Whitehurst, notified the Union that "Due to unexpected developments Chairman Reece must cancel all speaking engagements for the remainder of January."

"Mr. Reece exceedingly regrets disappointing you, but is sure you will understand and invite him a a later date," the wire concluded. Kemp said that only the day before Reece had written him, stating that he was very happy for the opportunity to come down to Chapel Hill, and would speak on the topic, "The Future of the Republican Party in the South."

Expressing his personal regret hat the speech had to be canceled, Kemp said the Union will request another speaking date from the national GOP head after their meeting tomorrow night. Reece had expected to be flown down to Chapel Hill by his aviatrix-daughter.

In the meantime, two other speakers, both national political figures, have tentatively accepted speaking engagements here in the near future, and these will be released when definite word has been received.

The Union will meet tomorow evening in the Grail room of Graham Memorial at 8 o'clock to discuss the question of inflation and taxes. Jim Southerland will present the topic.

Radio Links Family 7,000 Miles Apart

MADISON, Wis. (UP)—Maj. Shirley G. Blencoe, stationed in Korea, talked to his 2½-year-old son for the first time over a 7,000 mile span by short wave radio.

But all little Jimmy could find to talk about was the jeep ride that his dad had promised in his letters.

Russell Morris, Madison, had picked up Blencoe's short wave call from Korea accidentally. The amateur radio technician then arranged for the two-way radio conversation between Maj. Blencoe and his wife and son.

GM Initiates Entertainment Service For Use of All Campus Organizations

An idea that started out last week with two singers and a pair of dance acts yesterday snowballed into its own as an informal entertainment bureau for students. Sponsored by Graham Memorial, the Bureau is headed by Clarence Barbour. Rendezvous director of entertainment, and its purpose, as put forth by Barbour, is to furnish entertainers to students at no cost, for any type of social gathering.

The idea was built up after over 300 students jammed the Rendezvous last Friday to see the floor show Barbour had gotten together for the evening. The show, which was originally to have lasted only 20 minutes, went on for some 70 minutes, so strong were the cries for encores.

'I found out from that crowd the other night the campus is truly entertainment hungry," said Barbour. "We have quite a bit of talent of all types lined up for the Rendezvous shows, so it seems natural we should try to spread this around the campus more."

Any organization desiring entertainers, or assistance in planning entertainment, may secure this by calling Graham Memorial. For recognized campus organizations no charge will be made for

"We're glad to send out entertainers to anything from teaparties to stag parties," said Barbour. "But out of courtesy to the entertainers, there should always be a good audience."

An array of talent too long for listing is available from Graham Memorial. Though the service was only begun Thursday, a call as already been answered to furnish a master-of-ceremonies and vocalist for an affair tonight.

Student Activities Committee Will Attempt Establishment of Campus Events Schedule

By Gordon Huffines

Getting students interested in campus organizations and attempting to establish a central bureau for scheduling campus events is giving the Students Activities committee plenty of headaches these days according to Graham Memorial Director Bill Shuford.

Formed as an organization to place "the right student in the right activity" or at least make students aware that campus organizations exist, the SA committee reports that there are far more positions at present than there are applicants to fill them. In fact, out of the University enrollment of more than 7,000 there are less than 400 students who are active members of any campus organization.

Campus groups report membership way below par. The Phi assembly, for instance, with an authorized limit of 60 members shows only 33 on its roll at present. The SA committee is now attempting to persuade members of such organizations as the Phi, Di, CRIL, CPU, and CCUN to contact non-participating students in an effort to get a turnout for extra-curricular activities.

Shuford says that he believes there are many people on campus who wish to join campus groups and would if given a little encouragement.

The other knotty problem the SA committee faces is the establishment of a central bureau which would schedule campus events so that one would not conflict with another. Such a bureau, with the cooperation of various campus organizations, could schedule speakers and student entertainment programs so that indecisive souls would not be faced with the prospect of attending a playmaker production, a tennis match, or a meeting of the Chapel Hill Communist party all on the same night. Shuford says this system would also prevent duplication of speakers on the campus and help eliminate the embarrassing situations caused when a prominent speaker walks out on the platform, only to be greeted by a mere 20 or 30 listeners.

Eller's Address--Fuel for Many A Crusade

President of the Student Body, Tom Eller's "State of the Campus" address to the legislature Thursday night, besides being well-presented and well received by the student leaders, contained praise for the student body and, as was to be expected, and cited mistakes and recommendations for improvements in a wide field of student activities.

Perhaps the most mportant and most discussed question on the campus today is that of the status of the two magazines. Eller advocated a combined mag, under a board of editors, namely three men interested in the fields of literary, humor. He suggested that the combined mag expand to 40 pages over the present 30 with approximately 12 pages of advertising.

His criticism of the two mags are typical of those heard on the campus today. Concerning the Carolina Magazine, he said: " . . is due to a failure to keep a volume of reader interest material at a percentage compatible with the tastes of the student body. All efforts seems to be directed toward serious literature with the ambition to cop awards." "On the other hand," he continued, "The Tarnation magazine is limited with the unholy task of attempting to be entirely funny while retaining standards of discretion and originality." As a result, the suggestion, which will actually be decided by the campus referendum in February, advocates the board of three editors, modeled after the apparently successful board which is editing the Yackety Yack.

Publications men on both magazines have voiced the opinion that such a move would be the only one which they could consider as acceptable for a combination of the two magazines. Because they more than anyone else will know the real problems involved, we feel that such a combination is the best answer to the mag argument.

Another argument made by Eller concerned the abolition of appellate powers to the Student Council. In a strongly-worded recommendation he submitted an amendment to the Student Constitution which would abolish the appellate jurisdiction of the Student council in social matters only. Eller went on to say "It is imperatve that we have representative, humble and considerate Councils even if it is necessary for the Student Legislature to make laws to achieve it." The Student council, he said, has failed almost completely in its real purpose as a Council appellant from the Men's and Women's council. He criticized delays in the hearing of cases appealed from the lower courts and accused the members of listing to the "lobbying of persons interested in the case at hand."

The main problem, then would seem to be in the members presently on the Councils. The president pointed out that present council membership is too closely knit from a political and geographical standpoint. To abolish this problem, he urged the political parties to make joint, nonpartisan selections for the men and women to run for the offices. Thereby, freeing the members completely from party affilations and complete diversification of residents and interests. This method, if followed through, would eliminate any pre-ordered decisions on the councils, would insure fair and thorough lower courts and would enable the Student Council to regain its reputation as the final — and qualified — authority on student disciplinary questions.

The three political parties would be wise in considering Eller's proposal on the nomination of candidates for Council offices. This seems to be the fairest end for all concerned under the present constitution.

The financial status of the campus appears to be in an enviable state. Among the organizations who are operating "in the black" are the Di and Phi Societies, the Daily Tar Heel and the Publications Board. Because the literary societies are now self-supporting, Eller recommended that they not be included in the budget for the fiscal year 1948-49. The Daily Tar Heel, he pointed out, is at a new peak in unit size and circulation. Most of the extra money, he added, goes back into extra pages of news of campus interest. The Publications Board has a surplus of over $13,500, which according to Eller, "is financially sound, though not over-abundant for business doing its volume.

He recommended that legislature funds for the Carolina Political union and the International Relations club be excluded from the new budget because these organizations "have given to the campus only lackadaisical speaker programs. Their main interest is in their members who pay dues." The appearance of speakers of national prominence in economic, political and scientic fields has been at a new low on the campus during the past quarter. Under these circumstances, if the interests of these two organizations is mainly in their members, revoking their legislature funds seems to be a proper step.

In praising activities on the campus, Eller called attention to the work of the Monogram club, the Di and Phi Senates, the Grail and the Dance Committee, the Inter-Fraternity Council and Graham Memorial. "Our activities," he said, "are at a higher point of service and efficiency than at any recent time in our history." Such work among the campus organizations are encouraging. However, it is important that we as the student body take careful stock of the recommendations of the Student Body president. Such important issues as the magazine question, and membership on the various councils are problems that call for the careful consideration of the entire student body. The magazine issue will be decided by a campus vote; the council question will be decided if the legislators deem it important enought to take action.

Eller's "State of the Campus" speech will provide fuel for many a crusade. Campus leaders are no doubt carefully analizing all phrases of his recommendations. The Daily Tar Heel, in future issues, will discuss thoroughly these pressing problems.

Easier to Lead Dog's Life

By R. Foo Giduz

Vet lobbying in Congress reached a new high (or low) this week as Rep. Edith Rogers, the true "Dogface's" friend, introduced a bill to pay blind veterans $75 monthly allowance for feeding their Seeing-Eye dogs. . . Which makes a feller muse on how much easier that would make a dog's life than a Dogface's. . .And brings up the question of whether a dog is man's best friend, or man (woman in this case) is dog's best friend.

—Given $75 a month to lead such a dog's life, we'd graduate into far-famed Dan-the-Dog's class. . .—Bow-wow at Jeff's every afternoon. . .Yes, gentlemen, the now is the time for all good men to come to the aid of the dogs measure (H.R. Bill No. 4878) even shows sign that the country may going-to-the . . —when they ask $10 a month more for dogs than Dogfaces can get! That try may be going-to-the. . .That brings up the $65 question:—How they treating you, Rover?—Ruff!

—Such a happy love-feast we are having on the campus now:—Legislature heard a total of 10 bills the other night, most of which were quite controversial. . . But not a single word (nary a syllable) of dissension nor Nay vote was cast all evening!. . .And the Legislatue heard bills on everything from Eller's all-covering publications unification measure (there'll be plenty h.... raised on that) to a teensy-weensy bill to prohibit horn-blowing in the men's dormitory quadrangles, introduced by "Sleepless" Cam West, the insomniac's friend. Just give 'em time; they'll have a three-ring circus going there that will beat even the good old United Carolina Party.

Eller made one slight slip in his state of the campus speech which should be interesting to money-minded DTH'ers. . ."The Daily Tar Heel is. . . actually MAKING money. . . under a complete new printing contract. . . with a former editor of the Tar Heel." That being no mean conspiracy, if true, Tom had to make a hasty ad lib to the effect that the campus fourth estate had not gone into the counterfeiting business, but, for a change was operating on the blue side of the ledger. . .(Glad to know that; --often wondered recently why the Mills boys had been looking so prosperous!)

What's Up in Graham Memorial

—Every member of the Student Activities committee, and even any interested students are especially requested to be at this morning's meeting of the group (Parker lounge No. 1, 11 o'clock) . . .Curent important business to be considered will be proposals on the recent general increase in extracurricular activities, and possible coordination plans.

—Glad to see Alfred Guy Ivey back in town. . .That's "Pete" Ivey, diminutive director of Graham Memorial back in the 1937-38 hey-days; at present public relations man for Seaboard Air Line R. R.

The student union staff wishes to express its appreciation to Clarence "Dusty" Barbour for his bang-up, untiring work on entertainment in the Rendezvous. . . A former professional dancer and veteran entertainer, Clarence has given all-too freely and willingly of his valuable time, in helping build up truly lively entertainment in the campus club.

Bernstein-Newsome Conference

Dear Sir:

In regard to Mr. Leonard Bernstein's letter of January 19, 1948, I wish to make a few observations—pertinent and otherwise. Mr. Bernstein was not the only student in the History Department to receive a letter of warning about his work without previous intimation from his professors. There were about forty of us who did.

I happened to be waiting to see the head of the Department while Mr. Bernstein was discussing his letter and for lack of a more interesting past-time, I stood at the door to watch and listen to the conversation. I did not hear all, but what I did hear leads me to believe that Mr. Bernstein is grossly misrepresenting facts and placing the whole situation in an unfavorable light.

Mr. Bernstein is not alone in being told that he could not receive the heartiest recommendation of the faculty. No one who fails to measure up to the standards required of a graduate student should expect the whole hearted recommendation of the Department. And who are to be the judges of that standard but the faculty? Mr. Bernstein in the interview with Dr. Newsome brought up the subject of changing schools as a supposition and was told such a move was unnecessary.

Granted my intervi rnph-hmr

Granted my view of the situation is limited to the latter portion of the first interview between Dr. Newsome and Mr. Bernstein on January 14, 1948. However, I cannot conceive of such views being expressed by a mature individual, the head of the History Department, who has set up objectivity as a major aim as and good Historian should do.

Mary B. Aldridge

Social Freeze

Dear Editor,

In the past few days there has been lengthy discussion about segregation in the schools of the South. I would like to point out to your readers a thought that might have escaped them in proposing a consolidated school system.

I had all my secondary education in the North, eight years was in a school that enrolled no Negroes. However the last four years I went to a consolidated school with an enrollment of about 1,500. Of this 1,500 there were about 200 Negroes. These pupils had absolutely no chance to participate in extra-curricular activity because of a social freeze that was given them by the other students.

There was no possible way for them to learn the art of leadership. They were social outcasts. If they were treated this way in the North, what would happen in consolidated schools in the South. The Negro communities of the South need leaders; let them obtain their training in the secondary schools in which they will be on a social level with their fellow students.

Few advocators of consolidation have considered this view I wish that they would.

Bill Duncan

To The Editor:

You should be reprimanded severely for the manner in which you handled the Bernstein case. Before publicizing such serious charges against the History Department, you should have checked carefully several other available sources of information. This, either you did very poorly or not at all.

Your reporter garbled and misrepresented Dr. Newsome's telephone account. You failed to contact faculty members who had fought Bernstein: you merely accepted his word for what they said. You did not interview any of the history graduate students who know Bernstein and faculty. Some of their opinions may have been quite enlightening. To heap coals on the fire, your editorial of January 22 helped to spread several damaging rumors.

The good reputation of both the History Department and the University has been impaired by either your carelessness or desire for sensationalism. You should therefore exert yourself to get the facts and publish them as quickly as possible.

Legislature's Functions Explained

By Pete Gerns and Steve Millikin

By way of introduction: The UNC legislature passed a resolution last fall stipulating that a committee of five members be given the task of acquainting the tudent body with the work and aims of its legislative body in a bi-weekly coverage by the Daily Tar Heel. This is the first article of this series.

Before we go into detail on the legislature's actions, we believe that it is necessary to tell you about the composition and function of your legislative body.

According to Article I of the constitution, the legislature is composed of fifty members, half of whom are elected annually in April, the other half being chosen in December. These members are apportioned among men and women students living in dormitories and men and women living elsewhere in what is commonly referred to as "town district". The number of representatives from these districts is determined on a proportional basis.

The following are among the powers of legislature as outlined in the constitution:

1) to levy and collect all students fees except athletic fees.

2) to appropriate funds for student publications.

3) to ratify or reject all appointments made by the President of the Student body.

4) to override a presidential veto.

5) to establish its own rules of procedure.

6) to seat and reject members of the Legislature.

7) to make all laws governing the conduct of student elections.

8) to determine offenses against the Student body.

9) to make recommendations to the Student Welfare Board concerning matters affecting the Student body not within the power of the Student body to adjust.

10) to require reports from all organizations receiving appropriations from the legislature.

11) to review rules made by the Dance committee and the House Privileges board, and

12) to make all laws necessary and proper to promote the general welfare of the Student body.

Our legislature meets six times during each quarter on Thursday nights. Its meeting start at 7:30 and are open to the student body.

In order to expedite its meetings, four committees handle most of the business brought before the assembly. It is their duty to render an opinion on all matters submitted to them in a report to the legislators before these matters are further discussed and acted upon.

Let's take the establishment of the Community Chest committee as an example. A member of legislature first proposed in what is called a "resolution" that a community chest be established on the campus to alleviate students who are constantly asked to donate to worthy causes and are therefore often unable to contribute as they would like to.

This resolution was referred to a committee to check on its advisability. Many factors had to be taken into consideration by the committee: What would students like to see done about it? How could the chest best fulfill its functions? Who would administer it? The WSSF drive was already on its way at that time and it was obvious that several other worthy causes would have to be left out. The committee therefore had to look for a better solution. They finally found one in the setting up of a committee of legislators to meet with representatives for all organizations who wanted to hold a drive during the school year of 1947-48. This committee has the power to set the dates of various drives and space them in the best interest of students. Since this measure was the best that the committee believed it could find under the circumstances, it reported its opinion to the legislature at the next session.

The four committees of our legislature have definite functions. The Ways and Means committee, headed by Basil Sherrill last fall and now under the chairmanship of Tag Montague, is the most important one. It has to consider and report on all bills except those on finances, elections, parliamentary tests, and rules.

The rules committee with Jim Fort, replacing Herman Baker as chairman keeps the attendance records of all legislators, reminds them when they have unexcused absences, and handle all resolutions pertaining to the by-laws of legislature.

The elections committee where Jess Dedmond has replaced Miles Smith as chairman considers and initiates regulations covering elections.

The finance committe has recently changed hands from Bill Mackie to Ernest House. It considers all financial matters, it receives all budget information from the budget committee and presents it to the legislature when the time comes to draw up budgets for another year.

The legislature also has four officers (The vice-president of the student body presides but is not considered a member of the assembly). Heading the list is the speaker-pro-tem, holding the most coveted, if not active position. He presides over legislature whenever the vice-president is absent. This office is currently held by Miles Smith, having replaces Charlie Long in the last election.

The clerk of legislature is also chairman of the archives com- Stephen Millikin was chosen to succeed himself in this office. Order in the assembly is kept by Don Logue who replaced Jack Devore as sergeant-at-arms.

Next in line to the speakership is the parliamentarian who is also chairman of the parliamentary committee; one of its duties is to give parliamentary tests to the assembly. The parliamentarian, to which office Pete Gerns has been re-elected, enforces parliamentary proceedure during the sessions.

In the next installment of this eries we will try to evaluate what has been accomplished by your legislative body during the fall.
